Fair Debt Collection Practices Act Notice: The forms in this chapter are drafted for use in nonconsumer transactions, to which federal and state fair debt collection acts do not apply. The Texas Property Code provides that a trustee or a substitute trustee is not a debt collector under Texas law. Tex. Prop. Code § 51.0075(b). If, however, the attorney wishes to try to adapt these forms for a consumer transaction, the notice contained in clause 14-7-1 in this chapter should be incorporated in the first correspondence the attorney has with the consumer. Additional modifications to the forms also may be required. Case law is unclear, and there is no Fifth Circuit authority on what additional collection efforts, if any, may be made during the thirty-day period during which the consumer may request debt verification. Nothing may be included with the notice that negates the notice or would lead an unsophisticated person to misunderstand the right to contest the debt. Chauncey v. JDR Recovery Corp., 118 F.3d 516, 519 (7th Cir. 1997) (demand that payment be received within thirty days or “a decision to pursue other avenues to collect the amount due will be made” found to contradict notice); Terran v. Kaplan, 109 F.3d 1428, 1434 (9th Cir. 1997) (statement that “[u]nless an immediate telephone call is made . . . we may find it necessary to recommend to our client that they proceed with legal action” held not a demand for payment and thus not contradictory or overshadowing). The safest course of action would be to send only the notice found in clause 14-7-1 and wait thirty days before making any other collection efforts. The attorney, as a debt collector under the federal and state acts, can be personally liable to the consumer for failure to comply with the acts and should review this area of the law with care. See the section titled “Fair Debt Collection Practices” in chapter 2 of this manual and the materials in section 14.12.

Fair Credit Reporting Act: Any financial institution that extends credit to an individual and regularly and in the ordinary course of business reports negative information to a credit bureau must give its individual customers a clear and conspicuous written notice about reporting negative information. A financial institution complies with the notice requirement if the institution uses a model notice promulgated by the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System. There are two model notices, one that may be used before reporting negative information to a credit bureau and one that may be used after reporting negative information to a credit bureau. If the financial institution did not include the notice in its initial loan documentation or related communication, the notice should be given with the first correspondence concerning the foreclosure. 15 U.S.C. § 1681s-2(a)(7); 12 C.F.R. pt. 222. The model forms of notice are found in clauses 14-7-2 and 14-7-3. See the section titled “Fair Credit Reporting Act” in chapter 2.

All foreclosure notices must be sent by certified mail and should be sent return receipt requested. For real estate foreclosures, the notice must be addressed to the debtor at the debtor’s last known address. Tex. Prop. Code § 51.002(e). For personal property foreclosures, the notice should be sent to the address specified in the security agreement or other agreement or, if none, to any address reasonable under the circumstances. Tex. Bus. & Com. Code § 1.201(b)(36). For foreclosure of a debt secured by a debtor’s residence there is a presumption that the residential address is to be used for notice unless the debtor notifies the mortgage servicer otherwise. Tex. Prop. Code § 51.0001(2)(A). For all other debts the notices are sent to the last known address of the debtor as shown by the records of the mortgage servicer. Tex. Prop. Code § 51.0001(2)(B). If there is doubt about the proper address, it is good practice to send the notice to each address in the file. If two borrowers reside at the same address, the attorney may wish to send the letter separately to each person at the address. Some attorneys also send a copy of the letter to each party by first-class mail to attempt actual delivery if the certified mail is not accepted by the borrower. That attempt should be noted on the letter.

The mortgage servicer must give at least twenty days’ notice of default before posting the property for foreclosure if the property is the debtor’s residence. Tex. Prop. Code § 51.002(d). See the notice of default and intent to accelerate, form 14-4 in this chapter.

A debtor is required to inform the mortgage servicer of any change of address of the debtor. Tex. Prop. Code § 51.0021. Form 14-2 is a “Notice of Change of Debtor’s Address” to comply with this requirement.

If the mortgagee has not insisted on strict performance of the loan documents in the past, the mortgagee should advise the borrower of its decision to strictly enforce the agreements in the future. Dhanani Investments, Inc. v. Second Master Bilt Homes, Inc., 650 S.W.2d 220, 222 (Tex. App.—Fort Worth 1983, no writ). See form 14-1 in this chapter.

§ 14.5:2 Notice of Maturity and Demand for Payment

If the note has matured by its own terms, the mortgagee or mortgage servicer should demand payment. See form 14-3 in this chapter.

§ 14.5:3 Notice of Default and Intent to Accelerate

The notices of default and of intent to accelerate are waived in the promissory note form (see form 6-1 in this manual). However, Texas courts deem acceleration a harsh remedy. Shumway v. Horizon Credit Corp., 801 S.W.2d 890, 892–93 (Tex. 1991).
Even if notices of default and of intent to accelerate have been expressly waived, many attorneys elect to send this notice, viewing the waiver more as a safeguard to protect the mortgagee from the complications of minor technicalities than as a license to foreclose on borrowers without notice or demand. See form 14-4 in this chapter.

§ 14.5:4  Notice of Acceleration

The notice of acceleration is used if the mortgagee or mortgage servicer gives notice of intent to accelerate and the borrower fails to cure the default. See form 14-5 in this chapter.

§ 14.5:5  Reinstatement Agreement

Sometimes the mortgagee and the borrower will agree to continue the payment terms of the note after acceleration. However, once the maturity of a note is accelerated, limitations on the entire debt will begin to run. A reinstatement agreement should rescind the acceleration and reinstate the payment provisions in the note. See form 14-6 in this chapter.

§ 14.5:6  Affidavit of Posting and Filing

The affidavit of posting and filing is not required by law, but it serves to document where and when the notice was distributed and will normally be required by title companies. See form 14-8 in this chapter. If a newspaper or other public advertisement is used, the company publishing the notice should provide an affidavit of the publication, and the attorney should provide a copy of the page for the client’s file. Some attorneys prefer to use a certificate form instead of an affidavit.

§ 14.5:7  Affidavit of Mailing

The affidavit of mailing is not required by law, but it serves to document legal notice mailing compliance and will normally be required by title companies. See form 14-9 in this chapter. Such an affidavit, completed and signed by a person knowledgeable of the facts, is prima facie evidence of service. Tex. Prop. Code § 51.002(e). Some attorneys prefer to use a certificate form instead of an affidavit.

§ 14.6  Foreclosure Documents Unique to Real Property

§ 14.6:1  Appointment of Substitute Trustee

Forms 14-10 and 14-11 in this chapter may be used if the mortgagee or mortgage servicer wishes for someone other than the trustee named in the deed of trust to act. The appointment may also be made in the notice of trustee’s sale. See section 14.6:2 below. If required by the deed of trust, the appointment of substitute trustee must be recorded in the real property records before posting the notice of foreclosure.

§ 14.6:2  Notice of Trustee’s Sale

Form 14-12 in this chapter has been adapted to include personal property that may be covered by the deed of trust and that the mortgagee may wish to foreclose on with the foreclosure of the real property. See section 14.2:7 above. Note that, once appointed, the substitute trustee is the trustee under the deed of trust and is referred to as such rather than as the substitute trustee.
The appointment or authorization of a trustee or substitute trustee made in a notice of sale is effective as of the date of the notice if the notice—

1. complies with sections 51.002 and 51.0075(e) of the Texas Property Code;
2. is signed by an attorney or agent of the mortgagee or mortgage servicer; and
3. contains a statement in all capital letters, bold-faced type, to read as follows:

   THIS INSTRUMENT APPOINTS THE SUBSTITUTE TRUSTEE(S) IDENTIFIED TO SELL THE PROPERTY DESCRIBED IN THE SECURITY INSTRUMENT IDENTIFIED IN THIS NOTICE OF SALE. THE PERSON SIGNING THIS NOTICE IS THE ATTORNEY OR AUTHORIZED AGENT OF THE MORTGAGEE OR MORTGAGE SERVICER.

§ 14.6:3 Agenda of Public Sale

Forms 14-14 and 14-15 in this chapter, although not required by law, serve to document the sale.

§ 14.6:4 Trustee’s Deed

Form 14-16 in this chapter has been adapted to include personal property that may be covered by the deed of trust and that the mortgagee may wish to foreclose on with the foreclosure of the real property. See section 14.2:7 above. Note that, once appointed, the substitute trustee is the trustee under the deed of trust and is referred to as such rather than as the substitute trustee.

Deeds transferring an interest to or from an individual, including a trustee, must contain the confidentiality notice required by Tex. Prop. Code § 11.008. See section 3.16 in this manual.

§ 14.6:5 Foreclosure Affidavit

Form 14-17 in this chapter, although not required by law, serves to document the legal requirements of the sale. Title companies will normally require an affidavit from the trustee attesting to these matters. This form may be used as a stand-alone document or may be attached to the trustee’s deed. It may also be used in conjunction with the affidavit of posting and filing (form 14-8) and the affidavit of mailing (form 14-9) with the appropriate modifications.

§ 14.6:6 Notice and Affidavit of Advancement

If the mortgagee advances funds to cure a default under the deed of trust to secure assumption or a similar form used to secure performance, the mortgagee should use the notice of advancement (form 14-18 in this chapter) and the affidavit of advancement (form 14-19) to protect its rights and put parties on notice of the payment.

§ 14.6:7 IRS Notice Letter

If the property is subject to an Internal Revenue Service lien, the notification letter at form 14-20 in this chapter may be used. See section 14.2:5 above for information about the IRS lien.
§ 14.6:8   Rescission of Nonjudicial Foreclosure Sale

Texas Property Code section 51.016 provides a nonexclusive method for rescission of a non-judicial foreclosure sale of residential real property, as defined in section 51.016(a). See Tex. Prop. Code § 51.016. Not later than the fifteenth day after the date of a foreclosure sale, a mortgagee, trustee, or substitute trustee may rescind the sale if one or more of these statutory reasons listed in section 51.016(b) exists:

1. the statutory requirements for the sale were not satisfied;
2. the default leading to the sale was cured before the sale;
3. a receivership or dependent probate administration involving the property was pending at the time of sale;
4. a condition specified in the conditions of sale prescribed by the trustee or substitute trustee before the sale and made available in writing to prospective bidders at the sale was not met;
5. the mortgagee or mortgage servicer and the debtor agreed before the sale to cancel the sale based on an enforceable written agreement by the debtor to cure the default; or
6. at the time of the sale, a court-ordered or automatic stay of the sale imposed in a bankruptcy case filed by a person with an interest in the property was in effect.

The party rescinding the sale must serve written notice of rescission on the purchaser and each debtor obligated to pay the debt that describes the reason for the rescission and includes recording information for any affected trustee’s deed. Tex. Prop. Code § 51.016(c)(1). See form 14-40 in this chapter. This notice must be served by certified mail in the county where all or a part of the property is located. Tex. Prop. Code § 51.016(c)(2), (d). The rescinding mortgagee, trustee, or substitute trustee shall record in the real property records of the county in which the written notice of rescission is filed an affidavit stating the date the bid amount was returned together with the certified mail, electronic or wire transfer, or courier service delivery tracking information. Tex. Prop. Code § 51.016(f). See form 14-41. This affidavit is prima facie evidence of the return of the bid amount. Tex. Prop. Code § 51.016(g). A completed rescission restores the mortgagee and debtor to their respective title, rights, and obligations under the instrument relating to the foreclosed property that existed immediately before the sale. Tex. Prop. Code § 51.016(h). No action challenging the effectiveness of a rescission under this section may be commenced, unless filed on or before the thirtieth calendar day after the notices of rescission are filed for recording. Tex. Prop. Code § 51.016(j). A rescission under this section is not effective as to a creditor or subsequent good-faith purchaser for value. Tex. Prop. Code § 51.016(i). Damages in a suit challenging the effectiveness of the rescission or resulting from the rescission are substantially limited to the amount of the bid price. See Tex. Prop. Code § 51.016(k), (l). Specific performance is not available. Tex. Prop. Code § 51.016(k).

§ 14.7:1   Waiver of Right to Notice after Default

A debtor or secondary obligor may waive its rights (but not the rights of other parties) to notice of a public disposition of personal property collateral, but the waiver must be signed after the default has occurred. Tex. Bus. & Com. Code § 9.624(a). See form 14-21 in this chapter for a waiver.
§ 14.7:2 Notice of Public Disposition

The posted notice of public sale can be used for public posting and advertisement of the sale. The attorney should consider advising the client about the requirements of a commercially reasonable sale and the risks associated with it. See form 14-23 in this chapter for a notice of public sale.

§ 14.7:3 Agenda of Public Sale

The agenda of public sale is not required by the Uniform Commercial Code, but it serves to document that the sale was completed. See form 14-24 in this chapter.

§ 14.7:4 Bill of Sale

The bill of sale evidences the transfer of ownership of the personal property to the successful bidder. See form 14-25 in this chapter. If applicable, a disclaimer of warranties should be included. To disclaim warranties, the attorney must use language similar to that provided in Tex. Bus. & Com. Code § 9.610(f).

§ 14.8 Strict Foreclosure of Personal Property

§ 14.8:1 Notice of Strict Foreclosure

The notice of strict foreclosure notifies the debtor and others required to be notified of the secured party’s proposal to accept personal property collateral in satisfaction of the debt. See Tex. Bus. & Com. Code §§ 9.620–622. See form 14-26 in this chapter for a notice of strict foreclosure.

§ 14.8:2 Consent to Strict Foreclosure

The debtor must consent to the secured party’s proposal to accept the collateral in satisfaction of the debt. Tex. Bus. & Com. Code § 9.620(a)(1), (c). The consent may be an express consent made by the debtor agreeing to the secured party’s proposal in a writing signed after default. Tex. Bus. & Com. Code § 9.620(c)(1), (c)(2). See form 14-22 in this chapter for a consent form.

§ 14.8:3 Objection to Strict Foreclosure

A letter of objection notifies the secured party of a person’s objection to the secured party’s proposal to accept the collateral in satisfaction of the debt. See form 14-27 in this chapter. The letter may be sent by any person to whom the secured party sent its proposal to accept the collateral. To be effective, the objection letter must be received by the secured party within twenty

§ 14.9 Private Disposition of Personal Property

§ 14.9:1 Waiver of Notice after Default

A debtor or secondary obligor may waive its rights (but not the rights of other parties) to notice of a private disposition of personal property collateral, but the waiver must be signed after the default has occurred. Tex. Bus. & Com. Code § 9.624(a). See form 14-21 in this chapter for a waiver.

§ 14.9:2 Notice of Private Disposition

Texas Business and Commerce Code section 9.613 sets forth an approved form for notice of public or private disposition of personal property collateral other than consumer goods. See Tex. Bus. & Com. Code § 9.613. The approved form for notification of public or private disposition of personal property collateral that consists of consumer goods is set out in Tex. Bus. &
Com. Code § 9.614. Notice must be sent to the debtor, any secondary obligor, and, if the collateral is other than consumer goods, any other person from whom the secured party has received, before the notification date, an authenticated claim of interest in the collateral, and any other secured party or lienholder described in section 9.611(c)(3)(B), (c)(3)(C). Tex. Bus. &
Com. Code § 9.611(c). See form 14-28 in this chapter for a notice if the collateral is consumer goods and form 14-29 for a notice if the collateral is not consumer goods.

§ 14.9:3 Memorandum of Private Sale

The agenda of private sale is not required by the Uniform Commercial Code, but it serves to document that the sale was completed. See form 14-30 in this chapter.

§ 14.9:4 Bill of Sale

The bill of sale evidences the transfer of ownership of the personal property to the buyer at the private foreclosure sale. See form 14-25 in this chapter. If applicable, a disclaimer of warranties should be included. To disclaim warranties, the attorney

§ 14.10 Security Interest Included in Deed of Trust

If the deed of trust contains the security interest covering personal property, the lienholder may foreclose the personal property

§ 14.11 Collateral Transfer of Note and Lien Foreclosure

The collateral transfer of note and lien form creates a security interest in an instrument, the collateral promissory note. The foreclosure of the collateral note under a collateral transfer is governed by the Texas Business and Commerce Code rather applicable to the situation: strict foreclosure, public disposition, or private disposition. Without foreclosing on the collateral note, the secured party may collect and enforce the collateral note, including, if the collateral note is in default, accelerating the collateral note and exercising any foreclosure remedy contained in the underlying deed of trust. See the collateral transfer of note and lien, form 9-8 in this manual.

Notice of Default
[Home Equity Loan]

Re: [describe note and loan documents]

[Salutation]

This letter is to give you notice of default under the referenced loan documents on your Texas Constitution article XVI, section 50(a)(6), home equity loan. This default consists of [describe default; if the default is monetary, include the amount in default and the name of the mortgagee]. I am attempting to collect this indebtedness, and any information obtained will be used for that purpose. This letter is being sent to your attention in accordance with state and federal law.

You are notified that if the default is not cured within twenty days from the date of posting of this letter, the mortgagee will enforce its rights under the loan documents. Specifically, the mortgagee will accelerate the maturity of your home equity note and declare due and payable the unpaid principal balance, together with accrued but unpaid interest and fees and expenses allowed by law. If the amount due is not timely paid, the mortgagee will seek a court order allowing the mortgagee to foreclose the lien you granted on your homestead under the loan documents in accordance with Texas Constitution article XVI, section 50(a)(6), and rules 735 and 736 of the Texas Rules of Civil Procedure.

In accordance with federal laws regarding fair debt collections, unless you, within thirty days after receipt of this notice, dispute the validity of the debt set forth above, or any portion thereof, the indebtedness will be assumed to be valid. If you notify the undersigned in writing... within the thirty-day period that the indebtedness, or any portion thereof, is disputed, I will obtain a verification of the indebtedness, and I will mail you that verification. If within the same thirty-day period you request in writing the name and address of the original mortgagee, and if the original mortgagee is different from the current lender, I will furnish you with that information. Federal laws do not require that I wait until the end of the thirty-day period before taking action to collect the debt. If, however, you have requested verification of the debt or the name and address of the original mortgagee within the thirty-day period, I will cease collection activities until the requested information has been mailed to you.

If you have any questions, please consult your legal counsel.

Re: [describe note and loan documents]

By letter dated [date of letter], I notified you of a default under the referenced loan documents on your Texas Constitution article XVI, section 50(a)(6), home equity loan. I am attempting to collect this indebtedness, and any information obtained will be used for that purpose.

Because the default on your home equity note has not been cured, the mortgagee has accelerated the maturity of your note, declaring all unpaid principal, together with accrued but unpaid interest and fees and expenses allowed by law, immediately due and payable. The mortgagee will now seek a court order allowing the mortgagee to foreclose the lien you granted on your homestead under the loan documents in accordance with Texas Constitution article XVI, section 50(a)(6), and rules 735 and 736 of the Texas Rules of Civil Procedure.

Water Rights Conveyancing Documents

I. Overview of Water Law

§ 16.1 Introduction

Texas real estate transactions increasingly involve issues of water resources and supply. These issues affect the use and valuation of the land. In addition, transactions involving the purchase or lease of existing water rights (surface or groundwater) are becoming increasingly common. Surface water in Texas is owned by the state, but groundwater is privately owned. While both are interests in real property, the law applicable to surface water and groundwater is different. The issues in transactions involving the same are different too. This chapter provides an overview of Texas water law and some basic forms for the sale, lease or assignment, permitting, and mortgage of surface water and groundwater rights. For additional in-depth discussion of Texas surface water law, see Mary K. Sahs, ed., Essentials of Texas Water Resources, pt. B, “Surface Water,” State Bar of Texas (6th ed. 2020).

Surface water is the property of the state. Once surface water has been appropriated, and the permittee has perfected the appropriation, the holder of the water right has superior title to all the world except the State. See, e.g., Texas Water Rights Commission v. Wright, 464 S.W.2d 642 (Tex. 1971); South Texas Water Co. v. Bieri, 247 S.W.2d 268 (Tex. App.—Galveston 1952, writ ref'd n.r.e.) (state owns the corpus of the water, appropriator owns a usufructory right). The permittee’s rights, and the transfer or conveyance of those rights, are subject to the prior appropriation doctrine and the police powers of the Texas Commission on Environmental Quality (TCEQ). See Texas Commission on Environmental Quality v. Texas Farm Bureau, 460 S.W.3d 264, 266 (Tex. App.—Corpus Christi–Edinburg 2015, pet. denied); Tex. Water Code § 5.013, ch. 11; 30 Tex. Admin. Code chs. 295, 297.

As of September 30, 2018, one hundred confirmed groundwater districts were operating across Texas. Thus, parties to real estate transactions must carefully consider whether they are dealing with issues of surface water rights, groundwater rights, or both, and they must also consider which regulatory entities have jurisdiction over those rights.
The TCEQ and the Texas Water Development Board (TWDB) are the two state agencies principally involved in the implementation of Texas’s surface water laws and policies. The TWDB serves as the state’s financier for major water projects. The regulation of water and sewer utilities, including the responsibility for rate and other economic regulation, and the jurisdiction over certain water supply and sewer service corporations, is under the Public Utility Commission of Texas. The TCEQ’s jurisdiction includes water rights, water pollution and water quality, wholesale water rates, dam safety, the regulation of public sewer and drinking water systems, and limited groundwater district formation and supervision. The TCEQ is the adjudicatory body for all contested surface water rights cases and has substantive and procedural rulemaking authority. See Tex. Water Code § 5.013.

Groundwater is water occurring under the surface of land, including percolating water or artesian water. See generally Tex. Water Code §§ 35.002(5), 36.001(5). The underflow of a surface water river or stream or the underground flow of water in confined channels is not groundwater. See Tex. Water Code § 11.021(a). Groundwater is presumed to be percolating unless it is proven to be otherwise. Texas Co. v. Burkett, 296 S.W. 273, 278 (Tex. 1927); Denis v. Kickapoo Land Co., 771 S.W.2d 235, 237 (Tex. App.—Austin 1989, writ denied); Pecos County WCID No. I v. Williams, 271 S.W.2d 503, 506 (Tex. App.—El Paso 1954, writ ref’d n.r.e.). The Texas Water Code defines “groundwater” as water percolating below the surface of the earth. See Tex. Water Code §§ 35.002(5), 36.001(5).

Artesian water is groundwater confined under pressure by an impermeable geological layer, capable of flowing “above the first impervious stratum below the surface of the ground” when properly cased in a well. See Tex. Water Code § 11.201. The only significant difference between the legal treatment of percolating water and artesian water is that there are statutory provisions prohibiting the waste of artesian water and relating to artesian water produced from wells in the Edwards Aquifer. See Tex. Water Code § 11.201(d)–(e).

Underflow is that portion of a surface watercourse that flows through sand and gravel deposits beneath the surface of the bed or banks of a stream. Underflow is surface water and is the property of the state. Tex. Water Code § 11.021(a). The laws governing the allocation and use of surface water apply to underflow. Burkett, 296 S.W. at 277; Denis, 771 S.W.2d at 237; see Tex. Water Code § 11.021.

Water “confined to underground streams with definite channels” means a subsurface watercourse that has all the characteristics of a surface watercourse, including a bed, banks that form a channel, and a current of water. Denis, 771 S.W.2d at 237. Ownership rights for this type of subsurface watercourse are the same as for surface water. Tex. Water Code § 11.021(a), see Edwards Aquifer Authority v. Day, 369 S.W.3d 814, 822 & n.28 (Tex. 2012). Whether subsurface water is the underground flow of water in a defined subterranean channel or percolating groundwater is a determination that must be made on a case-by-case basis. Burkett, 296 S.W. at 277; Denis, 771 S.W.2d at 237.

In 1904, the Texas Supreme Court applied the English common-law rule of capture to groundwater and held that the owner of land could pump unlimited quantities of water from under his land, regardless of whether his action drained water from under his neighbor’s land. Houston & T.C. Railway Co. v. East, 81 S.W. 279 (Tex. 1904) (the “East case”). Under common law, a landowner could use groundwater at a location other than his land and sell groundwater that he captured below the surface of his land for off-site use by a third party. Texas Co. v. Burkett, 296 S.W. 273 (Tex. 1927). Texas courts subsequently upheld the right of a landowner to capture and use groundwater even when doing so affects surface water supplies. Denis v. Kickapoo Land Co., 771 S.W.2d 235, 233–37 (Tex. App.—Austin 1989, writ denied). Pecos County WCID No. 1 v. Williams, 271 S.W.3d 503 (Tex. App.—El Paso 1954, writ ref’d n.r.e.). The supreme court has declined to overrule the holding of East, finding that the common-law rule of capture does not preclude ownership in place, and that duty has been delegated to the Texas legislature. Sipriano v. Great Spring Waters of America, Inc., 1 S.W.3d 75, 79 (Tex. 1999), City of Corpus Christi v. City of Pleasanton, 276 S.W.2d 798, 803 (Tex. 1955), Tex. Const. art. XVI, § 59. In Edwards Aquifer Authority v. Day, 369 S.W.3d 814, 827–33 (Tex. 2012), the supreme court reaffirmed the proposition in response to the State of Texas and the Edwards Aquifer Authority challenge to this well-established rule.

There are only two significant limitations at common law on the landowner’s right to capture and use groundwater: (1) the landowner cannot capture and use groundwater maliciously for the purpose of injuring a neighbor or in a manner that constitutes wanton and willful waste (City of Corpus Christi, 276 S.W.2d 798), and (2) the landowner may be liable for damages if he negligently pumps groundwater in a manner that causes subsidence of neighboring land (Friends-wood Development Co. v. Smith-Southwest Industries, Inc., 576 S.W.2d 21 (Tex. 1978)). These limitations are recognized in section 36.002 of the Texas Water Code. Tex. Water Code § 36.002(b)(1); see Day, 369 S.W.3d at 832.

In recent years, Texas courts have relied on the state’s more developed oil and gas jurisprudence to address issues regarding the nature and extent of a landowner’s ownership interest in groundwater under his land. See, e.g., Coyote Lake Ranch, LLC v. City of Lubbock, 498 S.W.3d 53, 58 (Tex. 2016); Day, 369 S.W.3d at 817, 831; Edwards Aquifer Authority v. Bragg, 421 S.W.3d 118, 137–38 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 2013, pet. denied); City of Del Rio v. Clayton Sam Colt Hamilton Trust, 269 S.W.3d 613 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 2008, pet. denied). These questions have included not only whether a landowner owns groundwater in place under his land or actually vests only when the landowner has captured the groundwater by producing it and putting it to a beneficial use but also whether the landowner’s interest in the groundwater is a vested right that would enable the landowner to challenge groundwater regulation by a governmental authority as an unconstitutional taking of the landowner’s ownership of groundwater. The courts have also relied on oil and gas precedents to determine issues related to reservations of groundwater in place and conflicts between the severed dominant groundwater estate and servient surface estate.

In City of Del Rio, the trust, which was the owner of a large ranch, sold a fifteen-acre portion of the ranch to the city of Del Rio. In the sale the trust reserved the rights to all groundwater under the land but expressly surrendered any right to use the surface estate of the fifteen acres to access and develop the reserved groundwater rights. City of Del Rio, 269 S.W.3d at 615. The trust had never produced groundwater from the fifteen-acre tract. After the sale, the city drilled a well on the land for the production of groundwater for its municipal water supply. The trust sued the city on the grounds that the trust was the owner... of the groundwater due to its reservation. The city, using an interpretation of the “rule of capture” as a theory of ownership, rather than a defense to liability for the pumping and use of groundwater in place, argued that the landowner’s interest in the groundwater under his land is not a vested right but vests only when the landowner has “captured” the groundwater by pumping it and using it. Under this argument, because the trust had never produced groundwater from the fifteen-acre tract, the trust did not have an ownership interest in the groundwater that could be reserved in the deed, and therefore the city owned the groundwater under the fifteen acres. The court rejected the city’s argument, holding instead that “under the absolute ownership theory, the Trust was entitled to sever the groundwater from the surface estate by reservation.” City of Del Rio, 269 S.W.3d at 617. The court reasoned that the trust could access the groundwater from an adjacent tract of land without the need to access the surface estate of the fifteen-acre tract. City of Del Rio, 269 S.W.3d at 618–19. The Texas Supreme Court denied the city’s petition for review.

In Edwards Aquifer Authority v. Day, the landowners sued the Edwards Aquifer Authority (EAA) on the grounds that the EAA’s denial of the landowners’ permit applications constituted a regulatory taking of the landowners’ vested rights in the groundwater. The Texas Supreme Court affirmed many aspects of the EAA’s final order regarding the permit applications at issue but remanded the case to the trial court for further proceedings on the taking claim. The supreme court affirmed the court of appeals’ key holding, stating that “land ownership includes an interest in groundwater in place that cannot be taken for public use without adequate compensation.” Day, 369 S.W.3d at 817. The court ruled that prior decisions neither recognized nor precluded ownership in place. The court noted that it had held oil and gas in place to be owned by the landowner long ago, and concluded “we find no reason to treat groundwater differently” Day, 369 S.W.3d at 823.

In a subsequent case, Bragg, 421 S.W.3d at 137–38, the court relied on the supreme court’s ruling in Day that groundwater rights in place are vested rights, constitutionally protected from a government taking, including a regulatory taking resulting from the permitting decisions of groundwater conservation districts (GCDs), without just compensation. The Texas Supreme Court denied the Edwards Aquifer Authority’s petition for review.

In 2016, the supreme court again relied on Texas oil and gas precedents in Coyote Lake Ranch. The court held that the groundwater estate was by necessity the “dominant estate” when severed from the surface estate. Coyote Lake Ranch, 498 S.W.3d at 64. Relying on the rationale adopted by the court for the mineral estate, the supreme court also held that the accommodation doctrine applied in conflicts between the superior groundwater estate and the servient surface estate that are not expressly addressed in the agreements between the parties. Coyote Lake Ranch, 498 S.W.3d at 64.

The Texas legislature amended section 36.002 of the Water Code to address the issue of ownership of groundwater in place and the authority of GCDs to regulate the pumping and use of groundwater. To some extent this section, as amended, codifies the existing case law. See Day, 369 S.W.3d at 842.

Section 36.002(a) states that the “legislature recognizes that a landowner owns the groundwater below the surface of the landowner’s land as real property.” Section 36.002(b) provides that this ownership interest entitles the landowner to drill for and produce the groundwater “subject to” the authority of GCDs to limit or prohibit drilling and to regulate production as described in section 36.002(d). Section 36.002(b–1) also recognizes landowners’ common law rights but provides that the “groundwater ownership and rights described by this section [do not] entitle a landowner . . . to the right to capture a specific amount of groundwater below the surface of the landowner’s land.” Tex. Water Code § 36.002 (b–1). While the term vested right is never used in the statute, section 36.002(c) expressly states that nothing in the Water Code “shall be construed as granting the authority to deprive or divest a landowner . . . of the groundwater ownership and rights described by this section.” Tex. Water Code § 36.002.
The common-law rule of capture in Texas, as adopted by the supreme court in the 1904 East case is being eroded. GCDs, where they exist, have the authority to adopt regulations that require permits for drilling wells and pumping groundwater and that impose limitations on a landowner’s ability to produce groundwater and to export it outside the district. Tex. Water Code §§ 36.001(1), 36.101, 36.113, 36.116, 36.122. Restrictive covenants that prohibit a landowner’s drilling of water wells have been held to be enforceable against the right of a landowner to access its groundwater. See Dyegard Land Partnership v. Hoover, 39 S.W.3d 300 (Tex. App.—Fort Worth 2001, no pet.). For more in-depth discussion of restrictive covenants affecting real property see chapter 23 in this manual.

The state has the power to impose reasonable regulations on real property, including groundwater, to protect the public health and welfare, as part of its police powers. In addition, the Conservation Amendment (article XVI, section 59, of the Texas Constitution) declares the right and duty of the state to conserve and develop its natural resources and gives the legislature authority and duty to pass all laws appropriate to these conservation goals. See Tex. Const. art. XVI, § 59; City of Corpus Christi v. City of Pleasanton, 276 S.W.2d 798, 803 (Tex. 1955). The legislature has emphasized that groundwater conservation districts (GCDs) are the state’s preferred method of groundwater management. Tex. Water Code § 36.0015; see Edwards Aquifer Authority v. Day, 369 S.W.3d 814, 835 & n.119 (Tex. 2012), Sipriano v. Great Spring Waters of America, Inc., 1 S.W.3d 75, 79 & n.33 (Tex. 1999). For more in-depth discussion of restrictive covenants affecting real property see Mary K. Sahs, ed., Essentials of Texas Water Resources, chs. 5 and 16, State Bar of Texas (6th ed. 2020).

GCDs may be created by special legislation or by the TCEQ on petition of landowners within the proposed district. See Tex. Water Code §§ 36.013–.021. Chapter 36 of the Texas Water Code sets out the main regulatory powers of general-law GCDs. Legislatively created GCDs may have powers and authority that differ from those of general-law districts. To the extent of any conflict between an individual GCD’s enabling legislation and the provisions of chapter 36, the provisions of the individual GCD’s special legislation controls. Tex. Water Code § 36.052(a). Although the legislation creating most districts follows closely the provisions of chapter 36, the enabling legislation of a legislatively created district must be reviewed to determine the scope of its jurisdiction and authority.

The Texas legislature has created several special-purpose districts that operate similar to GCDs but which are distinct, including the Edwards Aquifer Authority, the Harris-Galveston Subsidence District, and the Fort Bend Subsidence District. The enabling legislation of the latter two districts, originally established as special-law GCDs, was amended in 2003 to address the particularized purpose of regulating groundwater to prevent subsidence. Tex. Spec. Dist. Code §§ 8801.003, 8834.003. These districts focus on specific purposes other than simply regulating groundwater production. The regulatory requirements for transferring groundwater rights within the EAA and these subsidence districts are unique, making it important for attorneys to understand the substantive and procedural rules of each district.

Generally, most GCDs have the authority to incur debt, levy taxes, charge for services, obtain easements, and condemn property. See Tex. Water Code §§ 36.101–.124. Districts may impose fees to cover administrative acts of the district and production fees on pumping authorized in the district. Tex. Water Code § 36.205. A GCD may impose additional fees for exporting water out of the district but may not impose more restrictive permit conditions on transporters than the GCD imposes on existing in-district users. See Tex. Water Code § 36.122. A seller of residential real property must disclose whether the seller is aware (actual knowledge, without any duty of investigation) of any portion of the property being located within a GCD or subsidence district. See Tex. Prop. Code § 5.008(b)(9).
Each GCD has the power to implement its statutory authority through rulemaking and permitting. See Tex. Water Code §§ 36.101, 36.113, 36.1131, 36.117, 36.122. District rules may include well spacing and regulation of groundwater production by well production limits, including limits based on acreage or tract size, rate of production limits, or “managed depletion” (an approach that aims to control the amount and rate of depletion districtwide over the long term). See Tex. Water Code § 36.116. Within certain constraints, a GCD may also regulate groundwater production in a manner designed to preserve “historic or existing use.” Tex. Water Code § 36.116(b).

If land is within a GCD or a subsidence district, it is important to review the regulations of the district to determine any requirements and limitations on the landowner’s ability to access and produce groundwater. All wells must be permitted, unless they are exempted by statute or the GCD’s rules. Tex. Water Code §§ 36.113, 36.117. Wells used solely for domestic and livestock purposes, wells used for oil and gas production or surface mining activities, and wells existing at the time of the creation of the district are generally exempt from the permitting process. See Tex. Water Code § 36.117. Exempt wells may be required to be registered with the district, may have production report filing requirements, and may be subject to the payment of export fees. See Tex. Water Code § 36.117.

Information and maps of groundwater conservation districts are available on the TWDB website at www.twdb.texas.gov and the TCEQ website at https://www.tceq.texas.gov. Copies of district rules and district management plans generally must be obtained from the individual conservation district. Contact information for GCDs may be available on the Texas Alliance of Groundwater Districts website at https://www.texasgroundwater.org.

Landowners also should be aware of the tools for groundwater management implemented by the Texas legislature, as these processes and their results can affect the regulation of groundwater in a specific area of the state. Each GCD is required to develop a comprehensive management plan that addresses various management goals, includes specific performance standards, details actions and procedures to carry out the plan, and includes estimates of various aspects of the groundwater resources within the district. See Tex. Water Code § 36.1071(e). However, GCDs do not follow aquifer boundaries, and more than one district may have jurisdiction over a single aquifer. The TWDB must designate “groundwater management areas” for aquifers across the state to promote coordination among GCDs. See Tex. Water Code § 35.004; cf. Tex. Water Code § 36.002(13) (defining “management area”). GCDs within a groundwater management area sharing jurisdiction over the same aquifer are required to engage in a joint planning process to determine “desired future conditions” (as adopted by the district under Water Code section 36.108) for the aquifer on a five-year recurring basis. Tex. Water Code § 36.1071(a)(8).

The TCEQ has statutory authority to designate a “priority groundwater management area” if the area is currently experiencing critical groundwater problems or is anticipated to experience them within the next twenty-five years. Critical groundwater problems contemplated by the statute include shortages or contamination of groundwater supplies and land subsidence caused by the withdrawal of groundwater. Tex. Water Code § 35.007(a). Once an area is designated a priority groundwater management area, the landowners within the area may (1) create one or more general-law GCDs, (2) have the area annexed to an adjoining GCD, or (3) create one or more GCDs through the legislative process. Tex. Water Code § 35.012(a).

§ 16.3 Practical Considerations for Conveying Groundwater Rights

§ 16.3:1 Severability and Marketing of Groundwater Rights

In Edwards Aquifer Authority v. Day, 369 S.W.3d 814 (Tex. 2012), the Texas Supreme Court determined that groundwater rights may be severed from the surface estate and leased or sold to a party other than the owner of the surface estate. The supreme court held in Coyote Lake Ranch, LLC v. City of Lubbock, 498 S.W.3d 53, 64 (Tex. 2016), that general groundwater rights were the “dominant estate” to be treated similarly to severed mineral rights. Groundwater currently is the favored source of water for water marketers, but the purchase or lease of groundwater rights presents its own challenges, not the least of which is navigating the various regulatory regimes used by different groundwater conservation districts (GCDs). Even if the real estate or groundwater rights being considered are located outside of a GCD or priority groundwater management area, due consideration should be given to the potential for creation of a groundwater conservation district in the future.

§ 16.3:2 GCD Permitting

Groundwater permitting by a local groundwater conservation district (GCD) is affected, in part, by the district’s rules and management plan. When evaluating a prospective lease or purchase of groundwater rights from property within a GCD, the permitting implications of the transaction must be carefully considered. For example:

- Is the purchase or lease only of the groundwater rights in place or production rights, or is it also of existing permitted rights?
- Are there any existing permits, such as production or drilling permits, that can be transferred to the purchaser? If so, do the permits need to be amended to meet the purchaser’s needs?
- What permits or permit amendments, if any, will the buyer need for his intended use of the groundwater, and what are the district’s applicable permitting requirements?
- How and when in the closing process should the transfer of the groundwater rights and any existing permits be completed?
- Do the district’s permitting requirements allow for the purchaser’s desired objective?
- Are the district’s water use or export fees prohibitive?
- Do the district’s rules affect the relative advantage of well-field design or amount of contiguous acreage included in the permit?

Whether there is likely to be opposition to the buyer’s intended use of the groundwater by landowners sharing the same aquifer, other permit holders, or interested organizations, and whether past permitting decisions of the GCD indicate that there may be difficulty in obtaining the required permits is an important part of the purchaser’s due diligence. This is particularly important in areas in which there has been an increase of permitting of groundwater rights for development and transportation for use outside of the GCD. In these areas opposition may lead to contested hearings or litigation. At least one GCD refused to grant in full the requested operating and transport permits, even though the application was uncontested and the GCD staff recommended approval. See Forestar (USA) Real Estate Group, Inc. v. Lost Pines Groundwater Conservation District, No. 15369, 335th Dist. Ct., Lee County, Tex., filed March 14, 2014 (this case eventually settled by issuance of a smaller permit); but see Tex. Water Code § 36.4051(d) allowing an applicant to seek a contested case hearing following such a decision. In another instance, a water marketer’s plan to produce and transport groundwater from land not subject to a GCD, and thus not subject to production limits, was opposed by neighboring landowners who feared that the magnitude of the production would cause their wells to fail. The Texas legislature took action to give an existing GCD jurisdiction over the aquifer from which the groundwater would be produced and regulatory authority over the area previously located outside of any GCD. See Tex. Spec. Dist. Code §§ 8802.0035, 8802.1045.

§ 16.3:3 Other Due Diligence

Other issues a purchaser or lessee of groundwater rights should consider are the following:
• What types of legal or technical (for example, hydrogeological or well-field design) advice are necessary before closing, and should the closing be conditioned on the results of such analysis?

• What method of pricing the groundwater rights is most appropriate for the transaction? For example, should pricing be based on the amount of available or permitted production, a flat price per acre, or a hydrogeological analysis estimating the saturated thickness of groundwater under the surface?

• To what extent, if any, will groundwater rights, or the right to use some portion of the conveyed groundwater, be reserved to the owner of the surface estate?

• What types of easement rights will be required to make use of the groundwater rights?

• What existing uses are being made of the surface (for example, agricultural or oil and gas production) that might affect the purchaser’s development of the groundwater rights?

• Can the water be transported to its place of use or need? Are existing infrastructure, right-of-way, and easements available?

• What is the native quality of the groundwater?

• What is the condition of any infrastructure or groundwater production, treatment, or storage facilities to be conveyed?

• What are the terms and conditions in any existing permits authorizing production or export of groundwater?

• Does the area where the groundwater rights are located have any subsidence history?

§ 16.4 Surface Water

Surface water in Texas is owned by the state, subject to the appropriation of a right to use the water. Transactions for the purchase of appropriated rights to use surface water are quite common. Individuals and entities enter into water supply contracts to meet their needs for municipal, industrial, agricultural, or other water uses. Because most stream segments in Texas are already fully appropriated or even overappropriated, the market relating to existing water rights is necessarily dynamic. This section of the chapter addresses the nature of surface water rights under Texas law, the requirements for obtaining a new or amended surface water right from the TCEQ, and some practical considerations in surface water rights transactions.

Surface water owned by the state is defined in Texas Water Code section 11.021(a), which reads as follows:

The water of the ordinary flow, underflow, and tides of every flowing river, natural stream, and lake, and of every bay or arm of the Gulf of Mexico, and the storm water, floodwater, and rainwater of every river, natural stream, canyon, ravine, depression, and watershed in the state is the property of the state.

Navigable streams include watercourses that are navigable in fact or meet the statutory definition in Texas Natural Resources Code section 21.001(3). Section 21.001(3) defines a “navigable stream” as one retaining an average width of thirty feet from the mouth, measured from cut bank to cut bank. Tex. Nat. Res. Code § 21.001(3). The state holds the waters of navigable streams in trust for the public, and therefore such streams are subject to appropriation. In re Adjudication of the Water Rights of Upper Guadalupe Segment of Guadalupe River Basin, 642 S.W.2d 438, 444 (Tex. 1982). The state also owns the riverbed—the lands underlying navigable streams. See State v. Bradford, 50 S.W.2d 1065, 1069 (Tex. 1932).

Under some circumstances, the landowner may have more or different rights to surface water that are exempt from state permitting requirements.
Domestic and Livestock Exemption: The use of water for domestic and livestock purposes is generally exempt from state water rights administration. Without obtaining a permit, a person may construct a dam or reservoir up to two hundred acre-feet in capacity for domestic and livestock purposes on his own property. Tex. Water Code § 11.142; see 30 Tex. Admin. Code chs. 295, 297.

Diffused Surface Water: Diffused surface water is water on the surface of the land, such as rainfall runoff, that has not yet entered a watercourse. A watercourse is a channel, with a well-defined bed and banks, in which water flows as a stream and has a permanent source of supply. Hoefs v. Short, 273 S.W. 785 (Tex. 1925). Diffused surface water is the property of the owner of the soil until it enters a watercourse, at which point diffused surface water is transformed legally to public property (state water or riparian water). Turner v. Big Lake Oil Co., 96 S.W.2d 221 (Tex. 1936); Motl v. Boyd, 286 S.W. 458 (Tex. 1926).

Developed Water: “Developed water” refers to water augmenting the natural streamflow that has been made available to the receiving watercourse through artificial means, such as imported surface water or groundwater pumped to the surface, including treated wastewater effluent. Generally water that is legally reduced to possession and still under the physical control of the owner of an artificial conveyance system is subject to sale or further use by the owner of the system, as long as the water does not escape his control and rejoin a watercourse. See Guelker v. Hidalgo County WCID No. 6, 269 S.W.2d 551 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 1954, writ ref’d n.r.e.), cf. Tex. Water Code § 11.042 (bed and banks authorization).

§ 16.5 General Types of Surface Water Rights

§ 16.5:1 Appropriative Water Rights

In Texas, the appropriation doctrine has developed over more than a century of legislation. The water right, documented in the form of a permit, certificate of adjudication, or certified filing, is a “usufruct” or right of use. The appropriative use is precisely defined, with the state authorizing the use of water in a specific amount, by diversion from a watercourse at a definite location, for a particular purpose, and for a use within a particular area or tract of land. It is unlawful to willfully take, divert, impound, or appropriate state water for any purpose without first complying with all applicable requirements of chapter 11 of the Water Code. Tex. Water Code §§ 11.081, 11.121; but see Tex. Water Code §§ 11.142–.143. Violators are also subject to civil and administrative penalties. See Tex. Water Code §§ 11.082, 11.0842–.0843.

Under the prior appropriation doctrine, seniority, or “first in time, first in right,” each water right is assigned a specific priority date. During times of shortage, this system determines the allocation of water among appropriators by use of relative priority dates. Tex. Water Code § 11.027; cf. Tex. Water Code §§ 11.023–.024. Senior rights holders are entitled to fully exercise their rights before those holding junior rights receive any water. The TCEQ promulgated rules in 2012 attempting to circumvent the prior appropriation system by exempting junior water rights from suspension or adjustment “based on public health, safety, and welfare concerns.” 30 Tex. Admin. Code § 36.5(c), see Tex. Water Code § 11.053. These rules were challenged by the Texas Farm Bureau and individual landowners as contravening the prior appropriation doctrine prescribed by section 11.027. The court found the TCEQ’s rulemaking, pursuant to section 11.053, ignored the prior appropriation doctrine codified in section 11.027 and concluded that the rules exceeded the TCEQ’s authority. See Texas Commission on Environmental Quality v. Texas Farm Bureau, 460 S.W.3d 264 (Tex. App.—Corpus Christi–Edinburg 2015, pet. denied). The TCEQ has filed notice of intention to review the chapter containing the challenged rules. TCEQ, Notice of Intention to Review, 44 Tex. Reg. 5153, 5153 (2019). Texas’s prior appropriation seniority system does not apply to water in the Rio Grande River Basin below Lake Amistad. See Tex. Water Code § 11.3271. There, the type of water right (for example, municipal, industrial, Class A irrigation, Class B irrigation) governs who is entitled to water during times of shortage. Beneficial use is another principle concept in the appropriation doctrine. See Tex. Water Code §§ 11.023–024. A permit authorizing use of state water under the appropriative system is a license. To the extent the appropriator actually puts the water to beneficial use, the appropriation is perfected and becomes a vested property right. See Tex. Water Code §§ 11.025–026.

Even within the framework of appropriative rights, there are various limitations on a landowner’s rights to use surface water, including the following.

Damage to Other Property: No person may divert or impound the natural flow of surface water in the state in a manner that damages the property of another because of the overflow of the diverted or impounded water. Tex. Water Code § 11.086(a). If property is injured by such a diversion or impoundment, the owner of the injured property may recover damages from the liable party. Tex. Water Code § 11.086(b).

Eminent Domain for Municipal Use: Section 11.033 of the Texas Water Code provides that municipalities and other governmental agencies can exercise the power of eminent domain to acquire water or property devoted to uses other than municipal and domestic purposes. Although this eminent domain provision has not been repealed or amended, the Texas Property Code imposes various additional requirements on condemnation of water rights by municipalities and provides for separate valuation of groundwater rights in excess of the market value of the fee simple estate. See Tex. Prop. Code §§ 21.0121, 21.0421.

Cancellation of Water Rights: Although a perfected water right is considered a vested property right, with notice and hearing the TCEQ may cancel a water right in whole or in part based on ten years of nonuse immediately before the cancellation proceeding. See Tex. Water Code §§ 11.172, 11.173(a), Texas Water Rights Commission v. Wright, 464 S.W.2d 642 (Tex. 1971). There are now certain statutory exemptions from cancellation, including exemptions for water rights dedicated to certain conservation programs, and the TCEQ may find “justified nonuse” in cases in which the water right is being made available for private marketing or reserved for environmental use. See Tex. Water Code §§ 11.173(b), 11.177(b).

§ 16.5:2 Riparian Rights

A riparian water right is a right recognized at common law that entitles the owner of property adjacent to a watercourse to make “reasonable” use of the normal flow of the stream. This right is not quantified. A riparian property owner may impound and use any amount of water that is reasonably necessary for any reasonable purpose, however, the owner may not unreasonably interfere with the use of water by others. A riparian landowner may sell the water for use off-site of the riparian property, provided that the off-site use does not prejudice other riparian water users. Riparian rights holders may separate, by express conveyance, their riparian water rights from the riparian land. See Watkins Land Co. v. Clements, 86 S.W. 733 (Tex. 1905). On rivers for which the state has completed the water rights adjudication process, the distinction between riparian rights and appropriative rights has been removed, and riparian rights have been converted into appropriative rights for all practical purposes.

§ 16.5:3 Civil-Law Water Rights

Before the Republic of Texas adopted the common law, land grants from the sovereign were governed by civil law—either of Mexico or of Spain. These laws therefore determine the water rights relating to property originally granted from the sovereign under civil law. If a civil-law grant expressly includes a grant of water with the land, there is a legally recognizable water right. If the water right was not expressly granted, it is presumed that the sovereign retained the water rights when it made the land grant, and thus those water rights ultimately pass to the state of Texas. See State v. Valmont Plantations, 346 S.W.2d 853 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 1961), opinion adopted, 355 S.W.2d 502 (Tex. 1962). Like riparian rights, civil-law water rights are subject to the water rights adjudication process and thus have been quantified and merged with appropriative rights through that process.

§ 16.6 Water Rights Adjudication and Administration

The Texas Water Rights Adjudication Act provides the mechanism for the state to quantify and compile the various sorts of water rights, such as civil-law water rights, riparian water rights, certified filings, and permits. See Tex. Water Code §§ 11.301–.341. The final decree in each water rights adjudication is final and conclusive as to all existing and prior rights and claims to the water rights in the adjudicated stream or segment and is binding on all claimants to water rights outside that stream or segment. Tex. Water Code § 11.322(d). This statute is the exclusive means by which water rights may be recognized in Texas, and thus courts cannot recognize equitable water rights based on good-faith prior use. In re Adjudication of Water Rights of Brazos III Segment of Brazos River Basin, 746 S.W.2d 207 (Tex. 1988). Nearly all of the general stream adjudications for Texas have been completed.

For river basins in which a watermaster program has been established, the TCEQ administers adjudicated water rights through a watermaster and a watermaster advisory committee appointed for each water division. See Tex. Water Code §§ 11.326, 11.3261. Watermaster programs are intended to ensure compliance with water rights by monitoring stream flows, reservoir levels, and water use. The watermaster divides the water of the streams (or other sources of supply) in the division based on the adjudicated water rights. Tex. Water Code § 11.327(a). The watermaster also regulates controlling works and diversion works in times of shortage to protect existing water rights, prevent waste, and prevent practices in excess of adjudicated rights. Tex. Water Code § 11.327(b). Currently, there are watermaster programs only for South Texas, the Rio Grande, the Concho River, and the Brazos River. See 30 Tex. Admin. Code chs. 303, 304. More information on watermaster programs, including a map of the locations, can be found on the TCEQ website at https://www.tceq.texas.gov.

An attorney representing a purchaser or lender acquiring an interest in water rights that are subject to a watermaster program should become familiar with the applicable statutory and program provisions at Tex. Water Code §§ 11.325–3291, 30 Tex. Admin. Code §§ 304.1–.63 (Watermaster Operations), and the TCEQ website. Water rights in the Rio Grande below Lake Amistad are allocated on an account basis based on the use of the water, such as municipal and irrigation, instead of on a seniority basis, with priority being given to municipal use. See 30 Tex. Admin. Code ch. 303. If, in any given month, surplus water is identified over the water needed for municipal use, the water is allocated to the other accounts, such as irrigation. In purchasing water rights, the buyer should determine whether an allocation has been made to the seller, and if so the purchase contract should address how the water allocation will be divided between the parties at closing. The cost of administration of water rights by watermasters is allocated among the adjudicated water rights holders, and assessments are made by the TCEQ. In general, no water may be diverted, taken, or stored by or delivered to a person while he is delinquent in the payment of his assessed costs. See Tex. Water Code §§ 11.329, 11.455. Purchasers should determine the amount of assessments that have been made against a seller and the payment status as part of their due diligence. The purchase contract should address the manner in which these assessments will be allocated at closing, if appropriate.

Attorneys dealing with water rights within the Rio Grande should be aware of recording requirements applicable to the Rio Grande watermaster in addition to those presented in section 11.136 of the Texas Water Code. There are two subsections (j) to section 11.3271 of the Texas Water Code adopted by the legislature in 2003 that have never been reconciled. See Tex. Water
Code § 11.3271. Under one subsection (j), the watermaster with jurisdiction over the Rio Grande is made the official recorder for all instruments, including deeds, deeds of trust, financing statements, security agreements, and liens that the TCEQ authorizes or requires to be filed in connection with a water right relating to water in the lower, middle, or upper basin of the Rio Grande and that are subject to a permit, certified filing, or certificate of adjudication, and the filing will have the same legal effect as filing under other law for the same type of instrument. Under the other subsection (j), the watermaster is required to maintain a central repository that includes certified copies of all instruments, including deeds, deeds of trust, and liens that the TCEQ requires to be filed in connection with the same type of water rights as are described in the first-referenced subsection (j), and it is expressly stated that on and after September 1, 2003, a lien against a water right shall not be effective against third parties unless a certified copy of the instrument is filed with the watermaster and all requirements under other law are met. It would be prudent when conveying rights or interests in water rights in the Rio Grande to record a duplicate set of original documents with the Texas watermaster, as well as in the real property records of the county or counties in which the documents are otherwise authorized to be recorded, and to also file a certified copy of the documents recorded in the county real property records (at least with regard to liens) with the watermaster.

§ 16.7 Obtaining Surface Water Rights

A person desiring to appropriate surface water must obtain a permit from the TCEQ. See Tex. Water Code §§ 11.022, 11.121. The permit or amendment may be granted only if—after the proper application is filed, the required fees are paid, and notice and hearing are held—the applicant shows that (1) unappropriated water is available in the source of supply, (2) the proposed appropriation is intended for a beneficial use, does not impair existing water rights or vested riparian rights, is not detrimental to the public welfare, considers various environmental and water quality assessments required by statute, and addresses a water supply need in a manner consistent with the state water plan and the relevant approved regional plan or plans; and (3) reasonable diligence will be used to avoid waste and achieve water conservation. Tex. Water Code § 11.134(b). Each of these requirements is discussed briefly below. The TCEQ also issues several types of more restrictive permits, such as seasonal permits, temporary permits, and emergency permits. Tex. Water Code §§ 11.137–139.

§ 16.7:1 Availability of Unappropriated Water

“Unappropriated water” must be available in the source of supply for a permit to be granted. Tex. Water Code § 11.134(b)(2). The Texas Supreme Court has held “unappropriated water” to mean the amount of water remaining available for appropriation within a river basin after taking into account complete satisfaction of all existing uncanceled permits and filings valued at their recorded levels. Lower Colorado River Authority v. Texas Department of Water Resources, 689 S.W.2d 873 (Tex. 1984). The TCEQ’s water availability models, sometimes referred to as “WAMs,” for each river basin in the state and the TCEQ’s regulatory criteria determine how frequently water must be available to support a finding that unappropriated water is available for appropriation.

§ 16.7:2 Beneficial Use

The Texas Water Code recognizes various purposes for which state water may be appropriated, stored, or diverted and ranks those uses by preference for permit issuance: domestic and municipal, agricultural and industrial, mining, hydroelectric power, navigation, recreation, public parks, game preserves, recharge into certain aquifers, and “any other beneficial use.” Tex. Water Code §§ 11.023(a), (b), 11.024. The TCEQ may grant a water right application only if the proposed appropriation “is intended for a beneficial use.” Tex. Water Code § 11.134(b)(3)(A).
§ 16.7:3  Nonimpairment of Existing Water Rights

The TCEQ may grant a water right (or amendment) application only if the proposed appropriation does not impair existing water rights or vested riparian rights. Tex. Water Code § 11.134(b)(3)(B). To the extent the proposed appropriation would impair water availability for existing downstream rights, the commission may include restrictions on the diversion and use of water in the new permit. Examples of such restrictions include minimum streamflow, maximum diversion rates, and seasonal restrictions intended to protect both water rights holders and the environment.

§ 16.7:4  Public Welfare

§ 16.7:5  Conservation and Drought Contingency Requirements

The TCEQ may grant a water right application only if the applicant has provided evidence that reasonable diligence will be used to avoid waste and achieve “water conservation,” as that term is defined by Tex. Water Code § 11.002(8)(B). Tex. Water Code § 11.134(b)(4), see 30 Tex. Admin. Code ch. 288. With few types of exceptions, such as applications for emergency use, temporary use, or to impound water solely for in-place use, an applicant for new or amended water rights must submit a water conservation plan and adopt reasonable conservation measures, with varying criteria for such plans depending on the water use. See Tex. Water Code § 11.1271. In addition to developing conservation plans, wholesale and retail public water suppliers and irrigation districts must develop and submit drought contingency plans, relating to their water rights, to be implemented during periods of water shortages and drought. Tex. Water Code § 11.1272(a), see generally 30 Tex. Admin. Code ch. 288.

The TCEQ may grant an application for a water right or amendment only if the proposed appropriation addresses a water supply need in a manner consistent with the state water plan and any relevant approved regional water plan, unless the commission waives this consistency requirement. Tex. Water Code §§ 11.134(b)(3)(E), 11.1501. Information regarding each of the sixteen regional water plans can be found on the “Planning” page of the TWDB’s website, www.twdb.texas.gov.

Various other statutory provisions require the TCEQ to consider the environmental and conservation impact of water rights applications, including the effects, if any, of the issuance of the permit on groundwater or groundwater recharge (Tex. Water Code § 11.151), the effects, if any, on the bays and estuaries of Texas (Tex. Water Code § 11.147(b)), and permit conditions necessary to maintain existing instream uses, the water quality of the river or stream to which the permit would apply (Tex. Water Code §§ 11.147(d), 11.150), and fish and wildlife habitats (Tex. Water Code §§ 11.147(e), 11.152).

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department also has significant authority relating to certain environmental aspects of water rights applications. The TCEQ must send a copy of every water rights permit application to the department, which is entitled to participate in hearings on such applications. Information and evidence presented by the department must be considered by the TCEQ in making a final decision on a water rights application. Tex. Water Code § 11.147(f).
A prospective buyer or seller of water rights as part of a real estate transaction must take special note if the water is intended to be taken or diverted from one watershed or river basin to another, because special TCEQ authorization must be obtained before any such “interbasin transfers.” See Tex. Water Code § 11.085. There are criminal penalties for taking or diverting water in violation of this statute. See Tex. Water Code § 11.085(q), (r). The legislature has sought to balance the interests of the basin of origin and the receiving basin. See Tex. Water Code § 11.085(k)–(l); San Antonio v. Texas Water Commission, 407 S.W.2d 752 (Tex. 1966). Because newly authorized interbasin transfers have junior priority to all other water rights granted before the filing of a transfer application, the feasibility of an interbasin transfer from existing water rights can be severely limited. See Tex. Water Code § 11.085(s). There are five narrow exceptions to the limitations imposed by section 11.085, which should be reviewed. See Tex. Water Code § 11.085(v).

§ 16.8 Practical Considerations for Conveying Surface Water Rights

§ 16.8:1 Severability and Marketing of Surface Water Rights

Water rights may or may not be appurtenant to a specific tract of land. State-owned surface water rights, arising from either permit or certificate of adjudication, may be transferred as an easement that passes with title to the land or may be transferred separately from the land. Tex. Water Code § 11.040(a); Strayhorn v. Jones, 300 S.W.2d 623, 634 (Tex. 1957). In general, title to private water rights will pass automatically with title to the land unless the water rights have been previously sold or conveyed to some third party or are specifically reserved by the grantor. See Graham v. Kuzmich, 876 S.W.2d 446 (Tex. App.—Corpus Christi–Edinburg 1994, no writ); Fleming Foundation v. Texaco, Inc., 337 S.W.2d 846, 850 (Tex. App.—Amarillo 1960, writ ref’d n.r.e.); see generally 30 Tex. Admin. Code § 297.81. See the discussion at sections 16.5:1 and 16.5:2 above distinguishing private water rights from state water.

For marketing of surface water rights in Texas, there are significant restrictions on interbasin transfers, as discussed at section 16.7:6 above. Within a river basin, water transfers and marketing by regional suppliers such as river authorities are relatively straightforward. Difficulties may arise, however, when these transactions require amendment of an existing water rights permit, particularly if there are potential issues of impairment of existing senior water rights or environmental impacts. Nonetheless, there is an active market for surface water rights in some parts of Texas, particularly in the Rio Grande Valley. It should be noted that the transfer of water rights in the Rio Grande Valley is governed by TCEQ rules that are unique to the Rio Grande basin and administered by the Rio Grande watermaster. See 30 Tex. Admin. Code ch. 303. Practitioners should fully understand those rules before beginning negotiations for the sale or purchase of surface water rights in that area.

§ 16.8:2 TCEQ Permitting

In cases in which an applicant is seeking a new or amended water right, the requirements outlined generally at sections 16.7 through 16.7:6 above will govern the substantive and procedural aspects of the TCEQ’s consideration of the application. Even in cases of transactions to sell or lease existing water rights, however, there may be commission requirements that must be satisfied, which could include the following:

• Do the TCEQ rules require actual amendments of the water right as a result of the transaction (for example, diversion point, place, or purpose of use)?

• If so, will notice and hearing be required? If so, is there any potential for opposition from other interests within the basin?

• Must the contract or the deed for the transaction be submitted to the TCEQ for its records?
§ 16.8:3 Other Due Diligence

Among the other issues that the purchaser or lessee of surface water rights should consider are the following:

- What types of legal or technical advice are necessary before closing on the transaction, and how should the closing be conditioned on the results of such analysis?
- How much water is needed for the proposed project, in terms of firm yield requirements over the relevant time period?
- Are the existing rights valid and properly perfected?
- Can the relative priority of the water right be determined through examination of county deed records and the TCEQ’s records?
- What do the TCEQ’s records of existing water rights in the stream segment or basin reveal that might impact the desirability of the transaction?
- What types of easement rights will be required to make use of the surface water rights?
- Can the water be transported to its place of use or need?

§ 16.8:4 Transfer and Recording of Permits

Transfers of ownership of surface water rights must be reported to the TCEQ. See Tex. Water Code § 11.122. The change of ownership form, TCEQ Form 10204, may be downloaded from the commission’s website, https://www.tceq.texas.gov. This form initiates the transfer process at the TCEQ, which is not complete until an approval letter, amended certificate of adjudication, or amended permit is issued to the new owner.

The permit or amended permit must be recorded with the county clerk of the county or counties in which the appropriation will be made. Tex. Water Code § 11.136. This would include at least the county or counties in which the point of diversion is located. In most cases, a certificate of adjudication or amendment must be similarly recorded in each applicable county. See Tex. Water Code § 11.324. For more discussion on recordation, see part IV. in this chapter.

II. Groundwater Transaction Guide for Sale of Groundwater Rights for On-Site Production

§ 16.11 Sale of Groundwater Rights in Place for On-Site Production

The rights to explore for, drill for, produce, and transport groundwater can be sold under a contract of sale and conveyed by deed and easement agreement. These rights can also be leased under a groundwater lease. (But see section 16.1 above for a discussion of ownership of groundwater rights.) This part of this chapter applies to the sale and conveyance of groundwater rights for on-site production, that is, to a transaction in which the groundwater is intended to be produced from wells located on the seller’s land. It does not cover the sale or conveyance of permitted groundwater for off-site production, which is addressed in part III. in this chapter, nor does it apply to the sale of surface water rights, which are addressed in part IV.
Financing documents for use in transactions in which the groundwater rights, easement rights, and permit, if any, constitute the collateral, are discussed in part V.

The forms discussed in this part of the chapter are for general use. Users should be aware that modifications may be required for specific transactions. For all groundwater sales, it is imperative that the attorneys involved in the transaction identify the regulatory agencies with jurisdiction over the groundwater rights (referred to collectively in this transaction guide as the “groundwater authority”) and obtain copies of all rules and regulations pertaining to groundwater as early in the transaction as possible. The rules may contain requirements that have an important bearing on the transaction, such as minimum acreage requirements for production, limitations on production, and requirements for the issuance and transfer of permits. It may be necessary for the practitioner to make modifications to the forms based on the rules of the groundwater authority. Forms 16-1, 16-2, and 16-3 in this chapter, as described in this part of the chapter, are not generally used in the sale of groundwater rights subject to the rules of the Edwards Aquifer Authority.

§ 16.12 Groundwater Rights Sales Contract, Deed, Easement, and Related Forms; Place for Recordation

If the seller is the owner of both the surface and groundwater estates in the land and is selling the groundwater and the right to use the surface estate for drilling, production, and transportation of groundwater on-site, the groundwater sales contract, form 16-1 in this chapter, should be used in the transaction. If the seller owns only groundwater rights that have already been severed from the land, together with easement rights to use the surface of the land for drilling, production, and transportation, the groundwater sales contract may be used if appropriately modified. At closing, the deed would describe both the groundwater rights and the easement rights. If the seller acquired the easement rights through a separate easement agreement, the deed would reference the recorded easement agreement. Alternatively, a separate assignment of easement rights could be used.

If the groundwater is subject to regulation by a groundwater authority, the attorney should determine whether the seller has obtained a groundwater permit. If so, the information regarding the permit should be set out in the contract, and the seller should request a transfer of the permit from the groundwater authority as part of the sale transaction. See section 16.17:5 below regarding permits.

All recordable documents should be recorded in the county or counties in which the land from which the groundwater and easement rights are obtained is located. Many groundwater districts do not require the recording of the permits issued in connection with groundwater rights for on-site production. If a groundwater permit is issued to the buyer in a form that may be recorded, the permit should be recorded in the real property records in the same county or counties as the deed is recorded. See part III. in this chapter.

The contract anticipates that a memorandum of contract will be recorded in the real property records when the contract is signed. The memorandum will put the public on notice of the buyer’s contract rights in the event there is a significant period of time between signing the contract and closing. See form 16-16.

4. Permit Transfer Request (form 16-12) or a transfer form promulgated or approved by the groundwater authority if a permit has been issued to the seller or another form promulgated by the groundwater authority, if it has a particular form for transfer. In the absence of a form promulgated by the groundwater authority, the applicant may choose to use the detailed application template included as form 16-26 in this chapter.

5. Partial Release of Lien (On-Site) (form 16-8) if the seller has an existing lien on the land and only the groundwater rights are being released from the lien at closing.

6. Release of Lien (form 10-2 in this manual) if the seller’s entire lien will be released at closing.

7. Lienholder Consent and Subordination to Easement Agreement (form 16-7) if the seller has an existing lien on both the surface estate and groundwater, which will not be released as to the surface estate at closing.

8. Bill of Sale (form 5-16 in this manual) if personal property will be conveyed at closing and a more detailed description is required than the description in the deed.

9. Form UCC3 (form 9-14 in this manual), a form promulgated by the Texas secretary of state, if there is a security interest that covers or that could be construed to cover the groundwater rights, the permit, or personal property to be conveyed at closing.

10. Assignment and Assumption of Lease (form 16-14) if there is an existing lease of the groundwater.

11. Lessee Estoppel Certificate (form 16-15) used to assure the buyer that the groundwater lease is valid and is not in default and that the lessee understands the lease is being assigned.

12. Affidavit of Debts and Liens [and Indemnity] (form 16-13) (if this form is not being provided by a title company) used to provide additional protection to the buyer, especially in instances in which no title insurance will be obtained or title insurance is not available.

13. Loan documents required by the lender.

The groundwater deed, easement, and other recordable documents should be recorded in the real property records of the county or counties in which the land is located. If the buyer has applied for a new or amended production permit from a groundwater conservation district, the permit, when issued, may not be in recordable form. While it has generally not been the practice to record these types of production permits in the real property records, recording is recommended. If the permit is not issued in a recordable form, the permittee may seek to record it as an exhibit to another recordable instrument such as an affidavit or memorandum of permit duly authorized.

The groundwater rights sales contract form 16-1 in this chapter, is drafted as a neutral form of contract, intending to favor neither the buyer nor the seller. For each contract, the basic elements of the transaction are, in general, stated in the sections to be completed at the beginning of the form. Some provisions, however, are required to be completed throughout the contract. The general terms that follow in the form may be used for many transactions. However, the sale of groundwater rights is an emerging area of law, and there are no well-established terms of sale. Contracts for the purchase and sale of groundwater rights are diverse, and additional drafting may be necessary to tailor the forms to the transaction.
§ 16.14 Special Surface Use Considerations

In the sale of groundwater rights in which the groundwater will be produced using the surface estate, it is possible for the deed to convey not only an interest in the groundwater but also easement rights in the surface of the land for exploration, drilling, production, and transportation of groundwater. However, it is advisable to use a separate easement or surface use agreement to describe in detail the easement rights that the owner of the groundwater estate will have in the surface estate. The parties may also want to provide for payment terms and use restrictions that are too detailed to include in the deed. Although form 16-1 in this chapter and the groundwater warranty deed, form 16-2, provide for the sale and conveyance of groundwater rights, which include surface use rights, these provisions are intended as safeguards to ensure that surface use rights are included in the sale and conveyance. It is recommended that the optional provision for the execution of a separate easement or surface use agreement at closing be used. This additional level of effort may avoid the subsequent development of disputes creating a necessity for the courts to apply the accommodation to resolve the issues. See Coyote Lake Ranch, LLC v. City of Lubbock, 498 S.W.3d 53, 64 (Tex. 2016).

§ 16.15 Groundwater Rights Sales Contract

The following sections describe the provisions and terms of form 16-1 in this chapter and include considerations for the attorney in drafting or reviewing a contract, assisting the client during investigation of the groundwater rights, and closing the transaction. This commentary is organized in the same order as the sections of the contract.

§ 16.16 Introductory Paragraph: Offer and Acceptance

The introductory paragraph of the contract states what the parties must do to form the contract of purchase and sale. If the buyer’s earnest money cannot be collected, the buyer will be in default.

§ 16.17:1 Seller and Buyer

There are sections for the names of and other information concerning the seller, the buyer, and their respective attorneys. Proper identification of the parties is important, and the seller and the buyer should be identified as fully as possible. Capacity and authority should be considered, especially if a party is not an individual acting on his or her own behalf. See chapter 3 in this manual for a discussion of party designations.

§ 16.17:2 Title Company/Escrow Agent

Title insurance to insure title to severed groundwater rights in Texas is not generally offered by title insurance underwriters in Texas, although currently there is at least one insurer that offers title insurance for water rights. The contract designates a title company or escrow agent to act as the escrow and closing agent to address the situation in which the property will close through a title insurance company and the situation when it will not. The title company or escrow agent will be responsible for closing the transaction and receiving and disbursing funds under the terms of the contract.

It is advisable to have a written escrow agreement between the title company or escrow agent, the buyer, and the seller that defines the rights and duties of the title company or escrow agent. Form 4-2 in this manual is an escrow agent receipt and escrow agreement. It can be modified for use with an escrow agent other than a title company. The escrow agent should be responsible for getting signed at closing the affidavit of debts and liens (form 16-13), the settlement statement, and similar documents typically provided by a title company.

§ 16.17:3  Surveyor

This section of the contract should be completed if a surveyor has been designated for the transaction. See section 16.21:3 below regarding survey requirements.

§ 16.17:4  Groundwater Authority

If the real property is located within a groundwater conservation district or other groundwater authority, the authority should be identified. It is imperative that the buyer’s attorney consult the rules of the groundwater authority to determine all restrictions on the use and production of groundwater, requirements for sale of groundwater, and rules regarding the issuance or transfer of a permit. Generally, copies of the rules can be obtained only from the groundwater authority. The buyer’s attorney should also obtain, and personally review, copies of all documents maintained by the groundwater authority pertaining to the groundwater being sold. The attorney should note all relevant information from the file, such as yearly allocations, if applicable, and should determine the feasibility of meeting all conditions of the groundwater authority’s approval of the sale within the buyer’s required time frame.

§ 16.17:5  Seller’s Permit

It is important for the buyer to determine whether the seller has a production or other permit issued by a groundwater authority in connection with the groundwater, whether the permit will allow the use of the groundwater contemplated by the buyer, and what requirements the groundwater authority imposes for the transfer, amendment, or issuance of a permit. If the seller has been issued a permit, the permit information should be set out in the contract and a copy of the permit and all amendments provided to the buyer as part of the seller’s records. If there is an existing permit, the buyer generally will want to obtain a transfer of the seller’s permit, and the seller should be required to submit a request for transfer of the permit in connection with the sale transaction. If the buyer needs a modification to the permit, such as a change in the type of groundwater use permitted, the buyer can file the appropriate documentation for a request with the groundwater authority, with any transfer of the permit and change in permit terms taking effect after closing. Because the rules and procedures for groundwater authorities vary, the attorney should contact the groundwater authority to obtain information on the forms and procedures required by the specific groundwater authority. In many instances the local groundwater district will not have a form specific to the desired purpose. Form 16-26 in this chapter is an example of an application to the groundwater authority to transfer permits in the absence of a form promulgated by the authority.

Paragraph G.5. of form 16-1 addresses the buyer’s right to evaluate the seller’s permit during the inspection period and contains an optional paragraph if the purchase of the groundwater is contingent on the buyer’s ability to obtain required permits.

The amount of earnest money is negotiable and depends on several factors, including the purchase price, the type of financing, and the relative financial strengths of the parties.
§ 16.17:7 Independent Consideration

If the buyer terminates the contract before the end of the inspection period, and the buyer is otherwise entitled to have the earnest money returned, the contract provides that a stated amount should not be returned to the buyer but should be paid to the seller, because that amount is the independent consideration to the seller for the buyer’s right to terminate the contract.

§ 16.17:8 Real Property

The real property is the land from which the groundwater is to be sold and is described in exhibit A. Any fixtures and personal property to be conveyed with the groundwater rights at closing also should be described in exhibit A. The contract should describe the real and personal property with legal specificity. If the property is not described sufficiently, the contract may be unenforceable because of vagueness. See chapter 3 in this manual for a discussion of property descriptions. Attention should also be given to the conveyance of appurtenant rights, such as permits, licenses, access easements, access to utilities, and similar rights. Because it is not clear whether some types of property, such as the components of a well, are personal property or fixtures, if wells or similar items are being conveyed at closing, it is advisable to treat them as both real and personal property in the conveyance documents.

§ 16.17:10 Groundwater Rights

The contract defines groundwater rights to include the right to use the surface of the land for the exploration, drilling, and production and any governmental licenses or permits to so use the groundwater.

If the seller intends to reserve ownership of or the right to use groundwater, the reserved rights should be described with specificity, including any limitation on the purpose or place of use of the groundwater or the quantity of groundwater that may be pumped. In general, it is customary for the seller to retain a right of usage to accommodate the seller’s needs, without retention of an undivided ownership interest in the groundwater. Form 16-1 reserves the seller’s right to use groundwater. The form should be amended if the parties intend for the seller to reserve an undivided interest in the groundwater and should specify the percentage interest reserved. The reservation should be carefully drafted to protect the buyer’s rights in the groundwater without unnecessarily curtailing the surface owner’s right to use its property. If the buyer is acquiring the groundwater for commercial use, the buyer will want to prohibit the seller from using the reserved groundwater for commercial uses or production, as well as enhanced or secondary recovery methodology. The restriction on the seller’s use may include restrictions on using groundwater for oil and gas exploration or production. The seller’s water production may be limited in various ways, as by specifying the amount of groundwater that can be produced from the real property on a per-year or other basis or by limiting the number of seller’s wells that may be maintained in operation on the real property at any one time. The parties may wish to specify whose right to the groundwater is paramount in the event of an extreme drought or production limitations. The following is a sample reservation provision for a deed:
Grantor reserves for itself and Grantor’s successors and assigns the right to utilize Groundwater, at no cost, solely for domestic and livestock use on the Real Property. The term domestic and livestock use means use of the Groundwater on the Real Property solely for household uses by Grantor, Grantor’s employees, and their respective families for the watering of domestic and grazing animals and for Grantor’s limited oil and gas use permitted by this deed. The right to utilize Reserved Groundwater includes the right to drill, use, and operate domestic-type wells or windmills but does not include the right to drill, use, or operate any industrial-type or irrigation-type wells on the Real Property or to use Groundwater for the creation or maintenance of ponds. No Reserved Groundwater may be used for the operation of crop irrigation, feedyard purposes, dairy operations, confined animal feeding operations, mining operations, or other industrial or commercial purposes, except that Grantor will have the right to use one existing well, or to drill and use one well, for each oil and gas well drilled as reasonably necessary during the drilling, completion, recompletion, reworking, remediation, and revegetation process (but not for water flooding and secondary recovery operations). After these processes have been completed, Grantor will have the right to use these wells for domestic and livestock purposes subject to the limitations set forth in this deed. The aggregate number of wells for the production of Reserved Groundwater existing at any time on the Real Property may not exceed, on the average, one well per [number] acres. If at any time Grantor fails to pump all the Reserved Groundwater to which Grantor is entitled, Grantee will have the right to pump all Groundwater not pumped by the Grantor without additional consideration or compensation.

The parties may wish to provide that the seller’s right to use groundwater will terminate if water sufficient to meet the seller’s needs becomes available to the property from some other source, such as a public water supply system, or from other land owned by the seller. If the seller reserves the right to use groundwater for domestic purposes, the parties may wish to specify, or otherwise limit, the number of households that may use the groundwater for such purposes, the number of wells used for such purposes, or the total volume per year that can be pumped for such purposes.

Paragraph G.3. of form 16-1 authorizes the buyer to perform hydrogeological testing during the inspection period to determine the quality of the groundwater, to estimate the quantity of the groundwater, to establish well locations, and to form the basis for establishing the purchase price of the groundwater as described in section 16.17:13 below.

There is no standard method of determining the purchase price for groundwater rights. For example, the purchase price may be based on a dollar amount per acre of land from which the groundwater rights will be obtained, on a dollar amount per acre-foot permitted, on a dollar amount per acre-foot per acre allocated, or on the value of the groundwater rights as determined by an appraiser. The field of groundwater rights appraisal is still evolving. In areas where there are numerous groundwater sales or leases, it is possible to obtain an appraisal of groundwater rights based on comparable sales. In areas where there are few sales or lease transactions or where the water quantity or quality is highly variable, it may be difficult to obtain a reliable appraisal of groundwater rights without obtaining hydrogeological information on the groundwater. Where groundwater is obtained over a large area that may exhibit variability in water quality, volume, or sustainability, the calculation of the purchase price in the contract may be based on an estimate of these variables as determined by a hydrogeological study, so that the purchase price for groundwater in lands with a higher quality or greater volume of groundwater will be higher than the purchase price for groundwater in lands with lower quality or less sustainable groundwater.
Exhibit I may be used if the parties agree to seller financing of the purchase. If obtaining third-party financing is a condition to the buyer’s obligations, that fact and the terms of the complying financing should be addressed in the contract. See chapters 6 and 8 in this manual for further discussion of financing.

These sections of the contract are provided so that the parties can agree on additional liquidated damages to be paid by the defaulting party to the nondefaulting party on default.

Only a few underwriters in Texas offer title insurance for severed groundwater rights. If the seller is not required to provide a title commitment, or if a title commitment is not available for the groundwater rights, the contract should require the seller to provide the buyer with an abstract of title. The contract provides that the buyer may have the abstract of title reviewed by an attorney of the buyer’s choice, at the expense of the seller or buyer as specified in the contract. If the buyer obtains an abstract of title, the buyer should have it reviewed by an attorney who is experienced in land titles and knowledgeable about groundwater rights.

§ 16.17:16 Title Documents

In addition to traditional title instruments, such as deeds, leases, and easements, the contract defines title documents to include the seller’s permit and instruments affecting title to the groundwater and the real property referenced in the title commitment or title information, survey, or UCC search or to be provided as part of the seller’s records. Title documents may include probate records, marital records, and birth and death certificates. Under paragraph F.7. of the contract, title objections can be made on the basis of the title documents. This provides the buyer with the ability to make objections to title based on the seller’s permit or unrecorded documents provided as part of the seller’s records.

Section A of the contract groups most of the deadlines for ease of reference and provides two alternate ways to determine most of the deadlines: either a stated date or a specified number of days after the effective date of the contract or another specific date. The contract provides that time is of the essence. The contract provides that closing will occur a certain number of days after the expiration of the inspection period, but closing may also be specified to occur a certain number of days following a different event or on a certain date. The closing date may also be specified as “on or before” a certain date or event.

§ 16.19 Closing Documents

Section B of the contract lists the documents to be signed and delivered to close the transaction and serves as a checklist to prepare for closing. Section C contains a number of exhibits. The attorney should choose the specific exhibits appropriate for the sale.
§ 16.19:1  Exhibit B—Representations; Environmental Matters

Exhibit B contains the parties’ representations. These items are always negotiated by the parties and will vary from transaction to transaction.

§ 16.19:2  Exhibit C—Seller’s Records

Exhibit C is a list of the seller’s records of the property that will be delivered or made available to the buyer for review during the inspection period and also delivered to the buyer at closing.

Exhibit D lists notices, statements, and certificates required by federal and state law and regulations to be delivered when common real estate contracts are executed. The items applicable to a specific transaction should be selected. See chapter 2 in this manual for brief discussions of each law and regulation and for references to other laws and regulations that require notices, statements, and certificates for less common transactions. Some of the statutory provisions would appear to include the sale of groundwater, simply because they apply to a sale or conveyance of real property, and no exemption is made for the sale of groundwater.

§ 16.19:4  Exhibit E—Permits

Copies of the seller’s permits should be attached to the contract as an exhibit. If copies cannot be attached for some reason, they should be described with specificity, including any permit numbers.

§ 16.19:5  Exhibit F—Leases and Contracts to Be Terminated

This exhibit lists the seller’s leases and contracts affecting the real property or groundwater that will be terminated at or before closing.

§ 16.19:6  Exhibit G—Leases and Contracts Not to Be Terminated

This exhibit lists the seller’s leases and contracts affecting the real property or groundwater that will be assumed by the buyer or taken subject to.

§ 16.19:7  Exhibit I—Seller Financing

Exhibit I contains seller-financing terms.

§ 16.19:8  Exhibit J—Easement Agreement

The deed conveying the groundwater should grant basic surface use rights for access to, and development of, the groundwater. Forms 16-1 and 16-2 in this chapter accomplish this by defining “Groundwater Rights” to include these basic surface use rights. It is advisable, however, that the parties agree on more extensive surface use rights and surface use restrictions for both the surface owner and the groundwater rights owner and set out these rights and restrictions in a separate easement agreement. The owner of the groundwater estate has easement rights implied by law to use as much of the surface estate as is reasonably necessary to produce groundwater. Coyote Lake Ranch, LLC v. City of Lubbock, 498 S.W.3d 53 (Tex. 2016). However, many issues can arise when the surface owner and the groundwater rights owner both use the surface estate for their respective purposes, and it is important for the parties to consider and agree on specific terms that will establish their respective rights, priorities, and limitations with regard to the use of the surface estate. It is advisable for these terms to be set out in a separate easement or surface use agreement, rather than in the deed, so that they can be described in detail, along with indemnifications and other terms that are not customary in deeds. Failure to detail the rights and obligations of the parties may result in the application of the accommodation doctrine. Coyote Lake Ranch, 498 S.W.3d at 64.

The easement documents included in this chapter consist of a blanket easement agreement for surface use (form 16-3), with three optional addenda that impose surface use restrictions (form 16-6, surface use restrictions addendum), require payments for use of the surface estate (form 16-5, surface damage payment addendum), and require the groundwater rights owner to limit its use of the surface estate to specific locations over time (form 16-4, easement location addendum). In light of the Texas Supreme Court’s decision in Coyote Lake Ranch, attorneys using the easement forms should modify them as necessary to detail the respective surface use rights of the parties. Consideration should be given to incorporating into the easement documents the concept that the owners of the surface and groundwater estates will each make reasonable accommodations to the other in the use of the surface estate. Any obligation to make accommodations should be expressly stated, and the action required to fulfill this obligation should be clearly set out. The court’s analysis of when the accommodation doctrine applies, discussed below, can be used as a template in drafting this language.

In Coyote Lake Ranch, the court held that the owner of the groundwater estate has implied easements for access and use over the surface estate as reasonably necessary to develop the groundwater and that these easements are dominant to the surface use rights of the surface owner. Despite the broad surface use rights granted to the city, the court found that the language in the deed did not address all of the surface use issues raised by the ranch owner. The court held that when the documents creating the surface use rights do not fully address questions on surface use, the accommodation doctrine can be applied to limit the surface use by the owner of the groundwater estate.

Under the Coyote Lake Ranch holding, to successfully assert a claim that the accommodation doctrine applies, the surface owner must prove that—

1. the groundwater rights owner’s use completely precludes or substantially impairs the existing use, and
2. there is no reasonable alternative method available to the surface owner by which the existing use can be continued, and
3. there are alternative reasonable, customary, and industry-accepted methods available to the groundwater rights owner that will allow recovery of the groundwater and also allow the surface owner to continue the existing use.

Coyote Lake Ranch, 498 S.W.3d at 64. The court’s decision in this case underscores the importance of drafting surface use rights in a manner that is clear and unambiguous about the nature and extent of the authorized use.

Form 16-3 includes the grant of a 150-foot-wide sanitary control easement around each groundwater well as required by the TCEQ for wells that are part of a municipal water supply system. See 30 Tex. Admin. Code §§ 290.38(75), 290.41(c). The purpose of the easement is to create an area around each well in which uses that could adversely affect the quality of the groundwater are prohibited. The requirement for a sanitary control easement is included in the form because a grantee acquiring groundwater for domestic and livestock use may want this protection for its well. The blanket easement agreement also contains a provision requiring the grantor to execute a separate sanitary control easement in the form promulgated by the TCEQ at the grantee’s request. The TCEQ easement form requires the specific location of the well and easement to be identified. The grantee may not know the location of future wells at the time it acquires the easement, but the grantee can have the separate sanitary control easement executed when the location of each well is established. TCEQ Form 20698 (Sanitary Control Easement) can be obtained from the TCEQ website at https://www.tceq.texas.gov.

§ 16.19:9 Exhibit K—Memorandum of Contract

If it is anticipated that there may be a significant amount of time between the date the contract is signed and the date of closing, it is advisable to have the memorandum of contract signed and recorded in the real property records to provide notice to the public of the buyer’s contract rights. See form 16-16 in this chapter.

§ 16.19:10 Exhibit L—Notice of Termination of Contract

If the memorandum of contract is used, the parties should execute the notice of termination of contract form at the same time and deliver it to the title company or escrow agent for recordation in the event the contract is terminated before closing. See form 16-17 in this chapter.

The contract provides that the buyer may direct the title company or escrow agent to invest the earnest money in an interest-bearing account in a federally insured financial institution. If the earnest money is to be invested, the title company will require the buyer’s tax identification or Social Security number so that accrued interest may be reported to the Internal Revenue Service.

The contract incorporates the statutory notice that the Texas Real Estate License Act requires real estate brokers and real estate salespersons to give to a buyer, advising that the buyer should either have title examined by an attorney or obtain a title insurance policy, if available. See Tex. Occ. Code § 1101.652(b)(29). If a broker or salesperson is not involved, the paragraph may be deleted.

The contract requires that the seller provide to the buyer by the deadlines stated in the contract the title commitment or title information, the survey (if required), the UCC search, and legible copies of each document referred to in these instruments.

The contract follows a typical procedure under which the buyer reviews the title commitment or title information, the survey, the seller’s permit, the documents provided by the seller, and the UCC search and notifies the seller of any objections. After notice, the seller may elect to cure the buyer’s objections but is not required to do so. If the seller does not agree to cure, the buyer may either proceed to close the transaction and accept the groundwater rights subject to the uncured matters or terminate the contract. However, the seller is obligated to resolve all items listed on Schedule C of the title commitment at or before closing and to cure title matters that arise by, through, or under the seller after the contract is signed.

Attorneys reviewing title should look for contracts or for provisions in existing oil and gas leases that allow injection or disposal into or onto the land of saltwater or other substances that can adversely affect the quality of the groundwater. In the absence of a limitation or restriction in the deed or lease, owners of the mineral estate, including oil and gas lessees, can use as much of the groundwater as is reasonably necessary to produce minerals, including using groundwater for hydraulic fracturing (“fracking”). See Sun Oil Co. v. Whitaker, 483 S.W.2d 808 (Tex. 1972); Fleming Foundation v. Texaco, Inc., 337 S.W.2d 846 (Tex. App.—Amarillo 1960, writ ref’d n.r.e.).

It is unlikely that the seller will be able to modify or terminate existing oil and gas leases, so it is important to evaluate their effect on the groundwater estate. If the surface owner is also the owner of the mineral estate, the buyer can negotiate restrictions on the mineral estate limiting the use of groundwater for fracking and other forms of enhanced and secondary recovery, such as prohibiting the injection or disposal of saltwater and other substances in or on the land. Such negotiations could eliminate or limit these practices in future leases and contracts.

The contract provides that the condition of title will be established by either a title commitment or an abstract of title, as agreed to by the buyer and the seller. If an abstract of title is furnished, the buyer may have the abstract of title reviewed by an attorney and obtain the attorney’s written opinion of the abstract of title. The benefit of obtaining title insurance, if available, over an attorney’s opinion of title is that title insurers are required to maintain reserves to cover claims that are greater than the malpractice coverage maintained by most law firms. Consequently, there is an increased likelihood of recovery if an error is made by the title company in its determination of title.

An essential reference on title insurance is the Basic Manual of Rules, Rates and Forms for the Writing of Title Insurance in the State of Texas, available from the Texas Department of Insurance at https://www.tdi.texas.gov/title/titleman.html. The manual contains Texas rate and procedural rules; the text of title 11 of the Texas Insurance Code, relating to title insurance; and various bulletins of the Texas State Board of Insurance dealing with title insurance practices.

The attorney should review the signature and effective date of the commitment.

The attorney should confirm that the commitment is signed and that the issuance date is not more than ninety days before the closing. Otherwise, a new or revised commitment should be ordered.

Schedule A: The attorney should confirm that the proposed insured parties are correctly named, the amounts of insurance are correctly stated, and the correct estate is insured. The commitment should list two estates to be insured, the fee ownership of the groundwater estate, and the buyer’s easement estate. Record title should be vested in the seller. The attorney should confirm that the property description is correct and conforms to the description in the contract and in the survey (if applicable).

Schedule B: The attorney should review the following matters:

• Item 1, relating to covenants and restrictions, should be noted as either “Covenants, conditions, and restrictions (other than any restrictions indicating preference, limitation, or discrimination based on race, color, religion, sex, handicap, familial status, or national origin) as set forth in [recording data] of the real property records of [county] County, Texas” or “Item 1 of Schedule B is hereby deleted in its entirety.”

• Item 2, relating to the standard survey exception, may be amended and partially deleted to read “any shortages in area” if a current survey approved by the title company is obtained. An additional 5 percent premium is charged to amend the owner policy for a residential transaction; an additional 15 percent premium is charged to amend the owner policy for a commercial transaction. No additional premium is required to amend the mortgagee policy. The responsibility for paying the extra premium for the survey modification in the owner policy of title insurance is often negotiated between the parties, although the pertinent provision in the contract form provides for the extra premium to be paid by the buyer.

- Item 3, relating to homestead or community property or survivorship rights, and item 4, relating to tidelines, lands comprising the shores and beds of waterways, lands beyond the line of the harbor or bulkhead lines, filled-in lands, artificial islands, statutory water rights, and areas extending from the line of mean low tide to the line of vegetation, apply only to the owner policy and cannot be deleted or amended.

- Item 5, relating to property taxes, should be reviewed for the status of tax payments and the existence of rollback taxes.

- Item 6, relating to the terms and conditions of the documents creating the insured’s interest in the land, cannot be revised. The referenced documents should, however, be reviewed.

- Item 7, relating to materialman’s and mechanic’s liens, applies only to the mortgagee policies on interim construction loans and may be deleted if satisfactory evidence that the paragraph does not apply is furnished to the title company.

- Item 8, relating to subordinated liens and leases, applies only to the mortgagee policy.

- Item 9, relating to Existing liens, should show only liens permitted by the contract. Copies of all lien documents should be reviewed with regard to due-on-sale provisions; dragnet clauses relating to other debt, condemnation provisions; notice, cure, and default provisions; and subordinate financing. A superior lienholder’s estoppel agreement should be obtained from any lienholder whose note and lien are being either assumed or taken “subject to.”

All other special exceptions, such as easements, mineral interests, leases, or matters shown on a current survey, should be carefully reviewed to determine if they affect the buyer’s groundwater rights. The commitment should indicate whether these exceptions apply to the groundwater estate, the easement estate, or both. If the real property consists of more than one tract of land, the commitment should specify which items apply to which tract or tracts.

Schedule C: The attorney should ensure that the seller has complied with the contract by curing and effectively removing all matters appearing on Schedule C at or before closing. Schedule C matters may require obtaining releases of liens, settling specific claims or lawsuits affecting title to the property, furnishing evidence of good standing and authority (corporate resolution or partnership agreement), and obtaining proof of property settlement and divorce, proof of heirship or probate of a particular estate, or evidence relating to a bankruptcy. From the buyer’s perspective, curative matters appearing on Schedule C should be attended to by either the seller or the title company. The contract requires that the seller resolve all Schedule C items before closing, but if that provision is not used, the buyer should object to all Schedule C items in the commitment to ensure that they are not added to Schedule B of the title policy.

The Basic Manual of Rules, Rates and Forms for the Writing of Title Insurance in the State of Texas should be consulted for information on the various types of policies and endorsements that are available and their respective costs.

§ 16.21:2 Review of Abstract of Title

If the seller is obligated to provide an abstract of title, the contract provides that the buyer may have the abstract of title reviewed by an attorney at either the buyer’s or seller’s expense, as specified in the contract. If the condition of title is to be determined based on an abstract of title, the buyer should have the abstract of title reviewed by an attorney experienced in land title examination and knowledgeable about groundwater rights, and should obtain a written opinion of title in time to make title objections within the deadline specified in section A of the contract.

The abstract of title required by the contract covers the period from the first conveyance from the sovereignty to the present. It is possible to obtain an abstractor’s certificate from a title or abstract company that covers a shorter period and may contain a conclusion by the abstractor as to the identity of the current record owner of property, the existence of any outstanding liens, and other title encumbrances affecting the real property. While this information is useful, it is not a satisfactory substitute for an abstract of title as specified in the contract and an attorney’s opinion of title. Often, the title or abstract company preparing the abstractor’s certificate or abstract of title will limit liability for error to the amount charged for the certificate or abstract.

§ 16.21:3 Review of Survey

The seller is required to provide copies of any existing surveys under exhibit C (seller’s records). The contract allows the buyer to require the seller to provide a new survey of the real property, at the seller’s expense, as specified in the contract. The required survey category should be set out in the contract in the indicated place under the block for information on the surveyor. Different types of surveys and survey certifications are available, depending on the nature of the property and the requirements of the parties. An excellent resource on surveys is the Manual of Practice for Land Surveying in the State of Texas, published by the Texas Society of Professional Surveyors, which may be contacted at www.tsps.org. It describes the various categories and conditions for surveys in Texas, the level of accuracy required for each category of survey, matters to be depicted on the survey, and the nature of certificates.

The attorney should keep the following points in mind when reviewing a boundary survey:

- The survey should bear a recent date and should conform to the required category and condition for the type of survey specified in the contract and location of the property.
- The certificate should be sealed and signed and should conform to any certificate specified in the contract.
- There should be a north compass bearing on the survey.
- The attorney should observe the system of reference used for the survey, locate the beginning point, and determine that it is monumented and locatable.
- The survey, particularly all course and distance notations, should be compared to the legal description either appearing on or attached to the survey. This description then should be compared to the one appearing in the contract and the title commitment or title opinion.

If a more extensive survey, such as a land title survey, is obtained, the attorney should also keep the following points in mind:

- All recorded easements appearing in the title commitment or title opinion should be located and noted on the survey with the appropriate recording data, and blanket easements should be noted in the surveyor’s notes. The surveyor should also note any items shown in Schedule B that the surveyor determines do not affect the real property. Conversely, the attorney should examine the survey for any matters (such as easements) not appearing in the title commitment or title opinion.
- The survey should be examined for the location of improvements. The attorney should determine if the improvements protrude onto adjoining property or easement areas, if there are encroachments of improvements from adjoining property onto the property, and if there are building setback line violations.
- The survey should be examined for the depiction of overhead lines, roadways, or other uses of the property that are not within an easement area covered by a recorded easement, as these may indicate the existence of prescriptive easement rights. Any written notations on the survey, such as those relating to rights of parties in possession, should be reviewed to determine their effects on the property and its anticipated use.
- The property should have legal and adequate access to public streets or roads.
- The survey should show the existence and location of utilities.
- The surveyor’s certificate should indicate the location of the floodplain, if applicable.
§ 16.21:4 Review of UCC Search

The contract includes provisions for the conveyance of personal property and fixtures and requires that the seller furnish UCC searches of the UCC records of the Texas secretary of state and the UCC records of any other appropriate state. It should be remembered that groundwater permits, wells, and other property may fall within broad collateral descriptions such as “equipment” and “general intangibles” in security agreements and financing statements.

The inspection period is intended to give the buyer the opportunity to investigate the groundwater and real property and decide whether to close the transaction. The contract provides that the buyer may terminate the contract at any time before the end of the inspection period for any reason and have the earnest money returned, except for the independent consideration provided in the contract.

The contract provides for reasonable rules of entry and that the buyer will indemnify the seller for claims resulting from the buyer’s inspection of the property. Except for the environmental indemnity stated in exhibit B (if used), the indemnity provisions of the contract are not intended to shift risk from the indemnified party to the indemnitor for the indemnified party’s own negligence. One consequence of this allocation of risk is that the indemnified party may not be able to recover the costs of defense from the indemnitor if the indemnified party is sued for the consequences of its alleged negligence. See Fisk Electric Co. v. Constructors & Associates, 888 S.W.2d 813 (Tex. 1994). The environmental indemnity, if used, shifts risk for the seller’s own negligence from the seller to the buyer. It is unlikely, however, that the environmental indemnity will be effective to shift risk in the event of misrepresentation or fraud.

It is prudent for the purchaser of groundwater rights to be produced on site, whether or not previously severed, to obtain an environmental site assessment on the land overlying the ground-water that meets the requirements of the “all appropriate inquiries” rule under the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act (CERCLA), 42 U.S.C. §§ 9601–9675, in order to secure protection as an “innocent landowner” from strict liability for groundwater contamination. While there is no case law in which the owner of a groundwater right has been held strictly liable for groundwater contamination as a result of his ownership of the groundwater right, the owner of a mineral estate has been held to be an “owner” under CERCLA because it is the owner of a fee simple estate separate from the surface estate. See City of Grass Valley v. Newmont Mining Corp., No. 2:04-cv-00149-GEB-DAD, 2007 WL 4287603 (E.D. Cal. Dec. 4, 2007) (also cited in Halliburton Energy Services, Inc. v. NL Industries, 648 F. Supp. 2d 840, 896–97 (S.D. Tex. 2009)). An owner of a groundwater rights estate would, under the court’s reasoning in Edwards Aquifer Authority v. Day, 369 S.W.3d 814 (Tex. 2012), be the owner of a fee simple estate separate from the surface estate and could, therefore, be held to have strict liability for groundwater contamination. See William D. Dugat, All Appropriate Inquiries in Connection with Groundwater Purchases, in The Changing Face of Water Rights in Texas, State Bar of Texas (2015).

The contract provides that the earnest money will be deposited in one lump sum. The parties alternatively may agree that the buyer is obligated to deposit additional earnest money after agreed conditions have been satisfied—for example, if the buyer decides not to terminate the contract at the end of the inspection period and to proceed to closing.

Representations and warranties are negotiated by the parties with specific reference to the transaction. They may include such matters as ownership of the real property and groundwater rights; organization of the parties; authority to execute the contract and close the transaction; condition of title; parties in possession; pending litigation and claims that may ripen into litigation; pending or threatened condemnation or other taking; use restrictions, such as zoning and restrictive covenants; condition of the property or disclaimer of representations (for example, “as is” language); presence of landfills or hazardous and toxic wastes; floodplain location; utility availability and capacity; compliance with all laws; effectiveness of required licenses and permits; status of leases; operation and maintenance of property before closing; accuracy of books and records; agricultural or other special-use tax assessment; payment of ad valorem taxes; and status of debt to be assumed or taken “subject to.”

In negotiating representations, the parties should specify whether representations are to be absolute or based on the seller’s knowledge and belief; whether the representations will be based on the knowledge of the entity that is the seller or on the knowledge of specified individuals; whether the seller must perform further investigation to make the representations or may rely on its current knowledge, without further investigation; and whether and to what extent the representations will survive closing.

The approach used in this contract limits the seller’s representations and warranties, but it is not intended to insulate the seller from liability for fraud or misrepresentation.

- The seller represents only facts, not opinions. For example, the seller does not represent whether, in the seller’s opinion, the property is in compliance with applicable laws and regulations. Instead, the seller represents that it has not received notice of violation of any law, ordinance, regulation, or requirement affecting the property or use of the property, except as stated in the contract.
- The seller makes no representations or warranties that are not stated in the contract, including exhibit D (notices, statements, and certificates required by law and regulation), or in the closing documents.

The following optional clauses are also provided:

- The buyer agrees to accept the property in its “as is, where is” condition, investigate the property on the buyer’s own behalf, and not rely on information or representations attributable to the seller, except to the extent stated in the contract.
- The buyer waives its rights under the Texas Deceptive Trade Practices–Consumer Protection Act.
- The buyer assumes responsibility after closing for all environmental matters relating to the property.

If the parties negotiate different representations, exhibit B must be revised accordingly.

The contract provides that the parties’ representations are true and correct when made and must be true and correct at closing, or the buyer may terminate the contract.

It is common practice to include representations regarding the organization and authority of the parties in contracts but to defer the obligation to deliver documentary evidence confirming those representations until the closing of the transaction. That evidence customarily consists of certificates of existence and good standing from public officials, certified copies of organizational documents, certified corporate resolutions or partnership consents, and certificates of incumbency. The attorney may consider requiring such documentary evidence at the execution of the contract to avoid encountering a claim, after substantial obligations have been paid or incurred, that the other party is not authorized to consummate the transaction. While the seller’s organizational documents should be available at the time of execution of the contract, the buyer’s organizational documents are often not prepared until shortly before closing.

The parties’ signing of the contract obligates them concerning maintenance and operation of the property, casualty damage, condemnation, claims, governmental proceedings, permits, licenses, and inspections. The contract also sets out the parties’ agreement not to record the contract. Oil and gas leases may be of concern to the buyer of groundwater, because the lessee has the right to use groundwater in connection with its operations whether that right is stated in the lease or not. In addition, oil and gas leases may expressly allow the lessee to use significant amounts of groundwater for flooding or secondary recovery operations or may permit activities that could contaminate the groundwater, such as the injection or disposal of saltwater onto the real property. Paragraph I.2. of the contract contains provisions that restrict the ability of the seller to enter into oil and gas leases before and after closing.

The contract provides for disposition of the earnest money after termination and for posttermination obligations in certain events. If the memorandum of contract is used, the title company or escrow agent should record the notice of termination of contract if the contract is terminated before closing. See form 16-17 in this chapter.

The contract provides that, unless the parties agree otherwise before closing, certain closing documents will use the forms contained in the current edition of the Texas Real Estate Forms Manual. This approach defers the time and expense of negotiating the closing documents until after the contract is signed, while providing certainty if the parties do not otherwise negotiate closing documents. Alternately, the closing documents can be negotiated before the contract is signed and, if so, should be attached as exhibits to the contract.

The contract provides that the buyer acquires possession of the property at closing. The parties may agree, however, on earlier or later possession by the buyer. If the buyer takes possession before closing, a groundwater lease may be appropriate.

Although it is not common, a seller or buyer may be represented by a real estate broker in a groundwater transaction. Real estate brokers and real estate salespersons must have a written commission agreement to enforce payment of a real estate commission. The commission may be payable on contract execution, when the contract closes, or as otherwise agreed by the parties. The contract provides that the commission agreement is a separate document between the broker and the party responsible for paying the commission. For applicable forms, see forms 26-29 through 26-31 in this manual. Alternately, the contract may include the commission agreement or restate its key terms. The parties indemnify each other against claims by brokers and finders arising by, through, or under the indemnifying party. The contract may state that there are no brokers, but there is no requirement to do so.

If either the buyer or the seller is licensed as a real estate salesperson or real estate broker and is acting as a broker in the transaction, a disclosure to that effect is required under the Real Estate License Act. See Tex. Occ. Code § 1101.652(b)(16).

The contract provides that the buyer may elect one of the following remedies for the seller's default: termination (with disposition of the earnest money and payment of additional liquidated damages to the nondefaulting party) or specific performance. In addition, the buyer may terminate if the seller's representations are not true and correct or if a warranty set forth in the contract is breached. The parties may be entitled to payment of actual damages and perhaps of consequential damages if the untruth or breach is first discovered after closing. The contract is drafted to limit the parties' remedies, but remedies are often negotiated.

The contract provides that the party prevailing in litigation is entitled to recover attorney's fees and court and other costs.

The contract contains alternate clauses concerning assignment. The buyer either may not assign the contract or may assign the contract only to an entity controlled by the buyer.

If the contract provides that the buyer has the right to assign, the assignment provision should state whether the buyer is relieved from obligations under the contract after assignment.

§ 16.29 Closing Functions

The party handling the closing (the title company or escrow agent) commonly attends to the matters discussed in the following sections.

§ 16.29:1 Payoff Information and Other Closing Expenses

Written request should be made to each lienholder for the lienholder's written payoff statement. The lienholder should be requested through an authorized representative to state the remaining principal balance due on the note, the accrued interest as of a certain date, a per diem amount of interest, and whether the lienholder will credit the amount held in the escrow account, if one exists, to the total due or, alternatively, refund the amount directly to the borrower. Closing must occur and payment be made to the lienholder before the release of lien will be signed.

Additionally, information concerning other matters requiring payment at closing should be obtained, such as payoff amounts for mechanic's lien claims, federal or state tax liens, property taxes, paving assessments, and abstracted judgments that affect the property.

The closing agent must also determine the amounts of closing costs, such as surveying expenses, attorney's fees, brokers' commissions, and loan fees.

§ 16.29:2 Ad Valorem Taxes and Groundwater Authority Fees

Currently groundwater is not assessed and taxed independently from the surface estate for ad valorem tax purposes. Consequently, the contract does not provide for a proration of ad valorem property taxes at closing, but it does require that the taxes be paid in full at closing by the seller, if they are due and payable at the time of closing. Under current law, the sale of the groundwater rights, at least when the buyer retains sufficient reserved groundwater to enable it to continue its existing use of the real property, would not appear to trigger the assessment of rollback taxes. Consequently, the contract provides that if the real property has been, or at any time after closing is, the subject of special valuation and reduced tax assessments pursuant to the provisions of chapter 23, subchapter D, of the Texas Tax Code, the seller will be responsible for the payment of any such taxes, penalties, and interest, including rollback taxes. If the seller is not reserving sufficient groundwater to continue the seller’s existing use of the real property, the parties should consider modifying this provision.

After closing, the seller will continue to pay all ad valorem taxes and assessments due in connection with the real property before delinquency, except that if ad valorem taxes are ever assessed separately against the buyer’s groundwater rights after closing, the buyer will be responsible for paying such taxes and assessments if the buyer is obligated to pay such taxes under applicable law. After closing, the buyer will be responsible for paying all fees, assessments, taxes, and charges of any kind imposed by the groundwater authority or any successor authority in connection with the buyer’s use of the groundwater, and the seller will be obligated to pay such taxes and assessments with regard to the reserved groundwater, if any. The provisions regarding taxes should be set out in the deed and easement agreement signed by the parties at closing.

§ 16.29:3 Preparation of Closing Documents

The closing agent may be expected to prepare several documents.

Closing Statements: Closing statements may be on either the federally prescribed settlement statement, the State Board of Insurance settlement statement, or a separate seller’s, buyer’s, or borrower’s statement, depending on the nature of the transaction. The purpose of a closing statement is to assemble in one document all the pertinent financial features of the contract, including purchase price, loan amounts, costs and expenses of closing the transaction, and prorations. Execution of the statement evidences the parties’ agreement with the numbers and computations appearing on the statement.

Affidavits: Affidavits concerning debts and liens, parties in possession, identity of the parties, leases, and the parties’ marital status will likely be required at closing by the title company, escrow agent, or a party’s attorney.

Financing documents are typically prepared by the lender’s attorney. Conveyancing and other closing documents may be prepared by the parties to the transaction, their attorneys, or an attorney for the closing agent.

§ 16.29:4 Funding

The closing agent typically disburses funds in connection with closing. Disbursements are made according to the closing statement, usually from funds paid by the buyer and its lenders.

Except in the case of certain nontaxable sales of principal residences, the person responsible for closing a real estate transaction is required to file with the Internal Revenue Service an information return relating to the transaction and is subject to penalties for failing to report. See 26 U.S.C. § 6045. This reporting requirement is often satisfied by the responsible person by delivering the seller’s closing statement, together with an attachment of additional required information, to the IRS.

If funds will be disbursed at closing, payments must be made to the closing agent with “good funds” as defined by the regulations of the Texas State Board of Insurance or immediately available funds. See Procedural Rule P-27, Basic Manual of Rules, Rates and Forms for the Writing of Title Insurance in the State of Texas.
If it is not necessary to disburse funds at closing, the parties need not comply with the “good funds” rule, and payment may be made in other ways.

In a lending transaction, the attorney for the lender should consider obtaining an insured closing service letter from the title insurance underwriter, if title insurance is available, whose policies are to be issued. This letter indemnifies the lender for any fraudulent acts of the closing title insurance company relating to the handling of closing funds. See forms T-50 and T-51 of the Basic Manual of Rules, Rates and Forms for the Writing of Title Insurance in the State of Texas. See https://www.tdi.texas.gov/title/titlemm5.html.

The title company or escrow agent is responsible for recording documents intended to be recorded. This responsibility extends to the recording of releases or transfers of liens for notes paid at closing. Each document should be checked before recording to ensure that it is properly executed and notarized, the exhibits referred to in the document are attached, and the name and address of the person to whom the document is to be returned after recording is included.

Attorneys for the buyer, the seller, and the lender may each prepare closing instructions for the closing agent. For applicable forms, see forms 26-15 through 26-18 in this manual. These instructions relate to the conditions precedent to closing, including the status of the title after closing, the title insurance policies to be issued, disposition of funds, and distribution of documents received by the closing agent.

§ 16.30  Additional Considerations

§ 16.30:1  Transactions Involving Foreign Persons

Buyer: If the buyer is a foreign person, certain disclosures and reports may be required under the Foreign Investment in Real Property Tax Act of 1980. See 26 U.S.C. § 6039C.

Seller: With certain exceptions, anyone purchasing real property located in the United States from a foreign person must withhold 15 percent of the price and remit the funds to the Internal Revenue Service within twenty days of the date of transfer. See 26 U.S.C. § 1445(a), (b). The transferee should assume that the seller is a foreign person until the contrary is established, because transferees act at their own peril until they obtain a nonforeign affidavit. See 26 U.S.C. § 1445(b)(2). The nonforeign affidavits (forms 26-19 and 26-20 in this manual) are suggested for use in all transactions.

The attorney should prepare a closing checklist, itemizing the documents that will be required to close the transaction, including curative documents. The checklist should also refer to all other preclosing considerations relating to the transaction.
§ 16.30:3 Postclosing Considerations

After closing, recorded documents and relevant title insurance policies issued after closing should be reviewed for accuracy and compliance with the title commitment. The owner policy should be dated on or after the recording date of the deed conveying title to the buyer, and the mortgagee policy should be dated on or after the recording date of the deed of trust of the insured lien.

An original or title company’s certified copy of each executed document relating to the closing should be provided to the seller and the buyer or the borrower by their attorneys. Generally, the party benefiting from a document receives the original, and the other parties receive copies.

III. Groundwater Transaction Guide for Sale of Permitted Groundwater Rights for Off-Site Production

§ 16.41 Sale of Permitted Groundwater Rights for Production Off-Site

The rights to produce and transport groundwater can be sold under a contract of sale and conveyed by deed and easement agreement. These rights can also be leased under a groundwater lease. (But see section 16.1 above for a discussion of ownership of groundwater rights.) This part of this chapter applies to the sale and conveyance of permitted groundwater rights for off-site production. The sale or conveyance of groundwater for on-site production is addressed in part II. of this chapter. The sale and conveyance of surface water rights is addressed in part IV. Financing documents for use in transactions in which the groundwater rights and permit constitute the collateral are discussed in part V.

The forms discussed in this part of this chapter are for general use. Users should be aware that modifications may be required for specific transactions. For all groundwater sales, it is imperative that attorneys involved in the transaction identify the regulatory agencies with jurisdiction over the groundwater rights (referred to collectively in this transaction guide as the “groundwater authority”) and obtain copies of all rules and regulations pertaining to groundwater as early in the transaction as possible. The rules may contain requirements that have an important bearing on the transaction, such as minimum acreage requirements for production, limitations on production, and requirements for the issuance and transfer of permits. It may be necessary for the practitioner to make modifications to the forms based on the rules of the groundwater authority. The forms require significant modifications for use in the sale of groundwater subject to the rules of the Edwards Aquifer Authority.

§ 16.42 Groundwater Rights Sales Contract, Deed, and Related Forms; Place for Recordation

Whether the seller is the owner of both the surface and groundwater estates in the land or is the owner only of groundwater pursuant to ownership of all or part of a permit for production of groundwater, if the seller is selling the permitted groundwater for production at a location other than the land from which the original permit was derived, only the groundwater sales contract, form 16-9 in this chapter, should be used in the transaction. Specifically, in some groundwater authorities, notably the Edwards Aquifer Authority (EAA), a purchaser may buy all or a portion of the unrestricted right to produce groundwater pursuant to the terms of a permit issued by the EAA and then elect to withdraw the water from a location different from the original permit location as long as the new location is within the jurisdiction of the EAA. Form 16-9 specifically contemplates a transaction in which a groundwater authority has issued a permit for the production of groundwater, and the groundwater, through the mechanism of the permit, is what is being sold. The production of the groundwater will occur at a well location other than the land set forth in the permit. The new location for production will be designated by the buyer at some point in the transfer mechanism with the groundwater authority. With these types of transactions, it is never contemplated that the buyer will actually produce groundwater on the land owned by the seller, and, in fact, the contract and the subsequent deed prohibit the buyer from having access to the land owned by the seller.

For transactions entered into after September 1, 2019, the Texas legislature has created additional mechanisms for the transfer of groundwater permitted by the EAA for irrigation purposes on “historically irrigated land.” See Acts 2019, 86th Leg., R.S., ch. 904, § 1 (H.B. 3656), eff. Sept. 1, 2019 (amending § 1.34 of the Edwards Aquifer Authority Act, Acts 1993, 73d Leg., R.S., ch. 626, § 1.34 (S.B. 1477), eff. Sept. 1, 1993). Previously, a holder of a permit for irrigation was not authorized to lease more than 50 percent of the irrigation rights initially permitted. House Bill 3656 sets out conditions under which a permit holder may seek approval from the EAA to sell or lease the remaining water rights for historically irrigated land and adds new definitions for the terms developed land, historically irrigated land, and land no longer practicable to farm.

In order to sever all or a portion of the remaining water rights, the permit holder must demonstrate to the satisfaction of the EAA, based on rules adopted by the EAA to implement House Bill 3656, (1) that the historically irrigated land has become developed land or is no longer practicable to farm, and/or (2) that the land cannot be developed because of its topography or location within a floodplain.

Subject to approval by the EAA, the permit holder may sever the water rights in proportion to the part of the land that meets such requirements. The approval of a severance of water rights affected by House Bill 3656 is subject to a contested case hearing in accordance with EAA rules. House Bill 3656 expressly prohibits the EAA from adopting rules that would expand either the type of land that is considered to be “developed land” or “land no longer considered practicable to farm.”

House Bill 3656 also authorizes the EAA to adopt rules that would allow a permit holder to lease all or part of the water rights for use in irrigation granted in the initial permit to another person for irrigating land, whether or not the land to be irrigated is the same land to which the original permit was granted, so long as the land is within the boundaries of the EAA’s jurisdiction.

All recordable documents, including the new permit when issued, should be recorded in the county or counties in which the land from which the groundwater and permit rights were originally obtained is located. In addition, if a new withdrawal location is selected in a different county, all of the same documents, including the new permit, should also be recorded in that county. For example, if the original permit was derived from land in Medina County, but the new withdrawal location is to be in Bexar County, all documentation should be recorded in both Medina and Bexar counties. Although not required, deeds, deeds of trust, and other recordable documents may, in addition, be filed in any county in which land from which the permit is derived is located. This may include land that was at one time owned or leased by the permit holder or the holder’s predecessor in title. This serves as a means of giving actual notice of the groundwater rights and liens to persons looking in the real property records of these counties.

2. Groundwater Rights Warranty Deed (Off-Site) (form 16-10).
3. Permit Transfer Request (forms 16-12 and 16-26) or a transfer form promulgated or approved by the groundwater authority or another form promulgated by the groundwater authority, if it has a particular form for transfer.

4. Partial Release of Lien (form 16-11) if the seller has an existing lien on the land and only the groundwater rights are being released from the lien at closing.

5. Release of Lien (form 10-2 in this manual) if the seller’s entire lien will be released at closing.

6. Form UCC3 (form 9-14 in this manual), a form promulgated by the Texas secretary of state, if there is a security interest that covers or that could be construed to cover the groundwater or the permit to be conveyed at closing.

7. Assignment and Assumption of Lease (form 16-14) if there is an existing lease of the groundwater.

8. Lessee Estoppel Certificate (form 16-15) used to assure the buyer that the groundwater lease is valid and not in default and that the lessee understands the lease is being assigned.

9. Affidavit of Debts and Liens [and Indemnity] (form 16-13) (if this form is not being provided by a title company) used to provide additional protection to the buyer, especially in instances in which no title insurance will be obtained or title insurance is not available.

10. Loan documents required by the lender.

The groundwater rights sales contract, form 16-9 in this chapter, is drafted as a neutral form of contract, intending to favor neither the buyer nor the seller. For each contract, the basic elements of the transaction are, in general, stated in the sections to be completed at the beginning of the form. Some provisions, however, are required to be completed throughout the contract. The general terms that follow in the form may be used for many transactions. However, the sale of groundwater is an emerging area of law, and there are no well-established terms of sale. Contracts for the purchase and sale of groundwater are diverse, and additional drafting may be necessary. The following commentary is organized in the same order as the sections of the contract.

The introductory paragraph of the contract states what the parties must do to form the contract of purchase and sale. If the buyer’s earnest money cannot be collected, the buyer will be in default.

There are sections for the names of and other information concerning the seller, the buyer, and their attorneys. Proper identification of the parties is important, and the seller and buyer should be identified as fully as possible. Capacity and authority should be considered, especially if a party is not an individual acting on his own behalf. See chapter 3 in this manual for a discussion of party designations. It should be noted that if the owner of the real property and the owner of the permit are not the same party, the attorney for the buyer must make certain that both parties sign all closing documents. Most groundwater authorities will not mediate ownership of groundwater rights.
Title insurance to insure title to groundwater rights in Texas is not generally offered by title insurance underwriters in Texas, although currently there is at least one insurer that offers title insurance for water rights. To the extent it is available, the title insurance product is a variation of a title policy on the real property. In many ways, it may not provide the parties with the complete coverage and closing details they are used to receiving in a land closing and title policy. For that reason, many sales of groundwater, in particular permitted groundwater transactions, are completed through the use of a title opinion based on information prepared by a title company. Nonetheless, the contract designates a title company or escrow agent to act as the escrow and closing agent in order to address either option. The title company or escrow agent is responsible for closing the transaction and receiving and disbursing funds under the terms of the contract. If a title opinion is provided as evidence of title to the groundwater rights, it should be reviewed by an attorney who is knowledgeable about land titles and groundwater rights.

It is advisable to have a written escrow agreement between the title company or escrow agent, the buyer, and the seller that defines the rights and duties of the title company or escrow agent. Form 4-2 in this manual is an escrow agent receipt and escrow agreement. It can be modified for use with an escrow agent other than a title company.

A survey is rarely used in the sale of permitted groundwater, as the underlying issue is not the location of the real property but rather the chain of title related to the real property and the permit. If there is a need for a survey, a section could be drafted for the contract.

Generally, for a groundwater transaction involving a permit, the real property is located within a groundwater conservation district or other groundwater authority, and the authority should be identified. It is imperative that the buyer’s attorney consult the rules of the groundwater authority to determine all restrictions on the use and production of groundwater, requirements for sale of groundwater, and rules regarding the issuance or transfer of a permit. Generally, copies of the rules can be obtained only from the groundwater authority. The buyer’s attorney should also obtain, and personally review, copies of all documents maintained by the groundwater authority pertaining to the groundwater and permit being sold. The attorney should note all relevant information from the file, such as yearly allocations, if applicable, and should determine the feasibility of meeting all conditions of the groundwater authority’s approval of the sale within the buyer’s required time frame.

It is important for the buyer to determine the status of the seller’s permit issued by the groundwater authority in connection with the groundwater and what the groundwater authority requires for the transfer of the permit. Cooperation by the seller in the transfer of the permit should be set out in the contract and is paramount to the buyer’s efforts to obtain approval of the transfer. All permit information should be set out in the contract. The contract should address the timing of the filing of application to transfer the permit to the buyer and whether approval of the groundwater authority is a condition of closing. Form 16-26 in this chapter is an example of an application to the groundwater authority to transfer permits in the absence of a form promulgated by the authority.

The amount of earnest money is negotiable and depends on several factors, including the purchase price, the type of financing, and the relative financial strengths of the parties.

If the buyer terminates the contract before the end of the inspection period and the buyer is otherwise entitled to have the earnest money returned, the contract provides that a stated amount should not be returned to the buyer but should be paid to the seller, because that amount is the independent consideration to the seller for the buyer’s right to terminate the contract.

The real property is the land from which the groundwater or permit is to be sold and is described in exhibit A of the contract. The contract should describe the real and personal property with legal specificity. If the property is not described sufficiently, the contract may be unenforceable because of vagueness. See chapter 3 in this manual for a discussion of property descriptions. Attention also should be given to the conveyance of appurtenant rights, such as permits, licenses, and similar rights.

§ 16.45:10 Groundwater Rights

The contract defines groundwater rights to include the right to withdraw a stated quantity of groundwater from a specific aquifer as described in the permit (the “groundwater”) and all rights and interests relating to the groundwater, including—all of the real and personal property rights, appurtenances, authorities, licenses, consents, and contracts, if any, relating to or pertaining to the Groundwater, which will also include all common-law property rights in and to the Groundwater as well as those rights or interests that now or in the future may be useful or necessary to withdraw or otherwise beneficially use the Groundwater Rights . . . .

Generally, the seller will retain ownership of some permitted rights; however, a specific reservation is not usually required, as the description of the groundwater will specify what number of acre-feet of water will be sold out of the permit. In addition, if the permit being transferred is that of an irrigation groundwater right, in some groundwater districts, there is a certain required acre-feet of groundwater that cannot be severed or sold from the real property. In the case of the Edwards Aquifer Authority (EAA), one acre-foot of irrigation groundwater is known as the base water and, with a few specific exceptions, cannot be sold from the real property from which it derived. The EAA’s rules related to the reservation of one acre-foot of irrigation groundwater and the permit holder’s ability to secure authorizations from the EAA to transfer those rights, either by sale or lease, were challenged by several landowners, the Uvalde County Underground Water Conservation District, the city of Uvalde, and Uvalde County in Uvalde County Underground Water Conservation District v. Edwards Aquifer Authority, No. 2018-01-
In response to the litigation, House Bills 1479, 3644, and 3656 were considered by the Texas legislature during the 86th legislative session. House Bill 3656 passed and became effective September 1, 2019.

For transactions entered into after September 1, 2019, the Texas legislature has created additional mechanisms for the transfer of groundwater permitted by the EAA for irrigation purposes on “historically irrigated land.” See Acts 2019, 86th Leg., R.S., ch. 904, § 1 (H.B. 3656), eff. Sept. 1, 2019 (amending § 1.34 of the Edwards Aquifer Authority Act, Acts 1993, 73d Leg., R.S., ch. 626, § 1.34 (S.B. 1477), eff. Sept. 1, 1993). Previously, a holder of a permit for irrigation was not authorized to lease more than 50 percent of the irrigation rights initially permitted. House Bill 3656 sets out conditions under which a permit holder may seek approval from the EAA to sell or lease the remaining water rights for historically irrigated land. See section 16.42 above for an in-depth discussion of the requirements.

There is no standard method of determining the purchase price for groundwater rights; however, in the case of permitted groundwater, the sales have been based most often on a price per acre-foot of water. Variations on this model include pricing on a per-acre-foot-permitted basis or a per-acre-foot-per-acre allocation. The field of groundwater rights appraisal is still evolving. In areas in which there are numerous groundwater sales, such as the Edwards Aquifer, it is possible to obtain an appraisal of groundwater rights based on comparable sales. The contract provides for the purchase price based on a stated price per acre of groundwater being purchased. The buyer will be paying for the groundwater under each acre of land, based on a stated price per acre, regardless of how much or how little water is actually under the land. Exhibit E of the contract may be used if the parties agree to seller financing of the purchase. If obtaining third-party financing is a condition to the buyer’s obligations, that fact and the terms of the complying financing should be addressed in the contract. See chapters 6 and 8 in this manual for further discussion of financing.

§ 16.45:13 Buyer’s and Seller’s Liquidated Damages

The liquidated damages sections of the contract are provided so that the parties can agree on additional liquidated damages to be paid by the defaulting party to the nondefaulting party on default.

§ 16.45:14 Title Commitment and Title Information

Title insurance may not be available to insure title to groundwater rights, but even if available, the parties may agree not to procure title insurance. If the seller is not required to provide a title commitment, the contract requires the seller to provide the buyer with title information. The contract provides that the buyer may have the title information reviewed by an attorney of the buyer’s choice, at the expense of the seller or buyer as specified in the contract. If the buyer obtains title information, the buyer should have it reviewed by an attorney who is experienced in land titles and knowledgeable about groundwater rights.

The contract defines title documents to include the seller’s “Permit and instruments affecting title to the Groundwater and the Real Property” referenced in the title commitment or title information and UCC search. These documents are to be provided as part of the seller’s records. Under paragraph F.6. of the contract, title objections can be made on the basis of the title documents. This provides the buyer with the ability to make objections to title based on the seller’s permit or unrecorded documents provided as part of the seller’s records.

Section A of the contract contains most of the deadlines, grouped for ease of reference, and provides two alternate ways to determine most of the deadlines: either a stated date or a specified number of days after the effective date of the contract or another specific date. The contract provides that time is of the essence and that closing will occur a certain number of days after the expiration of the inspection period, but closing may also be specified to occur a certain number of days following a different event or on a certain date. The closing date may also be specified as “on or before” a certain date or event.

§ 16.47 Closing Documents

Section B of the contract lists the documents to be signed and delivered to close the transaction and serves as a checklist to prepare for closing. Section C contains a number of exhibits. The attorney should choose the specific exhibits appropriate for the sale.

§ 16.47:1 Exhibit B—Representations; Environmental Matters

Exhibit B contains the parties’ representations. These items are always negotiated by the parties and will vary from transaction to transaction.

§ 16.47:2 Exhibit C—Seller’s Records

Exhibit C is a list of the seller’s records of the property that will be delivered or made available to the buyer for review during the inspection period and also delivered to the buyer at closing.

Exhibit D lists notices, statements, and certificates required by federal and state law and regulations to be delivered when common real estate contracts are executed. The items applicable to a specific transaction should be selected. See chapter 2 in this manual for brief discussions of laws and regulations that require notices, statements, and certificates. Some of the statutory provisions would appear to include the sale of groundwater, simply because they apply to a sale or conveyance of real property, and no exemption is made for the sale of groundwater.

§ 16.47:4 Exhibit E—Seller Financing

Exhibit E contains seller-financing terms.

§ 16.47:5 Exhibit F—Memorandum of Contract

If it is anticipated that there may be a significant amount of time between the date the contract is signed and the date of closing, it is advisable to have the memorandum of contract signed and recorded in the real property records to provide notice of the buyer’s contract rights. See form 16-16 in this chapter.
§ 16.47:6  Exhibit G—Notice of Termination of Contract

If the memorandum of contract is used, the parties should execute the notice of termination of contract form at the same time and deliver it to the title company or escrow agent for recordation in the event the contract is terminated before closing. See form 16-17 in this chapter.

The contract provides that the buyer may direct the title company or escrow agent to invest the earnest money in an interest-bearing account in a federally insured financial institution. If the earnest money is to be invested, the title company will require the buyer’s tax identification or Social Security number so that accrued interest may be reported to the Internal Revenue Service.

The contract incorporates the statutory notice that the Texas Real Estate License Act requires real estate brokers and real estate salespersons to give to a buyer, advising that the buyer should either have the title examined by an attorney or obtain a title insurance policy, if available. Tex. Occ. Code § 1101.652(b)(29). If a broker or salesperson is not involved, the paragraph may be deleted.

The contract requires that the seller provide to the buyer the title commitment or title information, the UCC search, and legible copies of each document referred to in these instruments by the deadlines stated in the contract. The contract follows a typical procedure under which the buyer reviews the title commitment or title information, the seller’s permit, the documents provided by the seller, and the UCC search and notifies the seller of any objections. After notice, the seller may elect to cure the buyer’s objections but is not required to do so. If the seller does not agree to cure, the buyer may either proceed to close the transaction and accept the groundwater subject to the uncured matters or terminate the contract. However, the seller is obligated to resolve all items listed on Schedule C of the title commitment at or before closing and to cure title matters that arise by, through, or under the seller after the contract is signed.

The contract provides that the condition of title will be established by either a title commitment or title information, as agreed to by the buyer and the seller. If title information is furnished, the buyer may have the title information reviewed by an attorney and obtain the attorney’s written opinion of the title information. The benefit of obtaining title insurance, if such insurance is available, over an attorney’s opinion of title is that title insurers are required to maintain reserves to cover claims that are greater than the malpractice coverage maintained by most law firms. Consequently, there is an increased likelihood of recovery if an error is made by the title company in its determination of title. See also section 16.21:1 above.

An essential reference on title insurance is the Basic Manual of Rules, Rates and Forms for the Writing of Title Insurance in the State of Texas, available from the Texas Department of Insurance at https://www.tdi.texas.gov/title/titleman.html. The manual contains Texas rate and procedural rules, the text of title 11 of the Texas Insurance Code, relating to title insurance, and various bulletins of the Texas State Board of Insurance dealing with title insurance practices.
The attorney should review the signature and effective date of the commitment. The attorney should confirm that the commitment is signed, and the issuance date is not more than ninety days before the closing. Otherwise, a new or revised commitment should be ordered.

Schedule A: The attorney should confirm that the proposed insured parties are correctly named, the amounts of insurance are correctly stated, and the correct estate is insured, including the correct number of acre-feet of groundwater and the correct reference to the permit. Record title should be vested in the seller. The attorney should confirm that the property description is correct and conforms to the description in the contract.

Schedule B: The attorney should review the following matters:

- Item 1, relating to covenants and restrictions, should be noted as either “Covenants, conditions, and restrictions (other than any restrictions indicating preference, limitation, or discrimination based on race, color, religion, sex, handicap, familial status, or national origin) as set forth in [recording data] of the real property records of [county] County, Texas” or “Item 1 of Schedule B is hereby deleted in its entirety.”
- Item 3, relating to homestead or community property or survivorship rights, should be reviewed to verify ownership right.
- Item 5, relating to property taxes, should be reviewed for the status of tax payments and the existence of rollback taxes.
- Item 6, relating to the terms and conditions of the documents creating the insured’s interest in the land, cannot be revised. The referenced documents should, however, be reviewed.
- Item 7, relating to materialman’s and mechanic’s liens, applies only to the mortgagee policies on interim construction loans and may be deleted if satisfactory evidence that the paragraph does not apply is furnished to the title company.
- Item 8, relating to subordinate liens and leases, applies only to a mortgagee policy and may not be applicable for every water transaction.
- Item 9, relating to existing liens, should show only liens permitted by the contract. Copies of all lien documents should be reviewed with regard to due-on-sale provisions, dragnet clauses relating to other debt, condemnation provisions, notice, cure, and default provisions, and subordinate financing. A superior lienholder’s estoppel agreement should be obtained from any lienholder whose note and lien are being either assumed or taken “subject to.”

All other special exceptions should be carefully reviewed to determine if they affect the buyer’s groundwater rights. If there is more than one set of groundwater rights being insured, the commitment should specify which exceptions apply to which set of groundwater rights.

Schedule C: The attorney should ensure that the seller has complied with the contract by curing and effectively removing all matters appearing on Schedule C at or before closing. Schedule C matters may require obtaining releases of liens, settling specific claims or lawsuits affecting title to the property, furnishing evidence of good standing and authority (corporate resolution or partnership agreement), and obtaining proof of property settlement and divorce, proof of heirship or probate of a particular estate, or evidence relating to a bankruptcy. From the buyer’s perspective, curative matters appearing on Schedule C should be attended to by either the seller or the title company. The contract requires that the seller resolve all Schedule C items before closing, but if that provision is not used, the buyer should object to all Schedule C items in the commitment to ensure that they are not added to Schedule B of the title policy.

The Basic Manual of Rules, Rates and Forms for the Writing of Title Insurance in the State of Texas should be consulted for information on the various types of policies and endorsements that are available and their respective costs.
§ 16.49:2  Review of Abstract of Title or Title Information

If the seller is obligated to provide an abstract of title or title information, the contract provides that the buyer may have the abstract of title or title information reviewed by an attorney at either the buyer’s or seller’s expense, as specified in the contract. If the condition of title is to be determined based on an abstract of title or title information, the buyer should have it reviewed by an attorney experienced in land title examination and knowledgeable about groundwater rights, and should obtain a written opinion of title in time to make title objections within the deadline specified in section A. of the contract.

The abstract of title required by the contract covers the period from the first conveyance from the sovereignty to the present. It is possible to obtain an abstractor’s certificate from a title or abstract company that covers a shorter period and may contain a conclusion by the abstractor as to the identity of the current record owner of property, the existence of any outstanding liens, and other title encumbrances affecting the real property. While this information is useful, it is not a satisfactory substitute for an abstract of title or title information as specified in the contract and an attorney’s opinion of title. Often, the title or abstract company preparing the abstractor’s certificate or abstract of title will limit liability for error to the amount charged for the certificate or abstract.

§ 16.49:4  Review of UCC Search

The contract includes provisions that require the seller to furnish searches of the UCC records of the Texas secretary of state and the UCC records of any other appropriate state. Groundwater permits, wells, and other property may fall within broad collateral descriptions such as “equipment” and “general intangibles” in security agreements and financing statements.

§ 16.50  Inspection Period

The inspection period is intended to give the buyer the opportunity to investigate the groundwater and real property and decide whether to close the transaction. The contract provides that the buyer may terminate the contract at any time before the end of the inspection period for any reason and have the earnest money returned, except for the independent consideration provided in the contract.

The contract provides for reasonable rules of entry and that the buyer will indemnify the seller for claims resulting from the buyer’s inspection of the property, although in the case of the purchase of permitted groundwater to be produced from another location, the need to visually inspect the real property is rare. Generally, inspection periods in these types of contracts are used more as a feasibility period, allowing the buyer time to evaluate the overall purchase of the groundwater rather than inspect the actual property.

Except for the environmental indemnity stated in exhibit B (if used), the indemnity provisions of the contract are not intended to shift risk from the indemnified party to the indemnitor for the indemnified party’s own negligence. One consequence of this allocation of risk is that the indemnified party may not be able to recover the costs of defense from the indemnitor if the indemnified party is sued for the consequences of its alleged negligence. See Fisk Electric Co. v. Constructors & Associates, 888 S.W.2d 813 (Tex. 1994). The environmental indemnity, if used, shifts risk for the seller’s own negligence from the seller.
to the buyer. It is unlikely, however, that the environmental indemnity will be effective to shift risk in the event of misrepresentation or fraud.

The contract provides that the earnest money will be deposited in one lump sum. The parties alternatively may agree that the buyer is obligated to deposit additional earnest money after agreed conditions have been satisfied—for example, if the buyer decides not to terminate the contract at the end of the inspection period and to proceed to closing.

Representations and warranties are negotiated by the parties with specific reference to the transaction. They may include such matters as ownership of the real property and groundwater, organization of the parties, authority to execute the contract and close the transaction, condition of title, pending litigation and claims that may ripen into litigation, pending or threatened condemnation or other taking, disclaimer of representations (for example, “as is” language), compliance with all laws, status of leases, payment of ad valorem taxes, and status of debt to be assumed or taken “subject to.”

In negotiating representations, the parties should specify whether representations are to be absolute or based on the seller’s knowledge and belief; whether the representations will be based on the knowledge of the entity that is the seller or on the knowledge of specified individuals; whether the seller must perform further investigation to make the representations or may rely on its current knowledge, without further investigation; and whether and to what extent the representations will survive closing.

The approach used in this contract limits the seller’s representations and warranties, but it is not intended to insulate the seller from liability for fraud or misrepresentation.

- The seller represents only facts, not opinions. For example, the seller does not represent whether, in the seller’s opinion, the property is in compliance with applicable laws and regulations. Instead, the seller represents that it has not received notice of violation of any law, ordinance, regulation, or requirement affecting the property or use of the property, except as stated in the contract.

- The seller makes no representations or warranties that are not stated in the contract, including exhibit D (notices, statements, and certificates required by law and regulation), or in the closing documents.

The following optional clauses are also provided:

- The buyer agrees to accept the property in its “as is, where is” condition, investigate the property on the buyer’s own behalf, and not rely on information or representations attributable to the seller, except to the extent stated in the contract.

- The buyer waives its rights under the Texas Deceptive Trade Practices–Consumer Protection Act.

If the parties negotiate different representations, exhibit B must be revised accordingly.

The contract provides that the parties’ representations are true and correct when made and must be true and correct at closing, or the buyer may terminate the contract. Termination of the contract may not be a satisfactory remedy for the buyer, in which case other remedies could be negotiated, such as a reduction in the sales price.

It is common practice to include representations regarding the organization and authority of the parties in contracts but to defer the obligation to deliver documentary evidence confirming those representations until the closing of the transaction. That evidence customarily consists of certificates of existence and good standing from public officials, certified copies of organizational documents, certified corporate resolutions or partnership consents, and certificates of incumbency. The attorney may consider requiring such documentary evidence at the execution of the contract to avoid encountering a claim, after substantial obligations have been paid or incurred, that the other party is not authorized to consummate the transaction. While the seller’s organizational documents should be available at the time of execution of the contract, the buyer’s organizational documents are often not prepared until shortly before closing.

The parties’ signing of the contract obligates them concerning the groundwater, condemnation, claims, governmental proceedings, permits, licenses, and inspections. The contract also sets out the parties’ agreement not to record the contract.

The contract provides for disposition of the earnest money after termination and for posttermination obligations in certain events. If the memorandum of contract is used, the title company or escrow agent should record the notice of termination of contract if the contract is terminated before closing. See form 16-17 in this chapter.

The contract provides that, unless the parties agree otherwise before closing, certain closing documents will use the forms contained in the current edition of the Texas Real Estate Forms Manual. This approach defers the time and expense of negotiating the closing documents until after the contract is signed, while providing certainty if the parties do not otherwise negotiate closing documents. Alternately, the closing documents can be negotiated before the contract is signed and, if so, should be attached as exhibits to the contract.

The contract provides that the buyer acquires possession of the groundwater at closing; however, the groundwater authority may not actually approve the transfer of the permit until weeks after closing. For this reason, the continued cooperation of the seller, if necessary, is required should there be any impediment at the office of the groundwater authority.

If closing is performed by an escrow agent, the escrow agent should be responsible for getting the affidavit of debts and liens (form 16-13 in this chapter), the settlement statement, and similar documents typically provided by a title company, signed at closing.

Although it is not common, a seller or buyer may be represented by a real estate broker in a groundwater transaction. Real estate brokers and real estate salespersons must have a written commission agreement to enforce payment of a real estate commission. The commission may be payable on contract execution, when the contract closes, or as otherwise agreed by the parties. The contract provides that the commission agreement is a separate document between the broker and the party responsible for paying the commission. For applicable forms, see forms 26-29 through 26-31 in this manual. Alternately, the contract may include the commission agreement or restate its key terms. The parties indemnify each other against claims by brokers and finders arising by, through, or under the indemnifying party. The contract may state that there are no brokers, but there is no requirement to do so.

The contract provides that each party may elect one of the following remedies for the other’s default: termination (with disposition of the earnest money and payment of additional liquidated damages to the nondefaulting party) or specific performance. In addition, the buyer may terminate if the seller’s representations are not true and correct or if a warranty set forth in the contract is breached, and as noted earlier, if termination is not a satisfactory remedy for the buyer, other remedies such as a reduction in the purchase price can be negotiated and included in the contract. The parties may be entitled to payment of actual damages and perhaps of consequential damages if the untruth or breach is first discovered after closing. The contract is drafted to limit the parties’ remedies, but remedies are often negotiated.

The contract provides that the party prevailing in litigation is entitled to recover attorney’s fees and court and other costs.

The contract contains alternate clauses concerning assignment. The buyer may either not assign the contract or assign the contract only to an entity controlled by the buyer.

If the contract provides that the buyer has the right to assign, the assignment provision should state whether the buyer is relieved from obligations under the contract after assignment.

§ 16.57 Closing Functions

The party handling the closing (the title company or escrow agent) commonly attends to the matters discussed in the following sections.

Written request should be made to each lienholder for the lienholder’s written payoff statement. The lienholder should be requested, through an authorized representative, to state the remaining principal balance due on the note, the accrued interest as of a certain date, a per diem amount of interest, and whether the lienholder will credit the amount held in the escrow account, if one exists, to the total due or, alternatively, refund the amount directly to the borrower. Closing must occur and payment be made to the lienholder before the release of lien will be signed. In many cases, when only permitted groundwater is being sold, the lender will provide only a partial release and the amount of the payoff will be determined by a lender formula related to the value of the permitted water compared with the remaining value of the mortgaged asset.

Additionally, information concerning other matters requiring payment at closing should be obtained, such as payoff amounts for mechanic’s lien claims, federal or state tax liens, property taxes, estate taxes, and abstracted judgments that affect the real property or groundwater.

The closing agent must also determine the amounts of closing costs, attorney’s fees, brokers’ commissions, and loan fees.

Currently groundwater is not assessed and taxed independently from the surface estate for ad valorem tax purposes. Consequently, the contract does not provide for a proration of ad valorem property taxes at closing, but it does require that the taxes be paid in full at closing by the seller, if they are due and payable at the time of closing. The sale of the groundwater, at least when the buyer retains sufficient reserved groundwater to enable it to continue its existing use of the real property, would not appear to trigger the assessment of rollback taxes. Consequently, the contract provides that if the real property has been, or at any time after closing is, the subject of special valuation and reduced tax assessments pursuant to the provisions of chapter 23, subchapter D, of the Texas Tax Code, the seller will be responsible for the payment of any such taxes, penalties, and interest, including rollback taxes. If the seller is not reserving sufficient groundwater to continue the seller’s existing use of the real property, the parties should consider modifying this provision.

After closing, the seller will continue to pay all ad valorem taxes and assessments due in connection with the real property before delinquency. However, if ad valorem taxes are assessed separately against the buyer’s groundwater rights after closing, the buyer will be responsible for paying such taxes and assessments if the buyer is obligated to pay such taxes under applicable law. After closing, the buyer will be responsible for paying all fees, assessments, taxes, and charges of any kind imposed by the groundwater authority or any successor authority in connection with the buyer’s use of the groundwater, the seller will be obligated to pay such taxes and assessments with regard to the reserved groundwater, if any. The provisions regarding taxes should be set out in the groundwater deed signed by the parties at closing.

The closing agent may be expected to prepare several documents.

Closing Statements: Closing statements may be on either the federally prescribed HUD-1 settlement statement, the State Board of Insurance settlement statement, or a separate seller’s, buyer’s, or borrower’s statement, depending on the nature of the transaction. The purpose of a closing statement is to assemble in one document all the pertinent financial features of the contract, including purchase price, loan amounts, costs and expenses of closing the transaction, and prorations. Execution of the statement evidences the parties’ agreement with the numbers and computations appearing on the statement.

Affidavits: Affidavits concerning debts and liens, parties in possession, identity of the parties, leases, and the parties’ marital status will likely be required at closing by the title company, escrow agent, or a party’s attorney.

Financing documents are typically prepared by the lender’s attorney. Conveyancing and other closing documents may be prepared by the parties to the transaction, their attorneys, or an attorney for the closing agent.

The closing agent typically disburses funds in connection with closing. Disbursements are made according to the closing statement, usually from funds paid by the buyer and its lenders.

Except in the case of certain nontaxable sales of principal residences, the person responsible for closing a real estate transaction is required to file an information return with the Internal Revenue Service relating to the transaction and is subject to penalties for failing to report. See 26 U.S.C. § 6045. This reporting requirement is often satisfied by the responsible person by delivering the seller’s closing statement, together with an attachment of additional required information, to the IRS.

If funds will be disbursed at closing, payments must be made to the closing agent with “good funds” as defined by the regulations of the Texas State Board of Insurance. See Procedural Rule P-27, Basic Manual of Rules, Rates and Forms for the Writing of Title Insurance in the State of Texas.
If it is not necessary to disburse funds at closing, the parties need not comply with the “good funds” rule, and payment may be made in other ways.

In a lending transaction, the attorney for the lender should consider obtaining an insured closing service letter from the title insurance underwriter, if title insurance is available, whose policies are to be issued. This letter indemnifies the lender for any fraudulent acts of the closing title insurance company relating to the handling of closing funds. See forms T-50 and T-51 of the Basic Manual of Rules, Rates and Forms for the Writing of Title Insurance in the State of Texas. See https://www.tdi.texas.gov/title/titlemm5.html.

The title company or escrow agent is responsible for recording documents intended to be recorded. This responsibility extends to the recording of releases or transfers of liens for notes paid at closing. Each document should be checked before recording to ensure that exhibits referred to in the document are attached and the name and address of the person to whom the document is to be returned after recording is included. The deed and other recordable documents should be recorded in the county or counties in which the groundwater is permitted to be withdrawn.

Attorneys for the buyer, the seller, and the lender may each prepare closing instructions for the closing agent. For applicable forms, see forms 26-15 through 26-18 in this manual. These instructions relate to the conditions precedent to closing, including the status of the title after closing, the title insurance policies to be issued, if applicable, disposition of funds, and distribution of documents received by the closing agent.

§ 16.58:1 Transactions Involving Foreign Persons

Buyer: If the buyer is a foreign person, certain disclosures and reports may be required under the Foreign Investment in Real Property Tax Act of 1980. 26 U.S.C. § 6039C.

Seller: With certain exceptions, anyone purchasing real property located in the United States from a foreign person must withhold 15 percent of the price and remit the funds to the Internal Revenue Service within twenty days of the date of transfer. See 26 U.S.C. § 1445(a), (b). The transferee should assume that the seller is a foreign person until the contrary is established, because transferees act at their own peril until they obtain a nonforeign affidavit. 26 U.S.C. § 1445(b)(2). The nonforeign affidavits (forms 26-19 and 26-20 in this manual) are suggested for use in all transactions.

The attorney should prepare a closing checklist, itemizing the documents that will be required to close the transaction, including curative documents. The checklist should also refer to all other preclosing considerations relating to the transaction.

After closing, if a title policy has been obtained, recorded documents and relevant title insurance policies issued after closing should be reviewed for accuracy and compliance with the title commitment. The owner policy should be dated on or after the recording date of the deed conveying title to the buyer, and the mortgagee policy should be dated on or after the recording date of the deed of trust of the insured lien.

An original or title company’s certified copy of each executed document relating to the closing should be provided to the seller and the buyer or the borrower by their attorneys. Generally, the party benefiting from a document receives the original, and the other parties receive copies. If no title company is involved in the transaction, the closing agent should perform this task.

IV. Surface Water Rights Transaction Guide

§ 16.61 Sale of Surface Water Rights

This part of the chapter applies to the sale and conveyance of surface water evidenced by a permit or certificate of adjudication. It does not cover the sale or conveyance of groundwater rights, which is covered in parts II. and III. of this chapter.

Surface water in Texas is generally owned by the state. One may obtain a right to use the state’s surface water under the state’s statutory appropriation process. Under this process, the state may grant precisely defined surface water rights, evidenced by a permit or certificate of adjudication. The surface water rights consist of the right to use water in a specific amount, from a specified body of water, by diversion at a definite location or locations (“point of diversion”) for a specified use.

If the surface water is authorized for use in connection with an identified tract of land (as in the case of water permitted for irrigating a specific tract of land), the water right is considered “appurtenant” to that land unless the water right is held by a water corporation or governmental entity authorized to supply water to others. 30 Tex. Admin. Code § 297.81. If land subject to an appurtenant surface water right is conveyed, the water right passes with the conveyance of title to the land, unless the water right has been expressly reserved or excepted or the water right has been granted for the irrigation of land not owned by the applicant. 30 Tex. Admin. Code § 297.81. Once a surface water right has been put to beneficial use according to its terms, the right is “perfected” and becomes a vested property interest. Tex. Water Code §§ 11.025–.026.

The forms contained in this chapter are for general use. The forms conveying surface water rights assume that the water rights to be conveyed have already been appropriated, as is the case with most surface water rights in Texas. Surface water rights that are the subject of a proposed transfer will therefore be represented by either a permit or a certificate of adjudication. The term permit refers to the document the Texas Commission on Environmental Quality (TCEQ) or its predecessor water authority issued when the surface water right was first appropriated. If the applicable river basin or stream segment has not been adjudicated, or if a new water right is recognized following the conclusion of adjudication proceedings, the document evidencing the water right will usually be a TCEQ permit. The surface water rights, whether evidenced by a permit or a certificate of adjudication, are real property. See sections 16.5:1 through 16.5:3 above.
Adjudication occurs when existing water rights (whether represented by permit, certified filing, or riparian rights) for a particular river basin or stream segment are subjected to administrative and judicial proceedings that recognize ownership of water rights and determine the quantities, priority dates, and other terms and conditions of each of the water rights from that river basin or stream segment. See generally Tex. Water Code §§ 11.301–.324. At the conclusion of the adjudication process, the recognized holders of then-existing water rights are issued certificates of adjudication to show what rights have been adjudicated to them in that proceeding. Thereafter, that certificate of adjudication is the document evidencing the owner’s surface water rights and is required to be recorded with the county clerk of each county in which the appropriation is made. Tex. Water Code § 11.324. Most stream adjudications in Texas were concluded in the 1970s and 1980s. The Upper Rio Grande adjudication was completed in 2007.

Thus, new (or any postadjudication) surface water rights issued by the TCEQ are in the form of a water rights permit. As with certificates of adjudication, the law requires the permit to be recorded with the county clerk of the county in which the appropriation is to be made. Tex. Water Code § 11.136. An existing certificate of adjudication is amended, when necessary, through the same TCEQ process as for water rights permits. The processes for obtaining a permit for previously unappropriated surface water rights and for adjudicating water rights in Texas are beyond the scope of this chapter.

As early in the surface water transaction as possible, it is imperative that the attorneys involved (1) examine the permit or certificate of adjudication evidencing the water rights, including all amendments to it; (2) identify the regulatory agencies with jurisdiction over the surface water rights (referred to collectively in this part of the chapter as the “water authority”); (3) obtain copies of all rules and regulations pertaining to the surface water rights; and (4) obtain a title report or title commitment on any appurtenant land to determine whether the surface water rights have been previously severed or whether there are liens on the land that may affect the water rights. The rules and regulations for surface water rights transactions may vary depending on the river basin involved in the transaction. See 30 Tex. Admin. Code chs. 281, 288, 295, 297–299, 303, 304. If the transaction involves an interbasin transfer, there are other statutory and regulatory implications affecting the water rights, which are beyond the scope of this chapter. See Tex. Water Code § 11.085; 30 Tex. Admin. Code §§ 295.13, 295.155, 295.177, 297.1, 297.18.

The TCEQ is the water authority that has jurisdiction over all surface water rights transactions in Texas, including the issuance, amendment, cancellation, and transfer of water rights permits. See Tex. Water Code §§ 5.011–.013; Tex. Water Code ch. 11. For river basins in which a watermaster has been appointed, the TCEQ administers adjudicated water rights through a watermaster and a watermaster advisory committee appointed for each water division. See Tex. Water Code §§ 11.326, 11.3261. See generally 30 Tex. Admin. Code chs. 303, 304. The watermaster divides the water of the streams (or other sources of supply) in the division based on the adjudicated water rights. Tex. Water Code § 11.327(a). The watermaster also regulates controlling works and diversion works in times of shortage to protect existing water rights, prevent waste, and prevent practices in excess of adjudicated rights. Tex. Water Code § 11.327(b). Currently, there are watermaster programs for South Texas, the Rio Grande, the Concho River, and the Brazos River.

More information regarding the watermaster programs can be found on the TCEQ’s website at https://www.tceq.texas.gov.

An attorney representing a purchaser or lender acquiring an interest in water rights that are subject to a watermaster program should become familiar with the applicable statutory and program provisions at Tex. Water Code §§ 11.325–3291, 30 Tex. Admin. Code chs. 303, 304 (Watermaster Operations), and the TCEQ website. Water rights in the Rio Grande below Lake Amistad are allocated on an account basis based on the use of the water, such as municipal and irrigation, instead of on a seniority basis, with priority being given to municipal use. If, in any given month, surplus water is identified over the water needed for municipal use, the water is allocated to the other accounts, such as irrigation. In purchasing water rights, the buyer should determine whether an allocation has been made to the seller, and if so, the purchase contract should address how the water allocation will be divided between the parties at closing. The cost of administration of water rights by watermasters is allocated among the adjudicated water rights holders, and assessments are made by the TCEQ. In general, no water may be diverted, taken, or stored by or delivered to a person while he is delinquent in the payment of his assessed costs. See Tex. Water Code §§ 11.329, 11.455. Purchasers should determine the amount of assessments that have been made against a seller and the payment status as part of their due diligence. The purchase contract should address the manner in which these assessments will be allocated at closing, if appropriate.

§ 16.62 Surface Water Rights Sales Contract and Related Forms; Place for Recordation

The surface water rights sales contract, form 16-18 in this chapter, represents an approach to the sale of surface water rights under which a conditional closing of the transaction first occurs, pending the required water authority's prior approval of the transaction. Once the water authority (that is, the TCEQ) has approved the change in ownership and any amendments to the permit or certificate of adjudication sought by the buyer or required by the TCEQ, there is a final closing of the transaction. Alternatives to this “conditional closing followed by a final closing” approach include granting the buyer an option to purchase the water rights, or leasing the water rights to the buyer, pending TCEQ approval, however, the water right must be used in accordance with the terms of the permit or certificate of adjudication until such time as the TCEQ has granted any necessary amendments to the permit/certificate of adjudication.

The basic sales documents include the following:

2. TCEQ Change of Ownership Form (Form TCEQ-10204), plus any additional applications, forms, and supplemental materials necessary to obtain the amendments to the permit or certificate of adjudication to accommodate the buyer’s intended use of the water rights.
3. Surface Water Rights Conveyance—Conditional (form 16-19). Frequently, this is the only conveyance document used by the parties, as they deem the conditional conveyance final once the stated condition—TCEQ approval of necessary amendments—has occurred.
4. TCEQ Amendment to Permit or Certificate of Adjudication, or letter amendment (Form TCEQ-10201).

In addition, the release of lien (form 10-2) or partial release of lien (form 10-3) in this manual, bill of sale (form 5-16), assignment and assumption of lease (form 5-21), and other forms may need to be adapted for use in connection with the transaction.

Although many attorneys rely on the files maintained by the TCEQ to determine ownership of surface water rights, rather than the real property records, recordation of surface water rights documents in the county real property records is still a legal requirement. See Tex. Water Code § 11.136. The attorney for the buyer of a surface water right should be aware that the buyer is responsible for making sure that the certificate of adjudication, permit, or any amendments, the surface water conveyance document, and other recordable real property documents are recorded with the county clerk of the appropriate county or counties. See Tex. Water Code § 11.136. In some instances, there can be uncertainty as to which of two or more locations is the correct place for recordation. If there is uncertainty, it is advisable to record the document in all the locations.
The Texas Water Code states that the TCEQ is required to transfer the certificate of adjudication or permit for recordation to the county clerk of the county in which appropriation is made. Tex. Water Code §§ 11.136, 11.324. In practice, however, the TCEQ does not do this. Instead the TCEQ sends the certificate of adjudication, permit, or amendment to the applicant for recordation along with a card. The applicant must send the document and card to the county clerk of the proper county or counties for recordation. In general, the certificate, permit, or amendment should be recorded in each county in which the points of diversion are located. If the water right is appurtenant to land, the certificate, permit, or amendment should also be recorded in the county or counties in which the water is used (that is, where the land is located). If a TCEQ amendment issued in connection with the transfer changed the land to which the water right is appurtenant to a different county, the conveyance document should be recorded in both counties. The county clerk is required to index the document by the name of the applicant and the stream or source of the water supply. Tex. Water Code §§ 11.136, 11.324. The county clerk should fill out the card with the recording information and send it to the TCEQ. It is incumbent on the attorney to make sure the county clerk records the documents and provides the information to the TCEQ. The attorney should also obtain the recording information for the attorney’s own records. The attorney should ensure that proper postage is added to the card provided by the TCEQ for completion and return mailing by the county clerk(s). This will increase the likelihood of the card’s being returned to the TCEQ.

It is important to identify the county or counties in which the documents affecting the surface water rights should be recorded to ensure that the public is put on constructive notice. Section 297.83 of the TCEQ regulations states that the “written instrument evidencing a water right ownership transfer shall be recorded in the office of the county clerk,” but does not specify in which county clerk’s office the instrument should be recorded. See 30 Tex. Admin. Code § 297.83. See generally Tex. Water Code § 11.136. As a rule, a surface water right conveyance document should be recorded in the real property records of each county in which the points of diversion and places of use are located. In addition, if the surface water rights are appurtenant to land (and there is no proposed amendment to change the land to which the surface water rights are appurtenant), the conveyance documents should also be recorded in the real property records of each county in which the land is located. If, however, the sale transaction contemplates an amendment that changes the land to which the surface water rights are appurtenant, only the final surface water rights conveyance—unconditional form should be recorded in each county in which the land is located. Recordation of the initial surface water rights conveyance—conditional document, before the TCEQ approved the amendment changing the land to which the surface water rights are appurtenant, could cloud the records and titles if the TCEQ did not approve the requested amendment.

As an added precaution, it is advisable to record the final documents in the real property records of each county in which the water is used, if different from the county or counties in which the points of diversion are located. It is helpful to have duplicate originals of the conveyance document executed for this purpose. Deeds of trust, leases, and other real estate documents pertaining to the surface water rights should be recorded in the same counties as the conveyance document.

The law requires an owner of a surface water right to promptly inform the executive director of the TCEQ of any transfer of water right or change of the owner’s address. See Tex. Water Code § 11.122; 30 Tex. Admin. Code § 297.82. Persons seeking to transfer surface water rights must file with the TCEQ executive director certified copies or photocopies of the recorded instruments establishing the complete chain of title between the owners of record and the new owner, along with the change of ownership form and the required fee. 30 Tex. Admin. Code § 297.83.

If the surface water rights are subject to the jurisdiction of a watermaster, the TCEQ Watermaster Operations Rules require the new owner to promptly inform the TCEQ executive director of the change of ownership and provide the appropriate ownership documents. 30 Tex. Admin. Code §§ 303.44, 304.43. If the new ownership record is not complete, the executive director will inform the alleged owner by letter of the required submission. For a sixty-day period following the date of that letter, the watermaster will honor “declarations of intent” by the alleged owner in accordance with the water right; after that, however, no such declaration will be honored until the executive director informs the watermaster of the approved change in ownership.

Because the place for recordation of surface water rights documents is somewhat unusual, there may be some benefit in recording duplicate originals of the conveyance document in additional county records, in order to provide actual notice of the buyer’s surface water rights to any person who may consult these records. As examples, additional locations may include Travis County (where the TCEQ main administrative office is located) and, if the water rights are subject to regulation by a watermaster, the county in which the administrative office of the watermaster is located.

Attorneys dealing with water rights where a watermaster is located should be aware of recording requirements. See generally 30 Tex. Admin. Code chs. 303, 304. This is particularly true for water rights subject to the jurisdiction of the Rio Grande watermaster. There are two subsections (j) to section 11.3271 of the Texas Water Code adopted by the legislature in 2003 that have never been reconciled. See Tex. Water Code § 11.3271. Under one subsection (j), the watermaster with jurisdiction over the Rio Grande is made the official recorder for all instruments, including deeds, deeds of trust, financing statements, security agreements, and liens that the TCEQ authorizes or requires to be filed in connection with a water right relating to water in the lower, middle, or upper basin of the Rio Grande and that are subject to a permit, certified filing, or certificate of adjudication, and the filing will have the same legal effect as filing under other law for the same type of instrument. Under the other subsection (j), the watermaster is required to maintain a central repository that includes certified copies of all instruments, including deeds, deeds of trust, and liens that the TCEQ requires to be filed in connection with the same type of water rights as are described in the first-referenced subsection (j), and it is expressly stated that on and after September 1, 2003, a lien against a water right shall not be effective against third parties unless a certified copy of the instrument is filed with the watermaster and all requirements under other law are met. It would be prudent when conveying rights or interests in water rights in the Rio Grande to record a duplicate set of original documents with the Texas watermaster, as well as in the real property records of the county or counties in which the documents are otherwise authorized to be recorded, and to also file a certified copy of the documents recorded in the county real property records (at least with regard to liens) with the watermaster.

The surface water rights sales contract, form 16-18 in this chapter, is drafted as a neutral form of contract, intending to favor neither the buyer nor the seller. For each contract, the basic elements of the transaction are, in general, stated in the sections to be completed at the beginning of the form. Some provisions, however, are required to be completed throughout the contract. The general terms that follow in the form may be used for many transactions. However, the sale of surface water rights is an emerging area of law, and there are no well-established terms of sale. The terms in contracts for the purchase and sale of surface water rights are diverse and heavily negotiated. Additional drafting may be necessary to tailor the forms to the transaction.

§ 16.64 Surface Water Rights Sales Contract

The following sections describe the provisions and terms of form 16-18 in this chapter and include considerations for the attorney in drafting or reviewing a contract, assisting the client during investigation of the surface water rights, and closing the transaction. This commentary is organized in the same order as the sections of the contract.
§ 16.65  Introductory Paragraph: Offer and Acceptance

The introductory paragraph of the contract states what the parties must do to form the contract of purchase and sale. If the buyer’s earnest money cannot be collected, the buyer will be in default.

§ 16.66:1 Seller and Buyer

There are sections for the names of and other information concerning the seller, the buyer, and their attorneys. Proper identification of the parties is important, and the seller and buyer should be identified as fully as possible. Capacity and authority should be considered, especially if a party is not an individual acting on his own behalf. See chapter 3 in this manual for a discussion of party designations.

§ 16.66:2 Title Company or Escrow Agent

Title insurance to insure title to surface water rights in Texas is no longer generally offered by Texas title insurance underwriters, and it is uncertain whether it will be available in the future. Even if available, parties may choose not to obtain title insurance or to close the transaction through a title company. The contract designates a title company or escrow agent to act as the escrow and closing agent in order to address either option. The title company or escrow agent will be responsible for closing the transaction and receiving and disbursing funds under the terms of the contract.

It is advisable to have a written escrow agreement between the title company or escrow agent, the buyer, and the seller that defines the rights and duties of the title company or escrow agent. Form 4-2 in this manual is an escrow agent receipt and escrow agreement. It can be modified for use with an escrow agent other than a title company.

In surface water transactions in which no appurtenant land is being transferred, the parties generally do not provide for a survey. The form provides optional language, however, if there is appurtenant land to be surveyed.

§ 16.66:3 Water Authority

The water rights authorities with jurisdiction over the subject surface water rights will include, at a minimum, the TCEQ. There may also be a watermaster appointed for the river basin and division in which the water rights are located. See section 16.6 above.

§ 16.66:4 Permit or Certificate of Adjudication

Permits and certificates of adjudication have a TCEQ number designation and establish the priority date of the water rights. In addition, the permit or certificate of adjudication, as it may have been previously amended, will describe the water rights authorized in the particular river basin and stream, including any rights of diversion, use, or storage. Diversion and use rights will include, at a minimum, the following details: (1) quantity, expressed in terms of a right to divert a certain number of acre-feet of water, often also limited to a certain rate of diversion (expressed in gallons per minute or cubic feet per second), from a particular watercourse; (2) the current ownership; (3) the place of use; (4) the purpose of use (for example, municipal, irrigation, industrial, recreational); and (5) the precise location of the point or points of diversion. Depending on the river basin from which the water rights are derived, there may be further descriptions. For example, Rio Grande Valley water rights are further described by class (for example, “Class B Water Rights”), a designation relating to the priority and use of the water rights. The permit or certificate of adjudication will also identify any other special terms or conditions defining the water rights or affecting the owner’s exercise of those rights (for example, streamflow restriction requirements or other environmental or conservation requirements).

§ 16.66:5 Buyer’s Intended Use of Water Rights

The description of the buyer’s intended use (purpose and place of use) of the water rights is important for purposes of determining what amendments to the permit or certificate of adjudication must be obtained from the TCEQ and any other applicable water authority, such as a watermaster, before the transfer of the water rights. The approval process can be both costly and lengthy, particularly if the buyer’s intended use requires amendments to the permit or certificate beyond ownership of the water rights, and especially if these amendments are contested by the TCEQ staff, by other water rights holders in the basin, or by other affected parties.

The statement of the buyer’s intended use also affects the parties’ rights in the event of condemnation before conveyance of the water rights.

§ 16.66:6 Water Rights

The description of the water rights to be conveyed will be based on the permit or certificate of adjudication, amended as needed to accommodate the buyer’s intended use, including the rights of diversion, use, or storage set out in the permit or certificate of adjudication, as described in section 16.61 above. Surface water rights may be conveyed in whole or in part, like land. The contract should clearly indicate if only portions of the water rights are being conveyed. The parties can contract for the sale and purchase of all or a portion of (1) the number of acre-feet authorized to be diverted, (2) the diversion rate, (3) storage capacity, or (4) storage reservoirs authorized by the water right. Accordingly, the parties should be specific regarding components of the water right to be sold.

§ 16.66:7 Appurtenant Land

The surface water rights to be sold may be appurtenant to specific land. The description of any appurtenant land is important, regardless of whether the appurtenant land is also to be purchased by the buyer. There may be liens on the appurtenant land that, absent language in the lien documents to the contrary, attach to the water rights. A description of the appurtenant land is therefore important to the buyer’s due diligence inquiries, the title investigation, and the determination of the need for lien releases, subordination agreements, or other documents required at closing.

If the water rights permit authorizes the irrigation of specific land, it generally will be appurtenant to the land, unless the water right is owned by a water supply corporation, water district, river authority, or governmental entity authorized to supply water to others. 30 Tex. Admin. Code § 297.81(b). If the buyer intends to use the water on land other than as specified in the permit or certificate of adjudication, an amendment to the permit or certificate of adjudication must be obtained before use. The land to which the water rights are appurtenant may not be the land from which the water is diverted. The permit or certificate of adjudication, or other water authority records, will identify the land authorized to be irrigated (“place of use”) to which the permit or certificate of adjudication is appurtenant. Under current TCEQ rules, conveyance of the land to which water rights are appurtenant conveys the water rights, unless the conveyance specifically reserves or excepts the water rights, or the water right has been granted for the irrigation of land not owned by the applicant. 30 Tex. Admin. Code § 297.81(a).

If the water rights are appurtenant to land and the land is not also being conveyed to the buyer, the attorney should verify that the water rights can be severed from the land under applicable statutory, regulatory, and case law. See Herrmann v. Lindsey, 136 S.W.3d 286 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 2004, no pet.). If the appurtenant land is also being purchased by the buyer, the drafter can adapt the additional provisions in the forms in chapter 4 in this manual. If the buyer will purchase a portion of the land and a portion of the water rights with which to irrigate the land, the parties should expressly describe in the contract the specific allocation of the water rights to the specific tract of land.

In addition, any fixtures and personal property to be conveyed with the land or the surface water rights should be described in the applicable contract forms. Contract provisions discussed in section 16.21:4 above, providing for UCC searches, should be inserted into the contract form if fixtures or personal property are included in the transaction.

§ 16.66:8 Reserved Surface Water Rights

The seller of surface water rights may retain ownership of some permitted rights; however, a specific reservation is not usually required, as the description of the surface water will specify the number of acre-feet of water that will be sold out of the certificate of adjudication.

In instances in which surface water rights are appurtenant to land, however, if the seller is selling the land and some portion of the water rights, the conveyance of the land and unsevered surface water rights will be by deed, and the seller should expressly state in the contract and the deed the acre-feet of surface water rights that will be severed from the land and retained by the seller. After closing, the seller will generally need to file an application with the TCEQ either to change the designated land on which the severed agricultural or irrigation water rights may be used and the point of diversion or to change the use of the severed water rights from agricultural or irrigation to some other permitted use and to obtain approval of a new point of diversion.

If the water right is being purchased independently of the appurtenant land, and the parties agree that the buyer will have certain use rights on the appurtenant land, such as the right to use the same diversion point(s) or to use storage facilities located at the land, the parties will need to address these property rights in the contract by providing for the seller to grant or convey an easement, a license, a lease, or another property interest at closing.

The amount of earnest money is negotiable and depends on several factors, including the purchase price, the type of financing, and the relative financial strengths of the parties. Additional factors unique to surface water rights transactions include the required prior approval from the TCEQ and any other applicable water authority, and a generally longer due diligence period.

The parties therefore often provide for more than one earnest money deposit, either over a period of time or based on certain events. In the description of the initial and each additional earnest money deposit inserted into the form, the drafter needs to specify the time when each earnest money deposit is to be made and whether each earnest money deposit is refundable or non-refundable, in relation to the occurrence of events as the parties proceed towards conditional and final closing of the transaction.

If the buyer terminates the contract before the end of the inspection period and the buyer is otherwise entitled to have the earnest money returned, the contract provides that a stated amount should not be returned to the buyer but should be paid to the seller, because that amount is the independent consideration to the seller for the buyer’s right to terminate the contract.

There is no standard method of determining the purchase price for surface water rights. For further discussion on this topic, the attorney may want to consult Martyn C. Glen, Valuation of Water Rights, in The Changing Face of Water Rights in Texas, State Bar of Texas (2004). Exhibit F may be used if the parties agree to seller financing of the purchase. If obtaining third-party financing is a condition to the buyer’s obligations, that fact and the terms of the complying financing should be addressed in the contract. See part V. in this chapter and chapters 6 and 8 in this manual for further discussions of financing.

§ 16.66:12 Buyer’s and Seller’s Liquidated Damages

These sections of the contract are provided so that the parties can agree on additional liquidated damages to be paid by the defaulting party to the nondefaulting party on default.

Title insurance to insure title to surface water rights in Texas is no longer generally offered by Texas title insurance underwriters, and it is uncertain whether it will be available in the future. If title insurance is not available, or if the parties agree not to procure title insurance, the contract may instead call for an opinion of counsel to be provided as evidence of title. In that event, certain title information, on which the buyer’s title inspection is to be based, is to be delivered to the buyer.

The contract defines title documents to include the permit or certificate of adjudication and instruments affecting title to the surface water rights and the real property referenced in the title commitment or title information. Under paragraph G.2. of the contract, the buyer can terminate the contract on the basis of the title commitment and title documents or the seller’s failure to cure the buyer’s objections to matters disclosed therein. This provides the buyer with the ability to make objections to title based on the permit or certificate of adjudication or unrecorded documents provided as part of the seller’s records.

In addition to checking these documents, the buyer should also review (1) the annual water use reports the seller has filed with the TCEQ, (2) the priority of the seller’s water rights relative to other water rights in the same source of supply, and (3) the TCEQ’s current records and any applicable TCEQ or watermaster rules reflecting any loss of water rights or priority as a result of the seller’s nonuse.

An attorney representing a purchaser or lender acquiring an interest in water rights that are subject to a watermaster program should become familiar with the applicable statutory and program provisions at Tex. Water Code §§ 11.325–3291, 30 Tex. Admin. Code chs. 303, 304 (Watermaster Operations), and the TCEQ website. Water rights in the Rio Grande below Lake Amistad are allocated on an account basis based on the use of the water, such as municipal and irrigation, instead of on a seniority basis, with priority being given to municipal use. If, in any given month, surplus water is identified over the water needed for municipal use, the water is allocated to the other accounts, such as irrigation. In purchasing water rights, the buyer should determine whether an allocation has been made to the seller, and if so, the purchase contract should address how the water allocation will be divided between the parties at closing. The cost of administration of water rights by watermasters is allocated among the adjudicated water rights holders, and assessments are made by the TCEQ. In general, no water may be diverted, taken, or stored by or delivered to a person while he is delinquent in the payment of his assessed costs. See Tex. Water Code §§ 11.329, 11.455. Purchasers should determine the amount of assessments that have been made against a seller and the payment status as part of their due diligence. The purchase contract should address the manner in which these assessments will be allocated at closing, if appropriate.

Section A of the contract groups most of the deadlines for ease of reference. Most of the deadlines are stated in terms of a specified number of days after the effective date of the contract or another specific date. The contract provides that time is of the essence; however, final closing cannot occur until such time as the TCEQ and any other applicable water authority has approved the change in ownership and any other amendments to the permit or certificate of adjudication representing the water rights.

Section B of the contract lists the documents to be signed and delivered to close the transaction. Paragraph B.1. lists the documents for the conditional closing (before the TCEQ or other water authority approval of the transaction). The parties might consider adding to the list of documents for the conditional closing a power of attorney appointing the buyer as agent of the seller to pursue the necessary proceedings with the TCEQ for approval of the sale and any amendments to the certificate of adjudication or permit. Paragraph B.2. lists the documents for the final closing. Form 16-20 in this chapter is for conveyance of the surface water rights once the TCEQ has approved the change of ownership and any other amendments to the permit or certificate of adjudication. The parties sometimes do not provide for or sign a final unconditional conveyance document, instead relying on the TCEQ’s issuance of an amendment to the certificate or permit as satisfying the condition stated in the earlier conditional conveyance document. Both paragraphs B.1. and B.2. in the contract serve as checklists to prepare for closing.

Section C contains a number of exhibits. The attorney should choose the specific exhibits appropriate for the sale.

§ 16.68:1 Exhibit C—Representations; Environmental Matters

Exhibit C contains the parties’ representations. These items are always negotiated by the parties and will vary from transaction to transaction. Exhibit C is offered as a checklist, however, not all items will necessarily apply to a sale of surface water rights, and the buyer may want to seek additional representations or warranties with respect to water quality, environmental matters, and the like.

§ 16.68:2 Exhibit D—Seller’s Records

Exhibit D is a list of the seller’s records of the property that will be delivered or made available to the buyer for review during the inspection period and also delivered to the buyer at closing.
§ 16.68:3 Exhibit E—Notices, Statements, and Certificates

Exhibit E lists notices, statements, and certificates required by federal and state law and regulations to be delivered when common real estate contracts are executed. The items applicable to a specific transaction should be selected. See chapter 2 in this manual for brief discussions of laws and regulations that require notices, statements, and certificates. Some of the statutory provisions would appear to include the sale of surface water rights, simply because they apply to a sale or conveyance of real property, and no exemption is made for the sale of surface water rights.

§ 16.68:4 Exhibit F—Seller Financing

Exhibit F contains seller-financing terms.

The contract provides that the buyer may direct the title company or escrow agent to invest the earnest money in an interest-bearing account in a federally insured financial institution. If the earnest money is to be invested, the title company will require the buyer’s tax identification or Social Security number so that accrued interest may be reported to the Internal Revenue Service.

The contract requires that the seller provide to the buyer by the deadlines stated in the contract the title commitment or title information and legible copies of each document referred to in these instruments.

The contract follows a typical procedure in which the buyer reviews the title commitment or title information, with the permit or certificate of adjudication and the documents provided by the seller. The buyer’s review is done during the inspection period. The buyer then has a right to terminate the contract based on the buyer’s review or can notify the seller of any objections. After notice, the seller may elect to cure the buyer’s objections but is not required to do so. If the seller does not agree to cure, the buyer may either proceed to close the transaction and accept the surface water rights subject to the uncured matters or terminate the contract. However, the seller is obligated to resolve all items listed on Schedule C of the title commitment at or before closing and to cure title matters that arise by, through, or under the seller after the contract is signed.

The contract provides that the condition of title will be established by either a title commitment or an abstract of title, as agreed to by the buyer and the seller. If an abstract of title is furnished, the buyer may have the abstract of title reviewed by an attorney and obtain the attorney’s written opinion of the abstract of title. The benefit of obtaining title insurance over an attorney’s opinion of title is that title insurers are required to maintain reserves to cover claims that are greater than the malpractice coverage maintained by most law firms. Consequently, there is an increased likelihood of recovery if an error is made by the title company in its determination of title.

An essential reference on title insurance is the Basic Manual of Rules, Rates and Forms for the Writing of Title Insurance in the State of Texas, available from the Texas Department of Insurance at https://www.tdi.texas.gov/title/titleman.html. The manual contains Texas rate and procedural rules, the text of title 11 of the Texas Insurance Code, relating to title insurance, and various bulletins of the Texas State Board of Insurance dealing with title insurance practices.
The attorney should review the signature and effective date of the commitment. The attorney should confirm that the commitment is signed and the issuance date is not more than ninety days before the closing. Otherwise, a new or revised commitment should be ordered.

Schedule A: The attorney should confirm that the proposed insured parties are correctly named, the amounts of insurance are correctly stated, and the correct estate is insured. Record title should be vested in the seller. The attorney also should confirm that the property description is correct and conforms to the description in the contract.

Schedule B: The attorney should review the following matters:

- Item 1, relating to covenants and restrictions, should be noted as either “Covenants, conditions, and restrictions (other than any restrictions indicating preference, limitation, or discrimination based on race, color, religion, sex, handicap, familial status, or national origin) as set forth in [recording data] of the real property records of [county] County, Texas” or “Item 1 of Schedule B is hereby deleted in its entirety.”

- Item 2 is the standard, preprinted survey exception. It generally would not apply to a transaction involving only surface water rights. If the surface water rights are being conveyed along with land, this exception may be amended and partially deleted to read “any shortages in area” if a current survey approved by the title company is obtained. An additional 5 percent premium is charged to amend the owner policy for a residential transaction; an additional 15 percent premium is charged to amend the owner policy for a commercial transaction. No additional premium is required to amend the mortgagee policy. The responsibility for paying the extra premium for the survey modification in the owner policy of title insurance is often negotiated between the parties, although the pertinent provision in the contract form provides for the extra premium to be paid by the buyer.

- Standard preprinted exceptions item 3 (relating to homestead or community property or survivorship rights) and item 4 (relating to tidelines, lands comprising the shores and beds of waterways, lands beyond the line of the harbor or bulkhead lines, filled-in lands, artificial islands, statutory water rights, and areas extending from the line of mean low tide to the line of vegetation) apply only to the owner policy and cannot be deleted or amended.

- Item 5, relating to property taxes, can be reviewed for the status of tax payments and the existence of rollback taxes; however, taxes generally are not involved in a transaction involving only surface water rights.

- Item 6, relating to the terms and conditions of the documents creating the insured’s interest in the land, cannot be revised. The referenced documents should, however, be reviewed.

- Item 7, relating to materialman’s and mechanic’s liens, applies only to the mortgagee policies on interim construction loans and may be deleted if satisfactory evidence that the paragraph does not apply is furnished to the title company. This exception would not generally apply to a transaction involving only surface water rights.

- Item 8, relating to subordinate liens and leases, applies only to the mortgagee policy.

- Item 9, relating to existing liens, should show only liens permitted by the contract. Copies of all lien documents should be reviewed with regard to due-on-sale provisions, dragnet clauses relating to other debt, condemnation provisions, notice, cure, and default provisions, and subordinate financing. A superior lienholder’s estoppel agreement should be obtained from any lienholder whose note and lien are being either assumed or taken “subject to.”

All other special exceptions should be carefully reviewed to determine if and how they affect the buyer’s surface water rights.

Schedule C: The attorney should ensure that the seller has complied with the contract by curing and effectively removing all matters appearing on Schedule C at or before closing. Schedule C matters may require obtaining releases of liens, settling specific claims or lawsuits affecting title to the water rights, furnishing evidence of good standing and authority (corporate resolution or partnership agreement), and obtaining proof of property settlement and divorce, proof of heirship or probate of a particular estate, or evidence relating to a bankruptcy. From the buyer’s perspective, curative matters appearing on Schedule C should be attended to by either the seller or the title company. The contract requires that the seller resolve all Schedule C items before closing, but if that provision is not used, the buyer should object to all Schedule C items in the commitment to ensure that they are not added to Schedule B of the title policy.

The Basic Manual of Rules, Rates and Forms for the Writing of Title Insurance in the State of Texas should be consulted for information on the various types of policies and endorsements that are available and their respective costs.

The inspection period is intended to give the buyer the opportunity to investigate the surface water rights and real property and decide whether to close the transaction. The contract provides that the buyer may terminate the contract at any time before the end of the inspection period for any reason and have the earnest money returned. The inspection is based on the seller's records and information in either the title commitment and documents referenced therein, if the parties have provided for title insurance, or the title information as defined.

Representations and warranties are negotiated by the parties with specific reference to the transaction. They may include such matters as ownership of the real property and surface water rights; organization of the parties; authority to execute the contract and close the transaction; condition of title, parties in possession, pending litigation and claims that may ripen into litigation; pending or threatened condemnation or other taking; use restrictions, such as zoning and restrictive covenants; condition of the property or disclaimer of representations (for example, “as is” language); presence of landfills or hazardous and toxic wastes; floodplain location; utility availability and capacity; compliance with all laws, effectiveness of required licenses and permits; status of leases; operation and maintenance of property before closing; accuracy of books and records; agricultural or other special-use tax assessment; presence of hazardous chemicals; and status of debt to be assumed or taken “subject to.”

In negotiating representations, the parties should specify whether representations are to be absolute or based on the seller's knowledge and belief, whether the representations will be based on the knowledge of the entity that is the seller or on the knowledge of specified individuals, whether the seller must perform further investigation to make the representations or may rely on its current knowledge, without further investigation; and whether and to what extent the representations will survive closing.

The approach used in this contract limits the seller's representations and warranties, but it is not intended to insulate the seller from liability for fraud or misrepresentation.

- The seller represents only facts, not opinions. For example, the seller does not represent whether, in the seller’s opinion, the property is in compliance with applicable laws and regulations. Instead, the seller represents that it has not received notice of violation of any law, ordinance, regulation, or requirement affecting the property or use of the property, except as stated in the contract.
- The seller makes no representations or warranties that are not stated in the contract, including exhibit E (notices, statements, and certificates required by law and regulation), or in the closing documents.

The following optional clauses are also provided:

- The buyer agrees to accept the property in its “as is, where is” condition, investigate the property on the buyer’s own behalf, and not rely on information or representations attributable to the seller, except to the extent stated in the contract.
- The buyer waives its rights under the Texas Deceptive Trade Practices–Consumer Protection Act.
• The buyer assumes responsibility after closing for all environmental matters relating to the property.

If the parties negotiate different representations, exhibit C must be revised accordingly.

The contract provides that the parties’ representations are true and correct when made and must be true and correct at closing, or the buyer may terminate the contract.

It is common practice to include representations regarding the organization and authority of the parties in contracts but to defer the obligation to deliver documentary evidence confirming those representations until the closing of the transaction. That evidence customarily consists of certificates of existence and good standing from public officials, certified copies of organizational documents, certified corporate resolutions or partnership consents, and certificates of incumbency. The attorney may consider requiring such documentary evidence at the execution of the contract to avoid encountering a claim, after substantial obligations have been paid or incurred, that the other party is not authorized to consummate the transaction. While the seller’s organizational documents should be available at the time of execution of the contract, the buyer’s organizational documents are often not prepared until shortly before closing.

§ 16.73 Conveyance of Water Rights—Conditional; Application for Approval; Cooperation; Condition of Water Rights until Final Closing; Memorandum/No Recording of Contract

The parties’ signing of the contract and the expiration of the inspection period without the buyer’s termination of the contract obligates the seller to conditionally convey the water rights to the buyer, pending the TCEQ’s and any other required water authority’s approval of the change in ownership and any amendments necessary to accommodate the buyer’s intended use. It also obligates the parties to pursue and cooperate in the water authority approval process, to maintain and operate the water rights in a certain manner pending the approval process, and to proceed in a certain fashion in the event of condemnation or claims affecting the water rights. The contract also sets out the parties’ agreement not to record the contract; however, given the sometimes lengthy duration involved in obtaining water authority approval, the buyer may want to record a memorandum of the contract in the public records. See form 16-16 in this chapter.

Form 16-19 is a proposed form of conditional conveyance to be signed by the parties at the initial, conditional closing on the contract. The surface water rights are not deemed transferred, however, until the TCEQ (and any other applicable water authority) has approved the change in ownership and any amendments to the certificate or permit. The parties often do not execute a second unconditional conveyance document (form 16-20), rather, once the condition (TCEQ approval) has been satisfied through issuance of the amended certificate or permit, the conveyance is treated as final.

§ 16.74 Conditions of Contract and Termination

The contract provides for disposition of the earnest money if the TCEQ does not approve the transfer of ownership and any other amendments sought by the buyer by a specific date and after any other termination of the contract. It also provides for posttermination obligations. It is possible that the TCEQ’s approval of a transfer may be overturned on judicial review, and the parties may want to provide how the sale is affected if judicial review is sought by a protestant.

Once the TCEQ has approved the transaction and issued any necessary amendments to the permit or certificate of adjudication, the parties proceed to the final closing. The contract allocates closing obligations and transaction costs between the parties. In the case of irrigation surface water rights, the water rights will become appurtenant to the land approved for the “place of use” in the amended certificate or permit. To facilitate title examinations, the parties may want to describe this appurtenant property in an unconditional conveyance document signed at the final closing (form 16-20 in this chapter). The parties do not want to describe this property as appurtenant in the initial, conditional conveyance document (form 16-19), because of the risk that the TCEQ or other applicable water authority may not approve the transaction. There may be a cloud on the title to the water rights if the water rights were described as appurtenant to property in the initial conditional conveyance but not later approved as appurtenant to property by the applicable water authority.

The contract provides that the buyer may elect one of the following remedies for the seller’s default: termination (with disposition of the earnest money and payment of additional liquidated damages to the nondefaulting party) or specific performance. In addition, the buyer may terminate if the seller’s representations are not true and correct or if a warranty set forth in the contract is breached. The parties may be entitled to payment of actual damages and perhaps of consequential damages if the untruth or breach is first discovered after closing. The contract is drafted to limit the parties’ remedies, but remedies are often negotiated.

The contract provides that the party prevailing in litigation is entitled to recover attorney’s fees and court and other costs.

The contract contains alternate clauses concerning assignment. The buyer either may not assign the contract or may assign the contract only to an entity controlled by the buyer.

If the contract provides that the buyer has the right to assign, the assignment provision should state whether the buyer is relieved from obligations under the contract after assignment.

The party handling the closing (the title company or escrow agent) commonly attends to the matters discussed in the following sections.

§ 16.78:1 Payoff Information and Other Closing Expenses

Written request should be made to each lienholder for the lienholder’s written payoff statement. The lienholder should be requested through an authorized representative to state the remaining principal balance due on the note, the accrued interest as of a certain date, a per diem amount of interest, and whether the lienholder will credit the amount held in the escrow account, if one exists, to the total due or, alternatively, refund the amount directly to the borrower. Closing must occur and payment be made to the lienholder before the release of lien will be signed.

Additionally, information concerning other matters requiring payment at closing should be obtained, such as payoff amounts for mechanic’s lien claims, federal or state tax liens, property taxes, paving assessments, and abstracted judgments that affect the property.
The closing agent must also determine the amounts of closing costs, such as surveying expenses, attorney’s fees, brokers’ commissions, and loan fees.

§ 16.78:2 Ad Valorem Taxes

Currently surface water rights are not assessed and taxed independently from the surface estate for ad valorem tax purposes. Consequently, the contract does not provide for a proration of ad valorem property taxes at closing, but it does require that the taxes be paid in full at closing by the seller if they are due and payable at the time of closing.

The closing agent may be expected to prepare or provide several documents.

Closing Statements: Closing statements may be on either the federally prescribed HUD-1 settlement statement, the State Board of Insurance settlement statement, or a separate seller’s, buyer’s, or borrower’s statement, depending on the nature of the transaction. The purpose of a closing statement is to assemble in one document all the pertinent financial features of the contract, including purchase price, loan amounts, costs and expenses of closing the transaction, and prorations. Execution of the statement evidences the parties’ agreement with the numbers and computations appearing on the statement.

Affidavits: Affidavits concerning debts and liens, parties in possession, identity of the parties, leases, and the parties’ marital status will likely be required at closing by the title company, escrow agent, or a party’s attorney.

Financing documents are typically prepared by the lender’s attorney. Conveyancing and other closing documents may be prepared by the parties to the transaction, their attorneys, or an attorney for the closing agent.

The closing agent typically disburses funds in connection with closing. Disbursements are made according to the closing statement, usually from funds paid by the buyer and its lenders.

Except in the case of certain nontaxable sales of principal residences, the person responsible for closing a real estate transaction is required to file an information return with the Internal Revenue Service relating to the transaction and is subject to penalties for failing to report. See 26 U.S.C. § 6045. This reporting requirement is often satisfied by the responsible person by delivering the seller’s closing statement, together with an attachment of additional required information, to the IRS.

If funds will be disbursed at closing, payments must be made to the closing agent with “good funds” as defined by the regulations of the Texas State Board of Insurance. See Procedural Rule P-27, Basic Manual of Rules, Rates and Forms for the Writing of Title Insurance in the State of Texas.

If it is not necessary to disburse funds at closing, the parties need not comply with the “good funds” rule, and payment may be made in other ways.

If title insurance is obtained through a title agent or fee attorney, the attorney for the lender and buyer should consider obtaining an insured closing service letter from the title insurance underwriter whose policies are to be issued. This letter indemnifies the lender or buyer for certain wrongful acts of the title agent or fee attorney relating to the handling of closing funds. See

The title company or escrow agent is responsible for recording documents intended to be recorded. This responsibility extends to the recording of releases or transfers of liens for notes paid at closing. Each document should be checked before recording to ensure that it is properly executed and notarized, the exhibits referred to in the document are attached, and the name and address of the person to whom the document is to be returned after recording is included.

Section 297.83 of the Texas Commission on Environmental Quality regulations currently provides only that the “written instrument evidencing a water right ownership transfer shall be recorded in the office of the county clerk.” 30 Tex. Admin. Code § 297.83. It does not specify in which county clerk’s office the instrument should be recorded. To assure notice to all persons in affected counties, the parties may want to prepare several duplicate originals to be filed in Travis County (where the TCEQ is located) and in each of the counties (1) from which the water is appropriated (that is, diverted), (2) in which the water is used, (3) in which any of the appurtenant land is located, and (4) in which the watermaster is located.

Attorneys dealing with water rights within a watermaster operation should be aware of the notice and recording requirements applicable to watermaster operations. See generally 30 Tex. Admin. Code chs. 303, 304. This is particularly true for the Rio Grande watermaster. There are two subsections (j) to section 11.3271 of the Texas Water Code adopted by the legislature in 2003 that have never been reconciled. See Tex. Water Code § 11.3271. Under one subsection (j), the watermaster with jurisdiction over the Rio Grande is made the official recorder for all instruments, including deeds, deeds of trust, financing statements, security agreements, and liens that the TCEQ authorizes or requires to be filed in connection with a water right relating to water in the lower, middle, or upper basin of the Rio Grande and that are subject to a permit, certified filing, or certificate of adjudication, and the filing will have the same legal effect as filing under other law for the same type of instrument. Under the other subsection (j), the watermaster is required to maintain a central repository that includes certified copies of all instruments, including deeds, deeds of trust, and liens that the TCEQ requires to be filed in connection with the same type of water rights as are described in the first-referenced subsection (j), and it is expressly stated that on and after September 1, 2003, a lien against a water right shall not be effective against third parties unless a certified copy of the instrument is filed with the watermaster and all requirements under other law are met. It would be prudent when conveying rights or interests in water rights in the Rio Grande to record a duplicate set of original documents with the Texas watermaster, as well as in the real property records of the county or counties in which the documents are otherwise authorized to be recorded, and to also file a certified copy of the documents recorded in the county real property records (at least with regard to liens) with the watermaster.

Attorneys for the buyer, the seller, and the lender may each prepare closing instructions for the closing agent. For applicable forms, see forms 26-15 through 26-18 in this manual. These instructions relate to the conditions precedent to closing, including the status of the title after closing, the title insurance policies to be issued, disposition of funds, and distribution of documents received by the closing agent.
§ 16.79 Additional Considerations

Buyer: If the buyer is a foreign person, certain disclosures and reports may be required under the Foreign Investment in Real Property Tax Act of 1980. See 26 U.S.C. § 6039C.

Seller: With certain exceptions, anyone purchasing real property located in the United States from a foreign person must withhold 15 percent of the price and remit the funds to the Internal Revenue Service within twenty days of the date of transfer. See 26 U.S.C. § 1445(a), (b). The transferee should assume that the seller is a foreign person until the contrary is established, because transferees act at their own peril until they obtain a nonforeign affidavit. See 26 U.S.C. § 1445(b)(2). The nonforeign affidavits (forms 26-19 and 26-20 in this manual) are suggested for use in all transactions.

The attorney should prepare a closing checklist, itemizing the documents that will be required to close the transaction, including curative documents. The checklist should also refer to all other preclosing considerations relating to the transaction.

After closing, recorded documents and relevant title insurance policies issued after closing should be reviewed for accuracy and compliance with the title commitment. The owner policy should be dated on or after the recording date of the deed conveying title to the buyer, and the mortgagee policy should be dated on or after the recording date of the deed of trust of the insured lien.

An original or title company’s certified copy of each executed document relating to the closing should be provided to the seller and the buyer or the borrower by their attorneys. Generally, the party benefiting from a document receives the original, and the other parties receive copies.

If the transaction fails to close, but the TCEQ and any other water authority have approved the transfer or any amendments to the permit or certificate of adjudication, the parties can ask the TCEQ and any other water authority to delete the amendment to the permit or certificate of adjudication.

V. Water Rights Lien Documents

The lien forms contained in this chapter may be used, with appropriate modification, for either groundwater rights or surface water rights transactions.

To address both the real and the personal property characteristics of water rights, it is advisable to incorporate both deed-of-trust provisions and security agreement provisions in loan documents. This can be done in one or more documents, depending on the transaction. The water rights deed of trust (form 16-21 in this chapter) is an adaptation to water rights of the basic deed of trust (form 8-1 in this manual). The water rights security agreement (form 16-22) is an adaptation of form 9-2, the basic form for security agreement found in chapter 9. Depending on the nature and use of the water rights being pledged, and the other collateral associated with those water rights, the additional clauses and forms from chapters 8 and 9 should be added to the basic forms appearing in this chapter. These additional clauses from chapters 8 and 9 are thus referenced in this chapter and should be inserted into the form 16-21 and form 16-22, as appropriate.

In any transaction, the pledged water rights may have both real and personal property characteristics. For example, surface water rights are real property, requiring use of a deed of trust. Once the water is transported for use, however, the water may become personal property. In addition, the permit or certificate of adjudication evidencing the surface water rights may constitute a separate property right. It is not clear under existing case law whether the permit or certificate of adjudication would constitute an interest in real property, similar to a license or land development permit, or whether it would be considered personal property in the nature of a general intangible. Consequently it is advisable to use both a deed of trust and a security agreement with financing statements in loans secured by groundwater or surface water rights, to ensure that the lender has a lien on all real and personal property. The separate security agreement (form 16-22, adapted from the basic form for security interests in personalty) may be used if there is other purely personal property that secures the loan. Form 16-21 (which includes the additional security agreement language of clause 8-9-10) may be used to create both the real property lien and a personal property security interest in a single deed of trust document when there is no other personal property.

In other types of transactions, for example, groundwater rights completely severed from real property and represented by only permits (as described in part III. of this chapter) or groundwater rights for on-site production and for which a groundwater permit may have been issued (as described in part II.), the groundwater rights are real property, the produced water may be personal property, and the permit itself may be either an interest in real property or a general intangible under the Texas Uniform Commercial Code.

If a facility such as a well or pipeline is included in the collateral, this property may constitute either a fixture or equipment. Consequently, it is advisable to describe this type of facility in the deed of trust and security agreement and to file financing statements as both a fixture filing and a personal property filing.

In loan transactions in which water rights, permits, or facilities are used as collateral, the attorney drafting the loan documents will want to consider the importance of including in the loan documents a UCC article 9 security agreement, UCC financing statements, and a deed of trust to address both the real and the personal property aspects of water rights. The places for recording the deed of trust and financing statements are discussed in section 16.81.4 below.

In addition to using a deed of trust and security agreement, the attorney should consider using other documents to more fully protect the lender’s lien rights, particularly in instances in which the water rights are subject to the jurisdiction of a water authority (for example, the TCEQ, a watermaster, or a groundwater district authority). Persons dealing with water rights, including the water authority itself, may not check the real property records or the UCC lien records (particularly those in another state) before taking action in connection with the water rights. They instead may look solely at the information filed in the water authority’s records. There is currently no mechanism for recording liens in the records of any water authority. Furthermore, there is no statutory or case law that clearly requires a water authority to consult real property records or UCC lien records, or to acknowledge the rights of a lender, before authorizing a modification, termination, or transfer of a permit.
Consequently, the owner of the water rights pledged as collateral may adversely affect the value of those water rights to the lender by obtaining a change in the permitted use of the water rights or transferring the permit in whole or in part to another person without the lender’s knowledge. The lender may then have a difficult time reestablishing its rights in the collateral. In order to put the water authority, and persons checking the water authority’s records, on actual notice of the lender’s lien on the water rights, the attorney may want to file a form for notice of lender’s rights in the records of the water authority. The attorney may also want to have the owner of the water rights give written instructions to the water authority directing it not to take any action with regard to the permit or certificate of adjudication without the written authorization of the lender. Because there is no formal mechanism for filing such notice or instructions with a water authority, it is possible that the water authority may reject such a filing or refuse to comply with the instructions. Nevertheless, the lender will be in a better position to assert its rights against the water authority or a person who obtained a transfer of the permit or certificate, if such notice or instructions were delivered to the water authority, to be placed in the records pertaining to the permit or certificate for the pledged water rights. One or more of the following forms may be used: memorandum of groundwater loan (form 16-23), notice of the lender’s interest in water rights (form 16-24), and the permittee’s instruction letter to water authority (form 16-25).

§ 16.81:1 Groundwater vs. Surface Water

Form 16-21 and form 16-22 in this chapter are designed for establishing a lien on or security interest in either groundwater or surface water rights. The forms contain suggested alternative clauses to describe the type of water rights being encumbered as security and categories of additional property associated with the water rights that might also serve as collateral for the loan.

§ 16.81:2 Deed of Trust

A deed of trust is a mortgage on real property with a power of sale. Although a deed of trust by its literal terms conveys the real property in trust to the trustee, its actual effect under Texas law is to create a lien against the property to secure a debt of the grantor of the lien to the beneficiary of the lien. This chapter provides one basic water rights deed of trust form (form 16-21), which is an adaptation to water rights of form 8-1 in this manual. If the borrower is assuming obligations under the seller’s existing loan for which the water rights serve as collateral, similar adaptations can be made to the deed of trust to secure assumption (form 8-2). If a leasehold interest in the water rights is collateral for the loan, the leasehold deed of trust (form 8-10) can be revised. As discussed in this chapter and chapter 8, the forms may be adapted to a variety of situations.

A description of collateral in the deed of trust should be inserted for each category of property intended as collateral. In the water rights category, the description will include such identifying information from the permit or certificate of adjudication as the TCEQ or other water authority number designation, priority date, amendments, water rights authorized (including any rights of diversion, use, or storage), quantity, particular watercourse or aquifer from which the water rights come, ownership, place of use, purpose of use (for example, municipal, irrigation, industrial, recreational), and point of diversion. Also, if adapting form 8-10 for a leasehold deed of trust on the water rights, note that the description of the property in the leasehold deed of trust should be of the leasehold interest of the lessee granting the deed-of-trust lien.

In the case of irrigation surface water rights, the water rights will be appurtenant to the land designated as the “place of use” in the certificate or permit. If the land to which the water rights are appurtenant is also intended as collateral for the loan, the description of that land should be inserted in the definition of “appurtenant land.” If the land from which the water is diverted or on which it is to be used is not intended as collateral for the loan, the land should be described here as the “surface estate.”
The deed of trust for water rights contains security agreement and financing statement language. This security agreement language, in addition to addressing the personal property aspects of water rights, can also be used to create a security agreement in any fixtures associated with the real estate and water rights. For drafting instructions and guidance in using a deed of trust with a security agreement, see sections 8.11 and 9.8.

There are a number of other considerations in using a deed-of-trust form, depending on the nature of the loan transaction and related collateral. The attorney can consult chapter 8 to determine whether and to what extent these additional considerations apply, and find additional guidance for completing and modifying the provisions of form 16-21 to reflect the dynamics in the loan transaction.

§ 16.81:3 Security Agreement

Chapter 9 of the Texas Business and Commerce Code, titled “Secured Transactions,” governs consensual, contractual security interests in personal property and fixtures that secure payment or performance of an obligation. Tex. Bus. & Com. Code § 9.109(a)(1). Almost all water rights in Texas are evidenced by a permit or a certificate of adjudication. Because a permit or certificate of adjudication resembles a general intangible, form 16-22 in this chapter, for creating a security interest in water rights, is an adaptation of form 9-2, the security agreement found in chapter 9 in this manual.

If water rights are considered real property, an argument can be made that the secured transactions provisions of chapter 9 of the Business and Commerce Code do not apply to liens or security interests in water rights. Chapter 9 contains a real property interest exclusion. With an exception for fixtures, the creation or transfer of an interest in or a lien on real property, including a lease or rents, as defined by section 64.001 of the Property Code, is not governed by chapter 9. Tex. Bus. & Com. Code § 9.109(d)(11). By comparison, however, the definition of “account” under chapter 9 explicitly includes rights to payment for property (real or personal) sold. Tex. Bus. & Com. Code § 9.102(a)(2). In addition, security interests in farm products are governed by chapter 9, and specifically include supplies produced or used in farming operations, including aquatic farming operations. See Tex. Bus. & Com. Code § 9.102(a)(34), (a)(35).

To eliminate the risks associated with water rights collateral being classified as either exclusively real or exclusively personal property to which different rules may apply, a lender may ask the debtor to provide both a deed of trust and a security agreement. Although the deed of trust (form 16-21) contains security agreement language that may be sufficient to create a lien on the personal property aspect of water rights, the additional provisions in the security agreement (form 16-22) may provide greater clarity and guidance regarding the parties’ rights and obligations, particularly if related collateral for the loan has strictly personal property characteristics.

The rules for creating and perfecting a security interest are complex. Accordingly, in the context of any particular transaction, the attorney should consult chapter 9, giving due consideration to all of the types of collateral involved in the loan transaction. The rules relating to classification and definitions of collateral, creation, attachment, perfection, priority, choice of law, and other issues will vary, depending on the transaction. Chapter 9 contains instructions that will provide guidance in completing and modifying form 16-22 and additional clauses that should be considered. Because of the complexity of the rules for creating and perfecting a security interest, the attorney should also consult the statutory text, the official comments, secondary sources, and any relevant case law.
§ 16.81:4 Attachment, Perfection, and Recording

There are currently no express rules governing attachment and perfection of a security interest in water rights. For other types of collateral, there are four basic methods of perfecting an attached security interest, although as few as one of those methods may be effective, depending on the specific category of collateral. Those methods include (1) a properly completed financing statement (see Tex. Bus. & Com. Code § 9.102(a)(39)) filed in the appropriate UCC filing offices, (2) possession of the collateral in the secured party, (3) the secured party’s control of the collateral, and (4) in a few cases, automatic perfection on attachment of a security interest. If there are alternative methods of perfection, one secured party may obtain priority over another secured party, depending on the method used to perfect. For guidance on the various methods of attachment and perfection, consult sections 9.4 and 9.5 in this manual.

The lender should record the deed of trust in the place for recordation of the deed or conveyance documents described in section 16.12 above (groundwater rights for production on-site), in section 16.42 (permitted groundwater rights for production off-site), and in section 16.62 (surface water rights), as applicable. Given the ambiguities surrounding attachment and perfection of a security interest in water rights, and the different locations from which surface water rights or permitted groundwater rights may originate or be used, a lender may want to use as many means as it can to make sure persons are put on actual and constructive notice of the lender’s lien rights and security interests. Consequently, note should be taken of the additional alternative places for recording documents described in sections 16.42, 16.62, and 16.78.5.

Attorneys dealing with water rights within a watermaster operation should be aware of the notice and recording requirements applicable to watermaster operations. See generally 30 Tex. Admin. Code chs. 303, 304. This is particularly true for the Rio Grande watermaster. There are two subsections (j) to section 11.3271 of the Texas Water Code adopted by the legislature in 2003 that have never been reconciled. See Tex. Water Code § 11.3271. Under one subsection (j), the watermaster with jurisdiction over the Rio Grande is made the official recorder for all instruments, including deeds, deeds of trust, financing statements, security agreements, and liens that the TCEQ authorizes or requires to be filed in connection with a water right relating to water in the lower, middle, or upper basin of the Rio Grande and that are subject to a permit, certified filing, or certificate of adjudication, and the filing will have the same legal effect as filing under other law for the same type of instrument. Under the other subsection (j), the watermaster is required to maintain a central repository that includes certified copies of all instruments, including deeds, deeds of trust, and liens that the TCEQ requires to be filed in connection with the same type of water rights as are described in the first-referenced subsection (j), and it is expressly stated that on and after September 1, 2003, a lien against a water right shall not be effective against third parties unless a certified copy of the instrument is filed with the watermaster and all requirements under other law are met. It would be prudent when conveying rights or interests in water rights in the Rio Grande to record a duplicate set of original documents with the Texas watermaster, as well as in the real property records of the county or counties in which the documents are otherwise authorized to be recorded, and to also file a certified copy of the documents recorded in the county real property records (at least with regard to liens) with the watermaster.

Because water rights, permits, and facilities have both real and personal property characteristics, financing statements used in the loan transaction should be treated as applying to both fixtures and personal property and should be recorded in the appropriate locations as provided by the Uniform Commercial Code (title 1 of the Texas Business and Commerce Code). If applicable law requires the financing statement to be filed with the secretary of state of a state other than Texas (for example, in the state of the debtor’s location), the lender may still want to file an additional financing statement with the Texas secretary of state, to provide actual notice of the security interest to persons who check for filings in Texas. The UCC forms are available in a fill-in-the-blank format over the Internet from the Texas secretary of state at www.sos.state.tx.us/ucc/uccforms.shtml. For guidance in filling out the UCC forms, consult sections 9.13 through 9.17 in this manual.

Any interest earned on the Earnest Money will become part of the Earnest Money.

F. Title [and Survey]

F.1. Review of Title. The following statutory notice is provided to Buyer on behalf of the real estate licensees, if any, involved in this transaction. Buyer is advised that it should either have the abstract covering the Real Property examined by an attorney of Buyer’s own selection or be furnished with or obtain a policy of title insurance.

F.2. Title Commitment; Title Policy. “Title Commitment” means a Commitment for Issuance of an Owner Policy of Title Insurance by Title Company, as agent for Underwriter, or directly by Underwriter, stating the condition of title to the Groundwater and the Real Property. The effective date stated in the Title Commitment must be after the Effective Date of this contract. “Title Policy” means an Owner Policy of Title Insurance issued by Title Company, as agent for Underwriter, or directly by Underwriter, in conformity with the last Title Commitment delivered to and approved by Buyer.
F.3. Title Information. “Title Information” means an abstract of title prepared by a title insurance company or an abstract company licensed by the Texas State Board of Insurance, covering the period from the first conveyance of title to the Real Property out of the sovereignty to the Effective Date, and containing complete and legible copies of all the deeds, easements, liens, and other documents affecting title to the Real Property and the Groundwater.

F.4. Survey. “Survey” means an on-the-ground, staked plat of survey and metes-and-bounds description of the Real Property, prepared by Surveyor or another surveyor satisfactory to [Title Company/Escrow Agent], dated after the Effective Date, and certified to Seller, Buyer, [Title Company/Escrow Agent], and any other person specified by Buyer, to comply with the current standards and specifications as published by the Texas Society of Professional Surveyors for the Survey Category.

F.6. Delivery of [Title Commitment/Title Information], [Survey,] UCC Search, and Title Documents. Seller must deliver the [Title Commitment/Title Information] to Buyer and Buyer’s attorney by the deadline stated in paragraph A.2. above; the Survey, if required, by the deadline stated in paragraph A.3.; the UCC Search by the deadline stated in paragraph A.4.; and legible copies of the Title Documents by the deadline stated in paragraph A.5.

F.7. Title Objections. Buyer has until the deadline stated in paragraph A.6. above ("Title Objection Deadline") to review the Survey, [Title Commitment/Title Information], UCC Search, and legible copies of the Title Documents, notify Seller of Buyer's objections to any of them, and request any additional information needed to evidence Seller's title to the Real Property and the Groundwater ("Title Objections"). Buyer will be deemed to have approved all matters reflected by the Survey, [Title Commitment/Title Information], Title Documents, and UCC Search to which Buyer has made no Title Objection by the Title Objection Deadline. The matters that Buyer either approves or is deemed to have approved are "Permitted Exceptions." If Buyer notifies Seller of any Title Objections, Seller has five days from receipt of Buyer's notice to notify Buyer whether Seller agrees to cure the Title Objections before Closing ("Cure Notice"). If Seller does not timely give its Cure Notice or timely gives its Cure Notice but does not agree to cure all the Title Objections before Closing, Buyer may, within five days after the deadline for the giving of Seller's Cure Notice, notify Seller that either this contract is terminated or Buyer will proceed to close, subject to Seller's obligations to resolve the items [listed in Schedule C of the Title Commitment/listed in the Title Information], remove all liquidated liens, remove all exceptions that arise by, through, or under Seller after the Effective Date, and cure only the Title Objections that Seller has agreed to cure in the Cure Notice. At or before Closing, Seller must resolve the items that are [listed in Schedule C of the Title Commitment/listed in the Title Information], remove all liquidated liens, remove all exceptions that arise by, through, or under Seller after the Effective Date of this contract, and cure the Title Objections that Seller has agreed to cure.
G. Inspection Period

G.1. Review of Seller’s Records. Seller, at Seller’s expense, will deliver to Buyer copies of Seller’s Records specified in Exhibit C, or otherwise make those records available for Buyer’s review, by the deadline stated in paragraph A.7. above.

G.2. Entry onto Real Property. Buyer may enter the Real Property before Closing to perform all investigations Buyer deems appropriate, at Buyer’s cost, including exploration for, drilling for, and testing of Groundwater, subject to the following conditions.

G.2.b. Buyer may not interfere in any material manner with existing operations or occupants of the Real Property.

G.2.c. Buyer must notify Seller in advance of Buyer’s plans to conduct tests so that Seller may be present during the tests.

G.2.f. Buyer must abide by any other reasonable entry rules imposed by Seller.
G.3. Hydrogeological Testing. Buyer has the right to perform investigations to estimate the quality, quantity, and sustainability of the Groundwater.

The parties agree that the Purchase Price is to be determined based on [specify basis for pricing the groundwater rights, such as average saturated foot of groundwater or some other calculation related to the estimated quality, quantity, or sustainability of the groundwater available for production]. Buyer will perform investigations during the Inspection Period, at [Buyer’s/Seller’s/both parties’] expense, to estimate the quality, quantity, and sustainability of the Groundwater. Buyer and Seller will select a mutually acceptable independent hydrogeologist ("Hydrogeologist") to perform the evaluation of the Groundwater. If Seller and Buyer are not able to choose a hydrogeologist within twenty days after the Effective Date, each will select a hydrogeologist, and the two hydrogeologists selected will choose a third hydrogeologist to perform the evaluation. The investigations will include such test drilling, logging, and data analysis on the Real Property [include if applicable: and on property within the region of the Real Property] as Hydrogeologist deems appropriate. If [Seller/Buyer] desires more test wells than Hydrogeologist determines is necessary, [Seller/Buyer] may cause additional test wells to be drilled and logged at [Seller/Buyer]’s expense. The data from Buyer’s investigations, Seller’s logs, if applicable, and Seller’s Records will be submitted to Hydrogeologist. The parties agree to be bound by the determination of Hydrogeologist.

Seller will cooperate with Buyer at all times in obtaining any information and forms required from the Groundwater Authority. On Buyer’s request, Seller, at [Seller’s/ Buyer’s] expense, will execute and transmit to the Groundwater Authority all necessary applications, forms, and documentation required for the transfer of Seller’s Permit to Buyer, provided that the transfer will not be effective until Closing. Seller will not take any action before or after Closing to oppose the transfer of Seller’s Permit to Buyer, the issuance of an amendment to Seller’s Permit, or other permitting sought by Buyer to enable Buyer to use the Groundwater for Buyer’s Intended Use of the Groundwater.

Buyer’s obligation to purchase the Groundwater Rights is contingent on the Groundwater Authority approving, before the expiration of the Inspection Period, the Required Permitting (as defined below) contingent on Closing or, in the sole discretion of Buyer, providing sufficient assurance that the Groundwater Authority will issue the Required Permitting after Closing. Required Permitting means [issuance of a production permit authorizing [specify]/ transfer of Seller’s Permit/transfer of Seller’s Permit and amendment of the Permit to authorize [specify]]. Buyer will initiate action to obtain the Required Permitting promptly after the Effective Date and diligently pursue obtaining the Required Permitting during the Inspection Period. [Include if applicable: If Buyer has been unable to obtain approval of the Required Permitting, or assurance satisfactory to Buyer of obtaining the Required Permitting after Closing, despite Buyer’s diligence, Buyer will have the right to extend the Inspection Period solely for the purpose of obtaining the Required Permitting for a period not to exceed [number] days, by giving Seller written notice of the extension before the termination of the Inspection Period. Buyer’s right to terminate this contract before the end of the extension period is limited to the failure to obtain, or to obtain satisfactory assurance of, the Required Permitting ]
G.6. Environmental Assessment. Buyer has the right to conduct environmental assessments of the Real Property and Groundwater. Seller will provide, or will designate a person with knowledge of the use and condition of the Real Property and Groundwater to provide, information requested by Buyer or Buyer's agent or representative regarding the use and condition of the Real Property and Groundwater during the period of Seller's ownership of the Property. Seller will cooperate with Buyer in obtaining and providing to Buyer, its agent, or representative information regarding the Real Property and Groundwater.

G.7. Buyer's Right to Terminate. Buyer may terminate this contract for any reason by notifying Seller before the end of the Inspection Period.

G.8. Buyer's Indemnity and Release of Seller

G.8.a. Indemnity. Buyer will indemnify, defend, and hold Seller harmless from any loss, attorney's fees, expenses, or claims arising out of Buyer's investigation, except those arising out of the acts or omissions of Seller and those for repair or remediation of existing conditions discovered by Buyer's inspection. The obligations of Buyer under this provision will survive termination of this contract and Closing.

G.8.b. Release. Buyer releases Seller and those persons acting on Seller's behalf from all claims and causes of action (including claims for attorney's fees and court and other costs) resulting from Buyer's investigation of the Groundwater and Real Property.

[Include if applicable: Until the end of the Inspection Period, Seller will not enter into, amend, or terminate any contract that affects the personal property and fixtures other than in the ordinary course of operating such property and will promptly give notice to Buyer of each new, amended, or terminated contract, including a copy of the contract, in sufficient time so that Buyer may consider the new information before the end of the Inspection Period. I.3. Condemnation. Seller will notify Buyer promptly after Seller receives notice that any part of the Real Property or Groundwater Rights has been or is threatened to be condemned or otherwise taken by a governmental or quasi-governmental authority. Buyer may terminate this contract if the condemnation would materially affect Buyer’s intended use of the Groundwater Rights by giving notice to Seller within fifteen days after receipt of Seller’s notice to Buyer (or before Closing if Seller’s notice is received less than fifteen days before Closing). The condemnation will be deemed to materially affect Buyer’s intended use of the Groundwater Rights if [specify reason, e.g., the condemnation would result in Buyer’s not being able to produce more than [number] acre-feet of Groundwater]. If Buyer does not terminate this contract, (a) Buyer and Seller will each have the right to appear and defend their respective interests in the Groundwater Rights in the condemnation proceedings; (b) any award in condemnation will be assigned to Buyer to the extent necessary to compensate Buyer for the loss of or reduction in the Groundwater Rights; and (c) if the taking occurs before Closing, the description of the Real Property or Groundwater Rights will be revised to delete the portion taken.

I.4. Claims; Hearings. Seller will notify Buyer promptly after Seller receives notice of any claim or administrative hearing that is threatened, filed, or initiated before Closing that affects the Groundwater Rights.

I.5. Cooperation. Seller will cooperate with Buyer (a) before and after Closing to transfer the applications, permits, and licenses held by Seller and used in the production of the Groundwater and to obtain any consents necessary for Buyer to withdraw or produce the Groundwater; (b) before closing, with any reasonable evaluation, inspection, or study of the Real Property or the Groundwater, and (c) in all other matters related to, or arising out of or in connection with, this contract. These provisions will survive Closing.

I.6. Casualty or Other Loss or Damage. Until Closing has been completed and funded, Seller will bear the risk of any damage, casualty, or other loss to the Real Property or Groundwater Rights [include if applicable: and the personal property and fixtures]. If any damage, casualty, or other loss results in a material adverse change in the quality, quantity, or usability of the Groundwater, Buyer will have the right to terminate this contract. [Include if applicable: If personal property or fixtures are damaged by casualty, the portion of the purchase price attributable to the personal property and fixtures will be equitably reduced.]

I.7. Memorandum of Contract; Termination of Contract; No Recording of Contract. At the time the memorandum is signed, Buyer and Seller will also sign a termination of contract in recordable form and deposit it into escrow with [Title Company/Escrow Agent]. The parties authorize [Title Company/Escrow Agent] to record the termination of contract as provided in section J. below. Neither Buyer nor Seller may file this contract in the real property records of any county. If either party records this contract, the other party may terminate this contract and record a notice of termination.

J. Termination

J.1.a. To Buyer. If Buyer terminates this contract in accordance with any of Buyer’s rights to terminate, then unless Seller delivers notice of Seller’s objection to [Title Company/Escrow Agent]’s release of the Earnest Money to Buyer within five days after Buyer delivers Buyer’s termination notice to Seller and [Title Company/Escrow Agent], [Title Company/Escrow Agent] is authorized, without any further authorization from Seller, to deliver the Ear-

J.1.b. To Seller. If Seller terminates this contract in accordance with any of Seller’s rights to terminate, then unless Buyer delivers notice of Buyer’s objection to [Title Company/Escrow Agent]’s release of the Earnest Money to Seller within five days after Seller delivers Seller’s termination notice to Buyer and [Title Company/Escrow Agent], [Title Company/Escrow Agent] is authorized, without any further authorization from Buyer, to pay and deliver the Earnest Money to Seller and to record the termination of contract. [Title Company/Escrow Agent] will record the termination of contract and pay the Earnest Money to Seller on receipt of Buyer’s authorization.

J.2. Duties after Termination. If this contract is terminated, Buyer will promptly return to Seller all of Seller’s Records in Buyer’s possession or control. K.1.d. Delivery of Originals. Seller will deliver to Buyer the originals of Seller’s Records.

K.1.e. Possession. Seller will deliver possession of the Groundwater Rights to Buyer, subject to the Permitted Exceptions existing at Closing and any liens and security interests created at Closing to secure financing for the Purchase Price.

K.2. Transaction Costs

K.2.a. Seller’s Costs. Seller will pay [the basic charge for the Title Policy/the cost of providing the Title Information as specified in this contract, if not previously paid by Seller]; one-half of the escrow fee charged by [Title Company/Escrow Agent]; the costs to prepare the Groundwater Rights Warranty Deed and the Easement Agreement and addenda, if required by this contract; the costs to obtain, deliver, and record any releases of liens, lender’s consent, and subordination to Buyer’s easement rights required in connection with the sale; the costs to cure and record the documents to cure Title Objections agreed or required to be cured by Seller and to resolve matters shown in Schedule C of the Title Commitment, [include if applicable: Title Company’s inspection fee to delete from the Title Policy the customary exception for rights of parties in possession;] the costs to obtain the [Survey.] UCC Search[,] and certificates or reports of ad valorem taxes; the costs to deliver copies of the instruments described in paragraph A.5. above and Seller’s Records; any other costs expressly required to be paid by Seller in this contract, and Seller’s attorney’s fees and expenses.

K.2.c. Taxes, Fees, and Assessments. At Closing, Seller will pay any ad valorem taxes and assessments, including penalties and interest (collectively, “Taxes”), in connection with the Real Property and the Groundwater that are owing for prior calendar years. Seller will pay all Taxes in connection with the Real Property and Groundwater for the current calendar year, if payable at the time of Closing. After Closing, Seller will continue to pay all Taxes due in connection with the Real Property (including the Reserved Groundwater) before delinquency, except that if ad valorem taxes are assessed separately against Buyer’s Groundwater Rights after Closing, Buyer will be responsible for paying such taxes and assessments if Buyer is obligated to pay such taxes under applicable law. After Closing, each party will have the right to protest taxes that the party is responsible for paying, provided that the protesting party does not allow the taxes to become delinquent. If the Real Property has been, or is at any time after Closing, the subject of special valuation and reduced tax assessments pursuant to the provisions of chapter 23, subchapter D, of the Texas Tax Code or under any other provision of law, and additional taxes, penalties, or interest are assessed pursuant to Code section 23.55 or under such other provision of law, Seller will be responsible for the payment of any such taxes, penalties, and interest, including rollback taxes. Buyer will have the right, but not the obligation, to pay the Taxes. If Buyer pays the Taxes, at Buyer’s request Seller will promptly take the action required by section 32.06 of the Texas Tax Code to authorize a transfer of the tax lien to Buyer.

After Closing, Buyer will be responsible for paying all fees, assessments, taxes, and charges of any kind imposed by the Groundwater Authority, or any successor authority, in connection with Buyer’s use, development, pumping, or transportation of the Groundwater. Buyer will timely pay any taxes assessed by any taxing authority against any equipment or personal property of Buyer located on the Real Property and any fees or costs charged by any Groundwater Conservation District or other regulatory body for Buyer’s development, pumping, transportation, or use of the Groundwater.

These provisions will survive Closing and will be set out in one or more of the Closing Documents.

K.2.d. Proration of Expenses and Income. Except as provided in paragraph K.2.c. above, all items of expense or income arising in connection with the use or operation of the Groundwater will be prorated as of the Closing Date. Seller will pay all bills and expenses that could give rise to a lien against the Real Property or Groundwater at or before Closing.

K.2.e. Brokers’ Commissions. Buyer and Seller each indemnify and agree to defend and hold the other party harmless from any loss, attorney’s fees, and court and other costs arising out of a claim by any person or entity claiming by, through, or under the indemnitee for a broker’s or finder’s fee or commission because of this transaction or this contract.
whether the claimant is disclosed to the indemnitee or not. At Closing, each party will provide the other party with a release of broker’s or appraiser’s liens from all brokers or appraisers for which each party was responsible.

K.3. Issuance of Title Policy. Seller will cause [Title Company/Escrow Agent] to issue the Title Policy, if required, to Buyer as soon as practicable after Closing.

L.1. Seller’s Default; Remedies before Closing. If Seller fails to perform any of its obligations under this contract, or if any of Seller’s representations are not true and correct as of the Effective Date or on the Closing Date or any of its warranties have been breached (“Seller’s Default”), Buyer may elect either of the following as its sole and exclusive remedy before Closing:

L.1.a. Termination; Liquidated Damages. Buyer may terminate this contract by giving notice to Seller on or before the Closing Date and Closing Time and have the Earnest Money, less the $100 as described above, returned to Buyer. If Seller’s Default occurs after Buyer has incurred costs to investigate the Real Property or Groundwater after the Effective Date and Buyer terminates this contract in accordance with the previous sentence, Seller will also pay to Buyer as liquidated damages the lesser of Buyer’s actual out-of-pocket expenses incurred to investigate the Real Property and Groundwater after the Effective Date (“Buyer’s Expenses”) or the amount of Buyer’s Liquidated Damages, within ten days after Seller’s receipt of an invoice from Buyer stating the amount of Buyer’s Expenses accompanied by reasonable evidence of Buyer’s Expenses.

L.1.b. Specific Performance. Unless Seller’s Default relates to the untruth or incorrectness of Seller’s representations for reasons not reasonably within Seller’s control, Buyer may enforce specific performance of Seller’s obligations under this contract, but any such action must be initiated, if at all, within ninety days after the breach or alleged breach of this contract. If title to the Groundwater Rights is awarded to Buyer, the conveyance will be subject to the matters stated in the [Title Commitment/Title Information].

L.2. Seller’s Default; Remedies after Closing. If Seller’s representations are not true and correct at Closing for reasons reasonably within Seller’s control and Buyer does not become aware of the untruth or incorrectness until after Closing, Buyer will have all the rights and remedies available at law or in equity. If Seller fails to perform any of its obligations under this contract that survive Closing, Buyer will have all rights and remedies available at law or in equity unless otherwise provided by the Closing Documents.

L.3. Buyer’s Default; Remedies before Closing. If Buyer fails to perform any of its obligations under this contract (“Buyer’s Default”), Seller may terminate this contract by giving notice to Buyer on or before Closing and have the Earnest Money paid to Seller. If Buyer’s Default occurs after Seller has incurred costs to perform its obligations under this contract and Seller terminates this contract in accordance with the previous sentence, Buyer will also reimburse Seller for the lesser of Seller’s actual out-of-pocket expenses incurred after the Effective Date to perform its obligations under this contract (“Seller’s Expenses”) or the amount of Seller’s Additional Liquidated Damages, within ten days after Buyer’s receipt of an invoice from Seller stating the amount of Seller’s Expenses accompanied by reasonable evidence of Seller’s Expenses. The foregoing constitute Seller’s sole and exclusive remedies for a default by Buyer before Closing.

L.4. Buyer’s Default; Remedies after Closing. If Buyer fails to perform any of its obligations under this contract that survive Closing, Seller will have all rights and remedies available at law or in equity unless otherwise provided by the Closing Documents.

L.5. Liquidated Damages. The parties agree that just compensation for the harm that would be caused by a default by either party cannot be accurately estimated or would be very difficult to accurately estimate and that the Earnest Money and the amounts provided above are reasonable forecasts of just compensation to the nondefaulting party for the harm that would be caused by a default.

L.6. Attorney’s Fees. If either party retains an attorney to enforce this contract, the party prevailing in litigation is entitled to recover reasonable attorney’s fees and court and other costs.

M. Miscellaneous Provisions

M.1. Notices. Any notice required by or permitted under this contract must be in writing. Any notice required by this contract will be deemed to be given (whether received or not) the earlier of receipt or three business days after being deposited with the United States Postal Service, postage prepaid, certified mail, return receipt requested, and addressed to the intended recipient at the address shown in this contract. Notice may also be given by regular mail, personal delivery, courier delivery, or e-mail and will be effective when received, provided that (a) any notice received on a Saturday, Sunday, or national holiday will be deemed to have been received on the next day that is not a Saturday, Sunday, or national holiday, and (b) any notice received after 5:00 P.M. local time at the place of delivery on a day that is not a Saturday, Sunday, or national holiday will be deemed to have been received on the next day that is not a Saturday, Sunday, or national holiday. Any address for notice may be changed by not less than ten days’ prior written notice given as provided herein. Copies of each notice must be given by one of these methods to the attorney of the party to whom notice is given.

M.2. Entire Agreement. This contract, its exhibits, and any Closing Documents delivered at Closing are the entire agreement of the parties concerning the sale and use of the Groundwater Rights and the use of the Reserved Groundwater and Real Property. There are no representations, warranties, agreements, or promises between the parties pertaining to the Groundwater Rights, Reserved Groundwater, Real Property, sale and use of the Groundwater Rights, or use of the Reserved Groundwater and Real Property, and neither party is relying on

A. Promissory Note. The promissory note ("Note") will be payable by Buyer ("Maker") to the order of Seller ("Payee") at the place designated by Payee. The Note may be prepaid in whole or in part at any time without penalty, premium, or restriction of any kind. Any prepayments are to be applied to the payment of the installments of principal last maturing, and interest will immediately cease on the prepaid principal. The lien securing payment of the Note will be inferior to any lien securing any superior note described in the contract. The Note will be payable as follows:

In one payment due [number] days after the date of the Note with interest payable [at maturity/monthly/quarterly/annually].

Or

In [number] installments of $[amount] each [including interest/plus interest] beginning [number] days after the date of the Note and continuing at [monthly/quarterly/annual] intervals thereafter until [date], when the entire balance of the Note will be due and payable.

Or

Interest only in [number] installments for the first [number] year[s] and thereafter in [number] installments of $[amount] each [including interest/plus interest] beginning [number] days after the date of the Note and continuing at [monthly/quarterly/annual] intervals thereafter until [date], when the entire balance of the Note will be due and payable.

Or

Other: [specify].
B. Deed of Trust and Security Agreement. The deed of trust and security agreement ("Deed of Trust") securing the Note will provide for the following:

Select one of the following.

B.1. Assumption without Consent. The Property may be sold, transferred, or conveyed without the consent of Payee, provided any subsequent buyer or transferee assumes in writing for the benefit of Payee the obligation to pay the Note and to perform the covenants and agreements in the Deed of Trust in accordance with the terms of those instruments. No such assumption will release Maker from any liabilities or obligations arising under the Note or Deed of Trust. Neither the creation of a subordinate lien nor a sale thereunder will be construed as a sale or conveyance of the Property.

Or

B.1. Assumption with Consent. The Property may be sold, transferred, or conveyed provided that (a) any subsequent buyer assumes in writing for the benefit of Payee the obligation to pay the Note and to perform the covenants and agreements in the Deed of Trust in accordance with the terms of those instruments and (b) Maker or the subsequent buyer obtains prior written consent to such a sale from Payee. Consent will be based on the subsequent buyer's credit history, with no change in interest rate or terms, and may not be unreasonably withheld, conditioned, or delayed. No such assumption will release Maker from any liabilities or obligations arising under the Note or Deed of Trust. If all or any part of the Property is sold, conveyed, leased for a period longer than three years, leased with an option to purchase, otherwise sold (including by contract for deed), or otherwise transferred or conveyed without prior written consent of Payee, Payee may, at Payee's sole option, declare the outstanding principal balance of the Note plus accrued interest immediately due and payable. Any deed under threat or order of condemnation, any conveyance solely between makers, and the passage of title by reason of death of a maker or by operation of law will not be construed as a sale or conveyance of the Property. [Neither the creation of a subordinate lien nor a sale thereunder will be construed as a sale or conveyance of the Property. The creation of a subordinate lien without the consent of Payee will be construed as a sale or conveyance of the Property, but any subsequent sale under a subordinate lien to which Payee has consented will not be construed as a sale or conveyance of the Property.]

B.1. Prohibition against Assumption. If all or any part of the Property is sold, transferred, or conveyed without the prior written consent of Payee, Payee may, at Payee’s sole option, declare the outstanding principal balance of the Note plus accrued interest immediately due and payable. Payee has no obligation to consent to any such sale or conveyance of the Property, and Payee is entitled to condition any consent on a change in the interest rate that will thereafter apply to the Note and any other change in the terms of the Note or Deed of Trust that Payee in Payee’s sole discretion deems appropriate. A lease for a period longer than three years, a lease with an option to purchase, or a contract for deed will be deemed to be a sale, transfer, or conveyance of the Property for purposes of this provision. Any deed under threat or order of condemnation, any conveyance solely between makers, and the passage of title by reason of death of a maker or by operation of law will not be construed as a sale or conveyance of the Property. The creation of a subordinate lien without the consent of Payee will be construed as a sale or conveyance of the Property, but any subsequent sale under a subordinate lien to which Payee has consented will not be construed as a sale or conveyance of the Property.

B.2. Without Escrow. Maker will furnish to Payee annually, before the taxes become delinquent, copies of tax receipts showing that all taxes on the Property have been paid. Maker will furnish to Payee annually evidence of current paid-up insurance naming Payee as an insured.

B.2. With Escrow. Maker will, in addition to the principal and interest installments, deposit with Payee a pro rata part of the estimated annual ad valorem taxes on the Property and a pro rata part of the estimated annual insurance premiums for the improvements on the Property. These tax and insurance deposits are only estimates and may be insufficient to pay total taxes and insurance premiums. Maker must pay any deficiency within thirty days after notice from Payee. Maker's failure to pay the deficiency will constitute a default under the Deed of Trust. If any superior lienholder on the Property is collecting escrow payments for taxes and insurance, this paragraph will be inoperative as long as payments are being made to the superior lienholder.

Continue with the following.

B.3. Cross-Default. Any act or occurrence that would constitute a default under the terms of any lien superior to the lien securing the Note will constitute a default under the Deed of Trust securing the Note.

C. Recourse Provisions. The Note and Deed of Trust are subject to the following provisions:

Select one of the following.

Full Recourse. Maker will have full recourse liability for repayment of the principal and interest of the Note and the performance of all covenants and agreements of Maker in the Deed of Trust.

Or
No Recourse. Maker will not have any recourse liability for repayment of the principal and interest of the Note or the performance of any covenants and agreements of Maker in the Deed of Trust. The sole remedy of Payee or other holder of the Note in the event of a default by Maker under the Note or Deed of Trust will be to foreclose the liens and security interests granted in the Deed of Trust, and Payee or other holder of the Note will not be entitled to any personal judgment against Maker.

Or

Partial Recourse. Except as set forth below, Maker will not have any recourse liability for repayment of the principal and interest of the Note or the performance of any covenants and agreements of Maker in the Deed of Trust. Terms and Conditions: The following terms and conditions apply to the Easement granted by this agreement:

1. Character of Easement. The Easement is a nonexclusive blanket easement and is irrevocable, subject to the terms of this agreement. The Easement is for the benefit of Grantee and Grantee's heirs, successors, and assigns who at any time own all or any portion of the Groundwater Rights conveyed to Grantee in the Deed.

2. Duration of Easement. The duration of the Easement is perpetual.

3. Reservation of Rights. Grantor reserves for Grantor and Grantor's heirs, successors, and assigns the right to continue to use and enjoy the Easement Property for all purposes that do not interfere with or interrupt the use or enjoyment of the Easement by Grantee for the Easement Purpose, except as limited by the terms of this agreement.

4. Improvement and Maintenance of Easement Property. Improvement and maintenance of the Easement Property for the Easement Purpose will be at the sole expense of Grantee, except as otherwise provided by this agreement. Grantee has the right to eliminate any encroachments into the Easement Property. On written request by Grantee, Grantor will execute or join in the execution of easements for drainage, electricity, or utility facilities serving the Easement Property.
5. Use of Water. Grantee will have the Groundwater Rights provided in the Deed. The compensation paid by Grantee under the Deed [include if applicable: and the Surface Damage Payment Addendum] is the only compensation to which Grantor is entitled if Grantee's exercise of its rights causes a decline in the Surface Water or Groundwater available to Grantor.

6. Taxes. Grantor will be responsible for paying all ad valorem property taxes or assessments assessed against the Easement Property ("Taxes") before delinquency. If Grantor fails to do so, Grantor authorizes Grantee to pay the Taxes, and on such payment, (a) to be subrogated to all liens held by the taxing authority against the Easement Property as security for the Taxes paid, (b) to have the right to set off amounts paid against amounts owed to Grantor under this agreement, and (c) to seek reimbursement of amounts paid in accordance with applicable law. Grantee will have the right, but not the obligation, to pay the Taxes. If Grantee pays the Taxes, at Grantee's request Grantor will promptly take the action required by section 32.06 of the Texas Tax Code to authorize a transfer of the tax lien to Grantee. Grantee will timely pay any taxes assessed by any taxing authority against Grantee's Facilities or easement estate in the Easement Property as well as any fees or costs charged by any Groundwater Conservation District or other regulatory body for Grantee's development, pumping, transportation, or use of the Groundwater.

7. Addenda. The following [is/are] attached to and [is/are] a part of this agreement:

   - [Select as applicable.]
   - Easement Location Addendum
   - Surface Damage Payment Addendum
   - Surface Use Restrictions Addendum
8. Abandonment of Facilities. The occurrence of abandonment is to be determined solely by Grantee or by a court of competent jurisdiction. On abandonment of any easement or portion of an easement granted on the Easement Property for the production or transportation of water, Grantee will have one year in which to remove the Facilities, at Grantee’s option or in accordance with any written agreement regarding removal between Grantor and Grantee, and to restore the site to its approximate original condition to the extent reasonably practicable. If Grantee does not remove the Facilities, Grantor will become the owner of the Facilities, and Grantee will execute and deliver to Grantor all documents reasonably necessary to indicate that the Facilities have been abandoned and that title to the abandoned Facilities and easements and, to the extent owned by Grantee, all communications lines, electric power lines, poles, and appurtenances serving the abandoned Facilities have reverted to Grantor.

9. Cooperation. Grantor will cooperate with Grantee as reasonably necessary to enable Grantee to obtain any consents or permits necessary for Grantee to withdraw or produce the Groundwater, provided that Grantor will not be obligated to incur any costs thereby. Grantor and Grantee will cooperate with one another in the use of the Real Property, the Easement Property, and the Groundwater in order to effectuate the terms of this agreement.

10. Modifications. This Easement Agreement may be modified or terminated by the written agreement of Grantor and Grantee, provided, however, that if the Easement Property is divided into two or more tracts, this agreement may be modified or terminated as to any tract by Grantee and the owner of that portion of the Easement Property at the time the modification or termination is requested, without the requirement for the consent of any owner of any other portion of the Easement Property. Such modification or termination will be binding on and affect only the rights of Grantee and the owner of the portion of the Easement Property who enters into the modification or termination of this agreement with regard to that owner’s tract and will not affect the terms and provisions of this agreement as they apply to any other portion of the Easement Property.
11. Equitable Rights of Enforcement. This Easement may be enforced by restraining orders and injunctions (temporary or permanent) prohibiting interference and commanding compliance. Restraining orders and injunctions will be obtainable on proof of the existence of interference or threatened interference, without the necessity of proof of inadequacy of legal remedies or irreparable harm, and will be obtainable only by the parties to or those benefited by this agreement, provided, however, that the act of obtaining an injunction or restraining order will not be deemed to be an election of remedies or a waiver of any other rights or remedies provided by this agreement or available at law or in equity. All rights and remedies provided by this agreement or available at law or in equity are cumulative, not exclusive, and may be exercised successively or concurrently.

12. Attorney’s Fees. If any party retains an attorney to enforce this agreement, the party prevailing in litigation is entitled to recover reasonable attorney’s fees and court and other costs.

13. Force Majeure. Any provision in this agreement to the contrary notwithstanding, if a party is delayed in the performance of an obligation under this agreement due to an event of Force Majeure, that party will be given an extension of one day for each day in which the party was unable to perform its obligation due to the event of Force Majeure.

14. Binding Effect. This agreement binds and inures to the benefit of the parties and their respective heirs, successors, and assigns. The covenants and conditions stated in this agreement run with the land.

15. Choice of Law. This agreement will be construed under the laws of the state of Texas, without regard to choice-of-law rules of any jurisdiction. Venue is in the county or counties in which the Easement Property is located.
16. Counterparts. This agreement may be executed in any number of counterparts with the same effect as if all signatory parties had signed the same document. All counterparts will be construed together and will constitute one and the same instrument.

17. Waiver of Default. It is not a waiver of or consent to default if the nondefaulting party fails to declare immediately a default or delays in taking any action. Pursuit of any remedies set forth in this agreement does not preclude pursuit of other remedies in this agreement or provided by law.

18. Further Assurances. Each signatory party agrees to execute and deliver any additional documents and instruments and to perform any additional acts necessary or appropriate to perform the terms, provisions, and conditions of this agreement and all transactions contemplated by this agreement. At the request of Grantee, Grantor will execute a separate Sanitary Control Easement for each of Grantee’s wells in the form attached as Exhibit B or on another form supplied by Grantee meeting TCEQ requirements.

19. Indemnity. Each party agrees to indemnify, defend, and hold harmless the other party from any loss, attorney’s fees, expenses, or claims attributable to (a) breach or default of any provision of this agreement by the indemnifying party or (b) the negligent acts or omissions of the indemnifying party, its employees, agents, representatives, or persons with whom it contracts for the performance of activities on the Easement Property.

20. Entire Agreement. This agreement, all attached exhibits and addenda, and the Deed constitute the entire agreement of the parties concerning the grant of the Easement by Grantor to Grantee. There are no representations, warranties, agreements, or promises pertaining to the grant of the Easement that are not in those documents. All addenda and exhibits to this agreement are incorporated herein.

the parties, the unenforceability will not affect any other provision hereof, and this agreement will be construed as if the unenforceable provision had never been a part of the agreement. Whenever context requires, the singular will include the plural and neuter include the masculine or feminine gender, and vice versa. Article and section headings in this agreement are for reference only and are not intended to restrict or define the text of any section. This agreement will not be construed more or less favorably between the parties by reason of authorship or origin of language.

22. Notices. Any notice required or permitted under this agreement must be in writing. Any notice required by this agreement will be deemed to be given (whether received or not) the earlier of receipt or three business days after being deposited with the United States Postal Service, postage prepaid, certified mail, return receipt requested, and addressed to the intended recipient at the address shown in this agreement. Notice may also be given by regular mail, personal delivery, courier delivery, or e-mail and will be effective when received. Any address for notice may be changed by written notice given as provided herein. If the Easement Property is divided into two or more tracts, Grantee will be deemed to have complied with any notice requirement under this agreement if Grantee provides written notice only to the owners of the tracts directly affected by the matter for which notice is being given.

23. Recitals. Any recitals in this agreement are represented by the parties to be accurate and constitute a part of the substantive agreement.

24. Dispute Resolution. If a dispute arises between the parties with regard to the rights or obligations of the parties as set forth in this agreement, the aggrieved party will provide written notice of its complaint or claim to the other party with sufficient specificity to enable the recipient to determine the cause and nature of the complaint. On receipt of the notice, the receiving party will have a reasonable period of time, not to exceed thirty days, in which to respond in writing to the other party. If the parties are not able to resolve the issues to their mutual satisfaction through negotiation within thirty days after the commencement of negotiations, or within such longer period as the parties may agree on, the parties agree to mediate the matter in good faith before instituting a suit for damages or exercising any right to terminate expressly provided by this agreement.

25. Time. Time is of the essence. Unless otherwise specified, all references to “days” mean calendar days. Business days exclude Saturdays, Sundays, and legal public holidays. If the date for performance of any obligation falls on a Saturday, Sunday, or legal public holiday, the date for performance will be the next following regular business day.

26. Partial Releases. Grantor and Grantee acknowledge that Grantor may need portions of the Easement Property released from this Blanket Easement from time to time in order to use, sell, or finance portions of the Easement Property. If, before the installation of Facilities by Grantee, Grantor makes a written request for a partial release of any portion of this Blanket Easement to Grantee, Grantee will, within forty-five days after receipt of the request, provide Grantor with written consent to the partial release or with proposed plans showing Grantee’s intended use of the area. If the request is granted, Grantor, at Grantor’s expense, will provide the partial release, in a mutually acceptable form, and the field-note description of the area to be released. Grantee may condition the partial release on Grantor’s conveyance of easement rights to replace those being released. If Grantee fails to respond to Grantor in writing within the required time, Grantee will be deemed to have consented to the partial release and will execute the partial release of the area when presented by Grantor. If Grantee fails to do so in a timely manner, Grantor will have the right to execute the partial release on behalf of Grantee and to record it in the real property records as evidence of the release.
27. Relocation of Facilities. After the installation of Facilities by Grantee, Grantor will have the right to require Grantee to execute a partial release of the easement rights granted under this Easement Agreement and to relocate Facilities installed in an easement area if all the following conditions are met: (a) Grantor pays for all surveying and document preparation costs for the area to be released and easements required to be provided by Grantor; (b) Grantor provides a comparable replacement easement to Grantee, at Grantor’s expense, for the easement to be released and all additional easements on Grantor’s or neighboring properties necessary for the operation of Grantee’s relocated Facilities, in form and content reasonably acceptable to Grantee; (c) the proposed relocation will not materially increase the cost of operating Grantee’s Facilities or result in a material adverse change in the efficiency or productivity of Grantee’s Facilities; (d) Grantor pays for the reasonable costs arising from the relocation of Grantee’s Facilities, including, to the extent applicable, site preparation work, making additions or alterations to the Facilities in order to connect them to Grantee’s remaining Facilities, hydrological investigations in connection with determining water quality and quantity, drilling replacement wells, the construction of new roads if necessary to provide reasonable access to the new easement or Facilities, plugging wells in accordance with applicable legal requirements, and the removal of debris; and (e) reimbursement to Grantee for any loss of profits or increase in operating costs during the period in which the relocation of the Facilities occurs and that result from the relocation activities. To initiate the process, Grantor must make written request to Grantee for the relocation, identifying with reasonable particularity the easement or easement areas to be released. Grantee will have a reasonable period of time, not to exceed ninety days, in which to make an initial evaluation and response to Grantor regarding the cost and feasibility of relocating Grantee’s Facilities. If Grantee believes that the proposed relocation will not meet the conditions of (c) above, or that Grantor will not be able to provide suitable replacement easements or is not financially able to pay the costs of relocation, Grantee will notify Grantor of the basis for its determination. If Grantor does not agree with Grantee, Grantor will have the right to pursue dispute resolution.
as provided in paragraph 24. above. If the parties are able to reach an agreement on the terms for the relocation, they will commit those terms to writing. Grantee may require Grantor to escrow funds, furnish a letter of credit, or provide other reasonable guarantee of Grantor’s financial ability to perform its obligations as a condition to entering into the relocation agreement.

Date:

Grantor:

Grantee:

Easement Agreement:

Easement Property:

Real Property:

Easement Location Period:

This Easement Location Addendum modifies the Easement Agreement. Terms defined in the Easement Agreement have the same meaning in this Addendum. The terms of the Easement Agreement that are not modified by this Addendum remain in effect.

Although the Easement Agreement initially grants a blanket Easement over the Easement Property, it is the intention of the parties that the easement location be restricted to (1) the areas to be occupied by Grantee’s Facilities, including roads to be constructed by Grantee, and (2) roads, driveways, and access ways to the Easement Property and Grantee’s Facilities.

At least [number] days before the expiration of the Easement Location Period, Grantee will provide Grantor with a map or sketch showing the areas to be occupied by Grantee’s Facilities, which may include areas to be used immediately and those reserved for future expansion. Grantor may request changes in location of any of the Facilities within [number] days after Grantor’s receipt of Grantee’s proposal. Grantee will accommodate any requested change that does not materially increase Grantee’s construction or operation costs or adversely affect the use or efficiency of Grantee’s Facilities. Grantee, at its expense, will provide a field-note description of the area to be occupied by its Facilities at least [number] days before the expiration of the Easement Location Period, and the parties will execute and record an amendment to the Easement Agreement that identifies the Easement Property as (1) the area or areas described by field notes to be occupied by Grantee’s Facilities, together with any additional area needed as a sanitary control site around each well in order to meet the requirements of law for the protection of water produced from the well, and (2) roads, driveways, and access ways over the [Real Property/Easement Property] to access the Easement Property and Grantee’s Facilities. The amendment may restrict the types of uses allowed in each identified easement location. [Include if applicable: The amendment will also provide Grantee with the right to use reasonable portions of the Real Property adjacent to or in the vicinity of the Easement Property as needed for construction staging areas, parking, and storing vehicles and equipment during construction or maintenance activities.]

Grantee’s easement rights in the areas to be occupied by its Facilities are exclusive. Grantee’s easement rights in roads, driveways, and access ways are nonexclusive. [Include if applicable: After Grantee has [identified the areas to be occupied by its Facilities/provided field notes for the areas to be occupied by its Facilities], paragraph 26. of the Easement Agreement will no longer apply.]

If Grantee fails to identify the location of its Facilities and to provide a field-note description of the area or areas to be occupied by its Facilities as provided in this Addendum, and the failure is not cured through the dispute resolution procedure set out in the Easement Agreement, Grantor may terminate the Easement Agreement as to any Easement Property on which Grantee has not installed Facilities or provided a field-note description by giving Grantee written notice of termination. Grantee authorizes Grantor to execute and record a release evidencing that termination.

[Title Company/Escrow Agent] will record the termination of contract and return the Earnest Money to Buyer on receipt of Seller’s authorization.

J.1.b. To Seller. If Seller terminates this contract in accordance with any of Seller’s rights to terminate, then unless Buyer delivers notice of Buyer’s objection to [Title Company/Escrow Agent]’s release of the Earnest Money to Seller within five days after Seller delivers Seller’s termination notice to Buyer and [Title Company/Escrow Agent], [Title Company/Escrow Agent] is authorized, without any further authorization from Buyer, to pay and deliver the Earnest Money to Seller and to record the termination of contract. [Title Company/Escrow Agent] will record the termination of contract and pay the Earnest Money to Seller on receipt of Buyer’s authorization.

J.2. Duties after Termination. If this contract is terminated, Buyer will promptly return to Seller all of Seller’s Records in Buyer’s possession or control. After return of the documents and copies, neither party will have further duties or obligations to the other under this contract, except for those obligations that cannot be or were not performed before termination of this contract or that expressly survive termination of this contract.

K. Closing

K.1. Closing. This transaction will close at [Title Company/Escrow Agent]’s offices at the Closing Date and Closing Time. At Closing, the following will occur:
K.1.a. Closing Documents. The parties will execute and deliver the Closing Documents.

K.1.b. Payment of Purchase Price. Buyer will deliver the Purchase Price and other amounts that Buyer is obligated to pay under this contract to [Title Company/Escrow Agent] in funds acceptable to [Title Company/Escrow Agent]. The Earnest Money will be applied to the Purchase Price.

K.2. Transaction Costs

K.2.a. Seller’s Costs. Seller will pay [the basic charge for the Title Policy/the cost of providing the Title Information as specified in this contract, if not previously paid by Seller]; one-half of the escrow fee charged by [Title Company/Escrow Agent]; the costs to prepare the Groundwater Rights Deed; the costs to obtain, deliver, and record any releases of liens or lender’s consent; the costs to cure and record the documents to cure Title Objections agreed or required to be cured by Seller and to resolve matters [shown in Schedule C of the Title Commitment/raised in the Title Information]; the costs to obtain the UCC Search and certificates or reports of ad valorem taxes; the costs to deliver copies of the instruments described in para-

K.2.c. Taxes, Fees, and Assessments. At Closing, Seller will pay any ad valorem taxes and assessments, including penalties and interest (collectively, “Taxes”), in connection with the Real Property and the Groundwater Rights that are owing for prior calendar years. Seller will pay all Taxes in connection with the Real Property and Groundwater Rights for the current calendar year, if payable at the time of Closing. After Closing, Seller will continue to pay all Taxes due in connection with the Real Property before delinquency, except that if ad valorem taxes, if any, are assessed separately against Buyer’s Groundwater Rights after Closing, Buyer will be responsible for paying such taxes and assessments if Buyer is obligated to pay such taxes under applicable law. After Closing, each party will have the right to protest taxes that the party is responsible for paying, provided that the protesting party does not allow the taxes to become delinquent.

After Closing, Buyer will be responsible for paying all fees, assessments, taxes, and charges of any kind imposed by the Groundwater Rights Authority, or any successor authority, in connection with the Groundwater Rights.

These provisions will survive Closing and will be set out in one or more of the Closing Documents.
K.2.d. K.2.f. Brokers' Commissions. Buyer and Seller each indemnify and agree to defend and hold the other party harmless from any loss, attorney’s fees, and court and other costs arising out of a claim by any person or entity claiming by, through, or under the indemnitee for a broker’s or finder’s fee or commission because of this transaction or this contract, whether the claimant is disclosed to the indemnitee or not. At Closing, each party will provide the other party with a release of broker’s or appraiser’s liens from all brokers or appraisers for which each party was responsible.

K.3. Issuance of Title Policy. Seller will cause [Title Company/Escrow Agent] to issue the Title Policy, if required, to Buyer as soon as practicable after Closing.

L.1. Seller's Default; Remedies before Closing. If Seller fails to perform any of its obligations under this contract, or if any of Seller’s representations are not true and correct as of the Effective Date or on the Closing Date or any of Seller’s warranties have been breached (“Seller’s Default”), Buyer may elect either of the following as its sole and exclusive remedy before Closing:
L.1.a. Termination; Liquidated Damages. Buyer may terminate this contract by giving notice to Seller on or before the Closing Date and Closing Time and have the Earnest Money, less the $100 as described above, returned to Buyer. If Seller's Default occurs after Buyer has incurred costs to investigate the Real Property and Groundwater Rights after the Effective Date and Buyer terminates this contract in accordance with the previous sentence, Seller will also pay to Buyer as liquidated damages the lesser of Buyer's actual out-of-pocket expenses incurred to investigate the Real Property and Groundwater Rights after the Effective Date ("Buyer's Expenses") or the amount of Buyer's Liquidated Damages, within ten days after Seller's receipt of an invoice from Buyer stating the amount of Buyer's Expenses accompanied by reasonable evidence of Buyer's Expenses.

L.1.b. Specific Performance. Unless Seller's Default relates to the untruth or incorrectness of Seller's representations for reasons not reasonably within Seller's control, Buyer may enforce specific performance of Seller's obligations under this contract, but any such action must be initiated, if at all, within ninety days after the breach or alleged breach of this contract. If title to the Groundwater Rights is awarded to Buyer, the conveyance will be subject to the matters stated in the [Title Commitment/Title Information].

L.2. Seller's Default; Remedies after Closing. If Seller's representations are not true and correct at Closing for reasons reasonably within Seller's control and Buyer does not become aware of the untruth or incorrectness until after Closing, Buyer will have all the rights and remedies available at law or in equity. If Seller fails to perform any of its obligations under this contract that survive Closing, Buyer will have all rights and remedies available at law or in equity unless otherwise provided by the Closing Documents.

L.3. Buyer's Default; Remedies before Closing. If Buyer fails to perform any of its obligations under this contract ("Buyer's Default"), Seller may elect either of the following as its sole and exclusive remedy before Closing:
L.3.a. Termination; Liquidated Damages. Seller may terminate this contract by giving notice to Buyer on or before Closing and have the Earnest Money paid to Seller. If Buyer’s Default occurs after Seller has incurred costs to perform its obligations under this contract and Seller terminates this contract in accordance with the previous sentence, Buyer will also reimburse Seller for the lesser of Seller’s actual out-of-pocket expenses incurred after the Effective Date to perform its obligations under this contract (“Seller’s Expenses”) or the amount of Seller’s Additional Liquidated Damages, within ten days after Buyer’s receipt of an invoice from Seller stating the amount of Seller’s Expenses accompanied by reasonable evidence of Seller’s Expenses.

L.3.b. Specific Performance. Seller may enforce specific performance of Buyer’s obligations under this contract. If title to the Groundwater Rights is awarded to Buyer, the conveyance will be subject to the matters stated in the [Title Commitment/Title Information].

L.4. Buyer’s Default; Remedies after Closing. If Buyer fails to perform any of its obligations under this contract that survive Closing, Seller will have all rights and remedies available at law or in equity unless otherwise provided by the Closing Documents.

L.5. Liquidated Damages. The parties agree that just compensation for the harm that would be caused by a default by either party cannot be accurately estimated or would be very difficult to accurately estimate and that the Earnest Money and the amounts provided above are reasonable forecasts of just compensation to the nondefaulting party for the harm that would be caused by a default.

L.6. Attorney’s Fees. If either party retains an attorney to enforce this contract, the party prevailing in litigation is entitled to recover reasonable attorney’s fees and court and other costs.

M.8. No Third-Party Beneficiaries. There are no third-party beneficiaries of this contract.

M.9. Severability. If a provision of this contract is unenforceable for any reason, to the extent the unenforceability does not destroy the basis of the bargain among the parties, the unenforceability does not affect any other provision of this contract, and this contract is to be construed as if the unenforceable provision is not a part of the contract.

M.10. Ambiguities Not to Be Construed against Party Who Drafted Contract. The rule of construction that ambiguities in a document will be construed against the party who drafted it will not be applied in interpreting this contract.

M.11. No Special Relationship. The parties' relationship is an ordinary commercial relationship, and the parties do not intend to create the relationship of principal and agent, partners, joint venturers, or any other special relationship.

Any deed under threat or order of condemnation, any conveyance solely between makers, and the passage of title by reason of death of a maker or by operation of law will not be construed as a sale or conveyance of the Property. [Neither the creation of a subordinate lien nor a sale thereunder will be construed as a sale or conveyance of the Property. The creation of a subordinate lien without the consent of Payee will be construed as a sale or conveyance of the Property, but any subsequent sale under a subordinate lien to which Payee has consented will not be construed as a sale or conveyance of the Property.]

B.1. Prohibition against Assumption. If all or any part of the Property is sold, transferred, or conveyed without the prior written consent of Payee, Payee may, at Payee’s sole option, declare the outstanding principal balance of the Note plus accrued interest immediately due and payable. Payee has no obligation to consent to any such sale or conveyance of the Property, and Payee is entitled to condition any consent on a change in the interest rate that will thereafter apply to the Note and any other change in the terms of the Note or Deed of Trust that Payee in Payee’s sole discretion deems appropriate. A lease for a period longer than three years, a lease with an option to purchase, or a contract for deed will be deemed to be a sale, transfer, or conveyance of the Property for purposes of this provision. Any deed under threat or order of condemnation, any conveyance solely between makers, and the passage of title by reason of death of a maker or by operation of law will not be construed as a sale or conveyance of the Property. The creation of a subordinate lien without the consent of Payee will be construed as a sale or conveyance of the Property, but any subsequent sale under a subordinate lien to which Payee has consented will not be construed as a sale or conveyance of the Property.

B.2. Cross-Default. Any act or occurrence that would constitute a default under the terms of any lien superior to the lien securing the Note will constitute a default under the Deed of Trust securing the Note.
C. Recourse Provisions. The Note and Deed of Trust are subject to the following provisions:

Select one of the following.

Full Recourse. Maker will have full recourse liability for repayment of the principal and interest of the Note and the performance of all covenants and agreements of Maker in the Deed of Trust.

Or

No Recourse. Maker will not have any recourse liability for repayment of the principal and interest of the Note or the performance of any covenants and agreements of Maker in the Deed of Trust. The sole remedy of Payee or other holder of the Note in the event of a default by Maker under the Note or Deed of Trust will be to foreclose the liens and security interests granted in the Deed of Trust, and Payee or other holder of the Note will not be entitled to any personal judgment against Maker.

If Seller’s notice is given within three days before the end of the Inspection Period, the Inspection Period will be extended for three days. After the end of the Inspection Period, Buyer may terminate this contract if Seller enters into, amends, or terminates any contract that affects the Water Rights without first obtaining Buyer’s written consent.

The condemnation will be deemed to materially affect Buyer’s Intended Use of Water Rights if [specify reason, e.g., the condemnation would result in Buyer’s not being able to divert more than [number] acre-feet of water, would have an adverse effect on quality or availability of water]. If Buyer does not terminate this contract, (a) Buyer and Seller will each have the right to appear and defend their respective interests in the Water Rights in the condemnation proceedings, (b) any award in condemnation will be assigned to Buyer to the extent necessary to compensate Buyer for the loss of or reduction in the Water Rights, and (c) if the taking occurs before Closing, the description of the Water Rights will be revised to delete the portion taken.

I.6. Memorandum of Contract; Termination of Contract; No Recording of Contract. At the request of Buyer, Seller will execute a memorandum of this contract, in a mutually acceptable form, to be recorded in the real property records of [county] County, Texas. The parties authorize [Title Company/Escrow Agent] to record the Termination of Contract as provided in section J. below. Neither Buyer nor Seller may file this contract in the real property records of any county. set forth in this contract by appropriate legal means. In such event, neither party will have any further obligation to the other, and the parties agree to sign such instruments and take such actions as are required to place the parties in the position each was in with respect to the Water Rights before entering into this contract. [Title Company/Escrow Agent] will record the Termination of Contract on receipt of Seller’s authorization to return the Earnest Money.

J.2. Disposition of Earnest Money after Other Termination

J.2.a. To Buyer. If Buyer terminates this contract in accordance with any of Buyer’s rights to terminate, then unless Seller delivers notice of Seller’s objection to [Title Company/Escrow Agent]’s release of the Earnest Money to Buyer within five days after Buyer delivers Buyer’s termination notice to Seller and [Title Company/Escrow Agent], [Title Company/Escrow Agent] is authorized, without any further authorization from Seller, to deliver the Earnest Money to Buyer. [Title Company/Escrow Agent] will record the Termination of Contract on receipt of Seller’s authorization to return the Earnest Money.

J.2.b. To Seller. If Seller terminates this contract in accordance with any of Seller’s rights to terminate, then unless Buyer delivers notice of Buyer’s objection to [Title Company/Escrow Agent]’s release of the Earnest Money to Seller within five days after Seller delivers Seller’s termination notice to Buyer and [Title Company/Escrow Agent], [Title Company/Escrow Agent] is authorized, without any further authorization from Buyer, to pay and deliver the Earnest Money to Seller. [Title Company/Escrow Agent] will record the Termination of Contract on receipt of Buyer’s authorization to pay the Earnest Money.

J.3. Duties after Termination. If this contract is terminated, Buyer will promptly return to Seller all documents relating to the Water Rights that Seller has delivered to Buyer and all copies that Buyer has made of the documents. After return of the documents and copies, neither party will have further duties or obligations to the other under this contract, except for those obligations that cannot be or were not performed before termination of this contract.

L.1. Seller’s Default. If Seller fails to perform any of its obligations under this contract, or if any of Seller’s representations is not true and correct as of the Effective Date or on the Final Closing (“Seller’s Default”), Buyer may elect either of the following as its sole and exclusive remedy:

L.1.a. Termination; Liquidated Damages. Buyer may terminate this contract by giving notice to Seller on or before the Final Closing and have the Earnest Money, less the Independent Consideration as described above, returned to Buyer. Unless Seller’s Default relates to the untruth or incorrectness of Seller’s representations for reasons not reasonably within Seller’s control, if Seller’s Default occurs after Buyer has incurred costs to investigate the Water Rights after the Effective Date and Buyer terminates this contract in accordance with the previous sentence, Seller will also pay to Buyer as liquidated damages the lesser of Buyer’s actual out-of-pocket expenses incurred to investigate the Water Rights after the Effective Date (“Buyer’s Expenses”) or the amount of Buyer’s Liquidated Damages, within ten days after Seller’s receipt of an invoice from Buyer stating the amount of Buyer’s Expenses accompanied by reasonable evidence of Buyer’s Expenses.
L.1.b. Specific Performance. Unless Seller's Default relates to (i) the untruth or incorrectness of Seller's representations for reasons not reasonably within Seller's control, (ii) a defect in Seller’s title to the Water Rights, or (iii) the failure of the TCEQ or other water rights authority to approve the transfer of the Water Rights (unless such failure is due to the acts of Seller), Buyer may enforce specific performance of Seller’s obligations under this contract, but any such action must be initiated, if at all, within ninety days after the breach or alleged breach of this contract. If title to the Water Rights is awarded to Buyer, the conveyance will be subject to the matters stated in any Title Commitment.

L.2. Buyer's Default. If Buyer fails to perform any of its obligations under this contract ("Buyer’s Default"), Seller may terminate this contract by giving notice to Buyer on or before the Final Closing and have the Earnest Money paid to Seller. If Buyer’s Default occurs after Seller has incurred costs to perform its obligations under this contract and Seller terminates this contract in accordance with the previous sentence, Buyer will also reimburse Seller for the lesser of Seller’s actual out-of-pocket expenses incurred to perform its obligations under this contract ("Seller’s Expenses") or the amount of Seller’s Additional Liquidated Damages, within ten days after Buyer’s receipt of an invoice from Seller stating the amount of Seller’s Expenses accompanied by reasonable evidence of Seller’s Expenses. The foregoing constitute Seller’s sole and exclusive remedies for a default by Buyer before closing.

L.3. Liquidated Damages. The parties agree that just compensation for the harm that would be caused by a default by either party cannot be accurately estimated or would be very difficult to accurately estimate and that the Earnest Money and the amounts provided above are reasonable forecasts of just compensation to the nondefaulting party for the harm that would be caused by a default.
L.4. Attorney's Fees. If either party retains an attorney to enforce this contract, the party prevailing in litigation is entitled to recover reasonable attorney’s fees and court and other costs.

M.10.  Ambiguities Not to Be Construed against Party Who Drafted Contract.  The rule of construction that ambiguities in a document will be construed against the party who drafted it will not be applied in interpreting this contract.

M.11.  No Special Relationship.  The parties' relationship is an ordinary commercial relationship, and they do not intend to create the relationship of principal and agent, partnership, joint venture, or any other special relationship.

M.12.  Counterparts.  If this contract is executed in multiple counterparts, all counterparts taken together constitute this contract. Copies of signatures to this contract are effective as original signatures.

M.13.  Confidentiality.  The parties will keep confidential this contract, this transaction, and all information learned in the course of this transaction, except to the extent disclosure is required by law or court order or to enable third parties to advise or assist Buyer to investigate the Water Rights or either party to close this transaction. Remedies for violations of this provision are limited to injunctions, and no damages or rescission may be sought or recovered as a result of any such violations.

Seller Financing Addendum

A. Promissory Note. The promissory note ("Note") will be payable by Buyer ("Maker") to the order of Seller ("Payee") at the place designated by Payee. The Note may be prepaid in whole or in part at any time without penalty, premium, or restriction of any kind. Any prepayments are to be applied to the payment of the installments of principal last maturing, and interest will immediately cease on the prepaid principal. The lien securing payment of the Note will be inferior to any lien securing any superior note described in the contract. The Note will be payable as follows:

Select one of the following.

In one payment due [number] days after the date of the Note with interest payable [at maturity/monthly/quarterly/annually].

Or

In [number] installments of $[amount] each [including interest/plus interest] beginning [number] days after the date of the Note and continuing at [monthly/quarterly/annual] intervals thereafter until [date], when the entire balance of the Note will be due and payable.

Or

Interest only in [number] installments for the first [number] year[s] and thereafter in [number] installments of $[amount] each [including interest/plus interest] beginning [number] days after the date of the Note and continuing at [monthly/quarterly/annual] intervals thereafter until [date], when the entire balance of the Note will be due and payable.

Or

Other: [specify].
B. Deed of Trust. The deed of trust ("Deed of Trust") securing the Note will provide for the following:

B.1. Assumption without Consent. The Water Rights may be sold, transferred, or conveyed without the consent of Payee, provided any subsequent buyer or transferee assumes in writing for the benefit of Payee the obligation to pay the Note and to perform the covenants and agreements in the Deed of Trust in accordance with the terms of those instruments. No such assumption will release Maker from any liabilities or obligations arising under the Note or Deed of Trust. Neither the creation of a subordinate lien nor a sale thereunder will be construed as a sale or conveyance of the Water Rights.

Or

B.1. Assumption with Consent. The Water Rights may be sold, transferred, or conveyed provided that (a) any subsequent buyer assumes in writing for the benefit of Payee the obligation to pay the Note and to perform the covenants and agreements in the Deed of Trust in accordance with the terms of those instruments and (b) Maker or the subsequent buyer obtains prior written consent to such a sale from Payee. Consent will be based on the subsequent buyer’s credit history, with no change in interest rate or terms, and may not be unreasonably withheld, conditioned, or delayed. No such assumption will release Maker from any liabilities or obligations arising under the Note or Deed of Trust. If all or any part of the Water Rights is sold, conveyed, leased for a period longer than three years, leased with an option to purchase, otherwise sold (including by contract for deed), or otherwise transferred or conveyed without prior written consent of Payee, Payee may, at Payee’s sole option, declare the outstanding principal balance of the Note plus accrued interest immediately due and payable. Any deed under threat or order of condemnation, any conveyance solely between makers, and the passage of title by reason of death of a maker or by operation of law will not be construed as a sale or conveyance of the Water Rights. [Neither the creation of a subordinate lien nor a sale thereunder will be construed as a sale or conveyance of the Water Rights. The creation of a subordinate lien without the consent of Payee will be construed as a sale or conveyance of the Water Rights, but any subsequent sale under a subordinate lien to which Payee has consented will not be construed as a sale or conveyance of the Water Rights.]

B.1. Prohibition against Assumption. If all or any part of the Water Rights is sold, transferred, or conveyed without the prior written consent of Payee, Payee may, at Payee’s sole option, declare the outstanding principal balance of the Note plus accrued interest immediately due and payable. Payee has no obligation to consent to any such sale or conveyance of the Water Rights, and Payee is entitled to condition any consent on a change in the interest rate that will thereafter apply to the Note and any other change in the terms of the Note or Deed of Trust that Payee in Payee’s sole discretion deems appropriate. A lease for a period longer than three years, a lease with an option to purchase, or a contract for deed will be deemed to be a sale, transfer, or conveyance of the Water Rights for purposes of this provision. Any deed under threat or order of condemnation, any conveyance solely between makers, and the passage of title by reason of death of a maker or by operation of law will not be construed as a sale or conveyance of the Water Rights. The creation of a subordinate lien without the consent of Payee will be construed as a sale or conveyance of the Water Rights, but any subsequent sale under a subordinate lien to which Payee has consented will not be construed as a sale or conveyance of the Water Rights.

B.2. Cross-Default. Any act or occurrence that would constitute a default under the terms of any lien superior to the lien securing the Note will constitute a default under the Deed of Trust securing the Note.
C. Recourse Provisions. The Note and Deed of Trust are subject to the following provisions:

Full Recourse. Maker will have full recourse liability for repayment of the principal and interest of the Note and the performance of all covenants and agreements of Maker in the Deed of Trust.

No Recourse. Maker will not have any recourse liability for repayment of the principal and interest of the Note or the performance of any covenants and agreements of Maker in the Deed of Trust. The sole remedy of Payee or other holder of the Note in the event of a default by Maker under the Note or Deed of Trust will be to foreclose the liens and security interests granted in the Deed of Trust, and Payee or other holder of the Note will not be entitled to any personal judgment against Maker.

Partial Recourse. Except as set forth below, Maker will not have any recourse liability for repayment of the principal and interest of the Note or the performance of any covenants and agreements of Maker in the Deed of Trust. Except as set forth below, the sole remedy of Payee or other holder of the Note in the event of a default by Maker under the Note or Deed of Trust will be to foreclose the liens and security interests granted in the Deed of Trust, and Payee or other holder of the Note will not be entitled to any personal judgment against Maker. Maker will have full recourse liability for any loss or damage actually suffered or incurred by Payee or other holder of the Note by reason of—

1. taxes, assessments, and charges for labor, materials, or other amounts that if unpaid may create an encumbrance against the Water Rights that accrue before foreclosure;
2. all rents, issues, profits, and income derived from the Water Rights after a default occurs and not expended for debt service or operating expenses of the Water Rights before foreclosure;

3. tenant security deposits for leases of the Water Rights not forfeited by or refunded to the tenants;

4. any condemnation or insurance proceeds not paid or applied as required in the Deed of Trust;

5. damages resulting from fraud or misrepresentation by Maker;

6. damages resulting from breach of any warranty of title by Maker;

C.6. COLLATERAL PROTECTION INSURANCE NOTICE

In accordance with the provisions of section 307.052(a) of the Texas Finance Code, the Beneficiary hereby notifies the Grantor as follows:

(A) the Grantor is required to:

(i) keep the collateral insured against damage in the amount the Lender specifies;

(ii) purchase the insurance from an insurer that is authorized to do business in the state of Texas or an eligible surplus lines insurer; and

(iii) name the Lender as the person to be paid under the policy in the event of a loss;

(B) the Grantor must, if required by the Lender, deliver to the Lender a copy of the policy and proof of the payment of premiums; and

(C) if the Grantor fails to meet any requirement listed in Paragraph (A) or (B), the Lender may obtain collateral protection insurance on behalf of the Grantor at the Grantor's expense.

C.7. If there is a default on the Obligation or if Grantor fails to perform any of Grantor's obligations and the default continues after any required notice of the default and the time allowed to cure, Lender may—
a. declare the unpaid principal balance and earned interest on the Obligation immediately due;

b. direct Trustee to foreclose this lien, in which case Lender or Lender’s agent will cause notice of the foreclosure sale to be given as provided by the Texas Property Code as then in effect; and

c. purchase the Property at any foreclosure sale by offering the highest bid and then have the bid credited on the Obligation.

C.8. Lender may remedy any default without waiving it and may waive any default without waiving any prior or subsequent default.

C.9. Grantor authorizes Lender to file financing statements under the Uniform Commercial Code describing the Property. This deed of trust constitutes a fixture filing as to the Property.

D. Trustee’s Rights and Duties

If directed by Lender to foreclose this lien, Trustee will—

D.1. either personally or by agent give notice of the foreclosure sale as required by the Texas Property Code as then in effect,

D.2. sell and convey all or part of the Property “AS IS” to the highest bidder for cash with a general warranty binding Grantor, subject to the Prior Lien and to the Other Exceptions to Conveyance and Warranty and without representation or warranty, express or implied, by Trustee;

D.3. from the proceeds of the sale, pay, in this order—

a. expenses of foreclosure, including a reasonable commission to Trustee;
b. to Lender, the full amount of principal, interest, attorney’s fees, and other charges due and unpaid, including all attorney’s fees and expenses attendant to (i) any proceedings before any applicable Water Authority to seek the approval of that Water Authority for the necessary changes in ownership, diversion point, place of use, and/or purpose of use of the Water Rights and (ii) the conveyance of the Water Rights;

c. any amounts required by law to be paid before payment to Grantor, and

d. to Grantor, any balance, and

D.4. be indemnified, held harmless, and defended by Lender against all costs, expenses, and liabilities incurred by Trustee for acting in the execution or enforcement of the trust created by this deed of trust, which includes all court and other costs, including attorney’s fees, incurred by Trustee in defense of any action or proceeding taken against Trustee in that capacity.

E. Grantor’s Authorization

Grantor agrees that Lender is authorized, but is not obligated, to perform one or more of the following:

E.1. To sever the Property, including the Water Rights, into separate groups or parcels [include if applicable: , to sever the Water Rights from the [Appurtenant Land/Surface Estate/easements]], and to foreclose or convey the Property in lieu of foreclosure in one or more separate or combined transactions.

E.2. To seek the approval of the Water Authority for a change in ownership, diversion point, place of use, or purpose of use of the Water Rights, and to transfer any existing unused water allotments that apply or pertain to the Water Rights in connection with a foreclosure or conveyance in lieu of foreclosure.
E.3. To file any application, institute any proceedings, and to perform such other acts or actions on behalf of Grantor, and in Grantor’s name, as Lender may determine to be necessary to protect or preserve the Property, including the value of the Water Rights and the rights provided by the Permits/Certificates and Grantor’s or Lender’s interest therein. Grantor hereby appoints Lender as Grantor’s attorney-in-fact, to perform the acts set forth above. This appointment as attorney-in-fact is coupled with an interest, is irrevocable, and shall survive Grantor’s disability, foreclosure of this deed of trust, and conveyance of the Property in lieu of foreclosure.

F. General Provisions

F.1. If any of the Property is sold under this deed of trust, Grantor must immediately surrender possession to the purchaser. If Grantor does not, Grantor will be a tenant at sufferance of the purchaser, subject to an action for forcible detainer.

F.2. Recitals in any trustee’s deed conveying the Property will be presumed to be true.

F.3. Proceeding under this deed of trust, filing suit for foreclosure, or pursuing any other remedy will not constitute an election of remedies.

F.4. This lien will remain superior to liens later created even if the time of payment of all or part of the Obligation is extended or part of the Property is released.

F.5. If any portion of the Obligation cannot be lawfully secured by this deed of trust, payments will be applied first to discharge that portion.
F.6. Grantor assigns to Lender all amounts payable to or received by Grantor from condemnation of all or part of the Property, from private sale in lieu of condemnation, and from damages caused by public works or construction on or near the Property. After deducting any expenses incurred, including attorney’s fees and court and other costs, Lender will either release any remaining amounts to Grantor or apply such amounts to reduce the Obligation. Lender will not be liable for failure to collect or to exercise diligence in collecting any such amounts. Grantor will immediately give Lender notice of any actual or threatened proceedings for condemnation of all or part of the Property.

F.7. Interest on the debt secured by this deed of trust will not exceed the maximum amount of nonusurious interest that may be contracted for, taken, reserved, charged, or received under law. Any interest in excess of that maximum amount will be credited on the principal of the debt or, if that has been paid, refunded. On any acceleration or required or permitted prepayment, any such excess will be canceled automatically as of the acceleration or prepayment or, if already paid, credited on the principal of the debt or, if the principal of the debt has been paid, refunded. This provision overrides any conflicting provisions in this and all other instruments concerning the debt.

F.8. In no event may this deed of trust secure payment of any debt that may not lawfully be secured by a lien on real estate or create a lien otherwise prohibited by law.

If a due-on-sale clause is desired, select one of the following.

F.9. If Grantor transfers any part of the Property without Lender’s prior written consent, Lender may declare the Obligation immediately payable and invoke any remedies provided in this deed of trust for default.

F.9. Grantor may not sell, transfer, or otherwise dispose of any Property, whether voluntarily or by operation of law, without the prior written consent of Lender. If granted, consent may be conditioned on (a) the grantee's integrity, reputation, character, creditworthiness, and management ability being satisfactory to Lender, and (b) the grantee's executing, before such sale, transfer, or other disposition, a written assumption agreement containing any terms Lender may require, such as a principal pay down on the Obligation, an increase in the rate of interest payable with respect to the Obligation, a transfer fee, or any other modification of the Note, this deed of trust, or any other instruments evidencing or securing the Obligation.

Grantor may not cause or permit any Property to be encumbered by any liens, security interests, or encumbrances other than the liens securing the Obligation and the liens securing ad valorem taxes not yet due and payable without the prior written consent of Lender. If granted, consent may be conditioned upon Grantor's executing, before granting such lien, a written modification agreement containing any terms Lender may require, such as a principal pay down on the Obligation, an increase in the rate of interest payable with respect to the Obligation, an approval fee, or any other modification of the Note, this deed of trust, or any other instruments evidencing or securing the Obligation.

Grantor may not grant any lien, security interest, or other encumbrance (a "Subordinate Instrument") covering the Property that is subordinate to the liens created by this deed of trust without the prior written consent of Lender. If granted, consent may be conditioned upon the Subordinate Instrument's containing express covenants to the effect that—

a. the Subordinate Instrument is unconditionally subordinate to this deed of trust;

b. if any action is instituted to foreclose or otherwise enforce the Subordinate Instrument, no action may be taken that would terminate any occupancy or tenancy without the prior written consent of Lender, and that consent, if granted, may be conditioned in any manner Lender determines;
c. rents, if collected by or for the holder of the Subordinate Instrument, will be applied first to the payment of the Obligation then due and to expenses incurred in the ownership, operation, and maintenance of the Property in any order Lender may determine, before being applied to any indebtedness secured by the Subordinate Instrument;

d. written notice of default under the Subordinate Instrument and written notice of the commencement of any action to foreclose or otherwise enforce the Subordinate Instrument must be given to Lender concurrently with or immediately after the occurrence of any such default or commencement; and

e. in the event of the bankruptcy of Grantor, all amounts due on or with respect to the Obligation and this deed of trust will be payable in full before any payments on the indebtedness secured by the Subordinate Instrument.

Grantor may not cause or permit any of the following events to occur without the prior written consent of Lender: if Grantor is (a) a corporation, the termination of the corporation or the sale, pledge, encumbrance, or assignment of any shares of its stock; (b) a limited liability company, the termination of the company or the sale, pledge, encumbrance, or assignment of any of its membership interests; (c) a general partnership or joint venture, the termination of the partnership or venture or the sale, pledge, encumbrance, or assignment of any of its partnership or joint venture interests, or the withdrawal from or admission into it of any general partner or joint venturer; or (d) a limited partnership, (i) the termination of the partnership, (ii) the sale, pledge, encumbrance, or assignment of any of its general partnership interests, or the withdrawal from or admission into it of any general partner, (iii) the sale, pledge, encumbrance, or assignment of a controlling portion of its limited partnership interests, or (iv) the withdrawal from or admission into it of any controlling limited partner or partners. If granted, consent may be conditioned on (a) the integrity, reputation, character, creditworthiness, and management ability of the person succeeding to the ownership interest in Grantor (or security interest in such ownership) being satisfactory to Lender; and (b) the execution, before such event, by the person succeeding to the interest of Grantor in the Property or ownership interest in Grantor (or security interest in such ownership) of a written modification or assumption agreement containing such terms as Lender may require, such as a principal pay down on the Obligation, an increase in the rate of interest payable with respect to the Obligation, a transfer fee, or any other modification of the Note, this deed of trust, or any other instruments evidencing or securing the Obligation.

F.10. When the context requires, singular nouns and pronouns include the plural.

F.11. The term Note includes all extensions, modifications, and renewals of the Note and all amounts secured by this deed of trust.

F.12. This deed of trust binds, benefits, and may be enforced by the successors in interest of all parties.

F.13. If Grantor and Borrower are not the same person, the term Grantor includes Borrower.

F.14. Grantor and each surety, endorser, and guarantor of the Obligation waive all demand for payment, presentation for payment, notice of intention to accelerate maturity, notice of acceleration of maturity, protest, and notice of protest, to the extent permitted by law.

F.15. Grantor agrees to pay reasonable attorney’s fees, trustee’s fees, and court and other costs of enforcing Lender’s rights under this deed of trust if an attorney is retained for its enforcement.
F.16. If any provision of this deed of trust is determined to be invalid or unenforceable, the validity or enforceability of any other provision will not be affected.

F.17. The term Lender includes any mortgage servicer for Lender.

F.18. Grantor represents that this deed of trust and the Note are given for the following purposes: [list specific purposes].

Include the following if applicable.

F.19. The Note is secured by this deed of trust [and a Security Agreement, and, and] [include form 8-3 vendor's lien language, if applicable]]. This deed of trust does not waive the provisions of the Security Agreement [include if applicable: and the vendor’s lien], and the liens and the rights created are cumulative. Lender may elect to foreclose under one or more liens without waiving any of the other lien(s).

E.4. Amend or convert any agreement, permit, or certificate related to the Collateral without the prior written consent of Secured Party.

F. Insurance and Risk of Loss

F.1. Debtor will insure the Collateral in accordance with Secured Party’s reasonable requirements regarding choice of carrier, risks insured against, and amount of coverage. Policies must be written in favor of Debtor, be endorsed to name Secured Party as an additional insured or as otherwise directed in writing by Secured Party, and provide that Secured Party will receive at least ten days’ notice before cancellation. Debtor must provide copies of the policies or evidence of insurance to Secured Party.

F.2. COLLATERAL PROTECTION INSURANCE NOTICE

In accordance with the provisions of section 307.052(a) of the Texas Finance Code, the Secured Party hereby notifies the Debtor as follows:
(A) the Debtor is required to:

(i) keep the collateral insured against damage in the amount the Secured Party specifies;

(ii) purchase the insurance from an insurer that is authorized to do business in the state of Texas or an eligible surplus lines insurer; and

(iii) name the Secured Party as the person to be paid under the policy in the event of a loss;

(B) the Debtor must, if required by the Secured Party, deliver to the Secured Party a copy of the policy and proof of the payment of premiums; and

(C) if the Debtor fails to meet any requirement listed in Paragraph (A) or (B), the Secured Party may obtain collateral protection insurance on behalf of the Debtor at the Debtor's expense.

F.3. Debtor assumes all risk of loss to the Collateral.

F.4. Debtor appoints Secured Party as attorney-in-fact to collect any returned unearned premiums and proceeds of any insurance on the Collateral and to endorse and deliver to Secured Party any payment from such insurance made payable to Debtor. Debtor’s appointment of Secured Party as Debtor’s agent is coupled with an interest and if Debtor is an individual will survive any disability of Debtor.

G. Default and Remedies

G.1. A default exists if—
a. Debtor, Obligor, or any secondary obligor fails to timely pay or perform any obligation or covenant in any written agreement between Secured Party and any of Debtor, Obligor, or secondary obligor;

b. any warranty, covenant, or representation in this agreement or in any other written agreement between Secured Party and any of Debtor, Obligor, or secondary obligor is materially false when made;

c. a receiver is appointed for Debtor, Obligor, any secondary obligor, or any Collateral;

d. any Collateral is assigned for the benefit of creditors;

e. a bankruptcy or insolvency proceeding is commenced by Debtor, a partnership in which Debtor is a general partner, Obligor, or any secondary obligor;

f. a bankruptcy or insolvency proceeding is commenced against Debtor, a partnership in which Debtor is a general partner, Obligor, or any secondary obligor, and the proceeding continues without dismissal for sixty days, the party against whom the proceeding is commenced admits the material allegations of the petition against it, or an order for relief is entered;

g. any of the following parties is terminated, begins to wind up its affairs, is authorized to terminate or wind up its affairs by its governing body or persons, or any event occurs or condition exists that permits the termination or winding up of the affairs of any of the following parties: Debtor, a partnership of which Debtor is a general partner; Obligor; or any secondary obligor;
h. any Collateral is impaired by loss, theft, damage, levy and execution, issuance of an official writ or order of seizure, or destruction, unless it is promptly replaced with collateral of like kind and quality or restored to its former condition; or

i. Debtor receives notice from any applicable Water Authority of the potential of an enforcement action by that Water Authority related to the Collateral, Debtor's use of the Collateral, or a violation of any rule or regulation of the Water Authority and that matter is not cured within thirty days after the notice.

G.2. If a default exists, Secured Party may—

a. demand, collect, convert, redeem, settle, compromise, receipt for, realize on, sue for, and adjust the Collateral either in Secured Party's or Debtor's name, as Secured Party desires, or take control of any proceeds of the Collateral and apply the proceeds against the Obligation;

b. take possession of any Collateral not already in Secured Party's possession, without demand or legal process, and for that purpose Debtor grants Secured Party the right to enter any premises where the Collateral may be located;

c. without taking possession, sell, lease, or otherwise dispose of the Collateral at any public or private sale in accordance with law;

   d. exercise any rights and remedies granted by law or this agreement, and

   e. cause the Collateral to be transferred to Secured Party's name with any appropriate Water Authority. Debtor appoints Secured Party as Debtor's attorney-in-fact to file any application, institute any proceedings, and perform such other acts or actions on behalf of Debtor, and in Debtor's name, as Secured Party may determine to be necessary to protect or preserve the Collateral and Lender's interest therein, and to seek the approval of that Water Authority for the necessary changes in ownership, diversion point, place of use, and/or purpose of use of the Collateral. This appointment is coupled with an interest, is irrevocable, and survives Debtor's disability or foreclosure under this security agreement.

G.3. Foreclosure of this security interest by suit does not limit Secured Party's remedies, including the right to sell the Collateral under the terms of this agreement. Secured Party may exercise all remedies at the same or different times, and no remedy is a defense to any other. Secured Party's rights and remedies include all those granted by law and those specified in this agreement. The debt is secured by a deed of trust [include if applicable: and [include form 8-3 vendor's lien language]]. This security agreement does not waive the provisions of the deed of trust [include if applicable: and the vendor's lien], and the liens and the rights created are cumulative. Secured Party may elect to foreclose under one or more liens without waiving any of the other lien(s).

G.4. Secured Party's delay in exercising, partial exercise of, or failure to exercise any of its remedies or rights does not waive Secured Party's rights to subsequently exercise those remedies or rights. Secured Party's waiver of any default does not waive any other default by Debtor. Secured Party's waiver of any right in this agreement or of any default is binding only if it is in writing. Secured Party may remedy any default without waiving it.

G.5. Secured Party has no obligation to clean or otherwise prepare the Collateral for sale.

G.6. Secured Party has no obligation to satisfy the Obligation by attempting to collect the Obligation from any other person liable for it. Secured Party may release, modify, or waive any collateral provided by any other person to secure any of the Obligation. If Secured Party attempts to collect the Obligation from any other person liable for it or releases, modifies, or waives any collateral provided by any other person, that will not affect Secured Party’s rights against Debtor. Debtor waives any right Debtor may have to require Secured Party to pursue any third person for any of the Obligation.

G.7. If Secured Party must comply with any applicable state or federal law requirements in connection with a disposition of the Collateral, such compliance will not be considered to adversely affect the commercial reasonableness of a sale of the Collateral.

G.8. Secured Party may sell the Collateral without giving any warranties as to the Collateral. Secured Party may specifically disclaim any warranties of title or the like. This procedure will not be considered to adversely affect the commercial reasonableness of a sale of the Collateral.

G.9. If Secured Party sells any of the Collateral on credit, Debtor will be credited only with payments actually made by the purchaser and received by Secured Party for application to the indebtedness of the purchaser. If the purchaser fails to pay for the Collateral, Secured Party may resell the Collateral and Debtor will be credited with the proceeds of the sale.

G.10. If Secured Party purchases any of the Collateral being sold, Secured Party may pay for the Collateral by crediting the purchase price against the Obligation.

G.11. Secured Party has no obligation to marshal any assets in favor of Debtor or against or in payment of the Note, any of the Other Obligation[s], or any other obligation owed to Secured Party by Debtor or any other person.
G.12. If the Collateral is sold after default, recitals in the bill of sale or transfer will be prima facie evidence of their truth and all prerequisites to the sale specified by this agreement and by law will be presumed satisfied.

H. General

H.1. Secured Party may at any time—

a. take control of proceeds of insurance on the Collateral and reduce any part of the Obligation accordingly or permit Debtor to use the funds to repair or replace the Collateral and

b. purchase single-interest insurance coverage that will protect only Secured Party if Debtor fails to maintain insurance, and premiums for the insurance will become part of the Obligation.

H.2. Notice is reasonable if it is mailed, postage prepaid, to Debtor at Debtor’s Mailing Address at least ten days before any public sale or ten days before the time when the Collateral may be otherwise disposed of without further notice to Debtor.

H.3. This security interest will attach to an after-acquired commercial tort claim only to the extent permitted by law.

H.4. This security interest will neither affect nor be affected by any other security for any of the Obligation. Neither extensions of any of the Obligation nor releases of any of the Collateral will affect the priority or validity of this security interest.

H.5. This agreement binds, benefits, and may be enforced by the successors in interest of Secured Party and will bind all persons who become bound as debtors to this agreement. Assignment of any part of the Obligation and Secured Party’s delivery of any part of the Collateral will fully discharge Secured Party from responsibility for that part of the Collateral. If such an assignment is made, Debtor will render performance under this agreement to the assignee. Debtor waives and will not assert against any assignee any claims, defenses, or setoffs that Debtor could assert against Secured Party except defenses that cannot be waived. All representations, warranties, and obligations are joint and several as to each Debtor.

H.6. This agreement may be amended only by an instrument in writing signed by Secured Party and Debtor.

H.7. The unenforceability of any provision of this agreement will not affect the enforceability or validity of any other provision.

H.8. This agreement will be construed according to Texas law, without regard to choice-of-law rules of any jurisdiction. This agreement is to be performed in [include if applicable in a consumer transaction: , and has been signed by Debtor in:] the county of Secured Party’s Mailing Address.

H.9. Interest on the Obligation secured by this agreement will not exceed the maximum amount of nonusurious interest that may be contracted for, taken, reserved, charged, or received under law. Any interest in excess of that maximum amount will be credited on the principal of the Obligation or, if that has been paid, refunded. On any acceleration or required or permitted prepayment, any such excess will be canceled automatically as of the acceleration or prepayment or, if already paid, credited on the principal of the Obligation or, if the principal of the Obligation has been paid, refunded. This provision overrides any conflicting provisions in this and all other instruments concerning the Obligation.

H.10. In no event may this agreement secure payment of any debt that may not lawfully be secured by a lien on real estate or create a lien otherwise prohibited by law.

H.11. When the context requires, singular nouns and pronouns include the plural.
H.12. Any term defined in sections 1.101 to 9.709 of the Texas Business and Commerce Code and not defined in this agreement has the meaning given to the term in the Code.

1. If Borrower defaults on the loan, Lender has the right to foreclose on its security interest in the Water Rights and to sell or acquire the Water Rights.

2. Lender’s prior written consent is required for a sale or conveyance of any interest in the Water Rights and assignment of all or any portion of the Permit[s].

3. Lender’s prior written consent is required for the issuance of [a] Permit[s] for the Water Rights and Lender must sign the application for issuance of [a] Permit[s].

4. Lender’s prior written consent is required for a modification of the Water Rights or the Permit[s] and Lender must sign the application for modification of the Water Rights or the Permit[s].

If a Release of Lender’s security interest in the Water Rights and Permit[s] does not appear in these records, then any person dealing with the Water Rights or the Permit[s] should assume that Lender still has a lien and security interest in the Water Rights and the Permit[s], even if Borrower has conveyed its interest in the Water Rights or assigned or modified the Permit[s]. You may contact Lender to determine whether the security interest has been released.

Re: Lender’s Consent Required for a Transfer, Termination, or Modification of Permit No. [number]

[Salutation]

I am the owner of the water rights described in Permit No. [number] (the “Permit”) and the holder of the Permit. I have obtained a loan from [name] (“Lender”) in the original principal amount of $[amount], which is secured by a [first-lien] deed of trust and security interest in the water rights and Permit. Under these loan documents, as long as the loan is outstanding, Lender’s consent is required for a transfer, termination, or modification of the water rights and Permit.

You are hereby directed not to authorize or approve a transfer, termination, or modification of the Permit unless the [name of water authority] has received the written consent of Lender to the transfer or modification or a copy of a written release of the lien and security interest. The consent may be evidenced by the signature of Lender on the application for transfer, termination, or modification submitted to you or by separate written authorization signed by Lender. Alternatively, no consent will be required if you receive a copy of a release or partial release of the lien and security interest in the water rights and Permit signed by Lender.

Questions regarding this matter should be directed to Lender at the following address:

Risk Allocation: Indemnity, Waiver, and Insurance

§ 17.1 Risk Allocation Methods and Definitions

Indemnity: An indemnity is a promise to safeguard and hold another party harmless against a liability. An indemnity creates a potential cause of action for the indemnitee against the indemnitor. Dresser Industries, Inc. v. Page Petroleum, Inc., 853 S.W.2d 505, 508 (Tex. 1993).

Waiver: A waiver is an agreement not to hold another party responsible for a liability. A waiver operates to bar any right of action on the released matter. Hart v. Traders & General Insurance Co., 189 S.W.2d 493, 494 (Tex. 1945). Waivers are sometimes referred to as "releases."

Insurance: Insurance is a contract under which a company in the business of insuring against losses undertakes for a specified period of time to defend a party against, and compensate the party for, loss arising from a specified risk in consideration for the payment of a premium by the insured party.

Transfers of Risk: One strategy employed by a party in a transaction to minimize exposure to losses is to transfer identified risks to one or more of the following parties:

1. the party on the other side of the transaction through the use of contractual indemnities and waivers (and if the damages or injuries are of the type covered by the indemnitor’s commercial general liability insurance policy and the indemnity is an insured contract, as the term is defined in the indemnitor’s commercial general liability insurance policy, the risks may also be transferred to the general liability carrier of the indemnitor to the extent of coverage);
2. a third party through a guaranty of payment or performance;
3. an insurance company or corporate surety by purchasing insurance or bonds (provided the risks are insurable or bondable); or
4. an insurance company or corporate surety by becoming a loss payee, additional insured, or beneficiary, as applicable, under an insurance policy or a bond purchased by another party (provided the risks are insurable or bondable).

§ 17.2 Indemnities and Waivers

§ 17.2:1 Types of Indemnities and Waivers

Insurance professionals sometimes describe indemnities as being “limited,” “intermediate,” or “broad.”

1. A limited indemnity clause imposes liability on the indemnitor only to the extent of the indemnitor’s fault or negligence and is the most favorable type of indemnity clause for an indemnitor.
2. Under an intermediate indemnity clause, the indemnitor assumes all liability except for the sole negligence of the indemnitee.
3. A broad-form indemnity clause imposes the entire risk of loss on the indemnitor, including the sole negligence of the indemnitee, and is the most favorable type of indemnity clause for an indemnitee.

§ 17.2:2 Drafting Considerations for Indemnities and Waivers

1. Does the party giving the indemnity or waiver have the authority or capacity to enter into the indemnity or waiver? (See section 17.2:3 below)

2. What is the creditworthiness of the indemnitor? Is a guaranty, a surety bond, or insurance necessary?

3. Should persons other than the contracting parties (for example, shareholders, directors, officers, employees, contractors, or subcontractors) benefit from the indemnity or waiver?

4. Will liabilities arising out of the acts or omissions of persons other than the party giving the indemnity or waiver (for example, employees, agents, and contractors) be subject to the indemnity or waiver?

5. Is the recovery against the party giving the indemnity or waiver limited as to amount, ability to seek a deficiency judgment, or source of funds to pay damages?

6. What risks are covered by the indemnity or waiver?

7. Is the indemnity or waiver consistent with insurance coverages carried by the parties, both as to amounts and risks insured? To what degree are the indemnified risks covered by the indemnitee’s available insurance? To what degree is the amount of indemnified risk covered by the indemnitee’s available insurance?

8. Is the obligation to defend and the entire cost of defense included in the indemnity? If so, will the beneficiary of the indemnity be entitled to separate counsel of its choosing?

9. Are there any types of damages (for example, punitive or consequential) that are excluded?

10. Are there any limitations as to the time period the indemnity or waiver will be in effect or the time period for making a claim under the indemnity or waiver?

11. Do any anti-indemnity statutes apply? (See section 17.2:4 below)

12. Is compliance with the fair notice doctrine necessary? (See section 17.2:5 below)

§ 17.2:3 Indemnities by Cities and Counties Prohibited

The Texas Constitution states that no debt for any purpose may be incurred by any city or county unless provision is made at the time of creating the debt for levying and collecting a sufficient tax to repay the debt. See Tex. Const. art. XI, §§ 5, 7. Because an indemnity is by its nature uncertain as to the timing and amount of the liability that could be incurred, an indemnity by a city or county is invalid. See T. & N.O.R.R. Co. v. Galveston County, 169 S.W.2d 713 (Tex. 1943).

With some exceptions, Texas Insurance Code chapter 151 prohibits broad-form and intermediate indemnities in construction contracts and requirements in a construction contract for insurance policies or endorsements that cover broad-form or intermediate indemnities. Under Tex. Ins. Code § 151.102, an indemnity in a construction contract, or in an agreement collateral to or affecting a construction contract, is void and unenforceable to the extent that it requires an indemnitor to indemnify a party, including a third party, against a claim caused by the negligence or fault, violation of a law, or breach of contract of the indemnitee, its agent or employee, or any third party under the control or supervision of the indemnitee, other than the indemnitee or its agent, employee, or subcontractor of any tier. Under Tex. Ins. Code § 151.104, a provision in a construction contract that requires the purchase of additional insured coverage or any coverage endorsement or provision within an insurance policy providing additional insured coverage is void and unenforceable to the extent that it requires coverage that is prohibited under Tex. Ins. Code § 151.102.

The definition of a “construction contract” contained in Tex. Ins. Code § 151.001(5) is extremely broad, including any “contract, subcontract, or agreement . . . made by an owner . . . for the design, construction, alteration, renovation, remodeling, repair, or maintenance of . . . a building, structure, appurtenance, or other improvement to or on . . . real property.” Whether the definition covers a lease that contemplates leasehold improvements or contains provisions regarding repairs, maintenance, or alterations is, at best, unclear.

Among the exceptions under Insurance Code chapter 151 are the following:

1. There is a broad exception for any provision in a construction contract that requires a party to indemnify, hold harmless, or defend another party to the construction contract or a third party against a claim for the bodily injury or death of an employee of the indemnitee, its agent, or its subcontractor of any tier (that is, so-called third-party-over actions). Tex. Ins. Code § 151.103.

2. Indemnity provisions contained in loan and financing documents other than construction contracts to which the contractor and owner’s lender are parties. Tex. Ins. Code § 151.105(3).

3. An indemnity provision in a construction contract, or in an agreement collateral to or affecting a construction contract, pertaining to a single family house, townhouse, duplex, or directly related land development, or to a public works project of a municipality. Tex. Ins. Code § 151.105(10).

Texas law also prohibits certain indemnities by a contractor with respect to an architect’s negligence and certain indemnities by an architect with respect to an owner’s negligence. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 130.002.

§ 17.2:5 Fair Notice Doctrine

Even if no anti-indemnity statute applies, when an indemnity, release, or waiver provision seeks to shift the risk of one party’s future negligence or other fault to the other party, Texas imposes a fair notice requirement before enforcing that agreement. Dresser Industries, Inc. v. Page Petroleum, Inc., 853 S.W.2d 505, 508 (Tex. 1993). The fair notice requirements are set out as the express negligence doctrine and the conspicuousness requirement. Storage & Processors, Inc. v. Reyes, 134 S.W.3d 190, 192 (Tex. 2004). The fair notice requirement is a rule of contract interpretation and is therefore determinable as a matter of law. Fisk Electric Co. v. Constructors & Associates, 888 S.W.2d 813, 814 (Tex. 1994).

Express Negligence Rule: If the parties to a contract want to indemnify one of the parties against its own negligence, the parties must express their intent in specific terms within the four corners of the contract. Ethyl Corp. v. Daniel Construction Co., 725 S.W.2d 705, 707–08 (Tex. 1987). This same rule applies to releases. Dresser Industries, Inc., 853 S.W.2d 505. There is no specific required language to use to comply with the express negligence doctrine in Texas, other than use of the terms negligence or fault, but a good example to follow states: “TENANT WILL RELEASE, DEFEND, AND INDEMNIFY LANDLORD [AND ANY OTHER INDEMNITEES] FROM ANY CLAIM OR LOSS EVEN THOUGH CAUSED IN WHOLE OR IN PART BY THE NEGLIGENCE (WHETHER SOLE, JOINT, OR CONCURRENT), STRICT LIABILITY, OR OTHER LEGAL FAULT OF LANDLORD [OR ANY OTHER INDEM-NITEES].” Whether a release or indemnity for gross negligence is enforceable is unclear, but any release or indemnity intended to apply to gross negligence may need to specifically mention gross negligence to meet the express negligence test. Van Voris v. Team Chop Shop, LLC, 402 S.W.3d 915 (Tex. App.—Dallas 2013, no pet.).

Conspicuousness Rule: The indemnity, release, or waiver provision indemnifying or releasing a party from its own negligence must be conspicuous (for example, a separate indemnity and waiver provision in contrasting, capitalized, or colored type with a clear and informative heading). Dresser Industries, Inc., 853 S.W.2d at 510–11.

Extensions of Fair Notice Doctrine: The fair notice doctrine has also been held to apply to indemnities or waivers—for strict liability (Houston Lighting & Power Co. v. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway Co., 890 S.W.2d 455, 459 (Tex. 1994)) and of a third party by a subscribing employer notwithstanding the exclusive recovery (or one action) rule under the Workers’ Compensation Act (Enserch Corp. v. Parker, 794 S.W.2d 2, 9 (Tex. 1990)).

§ 17.3 Overview of Insurance Policies

§ 17.3:1 Categories of Insurance

Property Policies: Property insurance is “first party” insurance that compensates the named insured for property that has been lost, damaged, or destroyed. Examples of property insurance policies are commercial property, builder’s risk, terrorism, and business income insurance. (See section 17.4 below.)

Liability Policies: Liability insurance is “third party” insurance that compensates a third party injured by the actions or omissions of an insured. Examples of liability insurance are commercial general, business auto, workers’ compensation, liquor liability, and pollution insurance. (See section 17.5 below.)

Package Coverage Policies: Package coverage policies cover both property risks and liability risks. An example of a package coverage insurance policy is homeowner’s insurance. (See section 17.4:4 below.)

§ 17.3:2 Lines of Insurance

Personal lines of insurance are for individuals and families—for example, homeowner’s insurance and renter’s insurance. Commercial lines of insurance cover businesses—for example, commercial property insurance, commercial general liability insurance, and business owner’s policies.

§ 17.3:3 Policy Forms

Insurance Services Office, Inc., commonly known in the insurance industry as ISO, drafts insurance forms that are used either verbatim or with modifications in all fifty states. (The National Board of Fire Underwriters, the organization to which many real estate documents still refer, merged with the American Insurance Association in 1966 and ceased to exist as a separate entity. In 1971 the American Insurance Association merged with twenty-nine other ratings agencies to create ISO.) Although ISO forms are dominant, other forms in the marketplace may be (1) “manuscripted,” that is, drafted by an insurance company (and which may be similar to or less broad than the ISO equivalent); (2) promulgated by the Texas Department of Insurance (for example, the Homeowner’s A, B, and C coverages); or (3) drafted by a competitor of ISO (for example, the American Association of Insurance Services).
Another set of property insurance forms, known as inland marine forms or floaters, evolved to insure property being transported by canal barges and later railroads and trucks. Today, inland marine is used primarily for “property which is mobile by nature and for which there is no fixed situs; . . . instruments of communication or transportation such as bridges, tunnels, piers or television antennas” (State of New York Insurance Department, Circular Letter No. 22 (2000), August 11, 2000). In addition, inland marine forms are used in the construction area and for specialized coverages such as jewelry and computer data. Inland marine forms are generally manuscripted.

§ 17.4:1  Terminology and Structure

Commercial property insurance is the property insurance form used in most commercial settings. The phrase fire and extended coverage insurance was the name of a named-peril property insurance policy that is no longer available, and the phrase casualty insurance is incorrect if used to describe property insurance. Unlike commercial liability insurance and residential insurance, there is no standard commercial property policy form. Each commercial property insurer has its own policy form. To some extent, commercial property insurers may employ property insurance policy language provided by ISO.

An ISO commercial property insurance policy is not a single form. Rather, an ISO commercial property insurance policy is made up of six different forms:

1. Common policy conditions (ISO Form IL 00 17)—describes the conditions applicable to all insurance policies.
2. Commercial property conditions (ISO Form CP 10 90)—describes the conditions applicable only to commercial property policies.
3. ISO Form CP 00 10, entitled “Building and Personal Property Coverage Form”—describes the property being covered.
4. Declarations and schedules provide specifics such as the name of the insured, location of property, and coverage amounts.
5. A causes of loss form (ISO Forms CP 10 10, CP 10 20, or CP 10 30)—determines whether the policy will be a named peril policy or an all risks policy (see section 17.4:2 below).
6. Any necessary coverage forms or endorsements describing additional property covered, additional limits, and optional coverages (see sections 17.4:3 and 17.4:5 below).

As a general rule, commercial property insurance is used to cover completed buildings, and builder’s risk insurance is used to cover buildings under construction or, in some cases, under extensive renovation. No bright line exists as to when builder’s risk insurance should be used rather than commercial property insurance. Builder’s risk policies have several important advantages over commercial property policies with respect to coverage for buildings under construction, such as coverage for property stored offsite and property in transit.

§ 17.4:2  Forms of Commercial Property Policies

Historically, property insurance was written on either a named-peril basis, which insured against property damage arising from causes of loss expressly enumerated in the policy, or an all-risks basis, which insured against property damage arising from all causes of loss except those that were expressly excluded by the policy. The insurance industry has now abandoned use of the words risk and peril and instead uses the term cause of loss.

Basic and Broad (Named-Peril) Forms: Two named-peril commercial property insurance policies are currently available: causes of loss—basic form and causes of loss—broad form. The basic form (ISO Form CP 10 10) covers the following causes of loss: fire, lightning, explosion, windstorm or hail, smoke, aircraft or vehicle collision, riot or civil commotion, vandalism, sprinkler leakage, sinkhole collapse, and volcanic action. The broad form (ISO Form CP 10 20) covers all the causes of loss covered by the basic form plus falling objects; weight of snow, ice, or sleet; water damage from leaking appliances; and collapse from specified causes.

Special (All-Risks) Form: The correct terminology for commercial property insurance currently written on an all-risks basis is causes of loss—special form (ISO Form CP 10 30), which was formerly known as “all-risk.”

Leased Property: The ISO commercial property policy insures a commercial tenant’s use interest in leasehold improvements and betterments. The ISO Building and Personal Property Coverage Form (ISO Form CP 00 10) states that it provides coverage for business personal property including “[y]our use interest as tenant in improvements and betterments” and defines “improvements and betterments” as “fixtures, alterations, installations or additions: (a) [m]ade a part of the building or structure you occupy but do not own; and (b) [y]ou acquired or made at your expense but cannot legally remove.” If insurance coverage is desired for building standard improvements or improvements made by a previous tenant, coverage is to be by ISO Form CP 14 01 09 17 (entitled “Scheduled Building Property Tenant’s Policy”) and ISO Form CP 14 02 09 17 (entitled “Unscheduled Building Property Tenant’s Policy”).

See “Loss Payee and Mortgagee Clauses” in section 17.4:3 below for a discussion of a commercial landlord’s interest as a loss payee by endorsement to a property policy maintained by a tenant insuring a building owned by the landlord (ISO Form CP 12 18 06 07) and section 17.6:5 for a discussion of a commercial landlord’s interest as an additional insured on a property policy maintained by a tenant insuring the building (ISO Form CP 12 19 06 07).

§ 17.4:3 Specialized Coverages

Separate property policies or endorsements are available to fill the gaps created under standard forms of commercial property insurance policies.

Equipment Breakdown: Equipment breakdown (formerly boiler and machinery) coverage (for example, ISO Endorsement Form BM 00 20) insures against property losses caused by the explosion of pressure vessels and sudden and accidental, mechanical or electrical breakdown of covered machinery. Coverage for the resulting loss of business income may be added.

Builder’s Risk: Because of the higher likelihood of property loss during construction, a specialized form of property insurance called builder’s risk is used during the construction of a building in lieu of commercial property insurance.

Although ISO has promulgated a builder’s risk form (ISO Form CP 00 20), most builder’s risk policies are written on manuscripted inland marine forms. ISO builder’s risk insurance forms are available on a basic, broad, or special causes of loss basis, but the inland marine forms that are more commonly used may, depending on the insurer, have broader or narrower coverage than their ISO counterparts. Among the causes of loss that may not be covered by a builder’s risk policy without endorsement are collapse resulting from design error and damage resulting from freezing, flood, and earthquake.
Builder’s risk property insurance is available in nonreporting (commonly known as “completed value”) or reporting forms. Under a completed value form, coverage is automatically increased as construction occurs. A reporting form will not cover the increased value until the increase is reported to the insurance carrier, usually on a monthly basis.

A builder’s risk policy can cover most of the property used in or incidental to the construction even if the property is stored off-site or in transit, but may not cover the following unless the policy is specifically endorsed: landscaping, temporary structures such as scaffolding, construction trailers, site work, underground structures such as footings, equipment used to construct the building, and business income.

Many extensions of coverage are available under builder’s risk insurance policies. Because builder’s risk policies forms are generally manuscripted, these extensions may be included within the basic coverage of some policies but must be added by endorsement to other policies. Most extensions or endorsements have a “sublimit,” which is less than the full policy limit but the maximum amount recoverable with respect to the extension or endorsement. The following are some of the extensions of coverage or endorsements that are available for builder’s risk policies:

1. Contract penalties—covers contractual penalties to the insured’s customers incurred as a result of a delay of completion date.
2. Collapse—covers damage or loss from collapse of the structure caused by certain causes of loss, generally including defective materials and faulty design, plans, or workmanship (but not the cost of correcting the defective workmanship or faultily designed work).
3. Debris removal—covers the cost of removing debris resulting from a covered cause of loss in excess of the limit of proceeds for debris removal contained in basic coverage. Many builder’s risk policies cover this risk but with a sublimit. In such cases, the sublimit can be increased by endorsement.
4. Expediting expense—covers additional expenses necessarily incurred to complete construction on schedule after the occurrence of a covered cause of loss.
5. Pollutant cleanup—covers the cost of removing pollutants released by a covered cause of loss.
6. Preservation of property—covers the cost of removing covered property from the premises to preserve the property from loss after a covered cause of loss has occurred.
7. Soft costs (sometimes called “extra expenses”)—covers necessary expenses incurred as a result of a delay of completion date, such as interest on the construction loan, real estate taxes, architectural and engineering supervisory costs, costs to renegotiate leases, brokerage commissions, and legal and accounting costs (caveat: coverage varies from policy to policy).
8. Testing—covers damage or loss from testing of boilers or other pressure vessels, air-conditioning systems, and mechanical or electrical machines or devices.
9. Loss of rents—covers the loss of rents caused by the delay of completion.

Because builder’s risk property policies typically cease coverage if any portion of the structure is occupied for purposes other than testing, a phased project may require an endorsement to permit a certain level of occupancy.

Business Income: Business income coverage (ISO Endorsement Form CP 00 32) insures against loss of earnings resulting from the insured’s inability to operate a business after the occurrence of a covered cause of loss. This type of coverage was formerly known as “business interruption” insurance. Business income and extra expense coverage (ISO Endorsement Form also insure against extraordinary additional expenses resulting from the insured’s inability to operate a business after the occurrence of a covered cause of loss. If desired, business extra expense coverage can be obtained by itself.

Rental value coverage insures against loss of rents (including abatement of rentals under leases) resulting from the insured’s inability to operate a building after the occurrence of a covered cause of loss. Rental value coverage is available under both business income endorsement forms (ISO Forms CP 00 30 and CP 00 32) but is not included unless specified in the declaration to the policy.

All of the ISO commercial property causes of loss forms (ISO Forms CP 10 10, CP 10 20, and CP 10 30) exclude coverage for business income loss caused by "the failure of power or other utility services . . . if the failure occurs outside of a covered building." ISO Form CP 15 45, entitled "Off-Premises Services—Time Element," is an endorsement to a business income coverage form (with or without extra expense coverage) that provides coverage for the loss of income arising from off-premises utility service disruption.

ISO Form CP 15 08, entitled “Business Income from Dependent Properties—Broad Form,” is an endorsement to a business income coverage form (with or without extra expense coverage) that provides coverage for loss of income (and extra expenses incurred, if applicable) because of damage to another company’s facility. For example, a San Antonio–based automobile manufacturer depends on parts from an automobile parts facility located in Beaumont. If the Beaumont plant were damaged and rendered inoperable by a hurricane, the San Antonio manufacturer would incur losses even though the automobile manufacturer’s plant is unharmed.

Crime (or Fidelity): This coverage protects the insured against loss of property (generally money, securities, and inventory) resulting from the types of crime enumerated in the policy. Among the crimes for which crime insurance is available are computer fraud, social engineering fraud, employee dishonesty, embezzlement, extortion, forgery, premises theft, premises burglary, safe burglary, wire transfer fraud, counterfeiting, and off-premises robbery.

Earth Movement or Earthquake: Earth movement or earthquake coverage insures against property losses caused by earth movement, including earthquake shocks and volcanic eruptions. Earth movement coverage is broader than earthquake coverage. Earthquake coverage, for instance, does not cover mudslides.

Flood: Flood coverage insures against property losses caused by rising waters, backup of storm sewers, and storm surges. Flood coverage is necessary because all three of the ISO commercial property insurance causes of loss forms (ISO Forms CP 10 10, CP 10 20, and CP 10 30) expressly exclude coverage for floods and many other types of water damage.

The National Flood Insurance Act of 1968 (42 U.S.C. §§ 4001–4131) (NFIP) created a program to make available flood insurance for property owners in flood-prone areas. Regulations implementing the NFIP are found at 44 C.F.R. pts. 59–78. See also Tex. Loc. Gov’t Code § 240.901 (participation in federal flood insurance program); Tex. Water Code §§ 16.311–.324 (Flood Control and Insurance Act). The Flood Disaster Protection Act of 1973 mandated that federally regulated lending institutions could not "make, increase, extend, or renew any loan secured by improved real estate or a mobile home located or to be located in an area that has been identified . . . as an area having special flood hazards and in which flood insurance has been made available" under the NFIP without flood insurance in an amount equal to the lesser of the loan amount or the available coverage. 42 U.S.C. § 4012a(b)(1).

NFIP insurance has several drawbacks:
1. The maximum coverage limits are $500,000 for a building and $500,000 for contents.

2. The policy pays only direct physical loss by or from flood and does not pay indirect damages such as loss of income.

3. In most cases, NFIP insurance pays only actual cash value, not replacement cost.

4. Coverage is not available without a thirty-day wait, except when obtaining new financing.

The NFIP must be extended by Congress from time to time. As of the publication date of this supplement, the NFIP has been extended until September 30, 2020.

See section 17.4:5 below.

Private flood insurance coverage is also available. Coverage under a commercial property policy can be expanded with ISO Endorsement Form CP 10 65. Form CP 10 65 also has several drawbacks:

1. The endorsement does not cover underground water flows or seepage.

2. The endorsement excludes coverage for flooding within a wait period of seventy-two hours after the inception date of the endorsement, damage to land (including excavations, grading, filling, or backfilling), removal of mud and earth deposited by flooding, and loss or damage caused by sewer backup or overflow unless the backup or overflow occurs within seventy-two hours after the flood recedes.

3. A commercial property policy endorsed for flood coverage usually contains a very high deductible with respect to properties located in a special flood hazard area shown on flood insurance rate maps produced by the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

4. A commercial property insurance policy endorsed for flood coverage for flooding usually contains a sublimit with respect to the amount of coverage available for flood damage (a sublimit limits the amount of coverage available to cover a specific type of loss to an amount smaller than the policy limit).

Glass: Before 2000, coverage was excluded or limited in commercial property insurance policies for damage to plate glass. Glass coverage was obtained through so-called “plate glass insurance,” issued as a separate coverage form. The exclusions and limitations were removed from ISO forms CP 10 10, CP 10 20, and CP 10 30 in 2000.

Loss Payee and Mortgagee Clauses: A loss payee is a party named in a loss payee endorsement. A loss payee clause is referred to as an open clause if the loss payee under the loss payable clause has no independent right to enforce the policy but is simply a recipient of payments when the insured becomes entitled to collect under the policy. The drawback of an open clause is that the action or inaction of the insured can defeat the right of a loss payee to collect (for example, the insured may make a misrepresentation, fail to pay premiums, or fail to report a loss timely). On the other hand, a closed clause creates a separate contract between the insurer and the loss payee or mortgagee and contains language to the effect that the act or neglect of the insured will not invalidate the policy. A closed loss payee clause is also referred to as a mortgagee clause. It provides special protections to the mortgage holder that generally include payment for covered loss that will be made to the mortgage holder, not to the insured or to the insured and the mortgagee; coverage applies for the benefit of the mortgagee even if the insured’s claim is denied because of the insured’s acts, subject to a couple of basic requirements. The mortgagee will receive written notice of policy cancellation by the insurer.

Standard mortgage holder protection for buildings or structures only (but not the business personal property) is built into the current ISO Building and Personal Property Coverage Form (ISO Form CP 00 10).
The current edition of ISO Endorsement Form CP 12 18, entitled “Loss Payable Provisions,” uses four different descriptions to describe the loss payee: “Loss Payable,” “Lender Loss Payable,” “Contract of Sale,” and “Building Owner Loss Payable.” It is critical for a mortgagee to pick the right category. If “Loss Payable” is chosen in the schedule to the endorsement, the provision becomes an open clause, and the interest of the loss payee is protected only if the named insured chooses to enforce the protection. However, if “Lender Loss Payable” is chosen in the schedule, the provision becomes a closed clause and protects a lender loss payee the same way as a mortgage holder is protected by the standard mortgagee clause in the building and personal property coverage form, with an important difference: under ISO Endorsement Form CP 12 18, the mortgagee protection applies to both the building and the business personal property associated with the building.

Form CP 12 18 may also be used by a landlord to create a “Building Owner Loss Payable” and establish privity between the landlord and the tenant’s property carrier with respect to insurance proceeds payable because of the loss of the landlord’s property.

Signs: This coverage (ISO Form CM 00 28) insures against damage to signs resulting from windstorm, vandalism, or vehicle damage.

Terrorism: Terrorism insurance protects the insured against losses arising from terrorist activities that are excluded from commercial property policies.

Until 2002, damage or loss from terrorism was not expressly excluded by ISO’s commercial property insurance policy forms. Following the attacks of September 11, 2001, ISO introduced several exclusions for losses caused by terrorism. In November 2002, the federal government enacted the Terrorism Risk Insurance Act of 2002 (TRIA) requiring all U.S. commercial property insurers to offer coverage for losses caused by international terrorism and creating a reinsurance program for this coverage with a total annual limit of $100 billion. TRIA was extended in 2005 and reauthorized in 2015, in a modified form, through December 31, 2020. In December 2019, TRIA was reauthorized through December 2027. As originally enacted, TRIA applied to violent acts causing damage in excess of $5 million in the United States (or aircraft or U.S.-flagged vessels), committed by a party acting on behalf of a foreign person or interest, and certified as terrorism by the secretary of the U.S. Treasury. The 2007 reauthorization deleted the requirement that an act of terrorism be committed by someone acting on behalf of a foreign person or interest to be certified as an act of terrorism. However, the insurer is not required under TRIA to provide terrorism coverage if the insured rejects the coverage in writing or if the insured does not pay the premium for the terrorism coverage. TRIA does not set the premiums for terrorism coverage. See 15 U.S.C. § 6701 note (Terrorism Risk Insurance Act of 2002, Pub. L. No. 107-297, 116 Stat. 2322, as amended by Terrorism Risk Insurance Extension Act of 2005, Pub. L. No. 109-144, 119 Stat. 2660, the Terrorism Risk Insurance Program Reauthorization Act of 2007, Pub. L. No. 110-160, 121 Stat. 1839, and the Terrorism Risk Insurance Program Reauthorization Act of 2015, Pub. L. No. 114-1, 129 Stat. 3). See also 31 C.F.R. pt. 50.

§ 17.4:4 Residential or Farm Property Insurance

Homeowner’s Insurance: Homeowner’s insurance is available to the owner of an owner-occupied dwelling. Homeowner’s insurance is a package coverage insurance policy covering both property claims, such as loss of or injury to the dwelling and to the insured’s personal property, and some personal liability claims. A homeowner’s insurance policy also covers some living expenses incurred as a result of temporary displacement because of damage to a dwelling. See https://www.tdi.texas.gov/pubs/consumer/cb025.html for an explanation of homeowner’s insurance coverage, enhancements, and exclusions.
Most homeowner’s policies may be written on forms generated by the Texas Department of Insurance (TDI) (HO-A, HO-B, and HO-C) or forms generated by ISO (HO 00 02, HO 00 03, and HO 00 05). There are also numerous unregulated company-specific forms. See https://www.tdi.texas.gov/orders/co020741.html for a discussion of the state-approved homeowner’s forms in Texas.

The property coverage under homeowner’s insurance policies varies as follows:

1. TDI Form HO-A and ISO Form HO 00 02—named-cause of loss basis (see section 17.4:2 above) for both the dwelling and its contents;
2. TDI Form HO-B and ISO Form HO 00 03—risk of direct physical loss basis (see section 17.4:2 above) for the dwelling and a named-peril basis for its contents, and
3. TDI Form HO-C and ISO Form HO 00 05—all-risks basis for both the dwelling and its contents.

The amount collected for loss of or injury varies as follows under the various forms:

1. TDI Form HO-A—actual cash value (see section 17.4:5 below) for both the dwelling and its contents;
2. ISO Form HO 00 05—replacement cost (see section 17.4:5 below) for both the dwelling and its contents; and
3. TDI Forms HO-B and HO-C and ISO Forms HO 00 02 and HO 00 03—replacement cost for the dwelling and actual cash value for its contents. (All four forms can be endorsed to cover replacement cost for the contents.)

Condominium Insurance: A condominium has two sets of insurance, one covering the condominium association and another covering the individual unit owners.

The condominium association’s insurance requirements are set forth in Tex. Prop. Code § 82.111. Tex. Prop. Code § 82.111(a) requires that the condominium association maintain separate commercial property and commercial general liability policies. A commonly used condominium association property coverage form, ISO Form CP 00 17, entitled “Condominium Association Coverage Form,” is nearly identical to its commercial property insurance coverage counterpart, ISO Form CP 00 10, except that the definition of business personal property is limited to the personal property owned by the association or indivisibly by all unit owners and other property for which the association is responsible under the declaration. Tex. Prop. Code § 82.111(d) also requires that the unit owners be named as insureds under the association’s policies, that the association’s insurers waive subrogation as to the unit owners, and that the association’s policies are primary to a unit owner’s policies if there is duplicate coverage.

Individual unit owners purchase the equivalent of homeowners coverage for their individual units known as “condominium unit owners” policies. Like homeowners insurance, unit owners insurance is a package coverage insurance policy covering both property claims with respect to the unit interior and the insured’s personal property and liability claims. Unit owners policies may be written on TDI forms HO-B-CON and HO-C-CON and ISO Form HO 00 06.

The property coverage under unit owners insurance policies varies as follows:

1. TDI Form HO-B-CON and ISO Form HO 00 06—named-cause of loss basis (see section 17.4:2 above) for both the unit interior and its contents (all risks coverage is available for both dwelling and contents under ISO Form HO 00 06 by endorsement), and
2. TDI Form HO-C-CON—all-risks basis for both the unit interior and its contents.
The amount collected for loss of or injury varies as follows under the various forms:

1. TDI Form HO-C-CON—replacement cost (see section 17.4:5 below) for both the dwelling and its contents, and

2. TDI Form HO-B-CON and ISO Form HO 00 06—replacement cost for the dwelling and actual cash value for its contents. (Both forms can be endorsed to cover replacement cost for the contents.)

Tenant’s Insurance: Tenant homeowner’s insurance (commonly known as tenant’s or renter’s insurance) is available to tenants of residential property. Tenant’s insurance is a package coverage insurance policy that covers the property insurance causes of loss of injury to or loss of the tenant’s personal property and the liability insurance cause of loss of bodily injury to third parties. The property portion of tenant’s insurance is available in either a named-cause of loss version called broad form or, for a higher premium, an all-risks version called comprehensive form (see section 17.4:2 above). The amount collected for property loss under tenant’s insurance is limited to actual cash value, unless the insured has purchased an endorsement increasing coverage to replacement cost (see section 17.4:5 below). The risks of injury to or loss of the dwelling, unit, or apartment are generally covered by the landlord’s property insurance policy on the dwelling, but tenant’s insurance may cover some damage to the dwelling, unit, or apartment caused by the tenant if the tenant is liable for the damage under the lease. Tenant’s insurance also covers some living expenses incurred as a result of temporary displacement from the dwelling, unit, or apartment because of damage.

Farm and Ranch Insurance: Farm owner’s (sometimes called farmowner’s) insurance is available to individuals who own and occupy property meeting the definition of a farm or ranch and who do not elect to be insured by a farm mutual insurance company (in Texas, farm mutual insurance companies cannot write liability insurance). Farm owner’s insurance is a package coverage insurance policy that covers the property insurance causes of loss of injury to or loss of farm dwellings, outbuildings, and personal property and the liability insurance causes of loss of bodily injury to third parties.

If a farmer or rancher is not an individual or is purchasing his property insurance from a farm mutual company, the farmer or rancher must purchase separate property and liability insurance policies. In a farm or ranch context, the equivalent of a commercial property insurance policy is typically called a farm and ranch insurance policy, and the equivalent of a general liability insurance policy is typically called a farm liability policy. In some situations liability insurance is provided through a commercial general liability policy properly endorsed to cover farm or ranch operations.

Farm or ranch operations can be covered by personal lines or commercial lines of insurance depending on the magnitude of the farming operation. Typically, an insurance company will set a threshold of gross income from farm or ranch activities or number of acres farmed or number of cattle grazed to differentiate between a personal line farm policy and a commercial line farm policy.

Caveat: The activities of a farm tenant may impact the size of the operation for insurance purposes. Assume, for example, a gentleman farmer (typically, a person with a country home and a few horses or other farm animals) whose level of farming or ranching activity does not rise to a commercial level insures the property in question under a homeowner’s insurance policy, a personal lines coverage. The gentleman farmer then leases out surplus acreage to a farmer whose level of activity on the leased property is attributed to the gentleman farmer for insurance purposes. When a claim is made against both the owner and tenant because of an injury arising out of the operation of the tenant, the owner may discover that he is not covered because personal lines policies exclude from coverage losses arising out of operations covered under commercial lines policies.
§ 17.4:5  Amount of Proceeds

The discussion in this section covers terminology used in commercial property and business owner’s policies. These concepts may vary under homeowner’s or farm and ranch policies.

Actual Cash Value: Actual cash value means an amount equal to the difference between the cost of replacing property with property of like kind and quality at the time of loss and the amount of physical (not book) depreciation of the property. Unless a commercial property policy is properly endorsed, the insured is entitled only to actual cash value. Actual cash value will be paid whether or not the property is replaced or restored.

Replacement Cost: Replacement cost is the cost of repairing or replacing insured property at the time of the occurrence of the loss, without reduction for loss of value through depreciation. Replacement cost will not be paid until the property is replaced or restored with property of like kind.

Agreed Value: Agreed value is an agreed valuation method that can be used with either actual cash value or replacement cost. The named insured and insurance company agree to the amount of the actual cash value or replacement cost for the insured property (less the applicable deductible) before the policy is written. Agreed value is desirable because it eliminates coinsurance. An agreed value endorsement usually requires annual agreement between the insurer and named insured.

Coinsurance: Coinsurance is a method by which an insurance company penalizes its insured for underinsuring below a minimum percentage of the replacement cost of a property at the time of loss (usually 80 percent if the policy is written for a single property and 90 percent if the policy covers more than one property). If coinsurance applies, the insurer will pay only an amount (subject to the policy limit and less any applicable deductible or self-insured retention) equal to the product obtained by multiplying the amount of the loss by a fraction having as its numerator the amount of coverage the insured actually carried and as its denominator the minimum amount of coverage the insured should have carried.

Ordinance or Law Coverage: The valuation methods discussed above focus on the cost of replacing the existing structure without consideration to changes in laws or codes. Additional coverage under the Standard Building and Personal Coverage Form (ISO Form CP 00 10) is available up to the lesser of $10,000 or 5 percent of the value of the damaged building as of the time of the loss. Larger amounts can be covered by an ordinance or law coverage endorsement (ISO Endorsement Form CP 04 05).

Debris Removal: The commercial property insurance policy limit includes debris removal costs resulting from a covered loss, but the recovery is limited to 25 percent of the sum of the paid loss plus the deductible. An additional limit of $10,000 is made available by the current edition of the ISO commercial property policy for debris removal if (1) the amount payable under the policy to reconstruct or repair plus the amount payable under the policy for debris removal exceeds the entire policy limit or (2) the cost of debris removal exceeds 25 percent of the sum of the paid loss plus deductible. Higher limits for debris removal are strongly recommended and can be purchased by adding ISO Endorsement Form CP 04 15, entitled “Debris Removal Additional Limit of Insurance.”
§ 17.5 Liability Insurance

§ 17.5:1 Claims-Made vs. Occurrence-Basis Liability Policies

Claims-Made: In theory, a claims-made liability policy covers any claim actually made during the policy term, regardless of when the injury or damage that gave rise to the claim occurred, but in reality the claims-made policy probably excludes claims arising from injuries or damages that occurred before the inception of the policy term (known as prior acts). For an additional premium, a claims-made policy can sometimes be modified to cover prior acts. Unless renewed on a similar form with retroactive coverage or with a coverage extension known as extended reporting period or tail coverage, all coverage ends when the claims-made policy expires. Defense is frequently included within the policy limits of claims-made policies and reduces the amount available to compensate an injured party for a loss. Claims-made policies are usually manuscripted.

Occurrence-Basis: An occurrence-basis liability policy covers claims for injuries or damages caused by an occurrence, but only if the injury or damage actually occurs during the policy period, regardless of when the claim is made (subject, of course, to statutes of limitation applicable to the claim). ISO Form CG 00 01 defines an occurrence as “an accident, including continuous or repeated exposure to substantially the same general harmful conditions.” Defense is provided as an additional benefit under ISO occurrence-basis commercial general liability forms and does not reduce the limits available to pay for a loss, except for the defense of indemnitees if certain conditions are not met.

§ 17.5:2 Standard Form of General Liability Policies

Comprehensive General Liability: “Comprehensive general liability insurance” is, in fact, much less comprehensive in coverage than “commercial general liability insurance,” has not been widely used since 1986, and should not be specified in real estate or other transaction documents.

Commercial General Liability: Commercial general liability insurance is the prevalent form of liability insurance in a commercial real estate context and has three coverages:

1. Coverage A—bodily injury (including death, disease, and illness) and physical injury to tangible property (including loss of use).
2. Coverage B—personal and advertising injury (including false arrest, detention or imprisonment, malicious prosecution, wrongful eviction or entry, slander, or libel, publication violating a person’s right of privacy, using another’s advertising idea, and copyright infringement).
3. Coverage C—medical payments.

Limits: The standard ISO commercial general liability policy form contains six policy limits: (1) each occurrence limit, (2) general aggregate limit, (3) products-completed operations aggregate limit, (4) personal and advertising injury limit, (5) damage to premises rented limit (formerly “fire damage limit”), and (6) medical expense limit.

A general aggregate limit is the maximum amount that a commercial liability insurance company will pay for all losses incurred during any one policy period except for bodily injury and property damage covered by the products-completed operations aggregate. ISO Form CG 25 04, entitled “Designated Location(s) General Aggregate Limit,” an endorsement to a commercial general liability policy covering multiple properties, applies the general aggregate limit separately to each location but only with respect to bodily injury, property damage, and medical expenses. ISO Form CG 25 03, entitled “Designated Construction Project(s) General Aggregate Limit,” an endorsement to a contractor’s commercial general liability policy covering multiple projects, applies the general aggregate limit separately to each project but only with respect to bodily injury, property damage, and medical expenses.

Contractual Liability: Several exclusions apply to Coverage A and Coverage B under a commercial general liability insurance policy: willful misconduct, liquor liability, workers’ compensation, employer’s liability, pollution, aircraft, auto or watercraft, mobile equipment, war, damage to property, damage to product, damage to impaired property not physically injured, recall of products, and work or property, subject to the exception for damage to premises rented. However, the exclusion most often referenced in a real estate transaction is contractual liability.

The term contractual liability in the insurance context generally refers to claims that arise out of liability for the actions of others, rather than out of the actions of an insured, that has been contractually assumed by the insured. Coverage A excludes liability assumed under contracts but has an exception to this exclusion for liability assumed in a contract or agreement that is an insured contract. The definition of “insured contract” includes most indemnities that cover the tort liability of another party; however, a contractual assumption of another person’s contractual liability is not covered under the typical definition of “insured contract.” If, for example, a contractor agrees to indemnify the owner for its potential tort liability to an injured employee, the contractor would have insurance coverage for its indemnity obligation; if, however, the contractor agreed to indemnify the owner for the owner’s contractual indemnity to the owner’s representative, the contractor’s indemnity might be enforceable but would not be covered under the contractor’s standard commercial general liability policy. In addition, the insured contract exception cannot expand the scope of the commercial general liability policy beyond the coverage provided or the limits of liability that have been purchased. If, for example, the policy excludes coverage for property damage and bodily injury caused by pollutants, an indemnity for property damage and bodily injury caused by pollutants will not be covered by the policy even if the indemnity is contained in an insured contract. Coverage B of the ISO form of commercial general liability policy also contains an exclusion for liability assumed in contracts but does not contain the insured contract exception. Coverage is typically available by the addition of ISO Form CG 22 74, entitled “Limited Contractual Liability Coverage for Personal or Advertising Injury,” or, in some cases, by the deletion of the contractual liability exclusion.

§ 17.5:3 Business Auto

Business auto insurance (ISO Form CA 00 01) is a form of insurance covering liability arising out of the operation of automobiles by the insured and the ownership, maintenance, or use of mobile equipment subject to compulsory insurance or financial responsibility laws or other motor vehicle insurance laws. Landlords and mortgagees may require business auto insurance to cover potential liability arising from vehicular accidents occurring in project parking lots (commercial general liability policies expressly exclude coverage for injuries and damages arising from the operation of autos) and from the loading or unloading of goods from vehicles not being performed by certain types of mobile equipment such as forklifts.

§ 17.5:4 Workers’ Compensation Insurance

Workers’ compensation insurance is a statutory program that imposes strict liability on employers for injuries to employees occurring while the employees are acting in the scope of employment but limits the exposure of employers to a schedule of maximum recoveries. Tex. Lab. Code ch. 406. Landlords and lenders may wish to require tenants and borrowers to carry workers’ compensation insurance to reduce the possibility that the tenant or borrower suffers an economically disastrous judgment because of an employee injury. If an employee of a tenant receives an award from a workers’ compensation policy in a situation in which the landlord is also negligent, the employee is less likely to sue the landlord.
§ 17.5:5 Employer’s Liability Insurance

Employer’s liability insurance supplements workers’ compensation insurance by covering an employee for bodily injury occurring while in the scope of his or her employment if the injury is not covered by workers’ compensation insurance. Unlike workers’ compensation, the injured party must prove that the employer owed a duty to the injured party, that the employer breached the duty, and that the breach was the proximate cause of the injury. Employer’s liability policies have defined each occurrence and aggregate limits, and these limits may be expanded by an umbrella or excess liability policy.

§ 17.5:6 Liquor Liability Insurance

Liquor liability insurance covers liability for bodily injury or property damage arising from (1) causing or contributing to the intoxication of any person, (2) furnishing alcoholic beverages to a person under the legal drinking age or under the influence of alcohol, or (3) violating any law relating to the sale, gift, distribution, or use of alcoholic beverages. Coverage applies only if the insured is involved in (1) manufacturing, selling, or distributing alcoholic beverages; (2) serving or furnishing alcoholic beverages for a charge; or (3) serving or furnishing alcoholic beverages for no charge, if a license is required for such activity. Insurance is available on an occurrence basis (ISO Form CG 00 33), on a claims-made basis (ISO Form CG 00 34), and on an aggregate per location basis (ISO Form CG 25 14).

§ 17.5:7 Innkeeper’s Liability

Innkeeper’s liability insurance protects motel and hotel operators from liability arising from the safekeeping of the property of guests.

§ 17.5:8 Garage Liability

Garage liability insurance (ISO Form CA 00 05) protects garage and parking lot operators from liability arising from garage operations, automobile physical damage, and uninsured or underinsured motorists. Ten different levels of coverage are generally available, ranging from the broad category of “any auto” to the narrow category of “specifically described autos.” Garagekeeper’s liability insurance protects garage operators against only direct damage or legal liability for damage to vehicles in the care, custody, or control of the garage operator (for example, if the named insured provides valet service). Although garagekeeper’s liability insurance is available as separate coverage, garage liability insurance is broader coverage and includes garagekeeper’s coverage.

§ 17.5:9 Umbrella or Excess Liability

Both umbrella and excess liability policies provide additional protection against catastrophic liability claims by increasing the policy limits of primary coverages.

Excess Liability: An excess liability policy relies on the primary policy for the insuring agreement and exclusions and provides coverage only in excess of the scheduled primary liability policies. The coverage is usually not broader than the primary policies.

Umbrella: An umbrella liability policy has its own insuring agreement and exclusions and usually serves three functions: (1) providing additional limits of liability over limits provided by the primary liability policies, (2) providing “drop down” coverage (that is, the umbrella coverage becomes primary) if the limits of the primary policy are exhausted, and (3) affording coverage for claims not covered by primary policies (to the extent not excluded by the umbrella liability policy). Because both an umbrella policy and the primary policy have their own insuring sections, differences may arise between coverages, especially if the two policies have been issued by different companies. To ensure that no gap in coverage is created, the umbrella liability policy should contain an affirmative statement that the umbrella policy follows the form of the primary policy or at least provides coverage that is no less broad than the underlying policy. Use of labels to identify a policy as an excess liability policy or an umbrella policy is problematic in today’s insurance market. Most policies identified as an umbrella policy are really a form of excess liability policy, and there are few policies that are purely an excess policy.

Primary Liability: Both umbrella and excess liability policies contain a schedule of the primary liability policies over which umbrella or excess liability coverage is to be provided. This schedule may require that the primary coverage limits be unimpaired on inception of the umbrella or excess liability coverage, in which case the umbrella or excess liability coverage policies and their primary policies may need to have the same inception date.

§ 17.5:10 Hunting Lease Liability

An individual may be able to purchase an endorsement under the individual’s homeowner’s insurance policy extending personal liability coverage to a hunting lease. The availability and cost of this type of endorsement may vary with different insurance carriers. Although most forms of homeowner’s insurance currently do not exclude bodily injuries caused by firearms, an individual should confirm that his homeowner’s insurance policy does not contain an exclusion for hunting accidents before seeking to extend coverage to the premises under a hunting lease. An individual should also consider whether the personal liability limits under his homeowner’s insurance policy are adequate to cover a hunting accident.

Hunting lease insurance, which covers hunting accidents, is also available from specialized insurance carriers, often through organizations such as hunting clubs and the National Rifle Association.

If the tenant under a hunting lease is a business entity, the tenant will probably be unable to extend its commercial liability policy to cover hunting accidents at the hunting lease and will need to purchase a hunting lease insurance policy.

§ 17.6 Additional Insured Status and Forms

§ 17.6:1 Usage

An additional insured is a party that is provided coverage as an insured under a policy by an additional insured endorsement. (Note that the correct terminology is “additional insured,” not “additional named insured.”) Except as discussed in sections 17.6.4 through 17.6.7 below, the status of additional insured is always used with reference to liability policies. An additional insured party is not responsible for payment of the policy premium, but a small administrative charge may be required to issue the endorsement. The policy premium is not adjusted for an additional insured’s loss history.

With some exceptions, most notably coverage for bodily injury or death of an employee, Texas law prohibits a requirement in a construction contract for an additional insured endorsement covering a broad-form or intermediate indemnity. See section 17.2.4 above.
Many real estate attorneys believe that if a person or entity is an additional insured under the liability insurance of another person, the additional insured is afforded all the benefits of the other person’s insurance policy, but in reality, protection is provided to the additional insured party only to the extent stipulated in the additional insured endorsement. Numerous additional insured endorsement forms exist for different situations with varying degrees of coverage. Many additional insured endorsements explicitly or by implication exclude coverage for the sole or contributory negligence of the additional insured and limit or deny coverage to specific types of operations or locations.

Additional insured endorsement forms contain a granting clause stating that the party listed or described in the endorsement is to be included as an insured under the policy followed by restrictions introduced by the phrase but only with respect to. Granting clauses in additional insured endorsements do not typically cover partners, employees, agents, and other parties related to the party named as additional insured unless language to that effect is added or a contractual requirement to that effect is picked up by the wording of the endorsement. Although ISO publishes more than thirty different additional insured endorsement forms, individual insurance companies are increasingly using manuscripted forms that differ greatly in coverages and clarity. Hence, the type of additional insured endorsement required must be stipulated by ISO designation (including title, form number, and edition date) or, at a minimum, described in terms of the desired coverage.

The additional insured endorsements discussed below are standard forms promulgated by ISO. Note that the words you and your used in the forms quoted below refer to the named insured, not the additional insured.

In 2004, the ISO 20 10 additional insured form was amended to exclude coverage for the additional insured’s sole negligence by adding a requirement that the claim be caused “in whole or in part” by the acts or omissions of the named insured. This change arguably eliminated from coverage liability attributable to the additional insured’s sole negligence.

Then, in April 2013, the additional insured endorsement forms entitled “Additional Insured—Owners, Lessees or Contrators—Scheduled Person or Organization” (ISO Form CG 20 10 04 13) and “Additional Insured—Managers or Lessors of Premises” (ISO Form CG 20 11 04 13), as well as several others, were amended to add three significant additional limitations.
First, coverage is restricted to the extent permitted by law. While the apparent intent was to incorporate statutes such as Tex.
Ins. Code § 151.104, voiding a contractual provision requiring an additional insured endorsement to the extent that the provision requires coverage for an indemnity prohibited under Tex. Ins. Code § 151.102, the prohibition, if applicable, would presumably apply without this language. Second, coverage cannot be broader than the coverage required by the provision contained in the underlying contract, which is often limited to the indemnity obligations assumed by the named insured. Here, the intent is to prevent coverage from exceeding what is required by the contract, so it is important for the contract to properly describe the scope of coverage required. Third, the dollar amount of coverage under the additional insured endorsement is limited to the lesser of the policy limit or the dollar limit of coverage required by the underlying contract. For this reason, insurance provisions in contracts often state that the policy limits set forth in the contract are minimum coverages and are not intended to limit the total amount the party should carry. However, note some manuscript endorsements may include endorsements that limit coverage to the lesser of the policy limit or the “minimum” limits of coverage required by the underlying contact. The party seeking additional insured coverage should specify in the contract that the limits of insurance are just minimums and should specifically require that additional insured status be provided to the full limits of any liability policies.
In any event, named insureds may wish to avoid restrictive additional insured endorsements, because the named insured’s contractual obligation to provide additional insured coverage may be broader than the scope of the coverage of the available additional insured endorsement. On the other hand, the named insured may not want to provide additional insured coverage for risks that are assumed by or are the obligation of the additional insured. If so, both the contract and the policy should limit the additional insured coverage to the risks contractually assumed by the named insured.

In late 2019, ISO amended many of its additional insured endorsement forms, including the CG 20 10 and the CG 20 11. The changes made to these additional insured endorsement forms are not material to an understanding of the three limitations introduced in 2013. The following provisions from ISO endorsement CG 20 10 04 13 and CG 20 11 04 13 illustrate the three limitations introduced in 2013 (the first and second by paragraphs 1 and 2 below and the third by paragraph C below):

However:

1. The insurance afforded to such additional insured only applies to the extent permitted by law, and

2. If coverage provided to the additional insured is required by a contract or agreement, the insurance afforded to such additional insured will not be broader than that which you are required by the contract or agreement to provide for such additional insured.

C. With respect to the insurance afforded to these additional insureds, the following is added to Section III – Limits of Insurance:

If coverage provided to the additional insured is required by a contract or agreement, the most we will pay on behalf of the additional insured is the amount of insurance:

1. Required by the contract or agreement; or

2. Available under the applicable Limits of Insurance shown in the Declarations; whichever is less.

ISO Form CG 20 10 04 13.

Owners, Lessees, or Contractors: The additional insured endorsement form entitled “Additional Insured—Owners, Lessees or Contractors—Scheduled Person or Organization” (ISO Form CG 20 10 04 13, quoted in part below) is commonly used in construction situations. The named insured (the “you” and “your” referenced in the endorsement) provides additional insured coverage to the person or persons identified in the endorsement’s schedule, for instance an owner, a lessee, or a general contractor (or other person upstream of the named insured). The endorsement has three drawbacks: (1) it covers only the named insured’s ongoing operations—that is, the additional insured is not covered for bodily injury or property damage occurring after completion or abandonment of the work; (2) it excludes from coverage injuries or damage caused by the sole negligence (but not the contributory negligence) of the additional insured, since the endorsement requires that the injury or damage be partially or totally caused by the named insured; and (3) it substitutes the word caused for the phrase arising out of used in editions before 2004 in order to eliminate coverage for losses or injuries occurring because of contractors’ operations but not necessarily because of contractors’ actions.
A. Section II—Who Is An Insured is amended to include as an additional insured the person(s) or organization(s) shown in the Schedule, but only with respect to liability for “bodily injury”, “property damage” or “personal and advertising injury” caused in whole or in part by:

1. Your acts or omissions, or
2. The acts or omissions of those acting on your behalf, in the performance of your ongoing operations for the additional insured(s) at the location(s) designated above.

ISO Form CG 20 10 04 13; ISO Form CG 20 10 12 19.

Coverage for completed operations can be obtained by using ISO Form CG 20 10 in tandem with ISO Form CG 20 37 12 19 entitled “Additional Insured—Owners, Lessees, or Contractors—Completed Operations.”

Managers or Lessors of Premises: The additional insured endorsement form entitled “Additional Insured—Managers or Lessors of Premises” (ISO Form CG 20 11 04 13, quoted in part below) is commonly used in lease situations and does not exclude the sole or contributory negligence of the additional insured. Coverage is tied to the lease’s definition of “premises.” Thus, if a lease defines “premises” in a way that excludes adjacent driveways or corridors, the landlord may not be an additional insured with respect to bodily injuries and property damage occurring in loading areas serving the premises.

A. Section II—Who Is An Insured is amended to include as an insured the person(s) or organization(s) shown in the Schedule but only with respect to liability arising out of the ownership, maintenance or use of that part of the premises leased to you and shown in the Schedule and subject to the following additional exclusions:

This insurance does not apply to:

1. Any “occurrence” which takes place after you cease to be a tenant in that premises.
2. Structural alterations, new construction or demolition operations performed by or on behalf of the person or organization shown in the Schedule.

ISO Form CG 20 11 04 13. A major change by ISO to this endorsement was made effective December 2019. The coverage trigger in paragraph A was revised to read as follows:

A. Section II—Who Is An Insured is amended to include as an insured the person(s) or organization(s) shown in the Schedule, but only with respect to liability for “bodily injury”, “property damage” or “personal and advertising injury” caused, in whole or in part, by you or those acting on your behalf in connection with the ownership, maintenance or use of that part of the premises leased to you and shown in the Schedule and subject to the following additional exclusions . . . .

ISO Form CG 20 11 12 19. ISO eliminated the “arising out of” language previously included in the CG 20 11. The CG 20 11 is now in line with the revisions made in 2004 to the CG 20 10 additional insured endorsement form to limit the coverage trigger for additional insured protection to liability “caused, in whole or in part, by” the named insured and by those acting on its behalf. Arguably, this change eliminates additional insured protection for the landlord and managers for their sole negligence.

§ 17.6:4 Additional Insured as Its Interest May Appear

The beneficiary of a property insurance policy must have an “insurable interest” in the insured property, that is, a lawful, substantial, and enforceable interest in the safety or preservation of the subject matter of the insurance. Examples of parties having insurable interests in a building are the owner and the mortgagee. The owner is the named insured under a property policy, and a lender's interest would be protected with a lender loss payable or other mortgagee clause endorsement. In the context of builder's risk policies the terminology “additional insureds as their interests may appear” has often been used to attempt to protect parties other than the named insured and mortgagee. If the owner of a building under construction procured a builder's risk policy, the owner would be the named insured and the contractor and subcontractors would be named as additional insureds as their interests may appear. In theory, if the building were destroyed before completion, the contractor and subcontractors would be entitled to the portion of the insurance proceeds attributable to the portion of the completed construction for which the contractor and subcontractors had not been paid at the time the destruction occurred, and the insurance company would not be able to sue its “insureds” to recover its loss. However, the phrase has led to confusion in litigation and to unintended consequences. Risk managers now advise against the use of “additional insureds as their interests may appear” in builder's risk policies and suggest instead that (1) all parties be named as insureds under the builder's risk policy, without reference to the phrase “additional insureds as their interests may appear”; (2) mutual waivers of subrogation be included in the construction contracts and subcontracts; and (3) the parties confirm that the policy permits the waivers of subrogation. If there are coverages that are not intended to benefit all parties (such as a third-party liability extension that is not intended to benefit the contractor), that issue may need to be addressed in the policy and the applicable contracts.

§ 17.6:5 Additional Insured Status for Landlords in Property Proceeds

ISO Form CP 12 19, entitled “Additional Insured—Building Owner,” provides that the building owner identified in the endorsement is a “Named Insured” with respect to the coverage provided under the tenant’s property policy “for physical loss or damage to the building(s) described in the Schedule” to the endorsement.

§ 17.6:6 Additional Insured Status for Landlords in Rental Value

ISO Form CP 15 03, entitled “Business Income—Landlord as Additional Insured (Rental Value),” names the landlord as an additional insured with respect to that portion of proceeds payable under a business income endorsement representing the amount of rent payable under the lease. The remainder of the business income proceeds are payable to the tenant, that is, the named insured. In addition, the insurer commits to provide advance notice in writing of cancellation to the additional insured. This endorsement is especially useful in an absolutely net lease transaction.

§ 17.6:7 Requirement that Coverage Be Primary and Noncontributory

If a party that is named as additional insured expects such coverage to be primary and noncontributory to the additional insured’s existing insurance coverage, the policy providing additional insured coverage must be endorsed to that effect. All policies have “other insurance” clauses that govern how overlapping insurance policies are required to share coverage. Some such clauses say a particular policy will be excess to any other policy, while some “other insurance” clauses provide for sharing duplicate coverage pro rata. When the issue arises because the named insured has two policies that provide overlapping coverage, these “other insurance” clauses make sense—the named insured is covered in any event, and the loss is shared by the overlapping insurers in accordance with the policy provisions. However, if a party has its own insurance but also requires that it be an additional insured on another party’s policy, it could be argued that the “other insurance” clauses should not apply and that the coverage obtained from the counterparty’s policy should be primary. In the absence of an endorsement, however, this may not be the result; the courts may split coverage between a party’s own insurance and its coverage as an additional insured. In addition, if the “other insurance” clause is a strong excess clause, the additional insured coverage might be rendered completely inapplicable depending on the amount of the claim and the limits of the respective policies. This result can be avoided by contractually requiring that coverage provided to the additional insured shall be primary and noncontributory to any other policy providing coverage to any additional insured, at least to the extent of the risks and liabilities assumed by the counterparty. ISO Form CG 20 01 04 13 is an example of such an endorsement, stating:

This insurance is primary to and will not seek contribution from any other insurance available to an additional insured under your policy provided that:

1. The additional insured is a Named Insured under such other insurance, and
2. You have agreed in writing in a contract or agreement that this insurance would be primary and would not seek contribution from any other insurance available to the additional insured.

ISO Form CG 20 01 04 13

However, the above endorsement applies only to policies in which the additional insured is a named insured, and the additional insured and the counterparty will both want to determine the existence of any such restrictions and whether any such restrictions are acceptable to them.

§ 17.7:1 Application

An insurance company is subrogated to the rights of its insured against third parties to the extent of a loss paid by the insurance company. However, the parties to a business transaction may prefer not to endanger their business relationship with potentially expensive, stressful, and time-consuming litigation conducted by an insurance company in the name of one party against the other party. Hence, each insured may require its insurance company to waive its right of subrogation to the insured’s rights against the other party. If the named insured does not want to waive subrogation for risks that it did not intend, the contract can limit the scope of the waiver to the risks assumed by the named insured.

§ 17.7:2 Components of Waiver of Subrogation

A waiver of subrogation provision should have two components: a covenant by the insured to obtain the waiver of subrogation from its insurer and a release by the insured with respect to the liability that is covered by the insurance policy for which the waiver is sought. The purpose of the release is to protect the beneficiary of the waiver if the party agreeing to obtain the waiver fails to purchase insurance or if the loss exceeds the scope or limit of the insurance policy.

A waiver of subrogation should also state affirmatively which party is to be responsible for any deductible or self-insured retention under the policy in question.

§ 17.7:3 Availability

The current ISO edition of “Commercial Property Conditions” form (ISO Form CP 00 90) used in conjunction with an ISO commercial property insurance policy contains the following waiver of subrogation:

If any person or organization to or for whom we make payment under this Coverage Part has rights to recover damages from another, those rights are transferred to us to the extent of our payment. That person or organization must do everything necessary to secure our rights and must do nothing after loss to impair them. But you may waive your rights against another party in writing:

1. Prior to a loss to your Covered Property or Covered Income.

2. After a loss to your Covered Property or Covered Income only if, at time of loss, that party is one of the following:

   a. Someone insured by this insurance;

   b. A business firm:

      (1) Owned or controlled by you, or

      (2) That owns or controls you, or

   c. Your tenant.

   This will not restrict your insurance.

ISO Form CP 00 90 07 88 (emphasis added).

The ISO form of commercial general liability policy (ISO Form CG 00 01) states “The insured must do nothing after loss to impair” the insurance company’s right of recovery. Most insurance professionals believe that the implication of the language is that a waiver of subrogation given by the named insured before the occurrence is permissible.

Waivers of subrogation are also available for workers’ compensation, employer’s liability, and builder’s risk policies but are not provided absent a request.

§ 17.7.4 Fair Notice Doctrine Compliance

A provision that requires one party to release the liability of the other party even if the other party is negligent must comply with the fair notice doctrine under Texas law. See section 17.2:5 above. However, a provision requiring the insurer to waive subrogation has never been held to be subject to the fair notice doctrine.

§ 17.8 Deductible vs. Self-Insured Retention

Both a deductible and a self-insured retention (SIR) require the insured to pay the first dollars of a loss. However, the potential that a third-party claimant will not be compensated under a liability policy with an SIR is substantially greater than that under a policy with a deductible. When a deductible exists under a liability policy, the insurance company keeps control of the adjustment process, defends the insured, typically pays the claim to the third party, and thereafter charges the insured for the deductible. If an SIR exists, the insured controls the adjustment process to the extent of its SIR (unless the insured has contracted with a third party to administer the process) and the liability insurer has no duty to defend the insured or pay the claim to the third party until the SIR is exhausted.

§ 17.9 Quality of Insurance

A.M. Best’s analysis of property and casualty insurance companies is generally the standard cited in real estate transaction documents. Best assigns a “Financial Strength Rating” to insurance carriers. If a company is below Best’s minimum asset threshold or if sufficient information is not available or is not submitted or if the insurer so requests, Best may elect not to assign a Financial Strength Rating to an insurance company. Reports are available from the A.M. Best web site (www.ambest.com) at no cost.

The components of a Best’s financial strength rating are the following:

1. Rating—A company is assigned one of sixteen “Best’s Ratings.” Each rating is composed of a letter (A to D) with or without plus or minus signs. A++ is the highest rating and D is the lowest.

2. Financial Size Category—A rated company is also assigned one of fifteen Financial Size Categories on the basis of its capital, surplus, and conditional reserve funds from which losses are paid. The Financial Size categories are referred to as “Classes” and described with capital roman numerals. Class I (up to $1 million) is the smallest and Class XV ($2 billion or more) is the largest.

3. Outlook—An Outlook indicates the potential future direction of the company’s rating over a designated period of twelve to thirty-six months. Outlooks can be “positive,” “negative,” or “stable.”

Property and casualty insurance companies that are not rated are designated “NR-1” through “NR-5” based on the reason for which Best did not rate the company.

The desired quality of insurance companies should be specified with a combination of both Best’s Rating and Financial Size Category. Most mortgagees require a minimum Best’s financial strength rating of “A” (Excellent) and a financial size category of “Class X” ($500 million to $750 million).

§ 17.10 Evidencing the Existence of Coverage

The most common method for evidencing the existence of insurance coverage is to obtain a certificate of liability insurance or evidence of personal or commercial property insurance issued by an insurance broker. The standard forms of certificates of liability insurance and evidence of property insurance are published by the Association for Cooperative Operations Research and Development (ACORD), an insurance industry trade association.

§ 17.10:1 ACORD 25 “Certificate of Liability Insurance”

The 2016 edition of the ACORD 25 certificate (form 17-1 in this chapter) combines all disclaimers contained in previous editions into two disclaimers located at the top of the certificate:

THIS CERTIFICATE IS ISSUED AS A MATTER OF INFORMATION ONLY AND CONFERS NO RIGHTS UPON THE CERTIFICATE HOLDER. THIS CERTIFICATE DOES NOT AFFIRMATIVELY OR NEGATIVELY AMEND, EXTEND OR ALTER THE COVERAGE AFFORDED BY THE POLICIES BELOW. THIS CERTIFICATE OF INSURANCE DOES NOT CONSTITUTE A CONTRACT BETWEEN THE ISSUING INSURER(S), AUTHORIZED REPRESENTATIVE OR PRODUCER, AND THE CERTIFICATE HOLDER.

IMPORTANT: If the certificate holder is an ADDITIONAL INSURED, the policy(ies) must have ADDITIONAL INSURED provisions or be endorsed. If SUBROGATION IS WAIVED, subject to the terms and conditions of the policy, certain policies may require an endorsement. A statement on this certificate does not confer rights to the certificate holder in lieu of such endorsement(s).

The disclaimers address several matters.
1. The certificate is issued as a matter of information only.
2. The certificate confers no rights on the certificate holder.
3. The certificate does not create a contract between the certificate holder and the insurer or the insurance broker.
4. The certificate does not amend, extend, or alter the coverage afforded by the enumerated policies.
5. If the certificate contains a statement that an insurance policy has been endorsed to include an additional insured or to include a waiver of subrogation, but the endorsements were not, in fact, issued, the holder of the certificate has no rights against the insurer or broker.

An ACORD 25 certificate is expressly made subject to “all the terms, exclusions and conditions” of the policies listed therein, notwithstanding any requirement in any contract pursuant to which the certificate was issued. The certificate holder is also made aware that the policy limits shown in the certificate may have been reduced by paid claims.

An ACORD 25 certificate requires the issuing company to deliver notice only in the event of cancellation of the policies before the expiration date “in accordance with the policy provisions.”

The ACORD 25 certificate is designed to be used with liability policies. To use the form for property policies, information must be inserted into the “DESCRIPTION OF OPERATIONS / LOCATIONS / VEHICLES” space, which appears below the workers’ compensation blank.

§ 17.10:2 ACORD 28 “Evidence of Commercial Property Insurance”

The 2016 edition of the ACORD 28 certificate (form 17-2 in this chapter) summarizes and states coverage under a commercial lines property policy (for example, a commercial property policy) to a mortgagee, additional insured, or loss payee and is designed to comply with the requirements of current lending practices. ACORD 25 and 28 have similar disclaimers. (See section 17.10:1 above for a discussion of the disclaimers.) ACORD 28 requires the issuing company to deliver notice only in the event of cancellation of the policies before the expiration date “in accordance with the policy provisions.”

§ 17.10:3 Practical Considerations

According to risk managers, the vast majority of certificates of insurance are incorrectly completed. Hence, the forms should be reviewed for accuracy.

Insurance certificates are subject to fraud. A red flag is a certificate that is provided directly from the party that is supposedly insured rather than a third-party insurance agent. The recipient of a certificate may wish to consider (1) contacting the issuing insurance agency to confirm its existence, (2) contacting the insurance carrier to confirm the existence of the coverage, and (3) requiring copies of all endorsements dealing with additional insureds, loss payees, mortgagees, and waivers of subrogation.

§ 17.10:4 Alteration, Modification, Disclaimers, and Notice

Texas has joined a large number of states that have enacted laws to prevent modification of the provisions of ACORD forms. Tex. Ins. Code § 1811.052(b) provides that “[a] person may not execute, issue, or require the issuance of a certificate of insurance for risks located in this state, unless the certificate of insurance form has been filed with and approved by the [Texas Department of Insurance].” Under Tex. Ins. Code § 1811.103, a standard certificate of insurance form promulgated by ACORD or ISO is deemed approved when filed with the Texas Department of Insurance, unless the standard form violates certain parameters contained in Tex. Ins. Code § 1811.101. The effect of approval of a certificate form by the Department is that a certificate confirms only that the referenced policy has been issued. Any certificate in violation of Texas Insurance Code chapter 1811 “is void and has no effect.” Tex. Ins. Code § 1811.156.

Tex. Ins. Code § 1811.053 prohibits any alteration or modification of a certificate of insurance form approved the Texas Department of Insurance unless the alteration or modification is approved by the Department. In addition, Tex. Ins. Code § 1811.051 forbids an agent from issuing a certificate of insurance that alters, amends, or extends the coverage or terms and conditions provided by the referenced insurance policy. “A certificate of insurance may not contain a reference to a legal or insurance requirement contained in a contract other than the underlying contract of insurance, including a contract for construction or services.” Tex. Ins. Code § 1811.154.

In the parameters for an acceptable form, Tex. Ins. Code § 1811.101 adopts many of the disclaimers contained in ACORD forms: “for information purposes only”; the certificate “does not confer any rights or obligations other than the rights and obligations conveyed by the policy”; the certificate does not convey a contractual right to a certificate holder, and “the terms of the policy control over the terms of the certificate.”

Tex. Ins. Code § 1811.155(b) prohibits any alteration in a certificate of the notice provisions of a referenced insurance policy. Under Tex. Ins. Code § 1811.155(a), a certificate can require notice to a person only if the person is named in the policy or endorsement and the policy or endorsement (or law) requires notice to be provided.

§ 17.11 Examples of Insurance Requirements

Forms contained in chapters 8 (Deeds of Trust), 10 (Ancillary Loan Documents), 19 (Commercial Construction Contract Documents), and 25 (Leases) in this manual include insurance requirements and provisions that offer examples of the principles discussed in this chapter.

Residential Construction Contract Documents

§ 18.1 General Considerations

The principal functions of a residential construction contract are to establish the terms of the construction agreement, such as price, description of the project, commencement and completion dates, warranties, and allocation of responsibilities, and to create a system for building, approving, and paying for the construction.

The Texas Constitution provides several consumer protection provisions relating to construction on homestead property. For a lien for the construction of improvements to be created against homestead property there must be a written contract. For remodeling or renovations the constitution requires a written application for extension of credit be submitted by the homeowners at least five days before executing the contract, unless the work is acknowledged to be necessary for the immediate repair of conditions that materially affect the health or safety of the residents of the homestead. In addition to this five-day application period, the owner has a three-day right of rescission following execution of the contract. For renovation or repair projects, the contract must also be executed at the office of the third-party lender extending credit for the work and material, the office of an attorney at law, or a title company office. Tex. Const. art. XVI, § 50(a)(5). See chapter 20 in this manual for a detailed discussion of these requirements. Forms 20-6 and 20-7 are closing certificates used to confirm compliance with these requirements.

This chapter contains a residential construction contract (form 18-4). Designed as a basic form, the contract specifies construction costs, a description of the property on which the new improvements are to be situated, a description of the plans and specifications for the project, and a completion date for the work.

Each transaction should be examined to determine if additional provisions are necessary. If form 18-4 is used to document a transaction in which the construction costs are financed, a comprehensive review of chapter 20 in this manual is needed. The attorney may also wish to consider including additional provisions, which are beyond the scope of this chapter, relating to such matters as work delays, responsibility for soil condition and design, loan commitment requirements, late charges, and delay damages.

§ 18.2 Cautions

§ 18.2:1 Construction Trust Fund Statute

The Texas Construction Trust Fund Act (Texas Property Code sections 162.001–.033) states that contractors agreeing to do more than $5,000 worth of work must put the owner’s funds for each such job in a “construction account” at a financial institution. Tex. Prop. Code § 162.006. The general contractor becomes a trustee for the funds received from the owner for the benefit of the subcontractors and suppliers on the project. Tex. Prop. Code § 162.003. The builder’s profit on a cost-plus contract is not considered a trust fund. Tex. Prop. Code § 162.001(c). Misuse of trust funds of $500 or more with intent to defraud is a third-degree felony. Failure to establish or maintain a construction account in violation of sections 162.006 or 162.007 is a class A misdemeanor. Making a false affidavit that the contractor has paid the project bills is a class A misdemeanor with a possible penalty of up to one year in jail, a $4,000 fine, or both, and personal liability for loss or damage resulting from a false statement. Tex. Prop. Code §§ 53.085(d), (e), 162.032.

The attorney should also be familiar with the law of involuntary mechanic’s liens. See chapter 21 in this manual.

§ 18.2:2  Texas Residential Construction Liability Act

The Texas Residential Construction Liability Act (RCLA), Texas Property Code chapter 27, controls key aspects of residential construction regarding defect claims. Analysis of the provisions of the RCLA is beyond the scope of this manual, although an overview of the RCLA is included below because of its applicability to certain requirements in residential construction contract documents.

RCLA Applicability and Notice:  The RCLA applies to construction defect disputes involving a residence, which the RCLA defines as “the real property and improvements for a single-family house, duplex, triplex, or quadruplex or a unit and the common elements in a multiunit residential structure in which title to the individual units is transferred to the owners under a condominium or cooperative system.” Tex. Prop. Code § 27.001(7).

Notices Required in Contract:  Contracts for home or residential construction must contain the statutory notices prescribed by the RCLA. The notice is included in form 18-4 in this chapter.

Dispute Resolution Requirements:
Residential construction defect disputes are addressed by the RCLA. The RCLA requires owner claimants to complete several conditions precedent before filing suit or arbitration based on most residential construction defect claims. Certain limited types of claims are exempt from the RCLA dispute resolution process, including claims solely for personal injury, wrongful death, or property damage; cases of builder wrongful abandonment of the project; real estate fraud claims under chapter 27 of § 27.002.

The dispute process includes several steps, including advance notice to builders, opportunity for builder inspection of the claimed defects, disclosure to the builder of expert reports, and builder offers to repair. Tex. Prop. Code § 27.004.

§ 18.2:3  Construction Anti-Indemnity Statute

Chapter 151 of the Texas Insurance Code prohibits an indemnity in a construction contract, or in an agreement collateral to or affecting a construction contract, to the extent that it requires an indemnitee to indemnify a party, including a third party, against a claim caused by the negligence or fault, violation of a law, or breach of contract of the indemnitee, its agent or employee, or any third party under the control or supervision of the indemnitee, other than the indemnitee or its agent, employee, or subcontractor of any tier. A provision in a construction contract that requires the purchase of additional insured coverage is void to the extent that it requires coverage that is prohibited under subchapter C of chapter 151. This subchapter does not apply to an indemnity provision in a construction contract, or an agreement collateral to or affecting a construction contract, pertaining to a single-family house, townhouse, duplex, or directly related land development, or to a public works
§ 18.3 Precommencement

§ 18.3:1 Homestead and Mechanic’s Liens

Texas homesteads are exempt from forced sale except for the enforcement of purchase-money liens, property tax liens, an owelty of partition, the refinancing of a federal tax lien, mechanic’s and materialman’s liens, “home equity” or second-lien financing, a reverse mortgage, and the conversion and refinance of a personal property lien secured by a manufactured home to a lien on real property. A contract for new improvements or improvements to an existing home that create a mechanic’s and materialman’s lien against the homestead must be in writing, made before material is furnished or labor performed, signed by both husband and wife if the homestead is a family one, and compliant with other conditions provided in the Texas Constitution. Tex. Const. art. XVI, § 50; Tex. Prop. Code § 53.254. The contract must also contain the notice required by Tex. Prop. Code § 41.007. The residential construction contract, used alone, does not create a mechanic’s lien. For a more complete discussion of lien and financing issues, see chapter 20 in this manual.

Three basic price structures are used in construction contracts.

Lump sum or stipulated sum is the simplest type of contract price. The contractor reviews the plans and specifications for the project and contractually agrees on a fixed price for the work. Unless the parties agree to change this stipulated amount, this will be the amount paid by the owner.

An unit price contract establishes a price for a given unit of work (for example, $13 per square yard of asphalt paving).

A cost-plus arrangement establishes the price to the owner based on the actual cost of the work plus a certain percentage of profit for the contractor. In cost-plus, guaranteed-maximum construction contracts the contractor guarantees that the cost to the owner will not exceed a maximum price.

Commencement of construction before the contract is executed invalidates a mechanic’s lien on a homestead. Tex. Prop. Code § 53.254(b).

Giving owners an allowance is standard practice in residential construction. Both parties should take care to ensure products chosen by the owners are within the amount allowed by the contract. For instance, if an allowance provides for $1,000 for a refrigerator and an owner selects a refrigerator that costs $1,300, the owner has exceeded the allowed amount and owes the contractor an additional $300. If the owner decides to use a previously purchased refrigerator, the contractor owes the owner a credit of $1,000. Careful documentation of amounts spent can prevent future disputes.

Changes to the scope of a project should be documented through the use of a change order, form 18-6 in this chapter. Whether a contractual mechanic’s lien extends to such changes depends on the agreement of the parties as expressed in the original construction contract.
Without an agreement to the contrary, there is no contractual lien for partial performance on a homestead. The contract must be substantially performed. Fidelity Savings & Loan Ass'n v. Baldwin, 416 S.W.2d 482, 483 (Tex. App.—Beaumont 1967, writ ref'd n.r.e.).

Sales taxes are the responsibility of the owner unless the contract provides for a lump-sum price, in which case the cost is the responsibility of the contractor as the consumer. Tex. Tax Code § 151.056. If the contractor manufactures or produces and also places ready-mix concrete into the property, the concrete must be separately billed, with tax on the materials paid by the owner. Tex. Tax Code § 151.056(g).

The Texas Home Solicitations Transaction Act may apply if the consumer’s obligation is entered into at a location other than the contractor’s place of business. If the Act applies, additional notices are required. Tex. Bus. & Com. Code §§ 601.001, 601.051–.053. The statutory notice of cancellation is included in the residential construction contract (form 18-4 in this chapter).

In unincorporated areas of certain counties, a builder’s failure to provide the notice indicating all inspections of a new residential construction of a single-family house or duplex showed compliance with applicable building code standards constitutes a criminal offense. The builder has an affirmative defense if the builder’s failure to submit the notice is the result of the failure of the person who performed the inspection to provide appropriate documentation to the builder to submit to the county. Tex. Loc. Gov't Code §§ 233.154–155.

The perfection of involuntary mechanic’s liens is covered in chapter 21 in this manual. Before contracting for residential construction, owners should become familiar with their potential liability for mechanic’s liens. Owner liability for properly noticed and filed subcontractor and supplier mechanic’s liens is the sum of two amounts described in Tex. Prop. Code § 53.084. First, an owner is liable for the 10 percent statutory retainage owners are required to withhold from payments to the original contractor on every construction project. Tex. Prop. Code §§ 53.101–103; Page v. Structural Wood Components, 102 S.W.3d 720 (Tex. 2003). In addition, an owner is liable for “fund trapping,” which means “trapping” or withholding remaining contract funds otherwise owed to the original contractor. This is required when the owner receives a mechanic’s lien notice letter containing language telling the owner to withhold payment from the contractor for the claim amount. Tex. Prop. Code § 53.056(b), (d). If an owner receives a lien notice letter containing the required fund-trap warning and fails to withhold payment from the contractor, the owner is personally liable and the owner’s property is subject to a lien for amounts paid after receipt of the notice. This fund-trapping liability is in addition to the owner’s liability for the 10 percent statutory retainage. Consequently, to protect the owner in case involuntary mechanic’s liens are asserted, the owner must do two things: (1) retain 10 percent of the adjusted original contract price throughout the duration of the project and for the time after completion provided for lien claimants to file mechanic’s liens and (2) withhold the proper amount of undisbursed funds (“trapped funds”) from the contractor if lien notices are received from subcontractors or suppliers. Tex. Prop. Code §§ 53.081, 53.084, 53.101. If an owner fails to withhold the statutory retainage, the owner is nevertheless liable for the amount that should have been withheld. Tex. Prop. Code § 53.103(a).
Time for Withholding Statutory 10 Percent Retainage: Owners, to protect themselves from mechanic’s lien claimant liability, should withhold payment of statutory retainage for at least the time allowed for claimants to file lien affidavits. Tex. Prop. Code § 53.057. This period of time is discussed in chapter 21 in this manual. However, an outline of the applicable time limits is provided below.

The retainage provisions affecting first- and second-tier claimants were amended by the 2011 Texas legislature. Owners must withhold retainage until the earliest of the following:

1. The lien filing date provided by Tex. Prop. Code § 53.052, which is the fifteenth day of the third month following the last month of work or delivery by the claimant. (See the chart at section 21.9:2 in this manual.)

2. The fortieth day after the date stated in the affidavit of completion for the original contract, but only if the owner sent the claimant notice of the affidavit. This affidavit of completion is provided for in Tex. Prop. Code § 53.106, which allows, but does not require, the owner to file such an affidavit stating the date of final completion for the project. See form 18-7. Notice of filing and a copy of the affidavit must be sent to claimants making a written request for one or to claimants who have sent out owner lien notices. However, regardless of whether a claimant makes a request for such affidavit or sends a lien notice, if the affidavit is not sent to a claimant, then the forty-day deadline described in this section does not apply to that claimant. The affidavit is prima facie evidence of the actual final completion date for the project if it is sent to claimants as required.

3. The thirtieth day after the day the owner sends written notice to the claimant demanding that the claimant file its mechanic’s lien affidavit. The notice must contain a legal description of the project property and the owner’s name and address, and it must specify that the lien affidavit must be filed within thirty days of the date the notice was sent. The “demand to file a lien” section of the Texas Property Code, Tex. Prop. Code § 53.057(g), provides that this notice is effective only for the amount of contractual retainage earned by the claimant as of the day notice was sent.

Owner Failure to Withhold 10 Percent Retainage: If the owner fails to withhold statutory retainage, then the claimants are entitled to perfect their claims by notice and affidavit within the longer deadlines described above (i.e., the fifteenth day of the third month following the last month of work or delivery). No thirty-day or forty-day deadlines, under Tex. Prop. Code § 53.057(f), are applicable if the owner fails to withhold the statutory retainage.

Summary of Owner Retainage Withholding Period on Residential Projects: In summary, for residential projects, owners are liable to hold retainage for the longer lien-filing period provided by Tex. Prop. Code § 53.052, meaning the fifteenth day of the third month following the last month of work or delivery completing the project. See the chart at section 21.9:2 in this manual. If an owner wants to shorten this time, he must send one of the applicable notices described above: either filing and sending an affidavit of completion (form 18-7) or sending notice to claimants demanding that they file their lien affidavits. Because the effect of the thirty-day notice to file lien is limited to the accrued amount of the claimant’s retainage, this notice is of limited use. Therefore, residential owners should consider the affidavit of completion process if they want to shorten the retainage withholding period. Owners are cautioned that only those suppliers and subcontractors who are sent the affidavit of completion are subject to the forty-day deadline. A second-tier supplier-claimant, delivering material at the end of the project and not known to the owner, will not receive an affidavit of completion, and therefore that claimant’s lien will not be cut off by the forty-day deadline.
§ 18.3:5 Other Considerations

Both property and liability insurance should be obtained by the contractor to insure the project, and the cost should be factored into the contract price.

Water and electricity should be provided to the lot line by the owner. If not, the contract should allocate the additional cost of obtaining service.

A survey should be performed before the commencement of construction, at the owner’s cost.

The Federal Trade Commission requires insulation installers and new home sellers to supply information on the efficacy of the home insulation products they sell. See 16 C.F.R. pt. 460. The residential construction contract, form 18-4 in this chapter, includes a section for providing the required insulation disclosure data.

Independent contractor status of the contractor reduces the risk of owner liability. Exxon Corp. v. Quinn, 726 S.W.2d 17, 19–20 (Tex. 1987). To help preserve the contractor’s independent contractor status, the owner’s control over the performance of the work should be limited.

Responsibility for the foundation is one of the most important risk allocation issues in a construction contract. Usually, the party who has the most control over the design of the foundation bears the responsibility for its performance.

If a contract that provides for the construction of new improvements to real property located in Texas contains a provision making the contract or any conflict arising under the contract subject to the laws of another state, to litigation in the courts of another state, or to arbitration in another state, that provision is voidable by the party obligated to perform the construction. Tex. Bus. & Com. Code §§ 272.001–.002.

§ 18.4 Commencement

Commencement of construction is required under the residential construction contract, form 18-4 in this chapter, to begin within thirty days from the contract date. The inception date of a statutory mechanic’s lien is the date that construction begins or materials are first delivered. Tex. Prop. Code § 53.124. This date may be established by filing an affidavit of commencement, form 18-5.

§ 18.5 Postcommencement

In the residential construction contract, form 18-4 in this chapter, delays caused by unforeseen circumstances extend the completion date. Delays caused by either party can be made the subject of monetary penalties. The price of the project may be adjusted for concealed conditions.

The contractor agrees to clean up the property following completion. The owner walk-through is intended to produce a “punch list” of items the owner wants completed or corrected by the contractor. Acceptance of work occurs only after inspection and approval by the owner. Evidence of completion must be provided by the contractor to the owner. Substantial completion occurs when a certificate of occupancy is issued. If no certificate of occupancy is required, substantial completion occurs when all improvements are sufficiently complete, in accordance with the construction contract documents, so that the owner may use or occupy the improvements for the intended purpose. If the owner moves into the improvements, the improvements will be deemed to be substantially complete.

Change orders occur only on agreement by the owner and the contractor. This agreement may be documented by form 18-6.

§ 18.6 Warranties

Alternative express warranty provisions are included in form 18-4 in this chapter, in paragraph E.1.e. Texas law implies a warranty of “good and workmanlike” construction, which can be disclaimed. Also, a warranty of “habitability” is implied, which cannot be disclaimed. See Centex Homes v. Buecher, 95 S.W.3d 266 (Tex. 2002); Melody Home Manufacturing v. Barnes, 741 S.W.2d 349 (Tex. 1987); Gupta v. Ritter Homes, Inc., 646 S.W.2d 168 (Tex. 1983); March v. Thiery, 729 S.W.2d 889 (Tex. App.—Corpus Christi–Edinburg 1987, no writ). In Centex Homes, the Texas Supreme Court held that—the implied warranty of good workmanship may be disclaimed by the parties when their agreement provides for the manner, performance, or quality of the desired construction. We further hold that the warranty of habitability may not be disclaimed generally. This latter implied warranty, however, only extends to defects that render the property so defective that it is unsuitable for its intended use as a home.

Centex Homes, 95 S.W.3d at 274–75.

One of the alternative express warranties provided in form 18-4 refers to the Texas Residential Construction Commission (TRCC) warranties. These TRCC warranties provide detailed quality standards for residential construction. Although the TRCC was abolished effective September 1, 2009, the warranty standards previously developed by the TRCC may still be incorporated by reference. The TRCC warranties are available online at www.texasinspector.com/files/TRCC-Standards-of-Performance.pdf.

§ 18.7 Instructions for Completing Forms

§ 18.7:1 Contractor’s Disclosure Statement for Residential Construction Contracts

Form 18-1 in this chapter is mandated by the Texas Property Code. This statement must be delivered to the owner before the execution of the construction contract. Tex. Prop. Code § 53.255.

§ 18.7:2 Contractor’s List of Subcontractors and Suppliers

Before beginning work on a project the original contractor must furnish to the owner a written list with the name, address, and telephone number of each subcontractor and supplier that the general contractor intends to use. See form 18-2 in this chapter. This list must be updated within fifteen days of the addition or deletion of a subcontractor or supplier unless the owner signs a written waiver of the right to an updated list. Tex. Prop. Code § 53.256(a). Specific language for the written waiver is given in Tex. Prop. Code § 53.256(d). To use the first alternative for payment of project retainage, described in form 18-4, paragraph 3.f. of exhibit A, the contractor must list all subcontractors and suppliers of any tier involved with the project, timely update this list, and furnish a final updated list on or before the date of final completion. See also the optional paragraph C.1.c. in form 18-4. The owner should recognize that if this alternative is selected and an affidavit of completion is not sent to a claimant for any reason, including that the owner was not made aware of the claimant, then the owner will be liable to that claimant for the claimant’s share of statutory retainage even though the owner may have already paid the retainage.
§ 18.7:3 Contractor’s Disbursement Disclosure for Residential Construction

As a prerequisite to obtaining an advance of funds in a residential construction project, the general contractor is required to provide the owner with a signed statement listing the bills paid and to be paid. See form 18-3 in this chapter. If the lender is funding an advance directly to the contractor and not through the owner, that lender must provide the owner a lender’s disbursement statement and the contractor’s disbursement statement used to apply for the advance. Tex. Prop. Code § 53.258.

§ 18.7:4 Residential Construction Contract

Form 18-4 in this chapter is a contract for the construction of a residence without an architect. The contract assumes a project in which the ultimate homeowner holds title to the land before the commencement of construction. Under the contract, the construction process and the duties and obligations of the parties are divided into distinct preconstruction, construction, and postconstruction stages. The principal functions of the contract are to establish the terms of the construction agreement, such as price, description of the project, commencement and completion dates, allocation of responsibilities, and so forth, and to create a system for building, approving, and paying for the construction.

§ 18.7:5 Affidavit of Commencement

The owner and the original contractor may jointly execute and file an affidavit of commencement with the county clerk of the county in which the land is located. Tex. Prop. Code § 53.124(c). See form 18-5 in this chapter. An affidavit of commencement is prima facie evidence of the date of the commencement of construction and fixes the date of inception of the involuntary mechanic’s liens filed relating to the construction. Tex. Prop. Code § 53.124(d).

The affidavit should be executed and recorded within thirty days after the date of actual commencement of construction or delivery of materials. Tex. Prop. Code § 53.124(c). The owner and the original contractor should not execute this affidavit at the closing of the construction loan lest a delay in recording cause the affidavit to reflect a commencement date before the recording date. The owner and the contractor should execute and record the affidavit promptly after the construction loan documents have been filed and construction has actually commenced.

§ 18.7:6 Change Order

Form 18-6 in this chapter documents amendments to the residential construction contract that may change the plans and specifications, adjust the contract amount, or alter the completion date.

§ 18.7:7 Affidavit of Completion

The owner may file an affidavit of completion with the county clerk of the county in which the property is located. See form 18-7 in this chapter. Completion is defined not as “substantial completion” as used in the contract but as “the actual completion of the work, including any extras or change orders reasonably required or contemplated under the original contract, other than warranty work or replacement or repair of the work performed under the contract.” Tex. Prop. Code § 53.001(15). An affidavit of completion meeting the requirements of section 53.106 constitutes prima facie evidence of the date of completion. Tex. Prop. Code § 53.106(d).
The affidavit should be filed on or before the tenth day after the completion of the work. If the affidavit is filed following the tenth day after the date of completion, the date of completion is presumed to be the date of actual filing. Tex. Prop. Code § 53.106(d).

The owner must send a copy, by certified mail, return receipt requested, or registered mail, to the original contractor not later than the date the affidavit is filed and to each claimant who has sent the owner a notice of lien liability not later than the date the affidavit is filed or the tenth day after the date the owner receives notice. Tex. Prop. Code § 53.106(b). The owner must also furnish a copy of the affidavit to any person who furnished materials or labor for the construction and requests a copy. The affidavit must be furnished not later than the tenth day after the date the request is received or ten days after the date the affidavit is filed, whichever is later. Tex. Prop. Code § 53.106(c).

§ 18.7:8 Lien Waiver

Forms 18-8 through 18-11 in this chapter are statutory forms required for lien and bond claim waivers to document final or interim acknowledgment of payments. The forms must be used verbatim, in lieu of any other form of lien release associated with construction payments. However, if a mechanic’s lien affidavit has already been filed in the real estate records, the form of release does not have to conform to forms 18-8 through 18-11. Tex. Prop. Code §§ 53.281–.287. Blanket advance releases of all mechanic’s lien rights of the contractor should be enforceable, if expressly stated in the residential construction contract and if the contract is executed before commencement of any work. Tex. Prop. Code § 53.282(a)(3).

§ 18.7:9 Bills-Paid Affidavit

The contractor, on request by the owner and as a condition of payment to the contractor, must provide the owner an affidavit stating that all of the contractor’s subcontractors, laborers, and materialmen have been paid or identifying those not paid. See form 18-12 in this chapter. The affidavit may include representations regarding bills to be paid with the funds received and indemnity provisions. Tex. Prop. Code § 53.085.

A bills-paid affidavit must be signed by the general contractor as a condition for final payment. Tex. Prop. Code § 53.259.

There are significant penalties, both civil and criminal, for the making of false affidavits. The penalties may include a $4,000 fine, confinement in jail for a period not to exceed one year, or both, and personal liability of the person signing the affidavit for any loss or damage resulting from the false statement. Tex. Prop. Code §§ 53.085(d), (e), 53.259(c), (d).

Contractor's Disclosure Statement for Residential Construction

Basic Information

[Lender:]

Know Your Rights and Responsibilities under the Law. You are about to enter into a transaction to build a new home or remodel existing residential property. Texas law requires your contractor to provide you with this brief overview of some of your rights, responsibilities, and risks in this transaction.

Conveyance to Contractor Not Required. Your contractor may not require you to convey your real property to your contractor as a condition to the agreement for the construction of improvements on your property.

Know Your Contractor. Before you enter into your agreement for the construction of improvements to your property, make sure that you have investigated your contractor. Obtain and verify references from other people who have used the contractor for the type and size of construction project on your property.
Get It in Writing. Make sure that you have a written agreement with your contractor that includes (1) a description of the work the contractor is to perform, (2) the required or estimated time for completion of the work; (3) the cost of the work or how the cost will be determined; and (4) the procedure and method of payment, including provisions for statutory retainage and conditions for final payment. If your contractor made a promise, warranty, or representation to you concerning the work the contractor is to perform, make sure that promise, warranty, or representation is specified in the written agreement. An oral promise that is not included in the written agreement may not be enforceable under Texas law.

Read Before You Sign. Do not sign any document before you have read and understood it. NEVER SIGN A DOCUMENT THAT INCLUDES AN UNTRUE STATEMENT. Take your time in reviewing documents. If you borrow money from a lender to pay for the improvements, you are entitled to have the loan closing documents furnished to you for review at least one business day before the closing. Do not waive this requirement unless a bona fide emergency or another good cause exists, and make sure you understand the documents before you sign them. If you fail to comply with the terms of the documents, you could lose your property. You are entitled to have your own attorney review any documents. If you have any question about the meaning of a document, consult an attorney.

Get a List of Subcontractors and Suppliers. Before construction commences, your contractor is required to provide you with a list of the subcontractors and suppliers the contractor intends to use on your project. Your contractor is required to supply updated information on any subcontractors and suppliers added after the list is provided. Your contractor is not required to supply this information if you sign a written waiver of your rights to receive this information.

Monitor the Work. Lenders and governmental authorities may inspect the work in progress from time to time for their own purposes. These inspections are not intended as quality control inspections. Quality control is a matter for you and your contractor. To ensure that your home is being constructed in accordance with your wishes and specifications, you should inspect the work yourself or have your own independent inspector review the work in progress.

Monitor Payments. If you use a lender, your lender is required to provide you with a periodic statement showing the money disbursed by the lender from the proceeds of your loan. Each time your contractor requests payment from you or your lender for work performed, your contractor is also required to furnish you with a disbursement statement that lists the name and address of each subcontractor or supplier that the contractor intends to pay from the requested funds. Review these statements and make sure that the money is being properly disbursed.

Claims by Subcontractors and Suppliers. Under Texas law, if a subcontractor or supplier who furnishes labor or materials for the construction of improvements on your property is not paid, you may become liable and your property may be subject to a lien for the unpaid amount, even if you have not contracted directly with the subcontractor or supplier. To avoid liability, you should take the following actions:

1. If you receive a written notice from a subcontractor or supplier, you should withhold payment from your contractor for the amount of the claim stated in the notice until the dispute between your contractor and the subcontractor or supplier is resolved. If your lender is disbursing money directly to your contractor, you should immediately provide a copy of the notice to your lender and instruct the lender to withhold payment in the amount of the claim stated in the notice. If you continue to pay the contractor after receiving the written notice without withholding the amount of the claim, you may be liable and your property may be subject to a lien for the amount you failed to withhold.

2. During construction and for thirty days after final completion, termination, or abandonment of the contract by the contractor, you should withhold or cause your lender to withhold 10 percent of the amount of payments made for the work performed by your contractor. This is sometimes referred to as “statutory retainage.” If you choose not to withhold the 10 percent for at least thirty days after final completion, termination, or abandonment of the contract by the contractor and if a valid claim is timely made by a claimant and your contractor fails to pay the claim, you may be personally liable and your property may be subject to a lien up to the amount that you failed to withhold.

If a claim is not paid within a certain time period, the claimant is required to file a mechanic’s lien affidavit in the real property records in the county in which the property is located. A mechanic’s lien affidavit is not a lien on your property, but the filing of the affidavit could result in a court imposing a lien on your property if the claimant is successful in litigation to enforce the lien claim.

Some Claims May Not Be Valid. When you receive a written notice of a claim or when a mechanic’s lien affidavit is filed on your property, you should know your legal rights and responsibilities regarding the claim. Not all claims are valid. A notice of a claim by a subcontractor or supplier is required to be sent, and the mechanic’s lien affidavit is required to be filed, within strict time periods. The notice and the affidavit must contain certain information. All claimants may not fully comply with the legal requirements to collect on a claim. If you have paid the contractor in full before receiving a notice of a claim and have fully complied with the law regarding statutory retainage, you may not be liable for that claim. Accordingly, you should consult your attorney when you receive a written notice of a claim to determine the true extent of your liability or potential liability for that claim.

Obtain a Lien Release and a Bills-Paid Affidavit. When you receive a notice of claim, do not release withheld funds without obtaining a signed and notarized release of lien and claim from the claimant. You can also reduce the risk of having a claim filed by a subcontractor or supplier by requiring as a condition of each payment made by you or your lender that your contractor furnish you with an affidavit stating that all bills have been paid. Under Texas law, on final completion of the work and before final payment, the contractor is required to furnish you with an affidavit stating that all bills have been paid. If the contractor discloses any unpaid bill in the affidavit, you should withhold payment in the amount of the unpaid bill until you receive a waiver of lien or release from that subcontractor or supplier.

Obtain Title Insurance Protection. You may be able to obtain a title insurance policy to insure that the title to your property and the existing improvements on your property are free from liens claimed by subcontractors and suppliers. If your policy is issued before the improvements are completed and covers the value of the improvements to be completed, you should obtain, on the completion of the improvements and as a condition of your final payment, a "completion of improvements" policy endorsement. This endorsement will protect your property from liens claimed by subcontractors and suppliers that may arise from the date the original title policy is issued to the date of the endorsement.

B. Definitions

B.1. “Commencement Date” means the date on which the building permit is issued for Contractor to construct the Improvements.

B.3. “Concealed Conditions” means preexisting physical conditions situated below the surface of the ground, or concealed or unknown conditions in an existing structure, at variance with the conditions indicated in the Contract Documents or differing materially from those ordinarily encountered and generally recognized as inherent in Work of the character provided for in the Contract Documents.

B.4. “Contract Documents” means this residential construction contract, the Plans, warranty documents, and any other documents governing the Work (collectively, the “Contract”).

B.5. “Improvements” means the improvements to be constructed on the Property according to the Plans, including [describe, e.g., a single-family residence].

B.6. “Payment Deadline” means 2:00 P.M. on the third business day after Contractor’s request for payment is received by [Owner/Owner’s lender/[specify]].

B.7. “Plans” means all design plans and specifications for the Improvements (dated and initialed by Owner and Contractor).

B.9. "Substantial Completion" or "Substantially Complete" means the stage when a certificate of occupancy is issued, or if no certificate is required, when all Improvements are sufficiently complete, in accordance with the Contract Documents, so that Owner may use or occupy the Improvements for the intended purpose. If Owner moves into the Improvements, the Improvements will be deemed to be substantially complete.

B.10. The "Work" means the physical activities, materials, and equipment relating to the construction of the Improvements.

C. Precommencement Matters

C.1. Contractor agrees to—

a. Provide Owner a copy of the Builder’s Risk Insurance Policy for the Property with a coverage amount equal to or greater than the Contract Sum.

b. Obtain Contractor’s risk insurance coverage for casualty loss and public liability in reasonable amounts, to protect Contractor and Owner.

c. Provide Owner with a written list of all subcontractors and suppliers of any tier furnishing labor, material, equipment, or other improvements for the project. The list will include each subcontractor’s or supplier’s name, address, and telephone number and will be updated within fifteen days of any addition or deletion of a subcontractor or supplier. A final list will be provided to Owner on or before final completion of the project.

d. If Contractor provides the Plans, Contractor will deliver to Owner two copies of the Plans. Contractor hereby assigns to Owner the right to use the...
Plans for the purpose of completing the Improvements if Contractor fails to do so in accordance with the terms of the Contract Documents.

C.2. Owner agrees to—

a. Furnish to Contractor reasonable proof acceptable to Contractor that Owner has the ability to pay to Contractor the full Contract Sum.

b. Provide water and electricity to the property line.

C.3. The following are stipulated:

a. Change Orders

i. Contractor is under no duty to make any changes in the Plans requested by Owner until a change order is signed by Contractor and Owner.

ii. Owner and Contractor must sign a written change order. An e-mail exchange between Owner and Contractor in which the changes are discussed and acknowledged by the parties will also satisfy this requirement.

iii. When Contractor receives a written request for any change from Owner, Contractor will present Owner with a proposal for the changes including any additional price, markup, and extensions to the projected Completion Date.

iv. Upon Owner's acceptance, the change order will become an amendment to the Contract Documents, and the terms of the change order shall control if any conflict exists between it and the Contract Documents. A signature or e-mail affirmation from any one Owner is sufficient to bind all Owners.
v. Failure of Owner to approve Contractor's proposal for changes within five days after receipt shall constitute a rejection of the proposal. Owner shall pay for all agreed-upon change orders to the extent they increase the Contract Sum to Contractor in cash within five business days after Owner's acceptance of the proposal.

vi. Contractor will not be obligated to proceed with any Work until all amounts have been paid pursuant to a change order. Contractor has no obligation to stop Work while change orders are being negotiated.

b. Plans. If Owner furnishes the Plans, Owner warrants the sufficiency of the Plans and Contractor may reasonably rely on the accuracy of the Plans. Contractor disclaims all liability for any errors or omissions in Plans furnished by Owner. Contractor is prohibited from using the Plans on any other property. If Contractor furnishes the Plans, Contractor warrants the Plans are in substantial compliance with all applicable laws [include if applicable: and any other standards adopted by the parties]. Plans and any supplements to the Plans prepared by Contractor will be the property of Contractor and may not be used by Owner on any other property. Owner agrees that as long as construction of the Improvements is in compliance with the Contract Documents, minor deviations will be accepted.

c. Consumer Products. "Consumer Products," as defined by the Federal Trade Commission, are excluded from Contractor's warranty only to the extent individual manufacturers' warranties are passed through Contractor and assigned to Owner, with a copy received by Owner. Contractor assigns and passes through to Owner the manufacturers' warranties on all appliances and equipment. In the case of passed-through and received manufacturers' warranties on Consumer Products, Owner's recourse is directly to the manufacturer, and Contractor will have no responsibility for them, except for problems relating to Contractor’s installation and hookup of the items.

d. Consult Your Attorney. This is intended to be a legally binding contract. READ IT CAREFULLY. If you do not understand the effect of any part of the Contract Documents, consult your attorney BEFORE signing.

e. F.T.C. Insulation Disclosure. The F.T.C. Insulation Disclosure Data are provided in accordance with the Federal Trade Commission regulation at 16 C.F.R. pt. 460.

D. After Completion of Precommencement Matters

D.1. Contractor agrees to—

a. Obtain a building permit and commence the Work within thirty days after Owner has completed all of Owner’s obligations under the Precommencement Matters and file an affidavit of commencement in the real property records of the county in which the Property is located.

b. Comply with all regulations and restrictions imposed by local, state, and federal agencies.

c. Diligently prosecute the Work to completion and substantially complete the Work according to the Plans by the Completion Date.

d. Pay all valid bills and charges to Contractor for material or labor relating to the Improvements.
e. Keep the Property free from claims of liens for labor or material arising directly through Contractor, except that Contractor may reasonably dispute any claim.

f. Include in the Improvements insulation with the characteristics set forth above in the F.T.C. Insulation Disclosure Data.

D.2. Contractor agrees not to delay the work.

D.3. Owner agrees to—

a. Pay to Contractor the Contract Sum, disbursed according to the [Contract terms/payment schedule], no later than the Payment Deadline.

b. Promptly pay to the seller of the Allowance Items all charges in excess of the allowances.

c. Make selection of Allowance Items within ten days after receipt of notice from Contractor; otherwise, Contractor may make the selections or extend the time for Owner to make the selections, in which case Owner will pay any charges related to the delay and Contractor is entitled to extend the Completion Date.

d. Deliver to Contractor, within three business days of Contractor’s draw request, written notice of Work not accepted, with specific reasons and reasonable requirements stated for causing the Work to be accepted.

D.4. Owner agrees not to—

a. Communicate directly with laborers about the Work.

b. Delay or interfere with the progress of the Work.
D.5. Contractor and Owner agree that—

a. If Owner, at any time before or during the progress of the Work, wants any modifications made to the Plans ("Changed Work"), Owner will request in writing that Contractor undertake the Changed Work. If Contractor agrees to do the Changed Work, Contractor may submit to Owner an estimate of the cost of the Changed Work and an extension of the Completion Date to reflect the additional time required for completing it. If a preapproved written change order is not obtained, Contractor may submit to Owner the notice of change order and extension of time in writing, and the failure of Owner to make written objection within ten days of the notice is conclusively deemed approval by Owner. The Contract Sum and the Completion Date will automatically adjust to incorporate any change orders.

b. Should Contractor encounter Concealed Conditions, the Contract Sum will be equitably adjusted by change order on claim by either party made within twenty days after notice by Contractor to Owner of the Concealed Conditions.

c. Contractor occupies the status of an independent contractor, as that term is defined in the construction industry.

d. Unless otherwise specifically provided, reference to any equipment, material, article, or patented process by trade name, make, or catalog number is regarded as establishing a standard of quality and is not construed as limiting competition. Contractor may, at Contractor's option, use any equipment, material, article, or patented process that is substantially equal to that named.

e. Contractor has the right to subcontract any part or all of the Work.
E. After Substantial Completion

E.1. Contractor agrees to—

a. Remove debris and surplus materials occasioned by the Work.

b. Notify Owner on Substantial Completion of the Work and file an affidavit of completion in the real property records of the county in which the Property is located.

c. Deliver possession of the Improvements to Owner on the day following the later of Substantial Completion or final payment to Contractor of the Contract Sum.

d. Release the Work and Property from all claims, including claims of subcontractors and materialmen, on receipt of final payment.

e. Contractor warrants its labor and materials against construction defects and warrants that its construction services have been performed in a good and workmanlike manner and that the materials are adequate for their intended purposes. These warranties extend for a period of one year after substantial completion. Owner must give notice of the defect within this one-year warranty period, and contractor has up to six months to correct the defect. The giving of this express warranty is not intended to, and does not, negate implied warranties.

Select one of the following. Use the second paragraph to reference the Texas Residential Construction Commission warranty standards.

Or
e. Contractor warrants that its performance of work on the project meets the residential construction warranties adopted by the Texas Residential Construction Commission. The warranties will extend for the following periods after substantial completion:

i. one year for workmanship and materials;

ii. two years for plumbing, electrical, heating, and air-conditioning delivery systems; and

iii. ten years for major structural components of the Improvements.

THESE EXPRESS WARRANTIES ARE GIVEN IN LIEU OF THE IMPLIED WARRANTY OF GOOD AND WORKMANLIKE CONSTRUCTION, WHICH IS DISCLAIMED.

E.2. Owner agrees to—

a. Pay to Contractor the final payment of the Contract Sum, including all amounts due under the Contract Documents, according to Exhibit A.

b. Sign and file for record within five days after Substantial Completion a notice of substantial completion and acceptance.

E.3. Owner and Contractor agree that Owner’s acceptance of possession will be conclusively presumed to constitute Owner’s acceptance of the Improvements as Substantially Complete and inhabitable.

F. Default and Termination

F.1. Building Permit. If a building permit has not been issued within ten business days of completion of all Precommencement Matters, Owner may terminate this Contract by written notice within ten business days and recover out-of-pocket costs from Contractor; otherwise, Owner must give Contractor ten days’ written notice and opportunity to cure before terminating this Contract.

F.2. Precommencement Matters. If the Precommencement Matters have not been completed within thirty days from the Contract Date, Owner or Contractor may unilaterally terminate this Contract by written notice within forty days from the Contract Date, in which case this Contract will terminate, and the performing party is entitled to recover reasonable out-of-pocket costs from the nonperforming party.

F.3. Owner’s Default. Each of the following constitutes a material breach of this Contract by Owner: (a) failing to fully and timely perform any covenant of Owner under this Contract, (b) making any representation to Contractor found to be materially false, misleading, or erroneous; and (c) substantially breaching any of Owner’s obligations under this Contract.

F.4. Contractor’s Default. Each of the following constitutes a material breach of this Contract by Contractor: (a) delaying the Work such that the progress of the Substantial Completion of the Improvements falls more than thirty days behind the time shown for completion of the Work; (b) failing to fully and timely perform any covenant of Contractor under this Contract; (c) making any representation to Owner found to be materially false, misleading, or erroneous; and (d) substantially breaching any of Contractor’s obligations under this Contract or required by applicable law.

F.5. Remedies. If one party defaults, and the default is not cured within ten days of written notice specifically describing the default, this Contract may be terminated by written notice from the nondefaulting party to the defaulting party.

Include the following if desired, modifying if needed to reflect the appropriate price structure.
In the event of such termination, the following formula is agreed on as a reasonable and fair way to assess the actual damages, without the expense and delay associated with other forms of dispute resolution:

a. Damages to Contractor. If termination resulted from an act of default of Owner, Owner will pay to Contractor, within thirty days of written notice from Contractor, an amount equal to all amounts due and owing at the time of the termination, including payment for Changed Work, plus \[\text{percent}\] percent of the remaining Contract Sum to compensate Contractor for the lost profit and for the difficulty and burden of locating other work for the Contractor's subcontractors to prevent hardship on them and the loss of loyalty resulting from such hardship.

b. Damages to Owner. If termination resulted from an act of default of Contractor, damages recoverable by Owner from Contractor will be in accordance with Texas Property Code chapter 27 (the Residential Construction Liability Act), if applicable. If the Residential Construction Liability Act does not apply, Contractor will pay to Owner, in addition to actual damages, consequential damages, which are liquidated in an amount equal to two months' interest on Owner's interim construction loan (based on the assumption, whether true or not, that there exists such a loan and that it is fully disbursed and in an amount equal to the Contract Sum) to compensate Owner for the time and expense associated with obtaining another contractor to complete the Work. It is agreed by the parties that this liquidated amount is a reasonable estimate of the consequential damages actually incurred by Owner. Payment by Contractor will be delivered to Owner on the earlier of (i) payment of all amounts due to Contractor, with a right of offset to Owner for unpaid damages under this section, (ii) completion of construction of the Improvements; or (iii) the expiration of thirty days from written notice from Owner.

G. Miscellaneous Provisions

G.1. Agreement of Parties. The Contract Documents, including any of their exhibits and attachments, are the entire agreement of the parties. There are no representations, agreements, or promises between the parties, and neither party is relying on any statements or representations of any agent of the other party, that are not in those documents.

G.2. Amendment of Contract. This Contract may be amended only by an instrument in writing signed by the parties.

Commercial Construction Contract Documents

Note: The State Bar of Texas Real Estate Forms Committee is grateful to Charles Comiskey, senior vice president of Brady Chapman Holland & Associates, Inc., an insurance brokerage firm with offices in Houston, Texas, and president of RiskTech, Inc., a risk management consulting firm in Houston, Texas, for his assistance in preparing exhibit D to forms 19-1 and 19-2 in this chapter.

§ 19.1 Nature of Contract

Form 19-1 and 19-2 in this chapter are intended to be used for commercial construction projects that are designed by an architect with participation by the architect’s engineering consultant(s). The term Architect/Engineer as used in the contract designates the design professional for the project.

§ 19.2 Architect and Engineering Services

The statutes applicable to architects and engineers govern the types of design and professional services that may be provided by each. Some professional services may be performed by either an architect or an engineer, including the preparation of site plans and the depiction of building systems. See, e.g., Tex. Occ. Code §§ 1001.0031(d), (e), 1051.0016(b), (c). Certain plans and specifications may be prepared only by a licensed architect or a licensed engineer. See Tex. Occ. Code §§ 1001.0031(c), 1051.703. Some projects may be designed by persons who are not licensed architects or engineers. See, e.g., Tex. Occ. Code §§ 1051.606, 1001.056–.057.

§ 19.3 Role of Architect/Engineer

The commercial construction contract (forms 19-1 and 19-2 in this chapter) designates the Architect/Engineer (A/E) as the owner’s representative and anticipates that the A/E will provide design services before construction and contract administration services during the construction phase. As part of the contract administration services, the A/E will, among other duties, carry out the following: give the notice to proceed, approve payment applications from the contractor, respond to submittals and requests for clarification, review the contractor’s construction schedule, determine whether delay is excused, approve or make reasonable objection to proposed subcontractors, review the contractor’s draw requests for payment, determine whether the project is substantially complete, prepare the list of correction items required (punch list) for final completion, determine whether to recommend the owner’s final payment, and receive information and documents on behalf of the owner, such as lien releases and affidavits of bills paid. The A/E is designated in the contract as the initial decision maker for claims made by the owner or the contractor.

The contract administration services specified in the contract are typical of those in industry-standard forms, such as American Institute of Architects construction contracts. However, the A/E is not a party to the construction contract. Therefore, the terms of the architect’s contract should be made consistent with the A/E provisions in forms 19-1 and 19-2. Alternatively, the architect’s contract can be drafted to incorporate the provisions of forms 19-1 and 19-2 by reference in describing the A/E’s obligations.

§ 19.4:1 Guaranteed Maximum Price

Form 19-1 provides for its contract price to be the sum of the actual cost of the work, plus the contractor’s fee, but not to exceed a stated guaranteed maximum price (GMP). Section F. of the contract specifies the types of construction costs that are reimbursable as the cost of the work. Paragraph F.5. requires the contractor to provide a schedule of values for the owner’s approval. The approved schedule of values will be used to determine progress payments, as provided in section J. The contract price, allowances, contractor’s contingency, owner’s contingency, and the amount of liquidated damages, if required by the owner, are to be set out in exhibit C of the contract.

§ 19.4:2 Stipulated Sum

Form 19-2 provides for its contract price to be a fixed price (the stipulated sum). As with form 19-1, this form of construction contract sets out in Section F. the types of construction costs that are included within the stipulated sum. This is done to illustrate the type of construction costs included, for example, demolition costs, to permit the parties to confirm the scope of the work. Paragraph F.4. requires the contractor to provide a schedule of values for the components of the work. The schedule of values will be useful for the A/E and owner to confirm the progress of construction and in approving progress payments. Exhibit C of form 19-2 sets out the contract price and permits the parties to establish allowances and liquidated damages for unexcused construction delay.

§ 19.5 Retainage

The contract provides for 10 percent retainage to be withheld in accordance with the provisions of chapter 53 of the Texas Property Code.

§ 19.6 Payment and Performance Bonds

The owner may require the contractor to provide payment and performance bonds by designating the requirement on exhibit D of the contract.

§ 19.7 Risk Management

§ 19.7:1 Insurance

The insurance requirements for the owner, contractor, and, if applicable, subcontractors are to be set out in exhibit D, which contains sample insurance requirements. See the discussion of types of insurance and their use in construction projects in chapter 17 in this manual.

§ 19.7:2 Indemnity

The contracts contain at section R. two indemnities: the first is for claims other than employee claims, which is a “limited-form indemnity,” and the second is for employee claims, which is a “broad-form indemnity” as limited by chapter 151 of the Texas Insurance Code. See the discussion of these concepts in chapter 17 in this manual.
§ 19.8 Default and Remedies

Sections M. and N. contain the default and remedies provisions. Paragraph N.7. also includes a waiver of consequential damages as an optional provision. Before selecting the liquidated damages option or determining the liquidated damages amount, the practitioner should consider the enforceability of such clauses. See Phillips v. Phillips, 820 S.W.2d 785, 789 (Tex. 1991); Garden Ridge, L.P. v. Advance International, Inc., 403 S.W.3d 432, 440 (Tex. App.—Houston [14th Dist.] 2013, pet. denied). In Garden Ridge, L.P., the court described the test set out in Phillips as follows:

“The test for determining whether a provision is valid and enforceable as liquidated damages is (1) if the damages for the prospective breach of the contract are difficult to measure, and (2) the stipulated damages are a reasonable estimate of actual damages.” Chan v. Montebello Dev. Co., No. 14-06-00936-CV, 2008 WL 2986379, at *3 (Tex. App.—Houston [14th Dist.] July 31, 2008, pet. denied) (citing Phillips, 820 S.W.2d at 788). Further, we stated:

In order to meet this burden, the party asserting the defense is required to prove the amount of the other parties’ actual damages, if any, to show that the liquidated damages are not an approximation of the stipulated sum. If the liquidated damages are shown to be disproportionate to the actual damages, then the liquidated damages must be declared a penalty. . . .

Id. at 3–4 (citations omitted).

Also, liquidated damages must be in lieu of and not coupled with or in addition to actual damages. A contract provision that “fixes liquidated damages without excluding additional liability for actual damages is not a reasonable forecast of just compensation and therefore a penalty.” Phillips, 820 S.W.2d at 789.

Paragraph J.10. authorizes the owner to withhold payment based on conditions that could result in loss or damages to the owner as long as the conditions remain uncured. The practitioner should consult the provisions of chapter 28 of the Texas Property Code, requiring prompt payment to contractors and subcontractors.

§ 19.9 Warranties

The contractor’s warranties are set out in section P. In addition to the customary one-year warranty against defects in labor and materials, section P expressly provides a ten-year warranty on structural components, including the foundation.

§ 19.10 Choice of Law and Venue

If a contract that provides for the construction of new improvements to real property located in Texas contains a provision making the contract or any conflict arising under the contract subject to the laws of another state, to litigation in the courts of another state, or to arbitration in another state, that provision is voidable by the party obligated to perform the construction. Tex. Bus. & Com. Code §§ 272.001–.002.

A.5. "Change Order" means a description of changes in the Work, and any increase or decrease in the Guaranteed Maximum Price and extension or reduction of Contract Time resulting from such changes, that has been signed by Owner and Contractor.

A.6. "Claim" means a demand or assertion by one of the parties seeking, as a matter of right, payment of money or other relief with respect to the terms of the Construction Documents, and also includes other disputes and matters in question between Owner and Contractor arising out of or relating to the Construction Documents.

The Contractor’s Contingency is not intended to be used to cover increases to the Costs of Construction due to changes in the Scope of Work resulting from errors in the Owner Information or changes to the Scope of Work requested by Owner.

A.12. “Contract Time” means the period provided in this Contract for reaching Substantial Completion, and, if specified, the period for achieving Final Completion.

A.13. “Cost Savings” means the amount equal to the Guaranteed Maximum Price less the total amount paid by Owner to Contractor under this Contract. It does not include savings that result from Owner’s failure to use all of the Owner’s Contingency or to fully use an Allowance or trade discounts, or from Owner’s decisions during construction to use less costly materials than called for in the Plans and Specifications, or to reduce the Scope of Work.

A.14. “Drawings” means the graphic and pictorial portions of the Construction Documents showing the design, location, and dimensions of the Work.

A.15. “Excused Delay” means a delay in Contractor’s performance under the terms of this Contract due to acts of God, strikes, lockouts, labor shortages, labor restrictions by any governmental authority, civil riot, floods, abnormal adverse weather conditions that exceed [number] days, unavoidable casualties, or any cause beyond the control of Contractor, a Subcontractor, or a Supplier of any tier, that could not have been avoided using reasonable diligence. “Excused Delay” does not include delay resulting from negligence, default, or any condition not constituting an Excused Delay.

b. Unloading and Handling Costs. Contractor's costs for unloading and handling at the site, labor, installation costs, overhead, profit, and other expenses contemplated for stated Allowances amounts shall be included in the Costs of Construction but not in the Allowances.
c. Change Orders. Whenever costs are more than or less than Allowances, the Guaranteed Maximum Price shall be modified by Change Order. The amount of the Change Order shall reflect the difference between actual costs and the Allowances.

d. Prompt Selection by Owner. Owner shall select materials and equipment under an Allowance with reasonable promptness.

G. Contract Time

G.1. Contractor will periodically revise and resubmit the Construction Schedule to Owner Rep upon change orders, Excused Delays, or other events that cause the critical path or the Substantial Completion Date to change.

G.2. Risk of Loss before Final Completion. If the Work is damaged or destroyed before its final completion, Contractor will bear the risk of loss and will diligently proceed with restoration or replacement and completion of the Work.

G.3. Acceleration of Work. If there is a delay in the Work that is not an Excused Delay, and in the determination of Owner Rep the Work will not reach Substantial Completion by the Substantial Completion Date, Owner Rep may direct Contractor to accelerate the Work at no cost to Owner by means of overtime, additional crews, additional shifts, or resequencing of the Work to achieve Substantial Completion by the Substantial Completion Date.

G.4. Owner Suspension or Delay in Work Commencement. Owner may, with or without cause, by written directive, require Contractor to suspend or delay commencement of the Work in whole or in part for a length of time as desired by Owner. The Guaranteed Maximum Price and Contract Time are to be equitably adjusted for increases in the Costs of Construction and for the time caused by such delay or suspension under this paragraph. However, no such equitable adjustment shall be made if Owner has the right to order delay or suspension of the Work under another provision of the Construction Documents or if an Unexcused Delay by Contractor would have caused such suspension or delay.

H.2. Terms. Subcontracts with Subcontractors and Suppliers must meet the following requirements:

a. Writing. Be in writing.

Owner, Owner Rep, and Contractor will review the Bids and agree on selection. Contractor will not use a subcontractor or supplier to whom Owner has a reasonable objection. Contractor will not be required to enter into a subcontract or other agreement if Contractor reasonably objects to use of such subcontractor or supplier. If Owner requires Contractor to use a specific subcontractor or supplier instead of the subcontractor or supplier recommended by Contractor who has submitted a lower Bid, the Guaranteed Maximum Price will be increased by the additional amount of the Bid from Owner’s required subcontractor or supplier.

H.5. Directory. Contractor will provide Owner Rep with a written list of all its Subcontractors and Suppliers, and the Major Sub-subcontractors and Major Suppliers of any tier, with the address and telephone number of each. An updated list will be provided to Owner Rep within fifteen days after any change. A final list will be provided to Owner Rep on or before the date of Final Completion of the Project.

H.6. Owner’s Objection to Any Subcontractor. Contractor will not use any Subcontractor to whom Owner or Owner Rep has a reasonable objection. If the replacement of the Subcontractor due to Owner’s objection results in an increase in cost over the Contractor’s anticipated total Costs of Construction, reasonable adjustment to the Guaranteed Maximum Price will be made by Change Order.
H.7. Owner May Confirm Payments to Subcontractors and Sub-subcontractors.

Owner has the right to contact any Subcontractor or Sub-subcontractor to obtain information on payments made by Contractor under the subcontract and to obtain lien waivers and bills-paid affidavits.

I. Contingent Assignment of Subcontracts

I.3. Results of Assumption. Assumption by Owner results in the following:

a. Equitable Adjustment of Subcontract Price. If the Work has been suspended for more than thirty days, the Subcontract price will be equitably adjusted for increases in cost caused by the suspension; contractor will be liable for the additional Costs of Construction.

b. Replacement Contractor. Owner may assign a subcontract that it has assumed to a replacement contractor but will remain liable for the obligations under the subcontract.

c. Continued Liability of Contractor. Contractor will remain liable to Owner and the Subcontractor or Supplier for any unpaid amounts due to the Subcontractor or Supplier, and for any increases in the Costs of Construction described in paragraph F.2., even if the increase does not result in the total Contract Price exceeding the Guaranteed Maximum Price.

J. Payment

J.1. Progress Draws and Final Payment. The Contract Price is payable through Progress Draws and Final Payment as described in this section. Owner will have the right to withhold Retainage from each Progress Draw. Retainage due to Contractor will be included in the Final Payment.

J.2. Progress Payments. On or before the twenty-fifth day of each month after the commencement of Construction (the “Draw Date”), Contractor will assemble and present to Owner Rep a Draw Request for payment for conforming Work performed since the previous Draw Date. b. Draw Individual Scheduled Amount. Multiply each item on the Schedule of Values by its assigned percentage of completion (“Draw Individual Scheduled Value Amount”).

c. Costs of Construction for Each Scheduled Value Item. Determine the Costs of Construction for the Draw period, separate such Costs of Construction by Scheduled Value Item, and calculate the subtotal of the Costs of Construction for each Scheduled Value Item.

d. Lesser Of. Compare each Draw Individual Scheduled Value Amount with the assembled Costs of Construction for each item in the Schedule of Values and include the lesser of the two figures in the amount of the Draw Request.

e. Sum of Lesser Amounts. The total Draw will be the sum of the lesser of the two figures for each Scheduled Value.

f. Contractor’s Fee. Calculate Contractor’s Fee earned through the Draw Date by multiplying the Contractor’s Fee percentage by the total calculated in subparagraph e. above.

h. Deduct Previous Payments to Contractor. Deduct payments previously made to Contractor.

J.4. Payment of Undisputed Items. Owner Rep will review the Draw Request and advise Owner whether to pay it in full or in part. Contractor will promptly provide any additional documentation reasonably requested and answer any questions on the Draw Request.
Owner Rep will promptly notify Contractor of any disputed items in the Draw Request. Owner will have thirty days after the later of (a) the Draw Date or (b) the date that Owner Rep received the Draw Request and required documentation, to pay undisputed items. Undisputed items not paid when due will bear interest until paid at the rate specified in the Texas Prompt Payment Act, Texas Property Code chapter 28.

J.5. Claims for Payment Disputes. Either party may make a Claim in connection with a payment dispute.

J.6. Final Payment. Final payment will be made according to the following job inspection and closeout process, and is subject to the conditions precedent to final payment, as follows:

a. Substantial Completion; Final Completion. When Contractor determines that the Work has progressed to the point of reaching Substantial Completion, Contractor will give written notice to Owner Rep, and Owner Rep will promptly inspect the Work. If Owner Rep determines that the Work is Substantially Complete, Owner Rep will issue a certificate of substantial completion and prepare a punch list for Work that needs to be completed along with an agreed-on time for completion. If Owner Rep determines that the Work is not acceptable or is not Substantially Complete, Owner Rep will prepare a written list of Work that needs to be remedied or completed to achieve Substantial Completion. Contractor shall perform the Work to achieve Final Completion of the Work, including completion of all punch list items, within thirty days after receipt of Owner Rep’s list or within an agreed-on period for completion. Owner Rep will determine the dates for Substantial and Final Completion.
b. Final Draw. Upon Owner Rep’s written acknowledgement that the punch list has been completed, Contractor will submit a Final Draw Request. The amount of the final draw (“Final Payment”) will be the balance of the Contract Price, after deducting amounts paid by Owner to Suppliers, Subcontractors, and Sub-subcontractors, amounts for unreleased mechanic’s liens, amounts withheld by Owner pursuant to paragraph J.10., and previous payments to Contractor.

\textit{J.12. Acceptance of Final Payment.} Final Payment will be deemed accepted by Contractor when the check has been deposited or wire transfer received. Acceptance of Final Payment by Contractor constitutes a waiver of all claims by Contractor not previously received in writing by Owner Rep.

L.2. Material Breaches. Notwithstanding anything to the contrary in the Construction Documents, Contractor agrees that it will not attempt in any way to recover or pursue a Claim for delay if Contractor or a Subcontractor, Sub-subcontractor, or Supplier to Contractor has, before the claimed delay, materially breached any contractual duty or obligation in the Construction Documents, or any duty or obligation at common law or created by statute, to the extent such breach causes, affects, or otherwise contributes to such delay, and such breach remains uncured at the time a Claim accrues.

L.3. Owner Claims. Owner agrees to notify Contractor of any Claim, including Claims for Unexcused Delay and defects in the Work, within five Business Days after Owner becomes aware of the basis for the Claim.

L.4. Initial Decision Maker Process. All Claims arising under this Contract will be first submitted to Owner Rep as the Initial Decision Maker. Owner Rep’s decision is a condition precedent to proceeding with mediation, as provided for in paragraph L.5. Owner Rep will issue a decision within thirty days after receiving the Claim and supporting documentation. Owner Rep may extend the initial decision deadline for up to an additional thirty days in order to receive supporting documentation and data and replies from the opposing party. If Owner Rep is unable to render a decision within the allotted period, or if either party is dissatisfied with the decision, either party may request mediation.

L.5. Mediation. If the dispute is not resolved by the decision of the Initial Decision Maker, either party may request mediation of the dispute using a neutral mediator to be agreed on by the parties. Contractor will continue to perform the Work during the pendency of mediation.

a. Time Defaults. Failure to timely render or otherwise furnish responses, decisions, or selections according to the Construction Documents.

b. Payment Defaults. Failure to comply with Owner’s payment obligations under the Construction Documents.

c. Substantial Breach. Substantial breach of any of Owner’s obligations under this Contract.

M.2. Contractor’s Default. Each of the following constitutes a material breach of this Contract by Contractor:

a. Work Commencement Default. Failure by Contractor to commence the Work in accordance with the provisions of this Contract.

b. Work Prosecution Default. Failure by Contractor to prosecute the Work to completion in a diligent, efficient, timely, workmanlike, skillful, and careful manner and in strict accordance with the provisions of the Contract.

c. Time Defaults. Failure by Contractor to use an adequate number of qualified personnel or adequate amount of equipment to complete the Work without causing Unexcused Delay.
d. Performance Defaults. Contractor’s persistent failure to perform any of its material obligations under the Contract.

e. Payment Defaults. Contractor’s persistent failure to make prompt payments when due to its Subcontractors and Suppliers, unless Contractor has a bona fide dispute with any such Subcontractor or Supplier.

f. Bankrupt. Contractor creates any situation or state of facts that would authorize or permit an involuntary petition in bankruptcy to be filed against Contractor.

g. Breach of Timely Completion. Contractor has not met, or in Owner Rep’s and Owner’s reasonable opinion, based on the schedules required by the Construction Documents, will not meet the dates of Substantial Completion set forth in the Construction Documents.

N. Remedies

N.1. Owner Remedies

a. Owner’s Right to Suspend Work. If Contractor fails, after notice to correct Work that is defective or not in conformance with the requirements of the Construction Documents, or repeatedly fails to perform the Work in accordance with the Construction Documents, Owner or Owner Rep may issue a written notice to Contractor to suspend the Work, in whole or part, until Contractor cures the reasons for issuance of the suspension notice. Owner’s right in this section does not create a duty by Owner to suspend work for the benefit of Contractor or Subcontractors of any tier.

b. Owner Cure. If Contractor is in default and does not within ten Business Days after receipt of Owner’s or Owner Rep’s written notice to commence and continue diligent, continuous effort to correct the default, Owner may cure such default and withhold payment from Contractor for the reasonable cost and expenses incurred for Owner’s cure. If insufficient amounts remain to be paid to Contractor, Contractor must pay Owner the reasonable costs and expenses to cure in excess of the remaining funds to be paid to Contractor.

N.2. Contractor Remedies. Contractor will give written notice to Owner or Owner Rep if Owner is in material breach of Owner obligations under the Construction Documents. The notice will state the specific items of Owner default and notify Owner that Owner must cure the items within ten Business Days of receipt of the notice or Contractor may suspend Work until Owner’s material breach is cured or corrected. Contractor may terminate the Contract in accordance with paragraph N.3 if suspension of the Work by Contractor under this section continues without Owner cure for thirty or more days.

N.3. Termination. If one party defaults and the default is not cured by exercise of the remedies specified in paragraph N.1 or N.2, upon an additional ten Business Days’ prior written notice specifically describing the default, and provided the defaulting party has not commenced diligent, good-faith, continuous, and effective action to cure the default within the ten-day period, this Contract may be terminated by an additional written notice from the nondefaulting party to the defaulting party. If there is such a termination, the following formula is agreed on as a reasonable and fair way to assess the actual damages, without the expense and delay associated with other forms of dispute resolution:

a. Damages to Contractor. If termination resulted from an act of default of Owner, Owner will pay to Contractor, within thirty days after written notice from Contractor, an amount equal to all amounts due and owing for the Work performed in accordance with the Construction Documents at the time of the termination, plus 10 percent of the remaining Guaranteed Maximum Price to compensate Contractor for the lost profit.
b. Damages to Owner. If termination resulted from an act of default of Contractor, Owner may do any of the following:

i. Take Over Work. Use all materials, equipment, tools, and construction equipment owned by Contractor and occupy the Project site.

ii. Accept Subcontracts and Supplier Agreements. Accept assignment of Subcontracts and assume, in Owner's sole discretions, any agreements with Suppliers and Sub-subcontractors.

iii. Costs to Complete. Finish the Work as expeditiously as reasonably possible provided the costs for completion and correction of the Work are reasonable and necessary. If requested, Owner will furnish Contractor a statement of costs in correcting and completing the Work, along with reasonable documentation of such costs. If Owner terminates according to this paragraph, no further payments will be due Contractor until final completion is reached. If, at that time, Owner's costs to complete and correct the Work exceed the unpaid balance of the Guaranteed Maximum Price, Contractor will pay the difference to Owner upon written demand.

iv. Liquidated Damages. Assess liquidated damages if Substantial Completion has not been achieved as provided in Exhibit C.

c. Recourse to Performance Bond. Upon the occurrence of a Contractor default, Owner may make demand on the surety to perform its obligations under a Performance Bond provided for the Project.
N.4. Damages for Contractor’s Unexcused Delay. If the Work is not Substantially Complete by the Substantial Completion Date due to Contractor’s Unexcused Delay, Owner may assess liquidated damages as provided in Exhibit C.

N.5. Excused Delay. If it is determined that Contractor has been delayed by an Excused Delay, the time to complete the Work will be extended by one day for each day of an Excused Delay. This extension of the Contract Time will be Contractor’s sole remedy for an Excused Delay, and no monetary damage or other compensation is due Contractor for such delay.

N.6. Damages for Owner’s Delay. If it is determined that Contractor has been delayed by an Excused Delay, the time to complete the Work will be extended by one day for each day of an Excused Delay. This extension of the Contract Time will be Contractor’s sole remedy for an Excused Delay, unless the delay is due to acts of Owner constituting unreasonable interference with Contractor’s ability to perform the Work that continues after notice of the interference is given by Contractor. The exercise by Owner of any right provided by this Contract, including suspension of Work, does not constitute unreasonable interference with Contractor’s ability to perform the Work. Contractor will be entitled to the General Conditions and other direct Costs of Construction described in paragraph F.2. for each day of delay due to Owner’s interference.

N.7. Waiver of Consequential Damages. Except as provided in this section N., Owner and Contractor each waive the right to recover consequential damages in a suit or action brought against the other arising out of a default under the Construction Documents, regardless of whether the claim for recovery is based in contract or tort.

O. Owner’s Right to Terminate for Convenience. Owner has the right to terminate this Contract for Owner’s convenience by giving Contractor thirty days’ prior written notice.
of termination. Upon such termination, Contractor will be entitled to payment as described in subparagraph N.3.a.

P. Warranties

P.1. Express Warranty. Contractor warrants to Owner that labor, materials, and equipment furnished under the Contract will be new and of high quality and will be free from defects and that all Work will be performed in a good and workmanlike manner and will conform to the Construction Documents. Work will be considered defective if it does not conform to the Construction Documents.

P.2. Ten-Year Structural Component Warranty. Contractor additionally expressly warrants all structural components of the Project, including the foundation, for ten years following Substantial Completion.

P.3. One-Year Callback and Correction of Work. For a period of one year following Substantial Completion, Contractor will repair or replace any defective Work at no charge if Owner provides written notice to Contractor of a warranty claim during the one-year warranty period.

P.4. Assignment of Third-Party Warranties. Contractor hereby assigns all equipment, roofing, and other vendor warranties to Owner and will deliver all manuals, books, instructions, and warranty policy documentation to Owner as part of the Conditions to Final Payment.

P.5. Cumulative of Other Warranties and Remedies. The warranties set forth in this section P. are cumulative of, and in addition to, all other warranties or remedies available at law or by this Contract and can be assigned by Owner.
Q. Safety

Q.1. Construction Means, Methods, Techniques, Sequences, and Procedures. Owner will not have control over or charge of and will not be responsible for construction means, methods, techniques, sequences, or procedures used or for safety precautions and programs in connection with the Work, since these are solely Contractor's responsibility.

Q.2. Compliance with Applicable Laws. Contractor shall give notices and comply with applicable laws, ordinances, rules, regulations, and lawful orders of public authorities bearing on safety of persons and property and their protection from damage, injury, or loss.

Q.3. Remedy Contractor-Caused Property Damage. Contractor shall promptly remedy damage and loss to property at the site, or off-site, if caused in whole or in part by Contractor, a Subcontractor, or anyone directly or indirectly employed by any of them or by anyone for whose acts they may be liable and for which Contractor is responsible.

Q.4. Reasonable Precautions and Reasonable Protection. As between Contractor and Owner, Contractor shall be responsible for all safety at the Project Site, including safety of personnel, material, and the Work. Contractor shall be responsible for providing any security necessary to prevent damage or loss to materials, equipment, the Improvements, and other property in the vicinity of the Project until Final Completion.

FEES, CONNECTED WITH PERFORMANCE OF THIS CONTRACT OR THE CONSTRUCTION CONTEMPLATED BY THIS CONTRACT TO THE EXTENT CAUSED BY THE BREACH OF CONTRACT, NEGLIGENCE, OR OTHER ACT OR OMISSION OF CONTRACTOR, ITS SUBCONTRACTORS, SUB-SUBCONTRACTORS OF ANY TIER, OR ANYONE DIRECTLY OR INDIRECTLY EMPLOYED BY THEM OR ANYONE FOR WhOSE ACTS THEY MAY BE LIABLE.

R.2. Employee Claims. In addition, regarding claims for the bodily injury or death of an employee of Contractor, its agent(s), or its Subcontractors of any tier (hereinafter referred to as “Employee Claim” or “Employee Claims”), Contractor will indemnify, defend, and hold harmless Indemnitees from all such Employee Claims, suits, actions, proceedings, damages, losses, and expenses whatsoever connected with performance of this Contract, including such Employee Claims, damages, losses, or expenses actually or allegedly arising in whole or in part from the negligence of Indemnitees. It is the expressed intent of Contractor and Owner that in the case of an Employee Claim, the indemnity provided for in this section is an indemnity extended by Contractor to indemnify and protect Indemnitees from the consequences of Indemnitees’ own negligence whether or not that negligence is the sole or contributing cause of the resultant Employee Claims. Contractor further agrees in this connection to defend at its own expense Indemnitees from any claims or litigation in connection with any such Employee Claims.

tion under this agreement shall not be limited by a limitation on amount or type of damages, compensation, or benefits payable by or for Contractor or a Subcontractor under workers’ compensation acts, disability benefit acts, or other employee benefit acts.

S. Miscellaneous

S.1. Effect of Invalid Provision. Should any clause in this Contract be found invalid by a court of law, the remainder of the Contract shall not be affected thereby, and all other provisions of this Contract shall remain valid and enforceable.

S.2. Entire Agreement; Modification. The Construction Documents contain the entire agreement between the parties for the construction of the Project and cannot be modified except by written Change Order or modification.

S.3. Nonassignment. This Contract shall not be assigned by Contractor without the written consent of Owner. This limitation shall not apply to Contractor’s right to retain Subcontractors for the prosecution of portions of the Work in the normal course of its construction business.

S.4. Execution of Other Documents; Further Action. Each party shall, on demand, execute or obtain such other documents or instruments and corrective filings or instruments and use all commercially reasonable efforts to do or cause such other things as may be reasonably necessary or desirable to effect the provisions and purposes of this Contract.

S.5. Fees and Expenses of Actions. If any litigation (an “Action”) is commenced, including an Action for declaratory relief, to enforce or interpret the terms of this Contract, or any document or instrument executed in connection with or pursuant to this Contract, or involving any controversy or Claim between or among the parties to this Contract, whether sounding in contract, tort, or statute, whether through arbitration, probate, bankruptcy, receivership, or other judicial or administrative proceeding, the prevailing party in such Action (the “Prevailing Party”) shall be entitled to recover reasonable attorney’s fees, paralegal costs, expert witness and consulting expert fees and costs, and other expenses, costs, and necessary disbursements incurred by the Prevailing Party in the investigation, preparation, pursuit, or defense of any claim asserted by any party in such Action in addition to any other relief to which the Prevailing Party may be otherwise entitled, at law or hereunder, in the amount determined by the fact finder(s) or the court.

S.6. Gender and Number. Unless otherwise required by context, the genders shall include each other and the singular shall include the plural and the plural the singular.

S.7. Headings. Headings, tables of contents, captions, titles, and marginal notations are for convenience only and shall not limit or restrict the interpretation or construction of the passage(s) to which such headings, tables of contents, captions, titles, and notations may relate.

S.8. Notices. Any notice to be given or to be served on any party hereto, in connection with this instrument, must be in writing and may be given in person or by courier, overnight delivery service, e-mail, or certified or registered mail. Such notice shall be deemed to have been given and received when actually received, in the case of hand delivery, overnight delivery service, or express mail, when a certified or registered letter containing such notice, properly addressed, with postage prepaid, is deposited in the United States mail; and, if given by e-mail, when received by the party to whom it is addressed. Notice shall be given to Owner, Owner Rep, and Contractor at the addresses set forth at the beginning of this Contract. Any party hereto may at any time by giving five days’ written notice to the other party hereto designate any other address, phone number, or e-mail address in substitution of the address, phone number, or e-mail address set forth at the beginning of this Contract to which such notice shall be given. Exhibits may be changed from time to time as the parties may agree. When Exhibits are changed, they shall be redrafted in accordance with agreed changes, dated as of the effective date of such changes, and signed by the parties. Copies of changed Exhibits shall be furnished to each party, and such changed Exhibits shall become a part of this Contract for all purposes. The failure of any party at any time or times to require performance of any provision hereof shall in no manner affect the right to enforce the provision. No waiver by any party of any condition contained in this Contract, or of the breach of any term, provision, representation, warranty, or covenant contained in this Contract, in any one or more instances, shall be deemed to be or construed as a further or continuing waiver of any such condition or breach or as a waiver of any other condition or of the breach of any other term, provision, representation, warranty, or covenant.

S.12. Lender Cooperation. Contractor agrees to cooperate, and cause its Subcontractors to cooperate, with the reasonable requirements of any Lender that Owner may elect to obtain financing from, including the requirement that Contractor subordinate, and cause its Subcontractors to subordinate, any lien they may have by statute against the Property to the lien of the Lender.
S.13. Independent Contractor. Contractor occupies the status of an independent contractor, as that term is defined in the construction industry.

B. GENERAL INSURANCE REQUIREMENTS

1. Definitions. For purposes of this Exhibit:
   b. Owner Parties. “Owner Parties” means (a) __________________ (“Owner”), (b) the project manager, (c) any lender whose loan is secured by a lien against the Property, (d) their respective shareholders, members, partners, joint venturers, affiliates, subsidiaries, successors and assigns, (e) any directors, officers, employees, or agents of such persons or entities, and (f) others as required by the Agreement.
   d. ISO. “ISO” means Insurance Services Office.

2. Policies.
   a. Insurer Qualifications. All insurance required to be maintained by Contractor must be issued by carriers having a Best’s Rating of A or better, and a Best’s Financial Size Category of VIII, or better, and/or Standard & Poor Insurance Solvency Review A-, or better, and authorized to engage in the business of insurance in the State in which the Improvements are located.
   b. No Waiver. Failure of Owner to demand such certificates or other evidence of full compliance with these insurance requirements or failure of Owner to identify a deficiency from evidence that is provided shall not be construed as a waiver of Contractor’s obligation to maintain such insurance. Commencement of Work without provision of the required certificate of insurance, evidence of insurance and/or required endorsements, or without compliance with any other provision of this Contract, shall not constitute a waiver by any Owner Party of any rights. The Owner shall have the right, but not the obligation, of prohibiting the Contractor or any Subcontractor from performing any Work until such certificate of insurance, evidence of insurance and/or required endorsements are received and approved by the Owner.
   c. Delivery Deadlines. Contractor shall provide Owner within 10 days of Owner’s request with certified copies of all insurance policies. Renewal policies, if necessary, shall be delivered to the Owner prior to the expiration of the previous policy.
   d. Waiver of Subrogation. All policies maintained by Contractor, whether required herein or not, shall contain a waiver of subrogation in favor of the Owner Parties.
   e. Notice. All policies maintained by Contractor shall provide for 30 days’ prior written notice of cancellation to Owner.
   f. Compliance With Laws. If any insurance requirements are deemed to violate any law, statute or ordinance, the insurance requirements shall be reformed to provide the maximum amount of protection to Owner as allowed under the law.

3. Limits, Deductibles and Retentions.
   a. Coverage Limits. The limits of liability may be provided by a single policy of insurance or by a combination of primary and excess policies, but in no event shall the total limits of liability available for any one Occurrence or accident be less than the amount required herein.
   b. Deductible and Retention Limits. No deductible or self-insured retention shall exceed $____ without the prior written approval of the Owner, except as otherwise specified herein. All deductibles and retentions shall be paid, assumed, for the account of, and at the Contractor’s sole risk. The Contractor shall not be reimbursed for same.
   c. Policy Limits. “Limits” set out in these specifications are the minimum dollar amount of insured coverage for the risk or peril specified. If Contractor or its contractors maintain greater limits, then these specifications shall not limit the amount of recovery available to Owner and the limits specified below as the minimum limits are increased to the greater limits.
   d. Post Completion Coverage. With respect to the insurance to be maintained after final payment to Contractor, an additional certificate evidencing such coverage shall be provided to Owner with final application for payment if the prior certificate has expired, and thereafter upon renewal or replacement of such insurance until the expiration of the time period for which such insurance must be maintained.
   e. Use of the Owner’s Equipment. The Contractor, its agents, employees, Subcontractors or suppliers shall use the Owner’s equipment only with express written permission of the Owner’s designated representative and in accordance with the Owner’s terms and condition for such use. If the Contractor or any of its agents, employees, Subcontractors or suppliers utilize any of the Owner’s equipment for any purpose, including machinery, tools, scaffolding, hoists, lifts or similar items owned, leased or under the control of the Owner, the Contractor shall defend, indemnify and be liable to the Owner Parties for any and all loss or damage which may arise from such use.

4. Forms.
   a. Approved Revisions and Substitutions. If the forms of policies, endorsements, certificates, or evidence of insurance required by these specifications are superseded or discontinued, Owner will have the right to require other equivalent forms.
   b. Approved Forms. Any policy or endorsement forms other than a form specified in this Exhibit must be approved in advance by Owner.
c. Compliance with Laws. If any additional insured requirements are deemed to violate any law, statute or ordinance, the additional insured requirements, including any additional insured policy provision or endorsements procured pursuant to the Agreement, shall be reformed to provide the maximum amount of protection to the Owner Parties as allowed under the law.

5. Evidence of Insurance. Insurance must be evidenced as follows:

   b. Delivery Deadlines. Evidence to be delivered to Owner prior to entry on the Property and thereafter at least 30 days prior to the expiration of current policies or on replacement of each certified coverage and within 10 days of Owner’s request for an updated certificate.

   c. Certificate Requirements. Certificates must:

      (1) Insured. State the insured’s name and address.

      (2) Insurer. State the name of each insurance company affording each coverage, policy number of each coverage, policy dates of each coverage, all coverage limits and sublimits, if any, by type of coverage, and show the signature of the authorized representative signing the certificate on behalf of the insurer.

      (3) Additional Insured Status and Subrogation Waiver. Specify the additional insured status and waivers of subrogation as required by these specifications.

      (4) Primary Status. State the primary and non-contributing status required herein.

      (5) Deductibles and Self-Insured Retentions Stated. State the amounts of all deductibles and self-insured retentions.

      (6) Copy of Endorsements and Policy Declaration Page. Be accompanied by certified copies of all required endorsements and policy declaration page reflecting issuance of the endorsements.

      (7) Notices. Be accompanied by insurer certified copy of notice of cancellation endorsement providing that 30 days’ notice of cancellation and material change will be sent to the certificate holder.

      (8) Certificate Holder. Be addressed to the Owner as the certificate holder and show Owner’s correct address. A separate certificate is to be addressed and delivered to Owner’s lender.

      (9) Producer. State the producer of the certificate with correct address and phone number listed.

      (10) Authorized Representative. Be executed by a duly authorized representative of the insurers.

   d. Suspension. Owner shall have the right, but not the obligation, of suspending Contractor’s services, without an increase in the sum payable by Owner to Contractor due to such suspension, until such certificates or other evidence that the required insurance has been placed in compliance with these requirements is received and approved by Owner.

6. Contractor Insurance Representations to Owner Parties.

   a. Minimum Requirements. The insurance coverages required herein (1) represent Owner Parties’ minimum requirements and are not to be construed to void or limit the Contractor’s indemnity obligations as contained in the Agreement nor represent in any manner a determination of the insurance coverages the Contractor should or should not maintain for its own protection; and (2) are being, or have been, obtained by the Contractor in support of the Contractor’s liability and indemnity obligations under this Contract. Irrespective of the requirements as to insurance to be carried as provided for herein, the insolvency, bankruptcy or failure of any insurance company carrying insurance of the Contractor, or the failure of any insurance company to pay claims accruing, shall not be held to affect, negate or waive any of the provisions of the Agreement.

   b. Defaults. Failure to obtain and maintain the required insurance shall constitute a material breach of, and default under, the Agreement. If the Contractor shall fail to remedy such breach within five business days after notice by the Owner, the Contractor will be liable for any and all costs, liabilities, damages and penalties resulting to the Owner Parties from such breach, unless a written waiver of the specific insurance requirement is provided to the Contractor by the Owner. In the event of any failure by the Contractor to comply with the provisions of this Contract, the Owner may, without in any way compromising or waiving any right or remedy at law or in equity, on notice to the Contractor, purchase such insurance, at the Contractor’s expense, provided that the Owner shall have no obligation to do so and if the Owner shall do so, the Contractor shall not be relieved of or excused from the obligation to obtain and maintain such insurance amounts and coverages.

   c. Survival. This Exhibit is an independent contract provision and shall survive the termination or expiration of the Agreement.

9. RELEASE AND WAIVER. To the extent permitted by law, each of Contractor and Owner (the “RELEASED PERSON”) releases and waives any claims it may have against the other party or its partners, officers, directors, employees or agents (the “RELEASED PERSONS”) for business interruption or damage to property sustained by the RELEASED PARTY as the result of any act or omission of the RELEASED PERSON in any way connected with any loss covered by insurance, whether required herein or not, or which should have been covered by insurance required herein, including the deductible and uninsured PORTION THEREOF, MAINTAINED OR REQUIRED TO BE MAINTAINED BY THE RELEASING PARTY PURSUANT TO THE AGREEMENT. THE WAIVER OF CLAIMS CONTAINED IN THIS SECTION (A) WILL SURVIVE THE COMPLETION OF THE WORK OR THE TERMINATION OF THE AGREEMENT AND (B) WILL APPLY EVEN IF THE LOSS IS CAUSED IN WHOLE OR IN PART BY THE ORDINARY NEGLIGENCE OR STRICT LIABILITY OF THE RELEASED PERSONS BUT WILL NOT APPLY TO THE EXTENT A LOSS OF DAMAGE IS CAUSED BY THE GROSS NEGLIGENCE OR WILLFUL MISCONDUCT OF THE RELEASED PERSONS.

10. Insurance Requirements of Contractor’s Subcontractors.

a. Coverage. Insurance similar to that required of the Contractor shall be provided by all Subcontractors (or provided by the Contractor on behalf of Subcontractors) to cover operations performed under any subcontract agreement. The Contractor shall be held responsible for any modification in these insurance requirements as they apply to Subcontractors. The Contractor shall maintain certificates of insurance from all Subcontractors containing provisions similar to those listed herein (modified to recognize that the certificate is from Subcontractor) enumerating, among other things, the waivers of subrogation, additional insured status, and primary liability as required herein, and make them available to the Owner upon request.

ANY INSURANCE COVERING THE CONTRACTOR’S OR ITS SUBCONTRACTOR’S PROPERTY SHALL BE THE CONTRACTOR’S AND ITS SUBCONTRACTOR’S SOLE AND COMPLETE MEANS OR RECOVERY FOR ANY SUCH LOSS. TO THE EXTENT ANY LOSS IS NOT COVERED BY SAID INSURANCE OR SUBJECT TO ANY DEDUCTIBLE OR CO-INSURANCE, THE CONTRACTOR SHALL NOT BE REIMBURSED FOR SAME. SHOULD THE CONTRACTOR OR ITS SUBCONTRACTORS CHOOSE TO SELF-INSURE THIS RISK, IT IS EXPRESSLY AGREED THAT THE CONTRACTOR HEREBY WAIVES, AND SHALL CAUSE ITS SUBCONTRACTORS TO WAIVE, ANY CLAIM FOR DAMAGE OR LOSS TO SAID PROPERTY IN FAVOR OF THE OWNER PARTIES.

F.5. Allowances. Contractor shall include in the Contract Price the Allowances shown in Exhibit C. Items covered by Allowances shall be supplied for such amounts and by such persons or entities as Owner may direct, but Contractor is not required to employ persons or entities to whom Contractor has reasonable objection. G. Contract Time

   G.3. Acceleration of Work. If there is a delay in the Work that is not an Excused Delay, and in the determination of Owner Rep the Work will not reach Substantial Completion by the Substantial Completion Date, Owner Rep may direct Contractor to accelerate the Work at no cost to Owner by means of overtime, additional crews, additional shifts, or resequencing of the Work to achieve Substantial Completion by the Substantial Completion Date.

G.4. Owner Suspension or Delay in Work Commencement. Owner may, with or without cause, by written directive, require Contractor to suspend or delay commencement of the Work in whole or in part for a length of time as desired by Owner. The Contract Price and Contract Time are to be equitably adjusted for increases in the Costs of Construction and for the time caused by such delay or suspension under this paragraph. However, no such equitable adjustment shall be made if Owner has the right to order delay or suspension of the Work under another provision of the Construction Documents or if an Unexcused Delay by Contractor would have caused such suspension or delay.

H. Subcontracts

H.1. Subcontracting. Contractor may subcontract all or any part of the Work.

H.2. Terms. Subcontracts with Subcontractors and Suppliers must meet the following requirements:

a. Writing. Be in writing.

H.4. Owner’s Review of Subcontractors and Subcontractors’ Bids. Owner may require Contractor to provide Bids from Major Subcontractors, Major Sub-subcontractors, and Major Suppliers. Owner, Owner Rep, and Contractor will review the Bids and agree on selection. Contractor will not use a subcontractor or supplier to whom Owner has a reasonable objection. Contractor will not be required to enter into a subcontract or other agreement if Contractor reasonably objects to use of such subcontractor or supplier. If Owner requires Contractor to use a specific subcontractor or supplier instead of the subcontractor or supplier recommended by Contractor who has submitted a lower Bid, the Contract Price will be increased by the additional amount of the Bid from Owner’s required subcontractor or supplier.

H.5. Directory. Contractor will provide Owner Rep with a written list of all its Subcontractors and Suppliers, and the Major Sub-subcontractors and Major Suppliers of any tier, with the address and telephone number of each. H.6. Owner’s Objection to Any Subcontractor. Contractor will not use any Subcontractor to whom Owner or Owner Rep has a reasonable objection. If the replacement of the Subcontractor due to Owner’s objection results in an increase in cost over the Contractor’s anticipated total Costs of Construction, reasonable adjustment to the Contract Price will be made by Change Order.

H.7. Owner May Confirm Payments to Subcontractors and Sub-subcontractors.

Owner has the right to contact any Subcontractor or Sub-subcontractor to obtain information on payments made by Contractor under the subcontract and to obtain lien waivers and bills-paid affidavits.

I. Contingent Assignment of Subcontracts

I.1. Events Triggering Assignment. Each subcontract is assigned by Contractor to Owner and the surety under a performance bond provided by Contractor, contingent on the occurrence of all of the following:

b. Termination of Contractor. Owner has terminated Contractor under this Contract pursuant to paragraph N.3. or section O.

c. Assumption of Subcontract. Owner has notified Contractor and the Subcontractor in writing that it assumes the subcontract or that it has made demand on the surety and the surety has so notified the Subcontractor.

I.3. Results of Assumption. Assumption by Owner results in the following:

a. Equitable Adjustment of Subcontract Price. If the Work has been suspended for more than thirty days, the Subcontract price will be equitably adjusted for increases in cost caused by the suspension; contractor will be liable for the additional Costs of Construction.

b. Replacement Contractor. Owner may assign a subcontract that it has assumed to a replacement contractor but will remain liable for the obligations under the subcontract.

c. Continued Liability of Contractor. Contractor will remain liable to Owner and the Subcontractor or Supplier for any unpaid amounts due to the Subcontractor or Supplier, and for any increases in the Costs of Construction described in paragraph F.2.

J. Payment

J.1. Progress Draws and Final Payment. The Contract Price is payable through Progress Draws and Final Payment as described in this section. Owner will have the right to withhold Retainage from each Progress Draw. Retainage due to Contractor will be included in the Final Payment.

J.2. Progress Payments. On or before the twenty-fifth day of each month after the commencement of Construction (the “Draw Date”), Contractor will assemble and present to Owner Rep a Draw Request for payment for conforming Work performed since the previous Draw Date. The amount of each Draw will be computed as follows, in the following order of operations:
a. Assigned Percentage of Completion. For each item in the Schedule of Values ("Scheduled Value Item") the Contractor will assign a percentage for the conforming Work accomplished through the Draw Date.

b. Draw Individual Scheduled Amount. Multiply each item on the Schedule of Values by its assigned percentage of completion ("Draw Individual Scheduled Value Amount").

c. Costs of Construction for Each Scheduled Value Item. Determine the Costs of Construction for the Draw period, separate such Costs of Construction by Scheduled Value Item, and calculate the subtotal of the Costs of Construction for each Scheduled Value Item.

d. Lesser Of. Compare each Draw Individual Scheduled Value Amount with the assembled Costs of Construction for each item in the Schedule of Values and include the lesser of the two figures in the amount of the Draw Request.

e. Sum of Lesser Amounts. The total Draw will be the sum of the lesser of the two figures for each Scheduled Value.

f. Deduct Retainage. Deduct Retainage from the total calculated in subparagraph e. above.

g. Deduct Previous Payments to Contractor. Deduct payments previously made by Owner to Contractor.

h. Deduct Paid by Owner to Contractor’s Suppliers and Subcontractors. Deduct amounts paid by Owner to Contractor’s suppliers or subcontractors.

J.4. Payment of Undisputed Items. Owner Rep will review the Draw Request and advise Owner whether to pay it in full or in part. Contractor will promptly provide any additional documentation reasonably requested and answer any questions on the Draw Request.
Owner Rep will promptly notify Contractor of any disputed items in the Draw Request. Owner will have thirty days after the later of (a) the Draw Date or (b) the date that Owner Rep received the Draw Request and required documentation, to pay undisputed items. Undisputed items not paid when due will bear interest until paid at the rate specified in the Texas Prompt Payment Act, Texas Property Code chapter 28.

J.5. Claims for Payment Disputes. Either party may make a Claim in connection with a payment dispute.

J.6. Final Payment. Final payment will be made according to the following job inspection and closeout process, and is subject to the conditions precedent to final payment, as follows:

a. Substantial Completion; Final Completion. When Contractor determines that the Work has progressed to the point of reaching Substantial Completion, Contractor will give written notice to Owner Rep, and Owner Rep will promptly inspect the Work. If Owner Rep determines that the Work is Substantially Complete, Owner Rep will issue a certificate of substantial completion and prepare a punch list for Work that needs to be completed along with an agreed-on time for completion. If Owner Rep determines that the Work is not acceptable or is not Substantially Complete, Owner Rep will prepare a written list of Work that needs to be remedied or completed to achieve Substantial Completion. Contractor shall perform the Work to achieve Final Completion of the Work, including completion of all punch list items, within thirty days after receipt of Owner Rep’s list or within an agreed-on period for completion. Owner Rep will determine the dates for Substantial and Final Completion.
b. Final Draw. Upon Owner Rep’s written acknowledgement that the punch list has been completed, Contractor will submit a Final Draw Request. The amount of the final draw ("Final Payment") will be the balance of the Contract Price, after deducting amounts paid by Owner to Suppliers, Subcontractors, and Sub-subcontractors, amounts for unreleased mechanic’s liens, amounts withheld by Owner pursuant to paragraph J.10., and previous payments to Contractor.

xii. As-Built Drawings. As-built drawings have been delivered to Owner Rep.

xiii. Owner Manuals and Training Completed. All Owner Manuals and keys have been delivered to Owner Rep, and Project control/security and other systems checkout and training contemplated by the Construction Documents has been performed.

J.7. Date of Final Payment. The Final Payment, including release of all Retainage payable to Contractor, is due within fifty days after the Conditions Precedent to Final Payment have been satisfied or waived by Owner in writing.

J.8. Filing Affidavit of Final Completion. Owner will file in the real property records of each county in which the Project is located and provide notice to Contractor of its Affidavit of Final Completion within three Business Days after both of the following have occurred: (a) the Conditions Precedent to Final Payment have been met, and (b) Owner Rep has received Contractor’s Final Draw Request.

J.9. Resolution of Lien Claims. Any notice of lien claims or lien affidavits filed after notice and recordation of the Owner Affidavit will be resolved by Contractor and Owner Rep in accordance with one of the methods described in subparagraph J.6.c.viii., ix., or x. above, at Owner’s sole discretion.

J.10. Withholding Payment. Owner has the right to withhold from payments otherwise due to Contractor amounts deemed reasonably necessary, on advice from Owner Rep, to protect Owner from damage or liability due to any of the following:

- Defects. Uncorrected defective work.
- Overruns. Reasonable evidence that the cost to complete will exceed the balance of the Contract Price.
- Injuries or Property Damages. Claims of injury or property damage to Owner, a third party, or another contractor.
- Delays. Reasonable evidence that Substantial Completion will not be reached according to the Construction Schedule, as revised.
- Work Defaults. Repeated failure by Contractor to perform the Work according to the Construction Documents.
- Mechanic’s Liens. Mechanic’s liens filed or noticed on the Project not removed by Contractor’s furnishing a bond acceptable to Owner pursuant to chapter 53 of the Texas Property Code or other Contractor arrangements accepted by Owner in writing as sufficient to secure indemnity from such lien or claim.

When the basis for withholding has been resolved, Owner will promptly pay to Contractor any amounts not needed to protect Owner from damage or liability.

J.11. Owner Payment to Subcontractors. Owner will promptly notify Contractor if Owner receives a notice of nonpayment from a Subcontractor or Supplier of any tier. If Contractor does not provide Owner Rep with an Unconditional Release for the amount owed, or satisfactory evidence that Contractor has bonded around the claim within fifteen days after notification, Owner may make payment by joint check to Contractor and the claimant, unless a payment bond has been provided for the Project.

J.12. Acceptance of Final Payment. Final Payment will be deemed accepted by Contractor when the check has been deposited or wire transfer received. Acceptance of Final Payment by Contractor constitutes a waiver of all claims by Contractor not previously received in writing by Owner Rep.

K. Change Orders and Required Changes

K.1. Contract Price and Contract Time. Owner, without invalidating the Contract, may order changes in the Work. All changes will be made by written Change Order, signed by Owner and Contractor, that states the adjustment in the Contract Price and the Contract Time.

K.2. Contractor to Proceed. If Owner and Contractor cannot agree on the adjustment to the Contract Price, Owner may require Contractor to proceed with the Work by written Required Change signed by Owner. The Contract Price will be adjusted on a time and materials basis.

L. Claims

L.1. Contractor's Claims. Contractor's Claims for extensions of time or changes to the Contract Price must be submitted to Owner Rep in writing within seven days after the date when the events giving rise to the Claim occurred. Within fourteen days after the submission of such Claim, Contractor will furnish Owner Rep with Contractor's calculations of additional time needed to complete the Work and, if applicable, the anticipated increase to the Costs of Construction and documentation supporting Contractor's Claim. Contractor will furnish additional information in support of such Claims as reasonably required by Owner or Owner Rep. Contractor will proceed with the Work during the pendency of any such Claims.

L.2. Material Breaches. Notwithstanding anything to the contrary in the Construction Documents, Contractor agrees that it will not attempt in any way to recover or pursue a Claim for delay if Contractor or a Subcontractor, Sub-subcontractor, or Supplier to Contractor has, before the claimed Delay, materially breached any contractual duty or obligation in the Construction Documents, or any duty or obligation at common law or created by statute, to the extent such breach causes, affects, or otherwise contributes to such delay, and such breach remains uncured at the time a Claim accrues.

L.3. Owner Claims. Owner agrees to notify Contractor of any Claim, including Claims for Unexcused Delay and defects in the Work, within five Business Days after Owner becomes aware of the basis for the Claim.

L.4. Initial Decision Maker Process. All Claims arising under this Contract will be first submitted to Owner Rep as the Initial Decision Maker. Owner Rep's decision is a condition precedent to proceeding with mediation, as provided for in paragraph L.5. Owner Rep will issue a decision within thirty days after receiving the Claim and supporting documentation. Owner Rep may extend the initial decision deadline for up to an additional thirty days in order to receive supporting documentation and data and replies from the opposing party. If Owner Rep is unable to render a decision within the allotted period, or if either party is dissatisfied with the decision, either party may request mediation.

L.5. Mediation. If the dispute is not resolved by the decision of the Initial Decision Maker, either party may request mediation of the dispute using a neutral mediator to be agreed on by the parties. Contractor will continue to perform the Work during the pendency of mediation.
L.6. Litigation. If a resolution is not reached through mediation, either party may pursue litigation.

M. Material Breach

M.1. Owner's Default. Each of the following constitutes a material breach of this Contract by Owner:

a. Time Defaults. Failure to timely render or otherwise furnish responses, decisions, or selections according to the Construction Documents.

b. Payment Defaults. Failure to comply with Owner's payment obligations under the Construction Documents.

c. Substantial Breach. Substantial breach of any of Owner's obligations under this Contract.

M.2. Contractor's Default. Each of the following constitutes a material breach of this Contract by Contractor:

a. Work Commencement Default. Failure by Contractor to commence the Work in accordance with the provisions of this Contract.

b. Work Prosecution Default. Failure by Contractor to prosecute the Work to completion in a diligent, efficient, timely, workmanlike, skillful, and careful manner and in strict accordance with the provisions of the Contract.

c. Time Defaults. Failure by Contractor to use an adequate number of qualified personnel or adequate amount of equipment to complete the Work without causing Unexcused Delay.
d. Performance Defaults. Contractor's persistent failure to perform any of its material obligations under the Contract.

e. Payment Defaults. Contractor's persistent failure to make prompt payments when due to its Subcontractors and Suppliers, unless Contractor has a bona fide dispute with any such Subcontractor or Supplier.

f. Bankrupt. Contractor creates any situation or state of facts that would authorize or permit an involuntary petition in bankruptcy to be filed against Contractor.

g. Breach of Timely Completion. Contractor has not met, or in Owner Rep's and Owner's reasonable opinion, based on the schedules required by the Construction Documents, will not meet the dates of Substantial Completion set forth in the Construction Documents.

N. Remedies

a. Owner's Right to Suspend Work. If Contractor fails, after notice to correct Work that is defective or not in conformance with the requirements of the Construction Documents, or repeatedly fails to perform the Work in accordance with the Construction Documents, Owner or Owner Rep may issue a written notice to Contractor to suspend the Work, in whole or part, until Contractor cures the reasons for issuance of the suspension notice. Owner's right in this section does not create a duty by Owner to suspend work for the benefit of Contractor or Subcontractors of any tier.

b. Owner Cure. If Contractor is in default and does not within ten Business Days after receipt of Owner's or Owner Rep's written notice to commence and continue diligent, continuous effort to correct the default, Owner may cure such default and withhold payment from Contractor for the reasonable cost and expenses incurred for Owner's cure. If insufficient amounts remain to be paid to Contractor, Contractor must pay Owner the reasonable costs and expenses to cure in excess of the remaining funds to be paid to Contractor.

N.2. Contractor Remedies. Contractor will give written notice to Owner or Owner
Rep if Owner is in material breach of Owner obligations under the Construction Documents.
The notice will state the specific items of Owner default and notify Owner that Owner must cure the items within ten Business Days of receipt of the notice or Contractor may suspend Work until Owner's material breach is cured or corrected. Contractor may terminate the Contract in accordance with paragraph N.3. if suspension of the Work by Contractor under this section continues without Owner cure for thirty or more days.

N.3. Termination. If one party defaults and the default is not cured by exercise of the remedies specified in paragraph N.1. or N.2., upon an additional ten Business Days' prior written notice specifically describing the default, and provided the defaulting party has not commenced diligent, good-faith, continuous, and effective action to cure the default within the ten-day period, this Contract may be terminated by an additional written notice from the nondefaulting party to the defaulting party. If there is such a termination, the following formula is agreed on as a reasonable and fair way to assess the actual damages, without the expense and delay associated with other forms of dispute resolution:

a. Damages to Contractor. If termination resulted from an act of default of Owner, Owner will pay to Contractor, within thirty days after written notice from Contractor, an amount equal to all amounts due and owing for the Work performed in accordance with the Construction Documents at the time of the termination, plus 10 percent of the remaining Contract Price to compensate Contractor for the lost profit.
b. Damages to Owner. If termination resulted from an act of default of Contractor, Owner may do any of the following:

i. Take Over Work. Use all materials, equipment, tools, and construction equipment owned by Contractor and occupy the Project site.

ii. Accept Subcontracts and Supplier Agreements. Accept assignment of Subcontracts and assume, in Owner’s sole discretions, any agreements with Suppliers and Sub-subcontractors.

iii. Costs to Complete. Finish the Work as expeditiously as reasonably possible provided the costs for completion and correction of the Work are reasonable and necessary. If requested, Owner will furnish Contractor a statement of costs in correcting and completing the Work, along with reasonable documentation of such costs. If Owner terminates according to this paragraph, no further payments will be due Contractor until final completion is reached. If, at that time, Owner’s costs to complete and correct the Work exceed the unpaid balance of the Contract Price, Contractor will pay the difference to Owner upon written demand.

iv. Liquidated Damages. Assess liquidated damages if Substantial Completion has not been achieved as provided in Exhibit C.

c. Recourse to Performance Bond. Upon the occurrence of a Contractor default, Owner may make demand on the surety to perform its obligations under a Performance Bond provided for the Project.

N.4. Damages for Contractor’s Unexcused Delay. If the Work is not Substantially Complete by the Substantial Completion Date due to Contractor’s Unexcused Delay, Owner may assess liquidated damages as provided in Exhibit C.
N.5. Excused Delay. If it is determined that Contractor has been delayed by an Excused Delay, the time to complete the Work will be extended by one day for each day of an Excused Delay. This extension of the Contract Time will be Contractor’s sole remedy for an Excused Delay, and no monetary damage or other compensation is due Contractor for such delay.

N.6. Damages for Owner’s Delay. If it is determined that Contractor has been delayed by an Excused Delay, the time to complete the Work will be extended by one day for each day of an Excused Delay. This extension of the Contract Time will be Contractor’s sole remedy for an Excused Delay, unless the delay is due to acts of Owner constituting unreasonable interference with Contractor’s ability to perform the Work that continues after notice of the interference is given by Contractor. The exercise by Owner of any right provided by this Contract, including suspension of Work, does not constitute unreasonable interference with Contractor’s ability to perform the Work. Contractor will be entitled to the General Conditions and other direct Costs of Construction described in paragraph F.2. for each day of delay due to Owner’s interference.

N.7. Waiver of Consequential Damages. Except as provided in this section N., Owner and Contractor each waive the right to recover consequential damages in a suit or action brought against the other arising out of a default under the Construction Documents, regardless of whether the claim for recovery is based in contract or tort.

O. Owner’s Right to Terminate for Convenience. Owner has the right to terminate this Contract for Owner’s convenience by giving Contractor thirty days’ prior written notice of termination. Upon such termination, Contractor will be entitled to payment as described in subparagraph N.3.a.
P. Warranties

P.1. Express Warranty. Contractor warrants to Owner that labor, materials, and equipment furnished under the Contract will be new and of high quality and will be free from defects and that all Work will be performed in a good and workmanlike manner and will conform to the Construction Documents. Work will be considered defective if it does not conform to the Construction Documents.

P.2. Ten-Year Structural Component Warranty. Contractor additionally expressly warrants all structural components of the Project, including the foundation, for ten years following Substantial Completion.

P.3. One-Year Callback and Correction of Work. For a period of one year following Substantial Completion, Contractor will repair or replace any defective Work at no charge if Owner provides written notice to Contractor of a warranty claim during the one-year period. Nothing contained in this paragraph P.3. shall be construed to establish a period of limitations for other obligations Contractor has under the Construction Documents. Establishment of the one-year period for correction of Work relates only to the specific obligation of Contractor to correct the Work and has no relationship to the time within which the obligation to comply with the Construction Documents may be sought to be enforced nor to the time within which proceedings may be commenced to establish Contractor’s liability for Contractor’s obligations other than specifically to correct the Work.

P.4. Assignment of Third-Party Warranties. Contractor hereby assigns all equipment, roofing, and other vendor warranties to Owner and will deliver all manuals, books, instructions, and warranty policy documentation to Owner as part of the Conditions to Final Payment.
P.5. Cumulative of Other Warranties and Remedies. The warranties set forth in this section P. are cumulative of, and in addition to, all other warranties or remedies available at law or by this Contract, including implied warranties, and can be assigned by Owner.

Q. Safety

Q.1. Construction Means, Methods, Techniques, Sequences, and Procedures. Owner will not have control over or charge of and will not be responsible for construction means, methods, techniques, sequences, or procedures used or for safety precautions and programs in connection with the Work, since these are solely Contractor's responsibility.

Q.2. Compliance with Applicable Laws. Contractor shall give notices and comply with applicable laws, ordinances, rules, regulations, and lawful orders of public authorities bearing on safety of persons and property and their protection from damage, injury, or loss.

Q.3. Remedy Contractor-Caused Property Damage. Contractor shall promptly remedy damage and loss to property at the site, or off-site, if caused in whole or in part by Contractor, a Subcontractor, or anyone directly or indirectly employed by any of them or by anyone for whose acts they may be liable and for which Contractor is responsible.

Q.4. Reasonable Precautions and Reasonable Protection. As between Contractor and Owner, Contractor shall be responsible for all safety at the Project Site, including safety of personnel, material, and the Work. Contractor shall be responsible for providing any security necessary to prevent damage or loss to materials, equipment, the Improvements, and other property in the vicinity of the Project until Final Completion.

R. Indemnity

R.1. Claims Other than Employee Claims. TO THE FULLEST EXTENT PERMITTED BY APPLICABLE LAW, CONTRACTOR SHALL INDEMNIFY, DEFEND, AND HOLD HARMLESS LENDER, OWNER, OWNER'S MEMBERS, MANAGERS, PARTNERS, AFFILIATED COMPANIES OF OWNER, AND ANY PARTNER, AND THEIR RESPECTIVE OFFICERS, DIRECTORS, SHAREHOLDERS, EMPLOYEES, AND AGENTS (COLLECTIVELY, THE “INDEMNITEES”) FROM ALL CLAIMS, SUITS, ACTIONS, PROCEEDINGS, DAMAGES, LOSSES, AND EXPENSES WHATSOEVER, INCLUDING ATTORNEY’S FEES, CONNECTED WITH PERFORMANCE OF THIS CONTRACT OR THE CONSTRUCTION CONTEMPLATED BY THIS CONTRACT TO THE EXTENT CAUSED IN WHOLE OR IN PART BY THE BREACH OF CONTRACT, NEGLIGENCE, OR OTHER ACT OR OMISSION OF CONTRACTOR, ITS SUBCONTRACTORS, SUB-SUBCONTRACTORS OF ANY TIER, OR ANYONE DIRECTLY OR INDIRECTLY EMPLOYED BY THEM OR ANYONE FOR WHOSE ACTS THEY MAY BE LIABLE, BUT NOT TO THE EXTENT CAUSED IN WHOLE OR IN PART BY THE ACT OR OMISSION, INCLUDING NEGLIGENCE, OF AN INDEMNITEE.

R.2. Employee Claims. IN ADDITION, REGARDING CLAIMS FOR THE BODILY INJURY OR DEATH OF AN EMPLOYEE OF CONTRACTOR, ITS AGENT(S), OR ITS SUBCONTRACTORS OF ANY TIER (HEREINAFTER REFERRED TO AS “EMPLOYEE CLAIM” OR “EMPLOYEE CLAIMS”), CONTRACTOR WILL INDEMNIFY, DEFEND, AND HOLD HARMLESS INDEMNITEES FROM ALL SUCH EMPLOYEE CLAIMS, SUITS, ACTIONS, PROCEEDINGS, DAMAGES, LOSSES, AND EXPENSES WHATSOEVER CONNECTED WITH PERFORMANCE OF THIS CONTRACT, INCLUDING SUCH EMPLOYEE CLAIMS, DAMAGES, LOSSES, OR EXPENSES ACTUALLY OR ALLEGEDLY ARISING IN WHOLE OR IN PART FROM THE NEGLIGENCE OF INDEMNITEES. IT IS THE EXPRESSED INTENT OF CONTRACTOR AND OWNER THAT IN THE CASE OF AN EMPLOYEE CLAIM, THE INDEMNITY PROVIDED FOR IN THIS SECTION IS AN INDEMNITY EXTENDED BY CONTRACTOR TO INDEMNIFY AND PROTECT INDEMNITEES FROM THE CONSEQUENCES OF INDEMNITEES’ OWN NEGLIGENCE WHETHER OR NOT THAT NEGLIGENCE IS THE SOLE OR CONTRIBUTING CAUSE OF THE RESULTANT EMPLOYEE CLAIMS. CONTRACTOR FURTHER AGREES IN THIS CONNECTION TO DEFEND AT ITS OWN EXPENSE INDEMNITEES FROM ANY CLAIMS OR LITIGATION IN CONNECTION WITH ANY SUCH EMPLOYEE CLAIMS.

Include the following employee claims indemnity paragraph if applicable.
[R.2./R.3.] Limitations. In claims against any person or entity indemnified under this section by an employee of Contractor, a Subcontractor, or anyone directly or indirectly employed by them or anyone for whose acts they may be liable, the indemnification obligation under this agreement shall not be limited by a limitation on amount or type of damages, compensation, or benefits payable by or for Contractor or a Subcontractor under workers' compensation acts, disability benefit acts, or other employee benefit acts. The indemnity in this section R. survives the completion of the Work or termination of this Contract. It is the intent of the parties to this Contract not to violate the provisions of chapter 151 of the Texas Insurance Code. In the event the provisions of this Contract violate the provisions of chapter 151 of the Texas Insurance Code, this Contract is revised to limit this Contract to comply with chapter 151 of the Texas Insurance Code.

S. Insurance and Bonds

S.1. Contractor's Insurance and Bonds. Contractor shall purchase and maintain insurance and bonds of the types and limits, containing the endorsements, and in compliance with the terms and conditions as specified for Contractor to obtain, maintain, and comply with in Exhibit D (Insurance and Bond Requirements) of this Contract or elsewhere in the Construction Documents.

S.2. Owner's Insurance. Owner shall purchase and maintain insurance and bonds of the types and limits, containing the endorsements, and subject to the terms and conditions as specified for Owner to obtain, maintain, and comply with in Exhibit D (Insurance and Bond Requirements) of this Contract or elsewhere in the Construction Documents.
T. Miscellaneous

T.1. Effect of Invalid Provision. Should any clause in this Contract be found invalid by a court of law, the remainder of the Contract shall not be affected thereby, and all other provisions of this Contract shall remain valid and enforceable.

T.2. Entire Agreement; Modification. The Construction Documents contain the entire agreement between the parties for the construction of the Project and cannot be modified except by written Change Order or modification.

T.3. Nonassignment. This Contract shall not be assigned by Contractor without the written consent of Owner. This limitation shall not apply to Contractor’s right to retain Subcontractors for the prosecution of portions of the Work in the normal course of its construction business.

T.4. Execution of Other Documents; Further Action. Each party shall, on demand, execute or obtain such other documents or instruments and corrective filings or instruments and use all commercially reasonable efforts to do or cause such other things as may be reasonably necessary or desirable to effect the provisions and purposes of this Contract.

T.5. Fees and Expenses of Actions. If any litigation (an “Action”) is commenced, including an Action for declaratory relief, to enforce or interpret the terms of this Contract, or any document or instrument executed in connection with or pursuant to this Contract, or involving any controversy or Claim between or among the parties to this Contract, whether sounding in contract, tort, or statute, whether through arbitration, probate, bankruptcy, receivership, or other judicial or administrative proceeding, the prevailing party in such Action (the “Prevailing Party”) shall be entitled to recover reasonable attorney’s fees, paralegal costs, expert witness and consulting expert fees and costs, and other expenses, costs, and necessary disbursements incurred by the Prevailing Party in the investigation, preparation, pursuit, or defense of any claim asserted by any party in such Action in addition to any other relief to which the Prevailing Party may be otherwise entitled, at law or hereunder, in the amount determined by the fact finder(s) or the court.

T.6. Gender and Number. Unless otherwise required by context, the genders shall include each other and the singular shall include the plural and the plural the singular.

T.7. Headings. Headings, tables of contents, captions, titles, and marginal notations are for convenience only and shall not limit or restrict the interpretation or construction of the passage(s) to which such headings, tables of contents, captions, titles, and notations may relate.

T.8. Notices. Any notice to be given or to be served on any party hereto, in connection with this instrument, must be in writing and may be given in person or by courier, overnight delivery service, e-mail, or certified or registered mail. Such notice shall be deemed to have been given and received when actually received, in the case of hand delivery, overnight delivery service, or express mail; when a certified or registered letter containing such notice, properly addressed, with postage prepaid, is deposited in the United States mail; and, if given by e-mail, when received by the party to whom it is addressed. Notice shall be given to Owner, Owner Rep, and Contractor at the addresses set forth at the beginning of this Contract.
Any party hereto may at any time by giving five days’ written notice to the other party hereto designate any other address, phone number, or e-mail address in substitution of the address, phone number, or e-mail address set forth at the beginning of this Contract to which such notice shall be given. Owner Rep must be copied on any notice given to Owner.

T.9. Schedules, Addenda, Exhibits, and Attachments. All schedules, addenda, exhibits, and attachments and other documents or items identified as being attached hereto
(the “Exhibits”) shall be a part of this Contract for all purposes. Exhibits may be changed from time to time as the parties may agree. When Exhibits are changed, they shall be redrafted in accordance with agreed changes, dated as of the effective date of such changes, and signed by the parties. Copies of changed Exhibits shall be furnished to each party, and such changed Exhibits shall become a part of this Contract for all purposes. An Exhibit that has been changed shall cease to be a part of this Contract, and the most recently dated Exhibit, signed by all parties, shall govern.

T.10. Third-Party Beneficiaries; None Created. Nothing express or implied in this Contract is intended to confer, nor shall anything herein confer, on any person other than the parties hereto and the respective successors or assigns of the parties hereto, any rights, remedies, obligations, or liabilities whatsoever.

T.11. Waiver. No waiver of any term of this Contract shall be valid unless it is in writing and signed by both parties. The failure of any party at any time or times to require performance of any provision hereof shall in no manner affect the right to enforce the provision. No waiver by any party of any condition contained in this Contract, or of the breach of any term, provision, representation, warranty, or covenant contained in this Contract, in any one or more instances, shall be deemed to be or construed as a further or continuing waiver of any such condition or breach or as a waiver of any other condition or of the breach of any other term, provision, representation, warranty, or covenant.

T.12. Lender Cooperation. Contractor agrees to cooperate, and cause its Subcontractors to cooperate, with the reasonable requirements of any Lender that Owner may elect to obtain financing from, including the requirement that Contractor subordinate, and cause its Subcontractors to subordinate, any lien they may have by statute against the Property to the lien of the Lender.

T.13. Independent Contractor. Contractor occupies the status of an independent contractor, as that term is defined in the construction industry.

   d. ISO. “ISO” means Insurance Services Office.

2. Policies.

All insurance required to be maintained by Contractor must be issued by carriers having a Best’s Rating of A or better, and a Best’s Financial Size Category of VIII, or better, and/or Standard & Poor’s Insurance Solvency Review A-, or better, and authorized to engage in the business of insurance in the State in which the Improvements are located.

   b. No Waiver. Failure of Owner to demand such certificates or other evidence of full compliance with these insurance requirements or failure of Owner to identify a deficiency from evidence that is provided shall not be construed as a waiver of Contractor’s obligation to maintain such insurance. Commencement of Work without provision of the required certificate of insurance, evidence of insurance and/or required endorsements, or without compliance with any other provision of this Contract, shall not constitute a waiver by any Owner Party of any rights. The Owner shall have the right, but not the obligation, of prohibiting the Contractor or any Subcontractor or suppliers from performing any Work until such certificate of insurance, evidence of insurance and/or required endorsements are received and approved by the Owner.

   c. Delivery Deadlines. Contractor shall provide Owner within 10 days of Owner’s request with certified copies of all insurance policies. Renewal policies, if necessary, shall be delivered to the Owner prior to the expiration of the previous policy.

   b. Deductible and Retention Limits. No deductible or self-insured retention shall exceed $____ without the prior written approval of the Owner, except as otherwise specified herein. All deductibles and retentions shall be paid, assumed, or provided for by the account of, and at the Contractor’s sole risk. The Contractor shall not be reimbursed for same.

   c. Policy Limits. “Limits” set out in these specifications are the minimum dollar amount of insured coverage for the risk or peril specified. If Contractor or its contractors maintain greater limits, then these specifications shall not limit the amount of recovery available to Owner and Contractor. The limits specified below as the minimum limits are increased to the greater limits.

   d. Post Completion Coverage. With respect to the insurance to be maintained after final payment to Contractor, an additional certificate evidencing such coverage shall be provided to Owner with final application for payment if the prior certificate has expired, and thereafter upon renewal or replacement of such insurance until the expiration of the time period for which such insurance must be maintained.

   e. Use of the Owner’s Equipment. The Contractor, its agents, employees, Subcontractors or suppliers shall use the Owner’s equipment only with express written permission of the Owner’s designated representative and in accordance with the Owner’s terms and condition for such use. If the Contractor or any of its agents, employees, Subcontractors or suppliers utilize any of the Owner’s equipment for any purpose, including machinery, tools, scaffolding, hoists, lifts or similar items owned, leased or under the control of the Owner, the Contractor shall defend, indemnify and be liable to the Owner Parties for any and all loss or damage which may arise from such use.

4. Forms.

   a. Approved Revisions and Substitutions. If the forms of policies, endorsements, certificates, or evidence of insurance required by these specifications are superseded or discontinued, Owner will have the right to require other equivalent forms.

   b. Approved Forms. Any policy or endorsement forms other than a form specified in this Exhibit must be approved in advance by Owner.
c. Compliance with Laws. If any additional insured requirements are deemed to violate any law, statute or ordinance, the additional insured requirements, including any additional insured policy provision or endorsements procured pursuant to the Agreement, shall be reformed to provide the maximum amount of protection to the Owner Parties as allowed under the law.

5. Evidence of Insurance. Insurance must be evidenced as follows:

b. Delivery Deadlines. Evidence to be delivered to Owner prior to entry on the Property and thereafter at least 30 days prior to the expiration of current policies or on replacement of each certified coverage and within 10 days of Owner’s request for an updated certificate.

c. Certificate Requirements. Certificates must:

(2) Insurer. a. Minimum Requirements. The insurance coverages required herein (1) represent Owner Parties’ minimum requirements and are not to be construed to void or limit the Contractor’s indemnity obligations as contained in the Agreement nor represent in any manner a determination of the insurance coverages the Contractor should or should not maintain for its own protection; and (2) are being, or have been, obtained by the Contractor in support of the Contractor’s liability and indemnity obligations under this Contract. Irrespective of the requirements as to insurance to be carried as provided for herein, the insolvency, bankruptcy or failure of any insurance company carrying insurance of the Contractor, or the failure of any insurance company to pay claims accruing, shall not be held to affect, negate or waive any of the provisions of the Agreement.

b. Defaults. Failure to obtain and maintain the required insurance shall constitute a material breach of, and default under, the Agreement. If the Contractor shall fail to remedy such breach within five business days after notice by the Owner, the Contractor will be liable for any and all costs, liabilities, damages and penalties resulting to the Owner Parties from such breach, unless a written waiver of the specific insurance requirement is provided to the Contractor by the Owner. In the event of any failure by the Contractor to comply with the provisions of this Contract, the Owner may, without in any way compromising or waiving any right or remedy at law or in equity, on notice to the Contractor, purchase such insurance, at the Contractor’s expense, provided that the Owner shall have no obligation to do so and if the Owner shall do so, the Contractor shall not be relieved of or excused from the obligation to obtain and maintain such insurance amounts and coverages.

c. Survival. This Exhibit is an independent contract provision and shall survive the termination or expiration of the Agreement.

9. RELEASE AND WAIVER. TO THE EXTENT PERMITTED BY LAW, EACH OF CONTRACTOR AND OWNER (THE “RELEASED PARTIES”) RELEASES AND WAIVES ANY CLAIMS IT MAY HAVE AGAINST THE OTHER PARTY OR ITS PARTNERS, OFFICERS, DIRECTORS, EMPLOYEES OR AGENTS (THE “RELEASED PERSONS”) FOR BUSINESS INTERRUPTION OR DAMAGE TO PROPERTY SUSTAINED BY THE RELEASED PARTY AS THE RESULT OF ANY ACT OR OMISSION OF THE RELEASED PERSON IN ANY WAY CONNECTED WITH ANY LOSS COVERED BY INSURANCE, WHETHER REQUIRED HEREIN OR NOT, OR WHICH SHOULD HAVE BEEN COVERED BY INSURANCE REQUIRED HEREIN, INCLUDING THE DEDUCTIBLE AND UNINSURED
10. Insurance Requirements of Contractor's Subcontractors.

   a. Coverage. Insurance similar to that required of the Contractor shall be provided by all Subcontractors (or provided by the Contractor on behalf of Subcontractors) to cover operations performed under any subcontract agreement. The Contractor shall be held responsible for any modification in these insurance requirements as they apply to Subcontractors. The Contractor shall maintain certificates of insurance from all Subcontractors containing provisions similar to those listed herein (modified to recognize that the certificate is from Subcontractor) enumerating, among other things, the waivers of subrogation, additional insured status, and primary liability as required herein, and make them available to the Owner upon request.

   b. Allocation of Risk. The Contractor is fully responsible for loss and damage to its property on the site, including tools and equipment, and shall take necessary precautions to prevent damage to or vandalism, theft, burglary, pilferage and unexplained disappearance of property. Any insurance covering the Contractor’s or its Subcontractor’s property shall be the Contractor’s and its Subcontractor’s sole and complete means or recovery for any such loss. To the extent any loss is not covered by said insurance or subject to any deductible or co-insurance, the Contractor shall not be reimbursed for same. Should the Contractor or its Subcontractors choose to self-insure this risk, it is expressly agreed that the Contractor hereby waives, and shall cause its Subcontractors to waive, any claim for damage or loss to said property in favor of the Owner Parties.

Contractual Mechanic’s Lien Documents

§ 20.1 General Considerations

§ 20.1:1 Use of Forms

This chapter outlines common transactions for the creation and documentation of mechanic’s liens on homesteads.

The Texas Constitution distinguishes between “work and material used in constructing new improvements” and “work and material used to repair or renovate existing improvements” on homestead property. Several requirements are added if the contractor or lender is obtaining a lien for repair or renovation of a homestead. See Tex. Const. art. XVI, § 50(a)(5)(A)–(D). This chapter contains forms suggested for use in new construction projects and for repair or renovation construction. The forms include a mechanic’s lien contract (form 20-1), a mechanic’s lien note (form 20-2), and closing certificates (forms 20-6 and 20-7), which confirm owner compliance with the homestead requirements for transactions involving new construction or renovation or repair of existing homesteads.

Section 20.6 below suggests other forms that may be necessary in various transactions, and chapter 12 in this manual discusses truth-in-lending notices and disclosure statements, which are required in several kinds of transactions. Chapter 18 contains a residential construction contract form. The forms and procedures contained in chapter 18 must be reviewed to ensure compliance with the terms of the residential construction contract, the loan disclosure requirements, and the closing procedure requirements of sections 53.255 through 53.260 of the Texas Property Code, although failure to follow these requirements for residential contracts might not invalidate the lien securing the residential construction loan. See Tex. Prop. Code §§ 53.255(c), 53.256(c), 53.257(c), 53.258(e). The residential construction contract (form 18-4) should be referenced in the mechanic’s lien contract (form 20-1). The residential construction contract addresses many construction contract terms not addressed by the mechanic’s lien contract.

The forms in this chapter are designed to function interdependently to create and document liens arising from the credit financing of building a home located on homestead property. The choice of which forms to use and which optional provisions to include in the forms for a given transaction depends on several factors, such as which party is extending credit, who owns the property, whether the project is for construction of a new residence or is for renovation or repair of an existing homestead, and whether the lien is primary or subordinate. The mechanic’s lien note, form 20-2, should not be used without the supporting documents suggested in this chapter.

If the construction loan does not affect homestead property, attorneys usually use the deed of trust (see chapter 8) and note (see chapter 6) instead of the mechanic’s lien documents.

If the mechanic’s lien contract is used for new improvements to a homestead, the property owner may not be able to refinance any payments made to the contractor or any amount owed to the contractor (other than with a home equity loan) if construction begins before appropriate documentation is executed, acknowledged, and filed. If the owner intends to finance or refinance any part of the consideration, the appropriate documents and procedures prescribed in this chapter must be implemented before construction begins. Tex. Const. art. XVI, § 50(a)(5); Tex. Prop. Code § 53.254.
Caution: Only fixed-rate, simple interest may be charged in transactions using these forms. Mechanic’s lien transactions face the cumulative and complex restrictions imposed by federal and state consumer protection laws, Texas homestead laws, and the Texas Finance Code. See sections 20.1:2 and 20.1:3 below. For this reason, transactions documented by the forms in this chapter must not use add-on interest or variable interest rates, either of which would require significant revision of the documents.

§ 20.1:2 Homestead Considerations

The Texas homestead exemption generally does not preclude a contractual lien for improvements from attaching to the homestead. However, contractors, laborers, and materialmen must create such a lien in strict compliance with constitutional, statutory, and regulatory formalities. Kendall Builders, Inc. v. Chesson, 149 S.W.3d 796, 807 (Tex. App.—Austin 2004, pet. denied).

Source of Requirements for Contractual Liens for Improvements: The basic requirements for all contractual liens for improvements to the homestead are found at Tex. Const. art. XVI, § 50(a)(5). These constitutional requirements are in certain cases supplemented by additional requirements found at Tex. Prop. Code §§ 41.001, 53.254. Additionally, the Texas Finance Commission has issued regulations interpreting these constitutional and statutory formalities found at 7 Tex. Admin. Code ch. 152.

The formalities necessary for a valid contractual lien for improvements against the homestead are different depending on whether the contract is for new improvements or for repairs or renovations to existing improvements. Tex. Const. art. XVI, § 50(a)(5). Additionally, statutory requirements differ depending on whether the property improved is a business or residential homestead. See Tex. Prop. Code § 53.251(a). Practitioners must be attentive to these variables when drafting a contractual lien for improvements made to the homestead.

Contract Must Set Forth Terms of Agreement: A contractual lien for improvements to a residential homestead must set forth the terms of the agreement between the owner and the contractor. This requirement is not applicable to improvements made to a business homestead. Tex. Prop. Code §§ 41.001(b)(3), 53.254(a). The written contract between the owner and the contractor must at a minimum recite (1) the principal amount of the loan, (2) the interest rate, (3) the date that the final payment is due, (4) a description of the property, (5) a general description of the materials to be supplied or labor performed, and (6) that a lien is granted to secure payment. In re Burnett, 120 B.R. 839, 841–42 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 1990). The contract need only provide the general nature of the improvements. It is not necessary that the contract contain a detailed itemized statement of the work performed or materials furnished. Gomez v. Riddle, 334 S.W.2d 197, 200 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 1960, no writ).

Contract Must Be Executed before Commencement of Work: A contractual lien for improvements to a homestead must be executed before the contractor furnishes any materials or performs any labor. Tex. Prop. Code §§ 41.001(b)(3), 53.254(b).

Required Five-Day Waiting Period: If the extension of credit is to secure the repair or renovation of existing improvements to the homestead, whether with a contractor or third-party lender, the owner must complete a credit application for the extension of credit, and a five-day waiting period must expire between the date that the homeowner makes application for the extension of credit and the date that the contractual lien is executed. Any lien instrument executed before the expiration of the five-day waiting period is invalid. Tex. Const. art. XVI, § 50(a)(5)(B). To count the five days, the day after the application for the extension of credit is made is day one. If the fifth calendar day falls on a Sunday or a federal legal public holiday, the contractual lien may not be executed until the next calendar day that is not a Sunday or a federal legal public holiday. 7 Tex. Admin. Code § 152.9.

The five-day waiting period is not required if the work or materials are necessary to complete immediate repairs to conditions on the homestead property that materially affect the health and safety of the owner or person residing in the homestead and the owner acknowledges this exigency in writing. Tex. Const. art. XVI, § 50(a)(5)(B). This written acknowledgment must at a minimum (1) describe the conditions of the homestead property, (2) describe how the conditions of the homestead property affect the health and safety of the owner or person residing in the homestead, and (3) state that the owner is waiving the five-day waiting period required by Tex. Const. art. XVI, § 50(a)(5)(B). Printed forms for this purpose are prohibited. 7 Tex. Admin. Code § 152.13.

Required Preclosing Disclosures: When the owner obtains third-party financing for the construction of improvements to a residential homestead, the lender must deliver to the owner all documentation relating to the closing of the loan not later than one business day before the date of the closing. If a bona fide emergency or other good cause exists and the lender obtains the written consent of the owner, the lender may provide the documentation or modify previously provided documentation on the date of closing. Tex. Prop. Code § 53.257(a).

In addition, the lender must deliver to the owner before the date of closing the extensive statutory disclosure specified at Tex. Prop. Code § 53.255. If a bona fide emergency or other good cause exists and the lender obtains the written consent of the owner, the lender may provide the required statutory disclosure at closing. The lender must retain a signed and dated copy of this disclosure with the closing documents for the loan. Tex. Prop. Code § 53.257(b).

A failure by the lender or contractor to provide these disclosures does not invalidate the lien. Tex. Prop. Code §§ 53.255(c), 53.257(c).

Right of Rescission: A contract for work or materials for repairs or renovations to existing homestead improvements must provide that the contract may be rescinded by the owner or the owner’s spouse without penalty within three calendar days after execution of the contract by the parties. Tex. Const. art. XVI, § 50(a)(5)(C). To count the three days, the day after the contract is executed is day one. If the third calendar day falls on a Sunday or a federal legal public holiday, the right of rescission is extended to the next calendar day that is not a Sunday or a federal legal public holiday. 7 Tex. Admin. Code § 152.11.

The three-day right of rescission is not required if the work or materials are necessary to complete immediate repairs to conditions on the homestead property that materially affect the health and safety of the owner or person residing in the homestead.
and the owner of the homestead acknowledges this exigency in writing. Tex. Const. art. XVI, § 50(a)(5)(C). This written acknowledgment and waiver must at a minimum (1) describe the conditions of the homestead property, (2) describe how the condition of the homestead property affects the health and safety of the owner or person residing in the homestead, and (3) state that the owner is waiving the three-day right of rescission. Printed forms for this purpose are prohibited. 7 Tex. Admin. Code § 152.13.

Restriction on Place of Closing: A contractual lien for improvements to repair or renovate existing improvements on the homestead must be executed in the offices of a third-party lender making the extension of credit, an attorney at law, or a title company. Tex. Const. art. XVI, § 50(a)(5)(D). There is no exception to this requirement for exigent circumstances as with the five-day waiting period or right of rescission.

Required Disclosures: A contract for improving an existing residential homestead must contain the following conspicuous disclosure next to the owner’s signature line:

IMPORTANT NOTICE: You and your contractor are responsible for meeting the terms and conditions of this contract. If you sign this contract and you fail to meet the terms and conditions of this contract, you may lose your legal ownership rights in your home. KNOW YOUR RIGHTS AND DUTIES UNDER THE LAW.

Failure to include the notice constitutes an actionable violation of the Texas Deceptive Trade Practices Act. Tex. Prop. Code § 41.007.

§ 20.1:3 Usury Laws and Regulations

The usury statutes and regulations that apply to a loan vary with the type of loan and lender. Regardless of the structure of the transaction, the creditor must comply with the Truth in Lending Act, 15 U.S.C. §§ 1601–1667f.

Third-Party Lenders and First Liens: State usury law has been preempted by federal statute for first liens on residential real property. This preemption eliminates the rate ceiling for this type of loan for most creditors, including all federally insured financial institutions and other creditors that make or invest in residential real property loans aggregating more than $1 million per year. 12 U.S.C. §§ 1735f–7, 1735f–7a; Seiter v. Veytia, 756 S.W.2d 303 (Tex. 1988). See also Tex. Fin. Code § 302.103 (late charges are interest for purpose of federal preemption). Other third-party lenders may rely on Code section 302.001 as the usury law.

Texas usury law is located primarily in title 4 of the Texas Finance Code. The maximum legal interest rate, except as otherwise fixed by law, is set at 10 percent. Tex. Fin. Code § 302.001. Floating interest rate ceilings for written contracts are established by chapter 303 of the Code. Tex. Fin. Code ch. 303.

Contractor–Creditors and First Liens: A contractor–creditor may be limited to Code section 302.001 as the applicable usury law for a complete structure.

§ 20.1:4 Other Consumer Protection Laws

Federal Disclosure Laws and Regulations: Federal consumer credit laws require disclosures designed to allow informed decision making. The most important of these are the Truth in Lending Act, 15 U.S.C. §§ 1601–1667f, and Federal Reserve Board Regulation Z, 12 C.F.R. pt. 226, both of which require certain creditors to disclose loan terms and rights of rescission to potential borrowers. See chapter 12 in this manual for forms and further discussion.

Other federal consumer protection laws that might affect mechanic’s lien transactions include—

2. The Federal Trade Commission anti-holder-in-due-course rule, 16 C.F.R. pt. 433. A prescribed notice must be included in the instrument evidencing the debt if the contractor either (a) receives the proceeds of a loan made to the owner by a third-party creditor for the acquisition of goods or services by sale or lease and either refers customers to the third-party creditor or is affiliated with the third-party creditor by common control, contract, or business arrangement, or (b) extends credit to the owner in connection with a “credit sale” under the Truth in Lending Act or Regulation Z. 16 C.F.R. §§ 433.1(d), (e), (i), 433.2.

The contractor and the third-party creditor have a referral relationship if the contractor cooperates with the third-party creditor to channel customers to the third-party creditor on a continuing basis. A referral relationship may arise from a pattern of cooperative activity directly related to the arranging of financing. To fall within the rule, the contractor and the third-party creditor must be engaged in cooperative or concerted activity conducted to channel consumers to the third-party creditor, and this conduct must occur on a continuing basis. Once a referral relationship is established, the instruments evidencing debts owed to the third-party creditor arising out of referrals from the contractor must include the prescribed notice. However, a referral relationship does not include situations in which the contractor merely suggests credit sources to its customers or sends its customers to a third-party creditor without the express or implied agreement of the creditor or without any concerted or cooperative activity between the contractor and the creditor.

The contractor and the third-party creditor may be affiliated by common control. For example, common control exists if two companies are owned by a holding company or by substantially the same individuals or if one is a subsidiary of the other. The contractor and the third-party creditor may also be affiliated by a contract or business arrangement, which includes any agreement (oral or written), understanding, procedure, course of dealing, or arrangement between the contractor and the creditor to engage in cooperative or concerted activity in connection with the contractor’s sale to customers or the financing thereof. However, the creditor can issue checks payable jointly to the contractor and the owner, and the creditor can cooperate with the contractor to perfect the mechanic’s lien without creating an affiliation by contract or other arrangement under the FTC rule.

If the contractor and the third-party creditor are not affiliated by common control or by a contract or business arrangement and if the contractor does not refer customers to the third-party creditor, FTC notices are not required and may be deleted from the forms. Federal Trade Commission Statement of Enforcement Policy, 41 Fed. Reg. 34,594 (1976).

3. Right of Rescission. The contractor may need to comply with the Federal Trade Commission rule on cooling-off periods for door-to-door sales. Exceptions exist if the agreement is entered into at the contractor’s place of business or under prior negotiations during a visit by the owner to the contractor’s fixed, permanent business establishment, at which the contractor’s services are offered for sale on a continual basis. 16 C.F.R. pt. 429.

Texas Consumer Protection Law: The Texas Constitution provides several consumer protection provisions related to construction on homestead property. These requirements are described in this chapter specifically in section 20.1:2 above. Forms 20-6 and 20-7 in this chapter are certificates of closing used to confirm compliance with these requirements.
Texas Consumer Protection Laws for Home Solicitations: The Texas Home Solicitations Transaction Act may apply if the consumer’s obligation is entered into at a location other than the contractor’s place of business. If the Act applies, additional notices are required. Tex. Bus. & Com. Code ch. 601. See the notice of cancellation attached to the mechanic’s lien contract (form 20-1).

Texas Finance Code Chapter 343—Home Loan Requirements: In addition to the foregoing, the transactions described in this chapter may be subject to the disclosure and other requirements of chapter 343 of the Texas Finance Code. See sections 10.14 through 10.14:3 in this manual.

Confidentiality Notice: Instruments, meaning “a deed, deed of trust, or any other record recorded by a county clerk related to real property, including a mineral lease, a mechanic’s lien, and the release of a mechanic’s lien,” transferring an interest in real property to or from an individual must include the confidentiality notice required by Tex. Prop. Code § 11.008. See section 3.16 in this manual.

Texas Mechanic’s Lien Claims: The perfection of involuntary mechanic’s liens is covered in chapter 21 in this manual. Before contracting for residential construction, owners should become familiar with their potential liability for mechanic’s liens. Mechanic’s lien liability and related procedures are outlined for owners in section 18.3:4.

§ 20.2 Procedures for Various Fact Situations

This section describes typical construction projects on homesteads. Procedures are given for new construction and for repair or renovation construction projects.

§ 20.2:1 First Lien to Third-Party Lender to Secure Interim and Permanent Financing

The owner has title to the real property on which the contractor is building a home or repairing or renovating an existing home, and the third-party lender obtains a first lien to secure both interim and permanent construction financing. See section 20.2:2 below for the procedure to be followed if the third-party lender is not providing interim construction financing.

Along with the forms suggested below, other forms used to document the construction process and establish the parties’ rights may be found in chapter 18 in this manual. Chapter 18 also offers suggestions for completing those forms.

Following are the steps to create and document the mechanic’s lien:

1. For repair or renovation construction projects, all the owners (both spouses) must sign a written application for extension of credit at least five days before signing the mechanic’s lien contract. Tex. Const. art. XVI, § 50(a)(5)(B).

2. The contractor delivers the required disclosure statement (form 18-1) and the list of subcontractors and suppliers (form 18-2) to the owners. See Tex. Prop. Code §§ 53.255, 53.256. Also, a third-party lender is required to give the disclosure in form 18-1 under section 53.257(a) of the Texas Property Code and must deliver all documentation related to the loan not later than one business day before the date of the closing. Tex. Prop. Code § 53.257.

3. The contractor, the owner, and the owner’s spouse sign the mechanic’s lien contract. For repair or renovation construction, this contract must be signed only at the offices of the third-party lender, a lawyer, or a title company. Tex. Const. art. XVI, § 50(a)(5)(D).
4. A certificate of closing is signed. Form 20-6 in this chapter is for new construction projects, and form 20-7 is for repair or renovation projects.

5. The owner executes the mechanic’s lien note payable to the contractor, the note should bear no interest and be payable in a single payment on completion of construction. The contractor thus is not a creditor under the federal Truth in Lending Act because no finance charge is involved and the obligation is payable in four or fewer installments. 15 U.S.C. § 1602(f).

Because the mechanic’s lien note payable to the contractor bears no interest and is payable in a single installment, there is no retail installment transaction under Texas Finance Code chapter 345, and that chapter does not apply. Tex. Fin. Code § 345.001(7).

The contractor must comply with the FTC anti-holder-in-due-course rule if the contractor has a referral relationship or affiliation with the third-party lender. 16 C.F.R. pt. 433. (See section 20.1:4 above for additional discussion.) The FTC anti-holder-in-due-course notice should be included in the mechanic’s lien note payable to the third-party creditor and may also be included in the mechanic’s lien contract and the mechanic’s lien note payable to the contractor. If no referral relationship or affiliation exists, the notice may be deleted from these documents.

6. The contractor gives the required notices under the FTC rule on cooling-off periods for door-to-door sales (unless an exception exists). In addition, for renovation or repair construction, a three-day right to rescind following execution of the mechanic’s lien contract by all parties is required unless the project is for immediate repairs to conditions on the homestead property that materially affect the health or safety of the owner and the owner of the homestead acknowledges such in writing. Tex. Const. art. XVI, § 50(a)(5)(C). The contractor then waits to be sure the foregoing rights of cancellation or rescission are not exercised. The owner executes the election regarding right of rescission (form 20-8) and checks the box indicating the owner’s election not to rescind the contract.

7. The contractor endorses the mechanic’s lien note to the third-party lender and assigns the lien with a transfer of lien, which is filed with the county clerk of the county in which the property is located. See section 10.1 and form 10-1.

8. The third-party lender renews and extends the mechanic’s lien note by having the owner execute a note payable to the third-party lender, it bears interest and is payable as agreed between the owner and the third-party lender.

Only fixed-rate, simple interest may be charged in transactions using the forms in this chapter. If fixed interest rates are used, the adjustable-rate mortgage regulations do not apply. These forms are not designed for use with loans subject to the adjustable-rate mortgage regulations and must be significantly revised if used for that purpose.

9. The third-party lender extends the lien with the deed of trust executed by the owner, naming the trustee chosen by the third-party lender. The deed of trust is filed with the county clerk of the county in which the property is located. See chapter 8.

10. The third-party lender is a truth-in-lending creditor and must give the owner a truth-in-lending (loan) disclosure form and a right-of-rescission form. See 12 C.F.R. § 226.23. See chapter 12 for forms and further discussion.

11. Construction begins. The affidavit of commencement is executed (see form 18-5). Normally, the third-party lender then advances funds in stages as the construction is completed, according to terms of the mechanic’s lien contract and any incorporated residential construction contract. In some cases the lender will require its own construction loan agreement providing interim payments or draws. The owner pays interest to the third-party lender only on amounts advanced during construction and normally begins making payments on the principal of the renewal note only after completion of the construction.

A disbursement disclosure may be found at form 18-3. See section 18.7:3 for discussion of the balance of the construction process, including descriptions of change orders, affidavits of completion, and the all-bills-paid affidavits.
12. On final completion, the contractor executes the affidavit of completion and indemnity (form 20-3), and the owner executes the affidavit of acceptance (form 20-4). The owner has the option of executing and filing the affidavit of completion (form 18-7) (see sections 18.3:4 and 18.7:7).

§ 20.2:2 First Lien to Contractor; No Interim Financing; Permanent Financing by Third-Party Lender

The owner has title to the real property on which the contractor is building a home or repairing or renovating an existing home, and the third-party lender obtains a first lien to secure permanent financing. The third-party lender is not providing interim construction financing. See section 20.2:1 above for the procedure to be followed if the third-party lender also provides interim construction financing.

Along with the forms suggested below, other forms used to document the construction process and establish the parties’ rights may be found in chapter 18 in this manual. Chapter 18 also offers suggestions for completing those forms.

Following are the steps to create and document the mechanic’s lien.

1. For repair or renovation construction projects, all the owners (both spouses) must sign a written application for extension of credit at least five days before signing the mechanic’s lien contract. Tex. Const. art. XVI, § 50(a)(5)(B).

2. The contractor delivers the required disclosure statement (form 18-1) and the list of subcontractors and suppliers (form 18-2) to the owners. See Tex. Prop. Code §§ 53.255, 53.256.

3. The contractor, the owner, and the owner’s spouse sign the mechanic’s lien contract. For repair or renovation construction, this contract must be signed only at the offices of the third-party lender, a lawyer, or a title company. Tex. Const. art. XVI, § 50(a)(5)(D).

4. A certificate of closing is signed. Form 20-6 is for new construction projects, and form 20-7 is for repair or renovation projects.

5. The owner executes the mechanic’s lien note payable to the contractor; the note should bear no interest and be payable in a single payment on completion of construction. The contractor thus is not a creditor under the federal Truth in Lending Act because no finance charge is involved and the obligation is payable in four or fewer installments. 15 U.S.C. § 1602(f).

Because the mechanic’s lien note payable to the contractor bears no interest and is payable in a single installment, there is no retail installment transaction under Texas Finance Code chapter 345, and that chapter does not apply. Tex. Fin. Code § 345.001(7).

The contractor must comply with the FTC anti-holder-in-due-course rule if the contractor has a referral relationship or affiliation with the third-party lender. 16 C.F.R. pt. 433. The FTC anti-holder-in-due-course notice should be retained in the mechanic’s lien note if the contractor has a referral relationship or affiliation with the third-party lender. 16 C.F.R. pt. 433. (See section 20.1:4 above for additional discussion.) Otherwise the notice may be deleted.

6. The contractor gives the required notices under the FTC rule on cooling-off periods for door-to-door sales (unless an exception exists). In addition, for renovation or repair construction, a three-day right to rescind following execution of the mechanic’s lien contract by all parties is required unless the project is for immediate repairs to conditions on the homestead property that materially affect the health or safety of the owner and the owner of the homestead acknowledges such in writing. Tex. Const. art. XVI, § 50(a)(5)(C). The contractor then waits to be sure the forego-
The owner executes the election regarding right of rescission (form 20-8) and checks the box indicating the owner’s election not to rescind the contract.

7. Construction begins and the affidavit of commencement (form 18-5) is executed. Construction must then be completed before the next step in this procedure.

8. The contractor executes the affidavit of completion and indemnity (form 20-3), and the owner executes the affidavit of acceptance (form 20-4). The owner has the option of executing and filing the affidavit of completion (form 18-7) (see sections 18.3.4 and 18.7.7).

9. The contractor endorses the mechanic’s lien note to the third-party lender and assigns the lien with a transfer of lien, which is filed with the county clerk of the county in which the property is located. See section 10.1 and form 10-1.

10. The third-party lender renews and extends the mechanic’s lien note by having the owner execute another note payable to the third-party lender, it bears interest and is payable as agreed between the owner and the third-party lender.

§ 20.2:3 Second Lien to Third-Party Lender to Secure Interim and Permanent Financing

The owner has title to the real property on which the contractor is building a home or repairing or renovating an existing home, and the third-party lender obtains a second lien to secure both interim and permanent construction financing.

Along with the forms suggested below, other forms used to document the construction process and establish the parties’ rights may be found in chapter 18 in this manual. Chapter 18 also offers suggestions for completing those forms.

Following are the steps to create and document the mechanic’s lien:

1. For repair or renovation construction projects, all the owners (both spouses) must sign a written application for extension of credit at least five days before signing the mechanic’s lien contract. Tex. Const. art. XVI, § 50(a)(5)(B).

2. The contractor delivers the required disclosure statement (form 18-1) and the list of subcontractors and suppliers (form 18-2) to the owners. See Tex. Prop. Code §§ 53.255, 53.256. Also, a third-party lender is required to give the disclosure in form 18-1 under section 53.257(a) of the Texas Property Code and must deliver all documentation related to the loan not later than one business day before the date of the closing. Tex. Prop. Code § 53.257.

3. The contractor, the owner, and the owner’s spouse sign the mechanic’s lien contract. See form 20-1 in this chapter. Additional clauses 20-5-9, 20-5-10, and 20-5-11 are added to the mechanic’s lien contract as part of the general provisions, section A. If a residential construction contract is to be executed, see form 18-4. If the project is for repair or renovation of an existing homestead, the contract must be signed only at the offices of the third-party lender, a lawyer, or a title company. Tex. Const. art. XVI, § 50(a)(5)(D).

4. A certificate of closing is signed. Form 20-6 is for new construction projects, and form 20-7 is for repair or renovation projects.

5. The owner executes the mechanic’s lien note payable to the contractor, the note should bear no interest and be payable in a single payment on completion of construction. The contractor thus is not a creditor under the federal Truth in Lending Act because no finance charge is involved and the obligation is payable in four or fewer installments. 15 U.S.C. § 1602(f).
Under Texas homestead laws, when the contractor and the owner sign the mechanic’s lien contract and the owner executes the mechanic’s lien note payable to the contractor, an obligation is established in favor of the contractor and is secured by a mechanic’s lien. Tex. Prop. Code § 53.254.

Because the mechanic’s lien note payable to the contractor bears no interest and is payable in a single installment, there is no retail installment transaction under Texas Finance Code chapter 345, and that chapter does not apply. Tex. Fin. Code § 345.001(7).

The contractor must comply with the FTC anti-holder-in-due-course rule if the contractor has a referral relationship or affiliation with the third-party lender. 16 C.F.R. pt. 433. (See section 20.1:4 above for additional discussion.) The FTC anti-holder-in-due-course notice should be included in the mechanic’s lien note payable to the third-party creditor and may also be included in the mechanic’s lien contract and the mechanic’s lien note payable to the contractor. If no referral relationship or affiliation exists, the notice may be deleted from these documents.

6. The contractor gives the required notices under the FTC rule on cooling-off periods for door-to-door sales (unless an exception exists). For renovation or repair construction projects, a three-day right to rescind following execution of the mechanic’s lien contract by all parties is required unless the project is for immediate repair to conditions on the homestead property that materially affect the health or safety of the owner and the owner of the homestead acknowledges such in writing. Tex. Const. art. XVI, § 50(a)(5)(C). The contractor then waits to be sure the right of cancellation is not exercised and otherwise complies with the rule, unless an exception exists and the FTC rule does not apply. See section 20.1:4. The owner executes the election regarding right of rescission (form 20-8) and checks the box indicating the owner’s election not to rescind the contract.

7. The contractor endorses the mechanic’s lien note to the third-party lender and assigns the lien with a transfer of lien, which is filed with the county clerk of the county in which the property is located. See section 10.1 and form 10-1.

8. The third-party lender renews and extends the mechanic’s lien note by having the owner execute a note payable to the third-party lender, it bears interest and is payable as agreed between the owner and the third-party lender. Only fixed-rate, simple interest may be charged in transactions using the forms in this chapter. If fixed interest rates are used, the adjustable-rate mortgage regulations do not apply. These forms are not designed for use with loans subject to the adjustable-rate mortgage regulations and must be significantly revised if used for that purpose.

9. The third-party lender extends the lien with the deed of trust executed by the owner, naming the trustee chosen by the third-party lender. The deed of trust is filed with the county clerk of the county in which the property is located. See chapter 8.

10. The third-party lender may be a truth-in-lending creditor and may be required to give the owner the truth-in-lending (loan) disclosure form. See 12 C.F.R. § 226.23. See chapter 12 for forms and further discussion.

11. Construction begins. The affidavit of commencement is executed (see form 18-5). Ordinarily, the third-party lender then advances funds in stages as the construction is completed, according to terms of the mechanic’s lien contract and any incorporated residential construction contract. In some cases the lender will require its own construction loan agreement providing interim payments or draws. The owner pays interest to the third-party lender only on amounts advanced during construction and usually begins making payments on the principal of the renewal note only after completion of the construction.

During construction additional forms are used. A disbursement disclosure may be found at form 18-3. See section 18.7:3 for discussion. Other forms used during construction are change-order forms, affidavits of completion, and all-bills-paid affidavits. These forms are included in chapter 18.
12. On final completion, the contractor executes the affidavit of completion and indemnity (form 20-3), and the owner executes the affidavit of acceptance (form 20-4). The owner has the option of executing and filing the affidavit of completion (form 18-7) (see sections 18.3.4 and 18.7.7).

Precautions for Subordinate Mechanic’s Lien Contracts: Subordinate lien financing involves a number of considerations for all the parties involved: the borrower, the prior lender, and the subordinate lender. The borrower should ascertain that the creation of a subordinate lien will not be a default under the prior deed of trust, as subordinate encumbrances are expressly prohibited in many deeds of trust. The prior lender may have concerns about the ability of the borrower to service both the superior and subordinate lien debts. If the borrower should default on the subordinate lien debt and the subordinate lender should foreclose, the borrower, although still liable on the debt, will no longer be the owner of the property, and the incentive to repay the senior loan will obviously be diminished.

The party at greatest risk in subordinate lien financing transactions is the subordinate lender. Foreclosure of a superior lien extinguishes all subordinate liens. See Exchange Savings & Loan Ass’n v. Monocrete Proprietary, Ltd., 629 S.W.2d 34 (Tex. 1982). In Texas, unlike many other jurisdictions, a subordinate lienholder is not entitled by law to notice of default on the prior lien debt or notice of foreclosure proceedings. The subordinate lienholder is likewise not entitled to share in the foreclosure proceeds, unless there is an excess after payment of costs and expenses in connection with the foreclosure and satisfaction of the prior lien debt. The subordinate lienholder may therefore want to obtain the prior lienholder’s agreement to provide notice of any default by the borrower under the first-lien note and deed of trust and the opportunity to cure such default or require the borrower to provide continuing proof that payments on the prior lien debt have been made.

A subordinate lien transaction may be subject to chapter 342 of the Texas Finance Code if the property is a dwelling designed for occupancy by four or fewer families and the interest rate exceeds 10 percent per year. Tex. Fin. Code §§ 342.001(4), 342.005. Chapter 342 applies to a secondary mortgage loan made by a person in the business of making, arranging, or negotiating those types of loans. Tex. Fin. Code § 342.005. The chapter does not apply to a secondary mortgage loan made by a seller of property to secure all or part of the unpaid purchase price. Tex. Fin. Code § 342.006. If a lender is in the business of making, arranging, or negotiating secondary mortgage loans, the lender must obtain a license from the Office of Consumer Credit Commissioner (OCCC) unless the lender is a bank, savings bank, savings and loan association, credit union, or a residential mortgage loan originator licensed under chapter 156. Tex. Fin. Code §§ 124.005, 339.004, 341.103–104, 342.051. Unless exempt under section 180.003, an individual who acts as a residential mortgage loan originator in the making, transacting, or negotiating of a secondary mortgage loan subject to chapter 342 must be individually licensed under chapter 342, be enrolled with the Nationwide Mortgage Licensing System and Registry as required by section 180.052, and comply with other applicable requirements of the Texas Secure and Fair Enforcement of Mortgage Licensing Act of 2009. Tex. Fin. Code ch. 180. Chapter 342 loans are highly specialized and regulated, and thus if a subordinate lien transaction is subject to chapter 342, the attorney must carefully review the chapter to make sure all requirements have been met. Texas Finance Code section 341.502 provides that “[a] contract for a loan under Chapter 342, a retail installment transaction under Chapter 348, or a home equity loan regulated by the Office of Consumer Credit Commissioner must be . . . written in plain language designed to be easily understood by the average consumer . . . .” Tex. Fin. Code § 341.503(a). The Finance Commission of Texas is authorized to adopt model contracts for loans subject to that section. A lender may not use a contract other than a model contract unless the lender has submitted the contract to the OCCC for its approval. If the OCCC issues an order disapproving a submitted contract, the lender may not use the contract after the order takes effect. Tex. Fin. Code § 341.502. Plain-language model contracts and related rules for chapter 342, subchapter G, second-lien home improvement contracts are codified at 7 Tex. Admin. Code §§ 90.601–604.
The attorney general of Texas has determined that section 341.502(a) is applicable only to those loan transactions for which the consumer credit commissioner is the appointed regulating official and has no application to loan transactions subject to the regulatory authority of the banking commissioner, the savings and mortgage lending commissioner, the credit union commissioner, and federal regulatory officials. Tex. Att’y Gen. Op. No. JC-0513 (2002).

Banks, savings and loan associations, and credit unions accordingly are not required to comply with the section 341.502 “plain language” contract requirements or to obtain a license to engage in the business of making subordinate lien loans subject to chapter 342. Tex. Fin. Code § 342.051(c)(1). These institutional lenders nevertheless are thought to be subject to other substantive law provisions of chapter 342, including, for example, the limitations of that chapter on the collection of authorized fees and charges, as enforced by the policies of their respective regulatory agencies. See Tex. Fin. Code §§ 342.308, 342.502.

Before using the forms in this chapter for a loan subject to chapter 342 of the Texas Finance Code, the attorney should determine whether the lender is subject to the plain-language model contract provisions of Code section 341.502. The forms in this chapter have not been submitted to or approved by the OCCC.

If the attorney decides that the forms contained in this chapter may nevertheless be used for a loan regulated by chapter 342, the forms still must be modified to comply with the requirements of that chapter. For example, the secondary mortgage loan documents for a loan made by a licensed lender must contain the name, mailing address, and telephone number of the OCCC. Tex. Fin. Code § 14.104. See clause 8-9-24. Neither the mechanic’s lien contract forms nor the note forms in this manual contain that information. The attorney should include that information in both the mechanic’s lien contract form and the note form when documenting a secondary mortgage loan if the lender has a license from the OCCC. Additionally, if a subordinate lien transaction is subject to chapter 342, the printed language in the mechanic’s lien contract must be modified slightly. In paragraph B.6., the phrase “in a form acceptable to Contractor or its transferees” must be struck so that the obligation reads “maintain at Owner’s sole cost and expense insurance policies containing the following coverages . . . .” This change is necessary because Finance Code sections 342.404 through 342.405 and 342.413 prohibit a lender from approving the selection of insurance. See Tex. Fin. Code §§ 342.404, 342.405, 342.413. Also, Finance Code section 342.404 provides that when insurance is required in connection with a loan made under that chapter, the lender must furnish the borrower a statement like the one in clause 20-5-9, which may be added to the mechanic’s lien contract as a numbered paragraph under “General Provisions.” Tex. Fin. Code § 342.404.

The same chapter imposes other requirements if the lender sells or procures insurance related to the loan at a rate not fixed or approved by the State Board of Insurance. See Tex. Fin. Code § 342.405.

Finance Code section 342.307 limits the enforcement fees that may be included in secondary mortgage loan documents. To comply with this section, the attorney’s fee provisions in the note, form 6-1, and the mechanic’s lien contract should be modified if used in transactions subject to chapter 342 of the Finance Code. See Tex. Fin. Code § 342.307. In the note, the third paragraph, concerning attorney’s fees, should be replaced with clause 6-6-15. See section 6.2.7.

An institutional third-party lender may be required to provide the borrower a truth-in-lending disclosure (loan) form. An example of this form is included in chapter 12.

It is essential that a subordinate deed of trust contain terms and provisions identifying the prior lien and obligating the borrower to keep the prior note and deed of trust current and not in default. Clauses 20-5-10 and 20-5-11 may be used for this purpose. The parties may wish to attempt to obtain an estoppel letter or intercreditor agreement from the prior lienholder. An example of such an instrument may be found at form 10-10.

§ 20.3:1 No Variable Interest Rate Loans

The forms in this chapter are designed for use with loans charging simple interest rates only, they must be carefully revised for use with adjustable-rate mortgages. Variable rates, balloon payments, and variable payment schedules require truth-in-lending disclosures and additional disclosures under the Texas Credit Title and Texas Finance Code.

The mechanic’s lien note, form 20-2 in this chapter, makes no provision for credit life insurance.

See section 20.7 below for suggestions if one spouse will not become liable on the debt secured by the mechanic’s lien contract.

§ 20.3:2 No Out-of-State Venue or Choice of Law

If a contract that provides for the construction of new improvements to real property located in Texas contains a provision making the contract or any conflict arising under the contract subject to the laws of another state, to litigation in the courts of another state, or to arbitration in another state, that provision is voidable by the party obligated to perform the construction. Tex. Bus. & Com. Code §§ 272.001–.002.

§ 20.3:3 Prompt Payment Act

Texas Property Code chapter 28 provides that an owner has thirty-five days from the date the owner receives a written request for payment from a contractor to pay the invoiced amount (less the retainage required by law) if the work covered was properly performed or materials delivered are suitably stored. Tex. Prop. Code § 28.002. Unpaid bills earn interest at the rate of 1.5 percent per month. Tex. Prop. Code § 28.004. Exceptions to this requirement are—

1. if there is a good-faith dispute about the amount owed (including a good-faith dispute about whether the work was done properly), no more than 110 percent of the amount in dispute may be withheld, Tex. Prop. Code § 28.003; or

2. if the lender does not fund the owner for a reason that is not the fault of the owner. See Tex. Prop. Code § 28.008.

§ 20.3:4 Construction Trust Fund Statute

Texas Property Code section 162.001 is generally referred to as the “Construction Trust Fund Statute.” This statute, among other provisions, states that loan receipts are trust funds if they are borrowed by an owner for the purpose of improving specific real property in Texas and are secured in whole or in part by a lien on the property. Tex. Prop. Code § 162.001(b). The owner is designated as a trustee of loan funds the owner receives. Tex. Prop. Code § 162.002. As trustee, the owner is obligated to the “beneficiaries” of the construction trust funds, including the contractor, subcontractors, mechanics, and laborers on the project. Tex. Prop. Code § 162.003(a). The owner is also a beneficiary. Tex. Prop. Code § 162.003(b). A trustee who intentionally, knowingly, or with intent to defraud directly or indirectly diverts construction trust funds without first paying the current and past-due obligations on the project has misapplied the trust funds. Tex. Prop. Code § 162.031. Criminal penalties apply to such diversion. See Tex. Prop. Code § 162.032. Also, diversion constitutes the basis for a civil action against the trustee. See Tacon Mechanical Contractors v. Grant Sheet Metal, Inc., 889 S.W.2d 666 (Tex. App.—Houston [14th Dist.] 1994, writ denied).

§ 20.3:5  Texas Finance Code Chapter 343

A residential construction loan may be subject to the home loan disclosure and other requirements of chapter 343 of the Texas Finance Code. See sections 10.14 through 10.14:3 in this manual.

§ 20.4  Instructions for Completing Forms

§ 20.4:1  Generally

Chapter 3 of this manual offers useful information about designations of parties, property descriptions, and other matters generally related to completing the forms.

§ 20.4:2  Mechanic’s Lien Contract

The mechanic’s lien contract, form 20-1 in this chapter, closely resembles the deed of trust; reference to chapter 8 in this manual may be useful for completing the contract. For remarks about prior liens, see section 8.2:4. For discussion about other exceptions to conveyance and warranty, see section 5.2:7.

The mechanic’s lien contract must be executed before the construction begins and must be filed with the county clerk of the county in which the property is located. Tex. Prop. Code § 53.254. In case of repair or renovation construction the contract must contain, and the parties must comply with, optional section A. See Tex. Const. art. XVI, § 50(a)(5)(A)–(D), and the explanation at section 20.1:1 above. Also in this case, the owners must be provided the election regarding right of rescission (see form 20-8).

The residential construction contract provides details about description of the work, schedules for completion, changes, termination of the contractor, and other matters. See form 18-4 for applicable clauses.

A force majeure and “time is of the essence” clause may be included in the additional provisions following paragraph A.13. of the mechanic’s lien contract form. An example of such a clause appears as clause 20-5-2.

The contract contains the anti-holder-in-due-course notice required by the Federal Trade Commission for consumer credit contracts made in connection with the sale or lease of goods or services to consumers for personal, family, or household use. See 16 C.F.R. pt. 433. For transactions not covered by this FTC regulation, the notice may be deleted.

The contract contains the right-of-cancellation notice required by Tex. Bus. & Com. Code ch. 601 and 16 C.F.R. § 429.1. For transactions not covered by those provisions, the notice may be deleted. Section A. of the contract contains the right of rescission required by Tex. Const. art. XVI, § 50(a)(5)(C), applicable to repair or renovation construction. These notices and cancellation forms may be deleted if an exception exists or if the sections are not applicable.

The RCLA notice is required in addition to the Tex. Prop. Code § 41.007 notice.

§ 20.4:3   Mechanic’s Lien Note

The mechanic’s lien note, form 20-2 in this chapter, is similar to the note discussed in chapter 6, which suggests payment clauses and other clauses that may also be appropriate for this note.

The mechanic’s lien note should not be used alone. Interdependent uses of the forms are suggested in section 20.2 above.

Payment clauses should be drafted in accordance with the provision for statutory retainage contained in the mechanic’s lien contract in paragraph A.4.:

    Notwithstanding anything to the contrary in this contract, during progress of the Construction, Owner may retain the amounts required by sections 53.101 and 53.081 of the Texas Property Code. Retainage will be withheld until the last business day of the third month after the month of final completion of the project, unless otherwise provided in the residential construction contract between the parties.

The mechanic’s lien note contains the anti-holder-in-due-course notice required by the Federal Trade Commission for consumer credit contracts made in connection with the sale or lease of goods or services to consumers for personal, family, or household use. See 16 C.F.R. pt. 433. For transactions not covered by this FTC regulation, the notice may be deleted. The notice appears on the last page of the mechanic’s lien note immediately preceding the signature line.

Often the note is drafted to become due on completion of construction. Alternatively, the parties may prefer to specify that partial payments are due on completion of distinct phases of construction. Installment payments may cause the Truth in Lending Act to apply. See chapter 12. Examples of both types of payment clauses appear in form 20-5.

§ 20.5   Additional Clauses

The mechanic’s lien contract, form 20-1 in this chapter, may include additional clauses concerning contract price. See form 20-5 for examples of these clauses.

If payment is based on costs, the attorney should include a carefully drafted definition of costs in the contract.

For transactions subject to chapter 345 of the Texas Finance Code, the “cost-plus” clauses (20-5-6 and 20-5-7) are not appropriate. See section 20.1:3 above.

If payment will be based on the cost of labor and material plus a fixed fee, not to exceed a certain amount, use clause 20-5-6. If payment will be based on the cost of labor and material plus a percentage of the cost, not to exceed a certain amount, use clause 20-5-7.

If the contractor’s profit is calculated by fixed fee or percentage and the parties do not wish to limit the total cost, the examples suggested in clauses 20-5-6 and 20-5-7 could be modified by omitting the sentence limiting total contract price. However, this practice is discouraged because a contract that does not limit total costs to a certain amount arguably may not create a valid lien against a homestead, because it might not satisfy the constitutional requirement for a complete precommencement contract that includes the price.
§ 20.6 Additional Documents

Chapter 12 in this manual contains documents that may be required for mechanic’s lien transactions in accordance with the Truth in Lending Act and its accompanying regulations. Chapter 12 also offers suggestions for completing those forms.

In mechanic’s lien transactions the owner and the contractor should either execute a detailed construction contract like form 18-4 in this manual, describing plans and specifications for the construction, or include those details in the mechanic’s lien contract. The American Institute of Architects’ standard form is also commonly used for this purpose if a separate contract is desired. Any separate contract used for this purpose should be incorporated by reference in the mechanic’s lien contract.

Other forms used to document the construction process and establish the parties’ rights may be found in chapter 18. Chapter 18 also offers suggestions for completing those forms.

If the mechanic’s lien is subordinate to a prior lien, the lender ordinarily requires as a condition of the loan that the holder of the prior lien sign a third-party estoppel agreement. An example of this agreement appears as form 10-10.

If a cosigner, guarantor, or the like is not the spouse of the loan applicant and will not benefit from the credit transaction, federal regulations require creditors to provide a specified notice for consumer credit transactions other than the purchase of real property. The notice, which must be given as a separate statement to each cosigner, guarantor, or the like, may be found at form 6-7.

The transaction described in section 20.2:2 above suggests the use of an affidavit of completion of construction and indemnity as part of the procedure. A model for this purpose is provided as form 20-3 in this chapter and is accompanied with a form for the owner’s affidavit of acceptance of the construction, form 20-4.

§ 20.7 Required Signatures

If the spouse of the owner of record of the homestead subject to the mechanic’s lien will not become liable on the underlying debt, the transaction must be structured accordingly. To avoid becoming liable on the debt, the spouse may execute only the lien instrument (mechanic’s lien contract or deed of trust), not the mechanic’s lien note.

If a homestead is the separate property of one spouse, both spouses must sign and acknowledge the mechanic’s lien contract to create a valid mechanic’s lien, but only the spouse liable on the debt need sign the note. In this case, a clause like clause 20-5-8 in this chapter should be added to the general provisions section of the mechanic’s lien contract.

Although creditors often prefer that both spouses sign the note, regulations accompanying the Equal Credit Opportunity Act generally prohibit creditors from requiring an applicant’s spouse to cosign or guarantee a note if the applicant is creditworthy. 12 C.F.R. § 202.7(d). Even if not liable on the debt secured by the lien on the property, a spouse may sign the instrument creating the lien if state law requires the signatures of both spouses; this compliance with state law does not violate the Equal Credit Opportunity Act.

A creditor may request a cosigner, guarantor, or the like on an extension of credit if the applicant does not meet the creditor’s creditworthiness standard for individual credit. However, the creditor may not specify that the applicant’s spouse be the cosigner or guarantor. Under some conditions creditors must provide cosigners a notice warning them of their liabilities. See section 6.5:2 and form 6-7.
§ 20.8 Foreclosure

Foreclosure of the voluntary contract lien granted in a mechanic’s lien contract is similar to foreclosure under a deed of trust. See chapter 14 in this manual for foreclosure instruments that may be adapted for use in foreclosing a mechanic’s lien.

For the Consideration, Contractor agrees to furnish the materials and labor and to complete the Construction on the Property on or before the Completion Date in a good and workmanlike manner according to the [residential construction contract between/plans and specifications agreed on by] Owner and Contractor, incorporated herein by reference.

To secure payment of the Note, Owner grants to Contractor a mechanic's, artisan's, and materialman's lien on the Property and on all improvements and fixtures on the Property at any time.

To enforce the lien and to further secure payment of the Note, Owner conveys the Property to Trustee in trust. Owner warrants and agrees to defend the title to the Property subject to the Other Exceptions to Conveyance and Warranty. If Owner performs all the covenants and pays the Note according to its terms, this conveyance will have no further effect, and at Owner's expense Contractor will execute a release of the liens created by this contract.
A. Owner’s Representations and Rights

Owner makes the following representations and has the following rights:

A.1. Owner owns the Property in fee simple, subject only to the Exceptions to Conveyance and Warranty.

A.2. If Owner and Contractor agree in writing to alter plans for the Construction, on completion of the Construction Owner will pay for all extra work done and material furnished as a result of the alterations, and that amount will be a part of the Consideration and the debt secured by this contract.

A.3. If Owner receives notice of or may become liable for a lien or claim for labor or materials furnished to Contractor and primarily chargeable to Contractor, Owner may retain from payments on the Note an amount sufficient to completely indemnify Owner against the lien or claim.

A.4. Notwithstanding anything to the contrary in this contract, during progress of the Construction, Owner may retain the amounts required by sections 53.101 and 53.081 of the Texas Property Code. Retainage will be withheld until the last business day of the third month after the month of final completion of the project, unless otherwise provided in the residential construction contract between the parties.

A.5. If a loss occurs before the Construction is completed and delivered to Owner, Owner may use any insurance proceeds to restore the destroyed or damaged property without affecting the lien created in this contract.

A.6. OWNER MAY FURNISH THE INSURANCE REQUIRED OF OWNER BY THIS CONTRACT EITHER THROUGH EXISTING POLICIES OWNED OR CONTROLLED BY OWNER OR THROUGH EQUIVALENT COVERAGE FROM ANY INSURANCE COMPANY AUTHORIZED TO TRANSACT BUSINESS IN TEXAS.
B. Owner’s Obligations

[Include if applicable: In addition to the obligations of Owner in the residential construction contract.] Owner agrees to—

B.1. pay all taxes and assessments on the Property when due, not authorize a taxing entity to transfer its tax lien on the Property to anyone other than Contractor, and not request a deferral of the collection of taxes pursuant to section 33.06 of the Texas Tax Code;

B.2. preserve the lien’s priority as it is established in this contract,

B.3. if this is not a first lien, pay all prior lien notes that Owner is liable to pay and abide by all prior lien instruments;

B.4. if this contract is for improvements to the Property, keep the Property other than those improvements in good repair and condition during the Construction and keep all of the Property in good repair and condition after the Construction is completed;

B.5. if this contract is for new construction, keep the Property in good repair and condition after the Construction is completed;

B.6. except to the extent that Contractor is required to insure the Construction during its progress, maintain at Owner’s sole cost and expense, and in a form acceptable to Contractor or its transferees, insurance policies containing the following coverages issued by an insurance company or companies authorized to engage in the insurance business in Texas with a financial rating acceptable to Contractor or its transferees:

a. property insurance covering all improvements located on the Property in an amount equal to their full replacement cost or such lesser amount as Lender may agree, containing a standard mortgagee clause, provided that the amounts of coverage comply with all coinsurance requirements of the policy,
b. flood insurance, if the Property is located in a flood hazard area, and

c. any other insurance coverages that may be reasonably required by Contractor or its transferees;

B.7. comply at all times with the requirements of the 80 percent coinsurance clause;

B.8. deliver the insurance policy to Contractor within ten days of the date of the contract and deliver renewals to Contractor at least fifteen days before expiration;

B.9. obey all laws, ordinances, and restrictive covenants applicable to the Property;

and

B.10. keep any buildings occupied as required by the insurance policy.

C. Contractor’s Obligations

In addition to Contractor’s obligations in the residential construction contract, Contractor agrees that—

C.1. Until the Construction is completed and delivered to Owner, Contractor will insure the Construction and all related materials against loss or damage from all perils included in “causes of loss—special” forms in an amount equal to the Consideration. The policy will be payable to the parties to this contract according to their respective interests. If Contractor does not provide this insurance, Contractor will bear any loss to the Construction and materials.

C.2. Contractor will neither make nor charge for any alterations in the Construction described in the plans and specifications unless Contractor and Owner agree otherwise in writing. Any alterations made without a written agreement will be considered performed under the original contract at no additional charge.

C.3. Contractor will pay all costs of the Construction, including labor, materials, and subcontractors, and will furnish Owner receipts for and releases from these costs.

C.4. If any other lien claims are filed, Contractor will pay for their removal or else provide a statutory bond.

D. Contractor’s Rights

Include the following if applicable.

In addition to Contractor’s rights in the residential construction contract, Contractor has the following rights:

D.1. Contractor may appoint in writing a substitute trustee, succeeding to all rights and responsibilities of Trustee.

D.2. After completion of the Construction, Contractor may apply any proceeds received under the insurance policy either to reduce the Note or to repair or replace damaged or destroyed improvements covered by the policy.

D.3. If Owner fails to perform any of Owner’s obligations other than providing insurance, Contractor may perform those obligations and be reimbursed by Owner on demand for any amounts so paid, including attorney’s fees, plus interest on those amounts from the dates of payment at the rate stated in the Note for matured, unpaid amounts. Any amounts to be reimbursed will be secured by this contract.

D.4. If Owner is required to furnish insurance and fails to do so, Contractor may procure it and add the premium advanced by Contractor to the amount due under the Note and may charge interest on the amount added from the time of its addition until it is paid, at a rate not exceeding the rate that the Note would produce over its full term if each scheduled payment were paid on the date due.

D.5. If Owner defaults in any payment on the Note or if this lien is foreclosed, Owner will reimburse Contractor for reasonable fees paid to an attorney who is not an employee of Contractor and court and other costs for collection of payments or foreclosure of the lien. The amount to be reimbursed will be secured by this contract.

D.6. If a default exists or Owner fails to perform any of Owner's obligations and the default continues after Contractor gives Owner written notice of the default and a twenty-day period in which to cure the default (or longer if required by law or by written agreement), Contractor may—

   a. declare the unpaid principal balance and earned interest on the Note immediately due;

   b. request Trustee to foreclose this lien, in which case Contractor or Contractor's agent will give notice of the foreclosure sale as provided by the Texas Property Code as then in effect, and

   c. purchase the Property at any foreclosure sale by offering the highest bid and then have the bid credited on the Note.

Notice of default is deemed given when deposited with the United States Postal Service (certified mail, return receipt requested), addressed to Owner at Owner's Mailing Address or to Owner's last address as shown in the records of the holder of the debt.

E. Trustee's Duties

If requested by Contractor to foreclose this lien, Trustee will—
E.1. either personally or by agent give notice of the foreclosure sale as required by the Texas Property Code as then in effect,

E.2. sell and convey all or part of the Property “AS IS” to the highest bidder for cash with a general warranty binding Owner, subject to the Prior Lien and to the Other Exceptions to Conveyance and Warranty and without representation or warranty, express or implied, by Trustee,

E.3. from proceeds of the sale, pay, in this order:

   a. expenses of foreclosure, including a reasonable commission to Trustee;

   b. to Contractor, the full amount of principal, interest, attorney’s fees, and other charges due and unpaid;

   c. any amounts required by law to be paid before payment to Owner; and

   d. to Owner, any balance; and

E.4. be indemnified by Contractor against all costs, expenses, and liabilities incurred by Trustee for acting in the execution or enforcement of the trust created by this contract, which includes all court and other costs, including attorney’s fees, incurred by Trustee in defense of any action or proceeding taken against Trustee in that capacity.

F. General Provisions

F.1. [If Contractor is terminated according to the residential construction contract due to Contractor’s default/If the Construction is not completed as agreed between Owner and Contractor], the amount of the Consideration subject to Contractor’s lien will be reduced by the amount reasonably necessary to complete the Construction as agreed. If Contractor is not the holder of the Note, the holder may complete the Construction, and the lien created in this contract will inure to the benefit of the holder.
F.2. This contract is executed, acknowledged, and delivered before any labor has been performed or any material has been delivered to the Property for the Construction. This contract is entered into by all Owners with the consent of each Owner’s spouse, as evidenced by the signatures below.

F.3. If any of the Property is sold under this contract, Owner will immediately surrender possession to the purchaser. If Owner does not, Owner will be a tenant at sufferance of the purchaser, subject to an action for forcible detainer.

F.4. Recitals in any trustee’s deed conveying the Property will be presumed to be true.

F.5. The lien created in this contract will remain superior to liens later created even if the time of payment of all or part of the Note is extended or part of the Property is released.

F.6. If any portion of the Note cannot be lawfully secured by this contract, payments will be applied first to discharge that portion.

F.7. Owner assigns to Contractor all amounts payable to or received by Owner from condemnation of all or part of the Property, from private sale in lieu of condemnation, and from damages caused by public works or construction on or near the Property. After deducting any expenses incurred, including attorney’s fees and court and other costs, Contractor will either release any remaining amounts to Owner or apply them to reduce the Note. Owner will immediately give Contractor notice of any actual or threatened proceedings for condemnation of all or part of the Property.

F.8. Proceeding under this contract, filing suit for foreclosure, or pursuing any other remedy will not constitute an election of remedies.

F.9. Interest on the debt secured by this contract will not exceed the maximum rate or amount of nonusurious interest that may be contracted for, taken, reserved, charged, or received under law. Any interest in excess of that maximum amount will be automatically credited on the principal of the debt or, if that has been paid, refunded. On any acceleration or required or permitted prepayment, any such excess will be canceled automatically as of the acceleration or prepayment or, if already paid, credited on the principal of the debt or, if the principal of the debt has been paid, refunded. This provision overrides any conflicting provisions in this and all other instruments concerning the debt.

F.10. When the context requires, singular nouns and pronouns include the plural.

F.11. The term Note includes all amounts secured by this contract.

F.12. Contractor includes Contractor’s assignees or transferees. This contract binds, benefits, and may be enforced by the successors in interest of all parties.

F.13. If Owner and Maker are not the same person, the term Owner includes Maker.

If additional clauses like those suggested in form 20-5 are used, they should appear here as numbered paragraphs following paragraph F.13.

Include the following if the contract calls for renovation or repair of existing homestead improvements. See section 20.1:1 in this chapter.

G. Repair or Renovation Construction

If the work of this contract includes repair or renovation of existing improvements, the following provisions apply. Contractor and Owner certify and represent that they are aware of and have complied with the following legal rights and obligations:

G.1. Rescission. Owner may rescind this contract (and any other proposals, contracts, or agreements with Contractor regarding the repair or renovation of existing improvements) without penalty or charge within three days after the execution of the contract by all parties. See the “Notice of Cancellation” below.
G.2. Place of Signing Contract. Owner acknowledges that this contract was signed at one of the following offices and not elsewhere: (a) the office of a third-party lender making an extension of credit for the work and material to be furnished; (b) the office of an attorney at law; or (c) the office of a title company.

G.3. Five-Day Waiting Period. This mechanic’s lien contract and any other contract signed in connection with the repair and renovation work mentioned in this contract have not been executed by Owner or Owner’s spouse before the fifth day after Owner made written application for an extension of credit for the work and material contemplated.

Clause 20-5-1

Project as described in [residential construction contract between/plans and specifications agreed on by] Owner and Contractor.

Force Majeure

Clause 20-5-2

Use this clause under “General Provisions.”

Time is of the essence in the completion and delivery of the Construction. If the Construction is delayed by matters that are beyond the reasonable control of Contractor and that Contractor is unable to prevent or overcome by the exercise of reasonable diligence, the Completion Date will be extended one day for each day the Construction is so delayed, up to a maximum of thirty additional days, provided Contractor notifies Owner of the delay in writing within seven days after its occurrence.

Alternative Payment Terms for Mechanic’s Lien Note

This note, less the retainage required by statute, is payable on completion of the construction as provided in the mechanic’s lien contract of even date. Completion of construction is determined by [specify]. The retainage, plus interest, is payable as follows: [Contractor must first provide Owner with a written list of all subcontractors and suppliers of any tier who have furnished labor, material, equipment, or other improvements for the Project, including each subcontractor and supplier's name, address, and telephone number, updated and verified by Contractor as accurate as of the date of final completion of the Project, as a condition precedent to Owner action under this section. On receipt of the list, Owner will prepare, file, and send an affidavit of completion within ten days of the date of final completion of the Project. Retainage will then be released to Contractor the fiftieth day after the date of final completion as stated in the affidavit, provided no unreleased mechanic's liens have been filed by that time/On the last business day of the third month after the month of final completion and acceptance of the construction].

Clause 20-5-4

This note is payable in the following installments during progress of the construction as provided in the mechanic's lien contract [include if applicable: and residential construction contract] of even date:

1. $[amount], less retainage required by statute, on completion of foundation, slab, and preliminary rough plumbing;

2. $[amount], less retainage required by statute, on completion of rough framing;

3. $[amount], less retainage required by statute, on completion of roof and remainder of rough plumbing;

4. $[amount], less retainage required by statute, on completion and acceptance of all construction; and
5. retainage required by statute, which will be paid as follows: [Contractor must first provide Owner with a written list of all subcontractors and suppliers of any tier who have furnished labor, material, equipment, or other improvements for the Project, including each subcontractor and supplier's name, address, and telephone number, updated and verified by Contractor as accurate as of the date of final completion of the Project, as a condition precedent to Owner action under this section. On receipt of the list, Owner will prepare, file, and send an affidavit of completion within ten days of the date of final completion of the Project. Retainage will then be released to Contractor the fiftieth day after the date of final completion as stated in the affidavit, provided no unreleased mechanic's liens have been filed by that time/On the last business day of the third month after the month of final completion and acceptance of the construction].

On receipt of the list, Owner will prepare, file, and send an affidavit of completion within ten days of the date of final completion of the Project. Retainage will then be released to Contractor the fiftieth day after the date of final completion as stated in the affidavit, provided no unreleased mechanic’s liens have been filed by that time/On the last business day of the third month after the month of final completion and acceptance of the construction].

Involuntary Mechanic’s Lien Documents

This chapter discusses primarily statutory mechanic’s liens and provides related forms based on Tex. Prop. Code ch. 53. The Texas Constitution provides a separate constitutional lien in addition to the statutory mechanic’s lien provided in the Texas Property Code. Tex. Const. art. XVI, § 37.

The constitutional lien requires no special notice to owners. It is considered self-enacting and arises solely from the claimant’s performance of the work. Two important features of constitutional liens should be noted: first, they arise only in favor of “original contractors” (persons with contracts directly with the owner of the property interest improved), and second, bona fide purchasers or lienholders without notice of the constitutional lien claim do not take subject to it.

Even though the constitutional lien is considered self-enacting, as a practical matter the claimant must take some action to put the world on notice of the lien claim before an intervening sale or other encumbrance of the property. Such notice might be given either by filing an affidavit claiming the lien in the real property records in the county in which the property is located or by filing suit and lis pendens notice. See Tex. Prop. Code § 12.007.

The forms presented in this chapter are for documenting statutory rather than constitutional lien claims. Form 21-4, however, could be adapted for use in filing notice of a constitutional claim. For the constitutional lien affidavit, a phrase may be included in paragraph 8. of the form specifically referring to the constitutional lien, Tex. Const. art. XVI, § 37. Paragraph 6. can also be changed to reflect the fact that the claimant is the original contractor (for example, “Claimant is also the original contractor on the above-referenced project”). No special form of notice is required; the claimant is merely placing constructive notice of the constitutional lien claim in the real property records by filing the affidavit. Of course, as a practical matter, the claimant should send a copy of the filed affidavit or lis pendens to the owner.

Necessity for Written Contract to Improve Homestead: No involuntary mechanic’s lien may attach to homestead property unless the homestead owner and the contractor sign a qualifying written contract for the improvements. This requirement applies to both constitutional and statutory mechanic’s liens. The qualifying written contract for the improvements must satisfy certain constitutional and statutory requirements. Tex. Const. art. XVI, § 50(a)(5); Tex. Prop. Code §§ 41.001, 53.254; Cavazos v. Munoz, 305 B.R. 661 (S.D. Tex. 2004). The required elements of a qualifying contract to improve the homestead are discussed in section 20.1:2 in this manual.

While the underlying written contract for the improvements is a prerequisite to the existence of an involuntary mechanic’s lien against the homestead, it is not the source of the lien. Rather, the lien arises from the performance of work by the claimant and (in the case of a statutory lien) the satisfaction of certain requirements necessary to perfect the lien.
Subcontractors do not have to sign the written contract to improve the homestead. Its lien qualifying effects vicariously inure to the benefit of all subcontractors and materialmen who furnish labor or materials through the original contractor. Tex. Prop. Code § 53.254(d).

Required Admonitions for Statutory Mechanic’s Liens against Homestead: As a general rule, a statutory mechanic’s lien against the homestead may be perfected in the same manner prescribed for all such liens. However, in addition to the general requirements of chapter 53 of the Property Code, there are special admonitions required to be given by the lien claimant to the homestead owner that are unique to involuntary mechanic’s liens against the homestead. For a discussion of these special admonitions refer to section 21.5:1 below.

§ 21.2 General Considerations for Statutory Liens

Texas courts consistently have followed two interpretive principles in evaluating the validity of involuntary mechanic’s lien claims. First, the mechanic’s lien statutes are to be liberally interpreted for the purposes intended, to provide lien claimants security for their labor and materials furnished on construction of improvements on real property. First National Bank v. Whirlpool Corp., 517 S.W.2d 262 (Tex. 1974). Second, however, the time deadlines for sending required notices and filing the mechanic’s lien affidavit are critical. Missing the notice deadline or mechanic’s lien filing deadline is fatal to the mechanic’s lien in almost every instance. See First National Bank v. Sledge, 653 S.W.2d 283 (Tex. 1983).

Residential Construction: If a construction project is on residential property, the claimant must comply with the provisions of Tex. Prop. Code ch. 53, subch. K, in addition to the other statutory requirements. The portions of subchapter K that relate to involuntary liens are discussed or cited in the following sections of these practice notes. Residential projects are defined for purposes of the mechanic’s lien statute as construction or repair of a single-family house, duplex, triplex, quadruplex, or unit in a multi-unit structure used for residential purposes that is owned by one or more adult persons and is used or intended to be used as a dwelling by one or more of its owners. Tex. Prop. Code § 53.001(8), (9), (10).

§ 21.3 Construction Project Participants

To understand the rights and time deadlines for notice according to the statute, the attorney must first understand how the claimant fits into the chain of parties on the project: owner, original contractor, subcontractor, and supplier. Notice requirements fall into three basic categories based on the definitions of participants on a construction project.

An original contractor is a person or entity contracting with the owner of the interest in the real estate being improved—either directly or through an agent for the owner. An original contractor creates a statutory lien against the property by filing a lien affidavit with the county clerk of the county in which the property is located and sending a copy of the affidavit to the owner of the property. Original contractors have no notice requirements other than sending a copy of the affidavit claiming the mechanic’s lien to the owner. See Tex. Prop. Code § 53.052. As discussed in section 21.1 above, original contractors also have a constitutional lien.
§ 21.3:2 First-Tier Subcontractors and Suppliers

First-tier subcontractors or suppliers have a subcontract, purchase order, or other agreement directly with the original contractor. In addition to filing a lien affidavit, they must provide notice of unpaid claims to the owner to create mechanic’s lien rights. This notice authorizes the owner to withhold payment from the contractor to pay the claims. A copy of the notice of unpaid claims must be sent by certified mail to the original contractor. Tex. Prop. Code §§ 53.056, 53.081, 53.252. This statutory procedure is referred to as the trapping of funds.

§ 21.3:3 Second-Tier and Lower-Tier Subcontractors and Suppliers

Second-tier and lower-tier subcontractors or suppliers have subcontracts or agreements with a first-tier, second-tier, or lower-tier subcontractor. In other words, they have no contract with the original contractor. Therefore, they are required to give notice to the original contractor in addition to sending the same notice described in section 21.3:2 above to the owner as a prerequisite to perfecting a valid mechanic’s lien. Tex. Prop. Code §§ 53.056(b), 53.252(b).

Although the notice requirements differ, the mechanic’s lien rights to trapped funds and retainage are the same for second-tier and lower-tier subcontractors as for first-tier subcontractors and suppliers. In this chapter all second- and lower-tier subcontractor and supplier claimants will be referred to as “second-tier” claimants.

§ 21.4 Owner Liability for Mechanic’s Lien Claims

§ 21.4:1 Original Contractors

Owners are liable for the amount of the mechanic’s lien perfected by original contractors. Disputes may exist about the underlying merits of claims for the amount of indebtedness owed to the original contractor. However, owners are liable to pay the face amount of original contractor perfected mechanic’s lien claims, if the amount is owed.

§ 21.4:2 Derivative Claimants: First- and Second-Tier Claims, Statutory Retainage, and Fund Trapping

The owner’s liability to both first- and second-tier subcontractor or supplier lien claimants is the sum of two amounts described in Tex. Prop. Code § 53.084. First, an owner is liable for the mandatory 10 percent statutory retainage that owners are required to withhold from the original contractor on every nonbonded construction job. Tex. Prop. Code §§ 53.101–.103; Page v. Structural Wood Components, 102 S.W.3d 720, 722 (Tex. 2003). In addition, an owner is liable for “fund trapping,” which means “trapping” or withholding remaining contract funds otherwise owed to the original contractor once the owner receives a mechanic’s lien notice letter (Tex. Prop. Code § 53.056(b), (d)) containing language telling the owner to withhold payment from the contractor for the claim amount. If an owner receives a lien notice letter containing the required fund-trap warning but fails to withhold payment from the contractor, the owner is personally liable and his property subject to a lien for such amounts paid out in spite of receipt of such notice. This fund trapping liability is in addition to the owner’s liability for the 10 percent statutory retainage.

Aiken v. State, 36 S.W.3d 131 (Tex. App.—Austin 2000, no pet.), provides a good example of owner liability for fund trapping and retainage. Aiken involved criminal prosecution of a contractor on a residential construction project. The contractor was accused of taking a bank loan advance for the construction and misapplying the funds by not using them to pay project bills due on the job. This is ordinarily a violation of chapter 162 of the Texas Property Code (the Texas Construction Trust Funds...
Act). However, in this case, the prosecution chose to pursue a conviction under Texas Penal Code section 32.45, misapplication of fiduciary property. One of the elements of this offense is to prove that the defendant dealt with property of the victim in a manner that involves substantial risk of loss to the owners. In this case, because the owners had withheld 10 percent retainage, the court determined that the owners suffered no substantial risk of loss. Their liability was limited to the 10 percent retainage since no funds had been trapped by lien claimants, as described above. The case provides a good example of how owner liability is calculated.

To summarize, owners have to withhold or “trap” funds they otherwise owe the contractor on receipt of a proper lien notice letter. In addition, owners must withhold 10 percent retainage from the original contractor throughout the duration of the project. If owners fail to trap funds or retain the 10 percent retainage throughout the course of the job, they are nevertheless liable for such amounts they should have withheld.

§ 21.5:1 Affidavit Claiming Lien

Original contractors and first- and second-tier subcontractors and suppliers create a statutory mechanic’s lien against property by filing a lien affidavit with the county clerk of the county in which the property is located and sending a copy of the affidavit to the owner of the property.

It is best to have the affidavit claiming mechanic’s and materialman’s lien, form 21-4 in this chapter, executed by a claimant with knowledge of the amount due on the account, the work performed, and the particular project involved. The mechanic’s lien affidavit is invalid unless it contains a jurat. Sugarland Business Center, Ltd. v. Norman, 624 S.W.2d 639, 641 (Tex. App.—Houston [14th Dist.] 1981, no writ).

Paragraph 4. of form 21-4 must state the type of labor performed and materials furnished.

The legal description of the property, sufficient to distinguish it from other tracts in the area, is required in paragraph 7. of form 21-4. The lien applies to the original tract at the time construction commenced. Subsequent conveyances of parts of the property, even if conveyed before the filing of the lien affidavit, are still subject to the lien. See Valdez v. Diamond Shamrock Refining & Marketing Co., 842 S.W.2d 273 (Tex. 1992).

The notice at the top of form 21-4 states “NOTICE: THIS IS NOT A LIEN. THIS IS ONLY AN AFFIDAVIT CLAIMING A LIEN.” This notice is required to assert a mechanic’s lien against homestead property and must appear at the top of the page in a minimum of ten-point bold-faced type or equivalent. Tex. Prop. Code § 53.254(f).

Also, for first- and second-tier claimants (other than original contractors), the lien affidavit must contain a statement as to each month in which material was delivered or work performed (paragraph 4.) and a description of the date and method of giving required notice to the owner (paragraph 10.). Tex. Prop. Code § 53.054(a)(3), (8).

A copy of the lien affidavit must be sent to the original contractor and the owner within five days of filing the affidavit. Tex. Prop. Code § 53.055. Form 21-5 is a cover letter for this purpose. Failure to send the lien affidavit within the time prescribed has been held fatal to the validity of the lien. Cabintree, Inc. v. Schneider, 728 S.W.2d 395 (Tex. App.—Houston [1st Dist.] 1986, writ ref’d), but see Arias v. Brookstone, L.P., 265 S.W.3d 459 (Tex. App.—Houston [1st Dist.] 2007, pet. denied) (declining to follow dicta from Cabintree that notice must be given after the lien affidavit has been filed).
§ 21.5:2  Notice to Original Contractor by Second-Tier Claimant

Form 21-1 in this chapter must be sent by certified mail to the original contractor and is self-explanatory. Copies of statements or billings should be attached.

§ 21.5:3  Notice of Unpaid Claim to Owner and Original Contractor

All derivative claimants, first-tier and second-tier, must send a written notice of unpaid claim to the owner and original contractor. Form 21-2 in this chapter is meant to satisfy this notice requirement. It contains language prescribed by Tex. Prop. Code §§ 53.056(d), 53.252(c), advising the owner that a failure to withhold payment from the contractor may result in the owner becoming personally liable and the property subjected to a lien. This language is required to trap funds on the project pursuant to Tex. Prop. Code § 53.081(b).

Form 21-2 includes a reference to the Texas Construction Trust Fund Act, Tex. Prop. Code §§ 162.001–.033. This statute states that all recipients of payment under a construction contract in Texas (including an owner who receives construction loan funds secured by a deed of trust on real property and the contractor who receives a construction draw) become trustees of the funds and must see to it that the funds received are used to pay actual expenses directly related to the job. Tex. Prop. Code §§ 162.002, 162.031(b). Diversion of funds to other jobs or expenses not directly related to the project on which the funds were received is a violation of the statute and, in some circumstances, is a crime. Tex. Prop. Code §§ 162.031(a), 162.032.

§ 21.5:4  Notice of Unpaid Claim—Homestead Property

Form 21-3 in this chapter is a statutory disclosure and warning that must be included verbatim in any notice of unpaid claim given on homestead property against which a contractor, subcontractor, supplier, or other claimant wishes to assert a mechanic’s lien. Tex. Prop. Code § 53.254(g).

§ 21.5:5  Special Notices

Specially Fabricated Materials: The notice regarding specially fabricated materials, form 21-6 in this chapter, is to be sent by the fifteenth day of the second month after the claimant receives and accepts an order for a specially fabricated material. Tex. Prop. Code §§ 53.058, 53.253.

This notice must be sent by certified mail, return receipt requested, to the owner or reputed owner and also to the original contractor, unless the claimant’s subcontract is with the original contractor. Tex. Prop. Code §§ 53.058(b), (d), 53.253(c), (e).

Sending this notice allows the claimant to later perfect a mechanic’s lien by filing an affidavit at the applicable time, even if the claimant has not yet delivered the specially fabricated materials. Tex. Prop. Code §§ 53.058, 53.253. Taking advantage of this procedure has the potential of allowing the lien claimant to retain specially fabricated materials while still asserting a mechanic’s lien claim.

Different or additional notices may be required if the specially fabricated materials have (or should have) already been delivered. See Tex. Prop. Code §§ 53.058(e), 53.253(b).

Contractual Retainage: Contractual retainage is the right expressed in a subcontract or other agreement to withhold, from progress payments otherwise due, a percentage of money due a first- or second-tier claimant pending completion of the work, final payment released on the project, or other later date. Retainage provisions in Texas Property Code chapter 53 were amended by the 2011 legislature. For projects on which the original contract was executed before September 1, 2011, form 21-7, notice of agreement providing for retainage, must be sent by the claimant by registered or certified mail to the last known business or residence address of the owner, reputed owner, or original contractor to later perfect a lien claim for retainage on the project, if the claimant has entered into an agreement that provides for retainage. Tex. Prop. Code § 53.057. Form 21-8 is the notice of retainage agreement applicable to projects for which the original contract was executed on or after September 1, 2011. Tex. Prop. Code § 53.057(c). Form 21-8 need not be sent by registered or certified mail.

§ 21.5:6 Requests for Information

Tex. Prop. Code § 53.159 provides that the various participants in the construction project (owner, contractor, subcontractor, and supplier) may request information of each other. Forms 21-9 through 21-12 in this chapter are letters that indicate the information that may be requested. Failure to provide information requested in accordance with the statute triggers liability for the reasonable and necessary costs of obtaining the information elsewhere. Tex. Prop. Code § 53.159(f). Also, a subcontractor who does not timely receive the notice of the date of execution of the original contract for the project is not required to file a mechanic’s lien by the early retainage deadlines, but instead may file by the later dates specified by Tex. Prop. Code § 53.052. See the discussion in section 21.8:2 below.

§ 21.5:7 Release Required of Claimant

Once a claim is paid or otherwise satisfied, a mechanic’s lien claimant must furnish a release in recordable form to the person paying the claim. The release of mechanic’s and materialman’s lien, form 21-13 in this chapter, must be furnished by the claimant within ten days of receipt of a written request. See Tex. Prop. Code § 53.152.

If the claim is only partially paid, a partial release of lien, form 21-14, may be used to preserve the lien securing the balance owed.

§ 21.6 Time Limits for Contractual Retainage Claims

A first- or second-tier claimant has two alternative methods for sending lien notices covering the claimant’s contractual retainage claim. The claimant may send the notices, which are due each month, by the deadlines provided by Texas Property Code sections 53.056 or 53.252. (See section 21.7 below.) Alternatively, the claimant may send a simplified, one-time notice for contractual retainage agreement, given according to Tex. Prop. Code § 53.057. See forms 21-7 and 21-8 in this chapter. The claimant who gives the retainage notice by the Tex. Prop. Code § 53.057 deadline does not have to give other retainage notices, except notice of the filing of the mechanic’s lien affidavit. Tex. Prop. Code § 53.057(e). Note, however, that a claim consisting in part of retainage and in part of other billings on a job must comply not only with the retainage notice deadlines but also with the other applicable notice time limits as set out in section 21.7 below. Tex. Prop. Code §§ 53.056, 53.257.

The following deadlines are for contractual retainage notices. These apply to both residential and nonresidential projects. Because the retainage provisions in Texas Property Code chapter 53 were amended by the 2011 Texas legislature, two sets of deadlines are provided, the application of which depends on the date of execution of the original contract between the original contractor and owner.
Original Contract Executed before September 1, 2011: Notice to the original contractor and to the owner by second-tier and lower-tier claimants (subcontractors or suppliers with no contract with the original contractor) must be given not later than the fifteenth day of the second month following the first month of delivery or work. Tex. Prop. Code § 53.057(b).

Notice to the owner by first-tier claimants (subcontractors or suppliers with contracts directly with the original contractor) must also be given not later than the fifteenth day of the second month following the first month of delivery or work. Tex. Prop. Code § 53.057(b).

Original Contract Executed on or after September 1, 2011: Notice to the original contractor and to the owner by second-tier and lower-tier claimants (subcontractors or suppliers with no contract with the original contractor) must be given by the earlier of—

1. the thirtieth day after the claimant’s agreement (i.e., the subcontract work or delivery of material) is completed, terminated, or abandoned, or

2. the thirtieth day after the date the owner’s or original contractor’s agreement is terminated or abandoned.

Notice to the owner by first-tier claimants (subcontractors or suppliers with subcontracts or other agreements directly with the original contractor) must also be given by the earlier of the deadlines stated above for second-tier claimants. Tex. Prop. Code § 53.057(b–d).

§ 21.7 Time Limits for Notices of Claims Other than for Contractual Retainage

§ 21.7:1 Nonresidential Projects

Second-Tier Claimants—Original Contractor Notice: Notice to the original contractor by second-tier and lower-tier claimants must be given not later than the fifteenth day of the second month following each month of delivery or work. Tex. Prop. Code § 53.056(b). See the chart at section 21.9:1 below.

First- and Second-Tier Claimants—Owner Notice: Notice to the owner and to the original contractor of all derivative claims must also be given not later than the fifteenth day of the third month following each month of delivery or work. Tex. Prop. Code § 53.056(b). See the chart at section 21.9:1 below.

§ 21.7:2 Residential Projects

First- and Second-Tier Claimants—Owner and Original Contractor Notice: Notice to the owner and to the original contractor of all derivative claims must be given not later than the fifteenth day of the second month following each month of delivery or work. Tex. Prop. Code § 53.252. See the chart at section 21.9:2 below.

§ 21.8 Deadlines for Filing Lien Affidavit

In addition to sending the notices by the times described above, the claimant must file a lien affidavit in the real property records of the county in which the property is located.
§ 21.8:1 Accrual of Indebtedness

The deadline for filing the lien affidavit depends on several factors, including the date the claimant’s “indebtedness accrues.”

A claimant’s “indebtedness accrues” by the earliest of the following:

1. For original contractors, the earlier of (a) the last day of the month of receipt by the owner or contractor of a written declaration by the other party that the original contract has been terminated or (b) the last day of the month in which the project was completed or abandoned. Tex. Prop. Code § 53.053(b).

2. For a first- or second-tier claimant, the last day of the last month in which that claimant’s labor was performed or material furnished. Tex. Prop. Code § 53.053(c).

3. For a claimant furnishing specially fabricated material, the last day of the last month in which (a) the material was furnished; (b) the material would have been furnished; or (c) the owner, contractor, or subcontractor breached or terminated the contract or subcontract with the claimant. Tex. Prop. Code § 53.053(d).

4. For claims for unpaid contractual retainage, the earliest of the last day of the month in which the whole project is completed, finally settled, terminated, or abandoned. Tex. Prop. Code § 53.053(e).

§ 21.8:2 Original Contractor Lien Affidavit Filing Deadlines

The original contractor lien affidavit filing deadline for residential projects is the fifteenth day of the third calendar month after the “indebtedness accrues.” Tex. Prop. Code § 53.052.

For nonresidential projects, the deadline is the fifteenth day of the fourth calendar month after the “indebtedness accrues.” Tex. Prop. Code § 53.052.

§ 21.8:3 First- and Second-Tier Claimant Lien Affidavit Filing Deadlines

To obtain an enforceable lien claim and also claim a share of the owner’s required 10 percent statutory retainage, first- and second-tier subcontractor and supplier lien claimants must file their lien affidavits by the earlier of the deadlines indicated in sections 21.8:4 and 21.8:5 below. Because the retainage provisions affecting first- and second-tier claimants were amended by the 2011 Texas legislature, two sets of deadlines are provided, application of which depends on the date of execution of the original contract between the original contractor and owner.

§ 21.8:4 Original Contract Executed before September 1, 2011

First- and second-tier subcontractor and supplier lien claimants’ lien affidavit filing deadlines are determined as follows:

1. For residential projects, by the fifteenth day of the third calendar month after the “indebtedness accrues.” Tex. Prop. Code § 53.052. See the chart at section 21.9:2 below.

2. For nonresidential projects, by the fifteenth day of the fourth calendar month after the “indebtedness accrues.” Tex. Prop. Code § 53.052. See the chart at section 21.9:1 below.
However, if the deadline provided for in Tex. Prop. Code § 53.103 occurs earlier than the deadlines above, the claimant must file by the earlier date to share in the owner’s 10 percent statutory retainage. See Tex. Prop. Code § 53.103. This thirty-day deadline applies to both residential and nonresidential projects.

Note that for determining “final completion,” warranty work does not count to extend time limits.

§ 21.8:5 Original Contract Executed on or after September 1, 2011

A claimant may rely on the deadlines described in section 21.8:4 above, based on the pre-2011 version of the statute. Alternatively, a claimant may choose instead to file by the earliest of the following four deadlines for projects in which the original contract was executed on or after September 1, 2011:

1. The normal lien-filing date provided by Tex. Prop. Code § 53.052, which is (a) the fifteenth day of the fourth month following the last month of work or delivery by the claimant for nonresidential projects or (b) the fifteenth day of the third month following the last month of work or delivery by the claimant for residential projects. (See the charts at sections 21.9:1 and 21.9:2 below)

2. The fortieth day after the date stated in the affidavit of completion for the original contract, if the owner sent the claimant notice of the affidavit. This affidavit of completion is provided for in Tex. Prop. Code § 53.106, which allows, but does not require, the owner to file such an affidavit stating the date of final completion for the project. See form 18-7 in this manual. Notice of filing and a copy of the affidavit must be sent to claimants making a written request for them or to claimants who have sent out owner lien notices. However, regardless of whether a claimant makes a request for such an affidavit or sends a lien notice, if the affidavit is not sent to a claimant, then the forty-day deadline provided in this section does not apply to that claimant. The affidavit is prima facie evidence of the actual final completion date for the project if it is sent to claimants as required.

3. For nonresidential projects only, the fortieth day after the date of termination or abandonment of the original contract if notice of termination or abandonment was sent by the owner to the claimant as required by Tex. Prop. Code § 53.107. The notice of termination or abandonment is required to be sent to each claimant who requests notice in writing or who sends the owner a lien notice. However, regardless of whether a claimant makes a request for a notice of termination or abandonment or sends a lien notice, if that notice is not sent to a claimant, then the forty-day deadline provided in this section does not apply. See form 21-15. This deadline option is not applicable to residential projects. Tex. Prop. Code § 53.107(e).

4. The thirtieth day after the day the owner sends written notice to the claimant demanding that the claimant file its mechanic’s lien affidavit. The notice must contain a legal description of the project property, the owner’s name and address, and it must specify that the lien affidavit must be filed within thirty days of when the notice was sent. Tex. Prop. Code § 53.057(g).

Interestingly, this fourth alternative provides that the notice is effective only for the amount of contractual retainage earned by the claimant as of the day this owner notice was sent. Therefore, Tex. Prop. Code § 53.057(g) indicates that claimants who fail to file within thirty days of the owner demand may have only their contractual retainage impacted.
§ 21.8:6  Owner Notice of Termination or Abandonment by Contractor—Nonresidential Projects

For nonresidential projects only, a notice of termination or abandonment is required of the owners. The notice must be sent not later than the tenth day after the date the original contract is terminated or the original contractor abandons the project. Tex. Prop. Code § 53.107.

The owner must send this notice to every claimant who has either provided the owner with notice of a lien claim or sent a request to the owner for notice of termination or abandonment. Tex. Prop. Code §§ 53.103, 53.107. A notice of termination or abandonment by owner is included as form 21-15 in this chapter.

If the owner fails to give the notice of termination or abandonment, the claimant will not be subject to the early retainage filing deadlines described in sections 21.8:4 or 21.8:5 (3) above. Tex. Prop. Code §§ 53.103, 53.107.

§ 21.8:7  Owner Failure to Withhold 10 Percent Retainage

If the owner fails to withhold statutory retainage, then the claimants are entitled to perfect their claims by notice and affidavit either by the longer deadlines described in sections 21.8:4 and 21.8:5 (1) above (the fifteenth day of the third month (residential) or the fifteenth day of the fourth month (nonresidential) following the last month of work/delivery). No thirty-day or forty-day deadlines under Tex. Prop. Code § 53.057(f) are applicable if the owner fails to withhold the statutory retainage.

§ 21.9  Timetables Outlining Deadlines

Caution: The following tables outline only the timetables for various deadlines; the attorney must have a clear understanding of the statutes to properly apply the tables.

If the retainage deadline, provided for in Tex. Prop. Code § 53.103, is earlier than the lien affidavit deadlines provided for by Texas Property Code sections 53.056 and 53.252, the affidavit must be filed by that earlier deadline.

§ 21.10 Texas Prompt Payment Statute

Chapter 28 of the Texas Property Code provides that for private work, as contrasted with public works projects, the owner has thirty-five days from the date of receipt from a contractor of a written request for payment to pay the invoiced amount—less retainage required by law—for work properly performed or materials specially fabricated or suitably stored. (Tex. Prop. Code § 28.002(a)) Once the contractor receives payment, he must pay his subcontractors or suppliers their proportionate share of the draw not more than seven days later. (Tex. Prop. Code § 28.002(b)) A subcontractor who receives payment must in turn pay his subcontractors or suppliers their proportionate share not later than seven days thereafter. (Tex. Prop. Code § 28.002(c)) Unpaid bills earn interest at the rate of 1.5 percent per month. Interest stops accruing on the date of receipt of payment, the date payment is mailed, or the date a judgment is rendered in a suit filed under this statute, whichever occurs first. (Tex. Prop. Code § 28.002(c))
§ 28.004. Recovery of attorney’s fees in a suit to collect the interest is also allowed. Any attempt to waive this section is void. Tex. Prop. Code §§ 28.005–.006.

If a good-faith dispute exists concerning the amount owed on a residential job (construction of a single-family residence, duplex, triplex, or quadruplex), the owner, contractor, or subcontractor disputing the payment may withhold no more than 110 percent of the difference between the amounts claimed due. Tex. Prop. Code § 28.003(a).

If a good-faith dispute exists on projects not involving construction of a single-family residence, duplex, triplex, or quadruplex, no more than 100 percent of the amount in dispute may be withheld. Tex. Prop. Code § 28.003(b).

If the construction lender’s late release of funds is the reason for the delay in payment, the owner is protected because the payment required of the owner pursuant to Tex. Prop. Code § 28.003(a) changes from the thirty-fifth day after the date the owner receives the payment request to the fifth day after the date the owner receives loan proceeds, if a construction loan exists and the owner has timely and properly requested disbursement but the lender failed to disburse in time to meet the thirty-five-day deadline. Tex. Prop. Code § 28.008.

Right to Suspend Work: Section 28.009 of the Texas Property Code provides a statutory right of the contractor or subcontractor to suspend work on private commercial projects if he has not been paid in accordance with this statute. Subpart (e) of section 28.009 provides that this part does not apply to a contract for the construction of improvements to a detached single-family residence, duplex, triplex, or quadruplex. Tex. Prop. Code § 28.009(e).

Work cannot be suspended until the tenth day after the claimant gives written notice to the owner or contractor, as applicable, stating that payment has not been received and stating the intent of the contractor or subcontractor to suspend performance. If a construction loan exists, the lender must also be given this notice of intent to suspend work. The claimant is not required to perform further work until the amount due is paid, plus costs of demobilization and remobilization. The claimant is not responsible for damages due to suspension of work if the claimant was not notified in writing before suspension either that payment has been made or that a good-faith dispute about payment exists. However, a notice of good-faith dispute must include a list of specific reasons for nonpayment. If one of the reasons for nonpayment is alleged defective or incomplete work, the claimant must be given a reasonable opportunity to cure the listed items or offer a deduction of a reasonable amount to compensate for the listed items that cannot be promptly cured. Tex. Prop. Code § 28.009.

Re: Claims of [name of claimant] ("Claimant") for unpaid billings totaling $[amount] ("Claim Amount"); [specify] construction project ("Project")

This is to provide you with notice that Claimant is owed the Claim Amount for its past-due and unpaid billings for [labor/materials/labor and materials] furnished on the Project. Claimant furnished [description of work and/or materials furnished] for the Project under Claimant’s agreement with [name of customer].

This notice is sent in compliance with the Texas Property Code’s mechanic’s lien provisions. Accordingly, we must notify you that if the Claim Amount remains unpaid, the owner of the premises may be personally liable, and the owner’s property may be subjected to a lien unless the owner withholds payment from the contractor for payment of the claim or the claim is otherwise paid or settled.

Also, further notice is given that all of the Claim Amount has accrued and is past due. Accordingly, demand for payment of the claim in the Claim Amount is hereby made.

Enclosed are copies of the statements or billings that constitute this claim.

This also constitutes notice pursuant to section 162.001 et seq. of the Texas Property Code (the Trust Fund Act) that Claimant has a priority interest in the construction funds for this project in your possession now or released to you in the future. The Trust Fund Act states... that project owners and contractors are trustees of the construction funds they receive. Such funds must be used to pay for the labor and materials on the Project and cannot be used for other purposes. The owner and contractor are deemed to be trustees of the Project funds for the benefit of unpaid subcontractors and suppliers, including Claimant, to see that payment is made. Consequently, you are directed to set aside such construction funds to cover the Claim Amount. Diversion of construction trust funds constitutes violation of the Trust Fund Act.

Please contact me immediately regarding this notice.

Sincerely yours,

Notice to Owner Regarding Liens against Homestead Property

Form 21-3

To fix a lien on homestead, the following statement must be included in or attached to form 21-2 in this chapter, the notice required to be given to the owner under Tex. Prop. Code § 53.252. Tex. Prop. Code § 53.254. The language is derived from the statute, and the practitioner must be careful not to alter the prescribed language.

Notice to Owner Regarding Liens against Homestead Property

If a subcontractor or supplier who furnishes materials or performs labor for construction of improvements on your property is not paid, your property may be subject to a lien for the unpaid amount if:

1. after receiving notice of the unpaid claim from the claimant, you fail to withheld payment to your contractor that is sufficient to cover the unpaid claim until the dispute is resolved, or

2. during construction and for 30 days after completion of construction, you fail to retain 10 percent of the contract price or 10 percent of the value of the work performed by your contractor.

If you have complied with the law regarding the 10 percent retainage and you have withheld payment to the contractor sufficient to cover any written notice of claim and have paid that amount, if any, to the claimant, any lien claim filed on your property by a subcontractor or supplier, other than a person who contracted directly with you, will not be a valid lien on your property. In addition, except for the required 10 percent retainage, you are not liable to a subcontractor or supplier for any amount paid to your contractor before you received written notice of the claim.
Form 21-4

If the lien relates to a homestead, the affidavit must contain the notice preceding the title of this form. The language of the notice is prescribed by Tex. Prop. Code § 53.254(f) and must appear at the top of the page in a minimum of ten-point bold-faced type or equivalent.

Restrictive Covenants and Property Owners Associations

§ 23.1:1 Restrictive Covenants

“Restrictive covenant” means “any covenant, condition, or restriction contained in a dedicatory instrument, whether mandatory, prohibitive, permissive, or administrative.” Tex. Prop. Code § 202.001(4). A restrictive covenant is a private way to regulate or control the use of real property by contract. This type of regulation and control is based on the fundamental “right of parties to contract with relation to property as they see fit, provided they do not contravene public policy and their contracts are not otherwise illegal.” Curlee v. Walker, 244 S.W. 497, 498 (1922). Restrictive covenants are subject to general common-law rules of contracts. Pilarcik v. Emmons, 966 S.W.2d 474, 478 (Tex. 1998).

Under common law, restrictive covenants can be adopted as part of a general plan for the development of a tract of land to make it more attractive for residential or commercial purposes by reason of the covenants imposed on each of the separate lots sold. The development plan that includes restrictive covenants forms an inducement to each purchaser to buy a lot in the development, and it may be assumed that the purchaser pays an enhanced price for the property purchased. The development plan, including restrictive covenants, enters into and becomes a part of the consideration for the purchase of a lot. The purchaser of a lot submits to a burden on his own land because a like burden imposed on his neighbor’s lot will be beneficial to both lots. The covenant or agreement between the original owner and each purchaser is therefore mutual. Curlee, 244 S.W. at 498.

The most common reason for imposing restrictive covenants on property is to enhance the value of the property as part of a development scheme. For example, by subdividing property on the edge of a town that is zoned for agriculture into separate smaller lots, and by imposing restrictive covenants so the purchasers of the lots know how the use of nearby lots will be restricted, the value of the property as a whole will be substantially enhanced. A development project subject to restrictive covenants can be for residential use only, commercial use only, or a combination of the two. The forms in this chapter are for residential projects only.

Based on the common-law rules and the statutory definitions, restrictive covenants can be imposed or applied to property in a variety of ways. One of the most common ways to impose restrictive covenants on property is for the owner of the land to file with the county clerk a document known as a declaration, which describes the restrictive covenants to which the property is subject. A declaration regarding property is similar to the declaration of a living trust. Both documents declare that certain described property will be owned by the owner subject to the described covenants.

The filing of the declaration on real property with the county clerk is constructive notice to the public that the property described in the declaration is subject to the restrictive covenants stated. Once a declaration of restrictive covenants is filed regarding the described property, the covenants are continuing obligations for the use of the property from that time forward, through each sale of the property, until canceled or modified by the owner. These ongoing restrictions on the use of land are called “covenants running with the land.” Purchasers are charged with notice of the terms of deeds that form an essential link in their chain of ownership and with knowledge of the provisions and contents of other recorded instruments. Cooksey v. Sinder, 682 S.W.2d 252, 253 (Tex. 1984).

A restrictive covenant is a contract subject to the same rules of construction and interpretation as any other contract. Davis v. Canyon Creek Estates Homeowners Ass’n, 350 S.W.3d 301, 313 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 2011, pet. denied). Once restrictive covenants are imposed on a property, they are contractual obligations among all future owners of subdivided parts of the property. An owner’s noncompliance with a restrictive covenant is a breach of contract as to all the other owners of lots subdivided from the same property to which the declaration applies. Therefore, each owner has a right to enforce the restrictive covenants in a development or sub-division by filing suit against an owner who violates a restrictive covenant. Anderson v. New Property Owners’ Ass’n of Newport, 122 S.W.3d 378, 384 (Tex. App.—Texarkana 2003, pet. denied). However, placing the burden on individual owners for the enforcement of restrictive covenants, while generally allowed by common law and by the terms of declarations, is not usually practical.

§ 23.1:2 Declarations and Other Dedicatory Instruments

each document governing the establishment, maintenance, or operation of a residential subdivision, planned unit development, condominium or townhouse regime, or any similar planned development. The term includes a declaration or similar instrument subjecting real property to:

(A) restrictive covenants, bylaws, or similar instruments governing the administration or operation of a property owners’ association,

(B) properly adopted rules and regulations of the property owners’ association; or

(C) all lawful amendments to the covenants, bylaws, instruments, rules, or regulations.

To be effective, a dedicatory instrument—whether from a property owners association or an original declarant—must be filed in the real property records of each county in which the property to which the dedicatory instruments relate is located. Tex Prop. Code § 202.006. This requirement covers bylaws or similar instruments governing the administration or operation of a property owners association, properly adopted rules and regulations of the property owners association, and all lawful amendments to the covenants, bylaws, instruments, rules, or regulations.

A provision for amendment of a declaration cannot require a vote of more than 67 percent of the total votes of members of the property owners association entitled to vote on the proposed amendment. Tex Prop. Code § 209.0041. If the declaration contains a lower percentage, the percentage in the declaration controls. Tex Prop. Code § 209.0041. If the declaration is silent as to voting rights for an amendment, the declaration may be amended by a vote of owners owning 67 percent of the lots subject to the declaration. Tex Prop. Code § 209.0041. Section 209.0041 prevails over any conflicting provisions in title 11 of the Texas Property Code. See, however, Property Code section 201.006 concerning the requirements for a petition to amend restrictions, with significantly different requirements. Tex Prop. Code § 201.006.
The Telecommunications Act of 1996 protects the rights of property owners to use satellite dishes. See 47 U.S.C. §§ 151–341. With a few exceptions, any homeowner may install a satellite dish of a size of one meter or smaller in diameter. While property owners associations may encourage that dishes be placed as inconspicuously as possible, the dish must be allowed to be placed where it may receive a usable signal. Additionally, many property owners associations have restrictive covenants prohibiting a homeowner from installing an OTA (Over-the-Air) rooftop antenna. These restrictions are not enforceable, except in some instances. For example, the antenna may be installed at any location unless it imposes on common property. Also, the antenna must be of a design to receive local, not long-distance, signals and must not extend any higher than twelve feet above the top roofline of the home, unless an exception is granted by the property owners association due to extenuating terrestrial interference. See the Federal Communications Commission Rule, available at https://www.fcc.gov/media/over-air-reception-devices-rule.

Federal and state fair housing acts will limit certain types of residential restrictions concerning age and occupancy limitations. See the section titled “Fair Housing” in chapter 2 of this manual.

With some exceptions noted in the statute, a provision in a dedicatory instrument is void and unenforceable if it prohibits or restricts a property owner from (1) implementing measures promoting solid-waste composting of vegetation, including grass clippings, leaves, or brush, or leaving grass clippings uncollected on grass; (2) installing rain barrels or a rainwater harvesting system; (3) implementing efficient irrigation systems, including underground drip or other drip systems; or (4) using drought-resistant landscaping or water-conserving natural turf. Tex. Prop. Code § 202.007.

A property owners association is limited on how it can enforce restrictions of political signs in a subdivision. Tex. Prop. Code § 202.009.

With certain exceptions listed in the statute, a provision in a dedicatory instrument that prohibits or restricts a property owner from installing a solar energy device is void. Tex. Prop. Code § 202.010.

Restrictions requiring wood shingle roofs are void. Tex. Prop. Code § 5.025. A property owners association may not include or enforce a provision in a dedicatory instrument that prohibits or restricts a property owner who is otherwise authorized to install shingles on the roof of the owner’s property from installing shingles that meet the specifications listed in the statute. Tex. Prop. Code § 202.011.

With specified exceptions, a property owners association may not enforce or adopt a restrictive covenant that prohibits a property owner or resident from displaying or affixing on the entry to the owner’s or resident’s dwelling one or more religious items, the display of which is motivated by the owner’s or resident’s sincere religious belief. Tex. Prop. Code § 202.018.

A property owners association is limited on the extent to which it can adopt and enforce restrictions on standby electric generators. Tex. Prop. Code § 202.019.
A property owners association is prevented from including or enforcing a provision in a dedicatory instrument that limits a person from lawfully possessing, transporting, or storing a firearm, any part of a firearm, or firearm ammunition, or from lawfully discharging a firearm. Tex. Prop. Code § 202.020.

A property owners association is prevented from restricting a minor from the occasional sale of lemonade or other nonalcoholic beverages. Tex. Prop. Code § 202.020.

§ 23.2 Property Owners Association

A property owners association, which is composed of all owners of lots in a subdivision or development, enforces restrictive covenants on behalf of the association and all the owners who are in compliance. A property owners association means—an incorporated or unincorporated association owned by or whose members consist primarily of the owners of the property covered by the dedicatory instrument and through which the owners, or the board of directors or similar governing body, manage or regulate the residential subdivision, planned unit development, condominium or townhouse regime, or similar planned development.

The practitioner should consider using a nonprofit association, which is an unincorporated organization. The members and management of a nonprofit association are shielded from personal liability under Tex. Bus. Orgs. Code § 252.006. A nonprofit association requires no certificate of formation or periodic reports. Failure of a corporation to file periodic reports (every four years in the case of a nonprofit; annually in the case of a for-profit) with the secretary of state may result in the forfeiture of the corporation’s existence.

Property owners associations are regulated by federal, state, and local law, and they are subject to federal income taxation. They do not qualify as charitable organizations under Internal Revenue Code section 501(c)(3). Associations may qualify for special tax treatment under 26 U.S.C. § 528. All entities organized in Texas must comply with the Texas Business Organizations Code. See Tex. Bus. Orgs. Code ch. 402. Texas Property Code chapter 202 applies to all restrictive covenants and property owners associations. Chapter 209 of the Property Code applies to all residential property owners associations subject to a declaration that authorizes the property owners association to collect regular or special assessments on all or a majority of the property in the subdivision. Certain provisions of these chapters do not apply to a property owners association that is subject to Texas Government Code chapter 552. See Tex. Gov’t Code § 552.0036. Property Code chapter 209 does not apply to condominiums governed by chapter 82 of the Property Code. See Tex. Prop. Code § 209.003(d).

Certain chapters of the Property Code have specific requirements not applicable generally to property owners associations in counties having defined characteristics. To determine if these specific requirements apply, see chapters 201, 203, 204, 205, 206, 208, 210, 211, 212 and 215 of the Property Code.

The Texas Residential Property Owners Protection Act is chapter 209 of the Property Code. It applies to residential subdivisions (other than condominiums governed by Tex. Prop. Code ch. 82) that are subject to restrictive covenants authorizing a property owners association to collect regular or special assessments and requiring mandatory membership in the association. Tex. Prop. Code § 209.003. In addition, the Property Code affords certain rights to property owners associations in cities or counties that meet various specified minimum population requirements to amend, extend, or supplement deed restrictions and to establish assessment lien mechanisms. Tex. Prop. Code chs. 201, 204–206.
A property owners association must record a management certificate in each county in which any portion of the residential subdivision is located and must record an amended management certificate within thirty days of the amendment. Tex. Prop. Code § 209.004. See form 23-7 in this chapter. All property owners associations must record a current management certificate on or before January 1, 2014, or rerecord the current management certificate if the previous recording was done before September 1, 2013. This requirement is to facilitate the county clerks’ indexing of management certificates, which, before September 1, 2013, did not have a clear, statutorily mandated system. Tex. Prop. Code § 209.004(a–1). Thus, a property owners association should record or rerecord its current management certificates even if it missed the January 1, 2014, deadline. If either the property owners association has, or its management company maintains on behalf of the association, a publicly accessible website, then the dedicatory instruments related to the subdivision and the association must be posted on that website. Tex. Prop. Code § 207.006.

Despite any contrary provision in a dedicatory instrument or in other laws not specifically applicable to a property owners association, a property owners association must make the books and records of the association, including financial records, open to and reasonably available for examination and copying by an owner or a person designated in a writing signed by the owner as the owner’s agent, attorney, or certified public accountant. Tex. Prop. Code § 209.005(a), (c).

The procedure for an owner to examine and copy an association’s records is set out in Tex. Prop. Code § 209.005. In addition, the property owners association must adopt a records production and copying policy that prescribes the costs the association will charge for the compilation, production, and reproduction of requested records. That policy must be recorded in the real property records. The association cannot assess any charges if they are not recorded. Tex. Prop. Code § 209.005(i). See form 23-12 for an example of a records production and copying policy.

A property owners association composed of more than fourteen lots must also adopt and comply with a document retention policy meeting certain defined requirements. Tex. Prop. Code § 209.005(m). The documentation retention policy must be recorded as a dedicatory instrument. Tex. Prop. Code § 209.005(i).

§ 23.2:1 Governance of Property Owners Associations

The governance of property owners associations, including meetings and voting procedures for members, is subject to common-law rules, the terms of the dedicatory instruments, the Texas Business Organizations Code, and the Texas Property Code.

The board of directors of a property owners association must call an annual meeting of the members. If a board does not call an annual meeting of the association members, any owner may demand that a meeting of the association members be called not later than the thirtieth day after the date of the owner’s demand. See Tex. Prop. Code § 209.014.

Mandatory, statutory provisions for board of director qualifications and meetings apply to property owners associations and supersede contrary provisions in a dedicatory instrument. See Tex. Prop. Code §§ 209.0051, 209.00591. Regular and special board meetings must be open to owners, subject to the right of the board to adjourn a board meeting and reconvene in closed executive session to consider certain specified matters. Written minutes of the meetings must be kept and made available to owners. Members must be given notice of the date, hour, place, and general subject of a regular or special board meeting, including a general description of any matter to be brought up for deliberation in executive session. See Tex. Prop. Code § 209.0051.
There are mandatory and permissive statutory provisions for how a property owners association gives notice to owners and the content of the notice. These provisions vary depending on factors such as type and location of meetings, action taken or to be taken with or without a meeting, voting methods, use of electronic communication, and size of the association. See, e.g., Tex. Prop. Code §§ 209.0042, 209.0051, 209.0056, 209.00593, 209.006.

§ 23.2:2 Enforcement of Covenants and Rules and Collection of Assessments

Before a property owners association may suspend an owner’s right to use a common area, file a suit against an owner other than a suit to collect a regular or special assessment or foreclose under an association’s lien, charge an owner for property damage, or levy a fine for a violation of the restrictions or bylaws or rules of the association, the association or its agent must give written notice to the owner by certified mail with certain required information. Tex. Prop. Code § 209.006. A reasonable time for the owner to cure a violation must be given if the violation is curable and does not materially affect the health or safety of an ordinary resident. Tex. Prop. Code § 209.006. The statute contains examples of curable and uncurable violations.

A property owners association may not hold an owner liable for fees of a collection agent retained by the property owners association unless the association first provides written notice with required information to the owner by certified mail. Tex. Prop. Code § 209.0064. A property owners association may collect from an owner reimbursement of reasonable attorney’s fees and other reasonable costs incurred relating to collecting amounts due to the association for enforcing restrictions or the bylaws or rules of the association only if the owner is provided a written notice that attorney’s fees and costs will be charged to the owner if the delinquency or violation continues after a date certain. Tex. Prop. Code § 209.008.

A property owners association composed of more than fourteen lots must adopt reasonable guidelines to establish an alternative payment schedule by which an owner may make partial payments to the property owners association for delinquent regular or special assessments or any other amount owed to the association without accruing additional monetary penalties. The guidelines must allow at least three months to pay the assessment. The guidelines are not considered a dedicatory instrument but must be recorded in the real property records. Tex. Prop. Code § 209.0062.

A property owners association may not conduct a nonjudicial foreclosure or commence a judicial foreclosure action related to the association’s assessment lien on an owner’s lot unless the association provides written notice to any holder of an inferior or subordinate deed-of-trust lien of record on the lot of (1) the total amount of the delinquency giving rise to the foreclosure and (2) the lienholder’s opportunity to cure the delinquency before the sixty-first day after the receipt of the notice. The notice must be sent by certified mail to the address for the inferior or subordinate lienholder shown in the deed records relating to the lot. Tex. Prop. Code § 209.0091.

Not later than the thirtieth day after a judicial or nonjudicial foreclosure sale of an owner’s lot, a property owners association must send to the lot owner, each lienholder of record according to the most recently filed deed of trust, and any transferee or assignee of that deed of trust, a written notice stating the date and time the sale occurred and informing them of the right of the lot owner and lienholder to redeem the lot under section 209.011 of the Texas Property Code. Tex. Prop. Code § 209.010–.011. See form 23-19 in this chapter for an example of a notice.

Not later than the thirtieth day after the property owners association sends notice under Tex. Prop. Code § 209.010, the association must record an affidavit under Tex. Prop. Code § 209.010(c) in the real property records where the property is located, stating the date on which notice was sent and containing a legal description of the lot foreclosed. See form 23-18 for an example of an affidavit. If the lot owner or lienholder sends a written request to redeem the property before the expiration of the redemption period, the redemption period is extended until the tenth day after the date the association and any third-party purchaser at the foreclosure provides written notice to the redeeming party of the amounts that must be paid to redeem the property. Tex. Prop. Code § 209.011(m).

If the redemption period (including any extensions) expires without redemption of the property, the association or third-party foreclosure purchaser must record an affidavit in the real property records in which the property is located, stating that the lot owner or lienholder did not redeem the property. Tex. Prop. Code § 209.011(n). See form 23-20 for an example of an affidavit.

§ 23.2:3 Resale Certificates

Texas Property Code chapter 207 applies to residential subdivisions with a property owners association that is entitled to levy regular or special assessments. Tex. Prop. Code §§ 207.001(6), 207.002. Within ten business days after a written request, a residential property owners association is required to deliver a resale certificate to the requesting owner, title company, purchaser, or their respective agents. The resale certificate must be prepared no earlier than the sixtieth day before it is delivered and must include specific information about the property and the subdivision as a whole. Tex. Prop. Code § 207.003. See form 23-10 in this chapter for an example of a resale certificate. The property owners association may require evidence of the requester’s authority to order a resale certificate and payment of a fee for having provided the resale certificate. Tex. Prop. Code § 207.003.

§ 23.3 Instructions for Completing Declaration of Restrictive Covenants and Other Dedicatory Instruments

§ 23.3:1 General Information

See chapter 3 in this manual for general information about designations of parties, addresses, property descriptions, and execution and acknowledgment of documents.

§ 23.3:2 Scope of Declaration of Restrictive Covenants

Form 23-1 in this chapter is drafted for use with a single-family residential subdivision whose owners are members of a property owners association, and form 23-2 is drafted for use with a residential subdivision that does not include a property owners association.
§ 23.3:3 Use and Activities

The use and activities in section C. of forms 23-1 (the declaration of restrictive covenants for a subdivision with a property owners association) and 23-2 (the declaration for a subdivision without a property owners association) in this chapter should be tailored to address a declarant’s desired permitted use of the property and prohibited activities, or those that a declarant wants to regulate on the property. The forms list as examples various activities typically prohibited in subdivisions restricted to residential use.

A declaration usually restricts the types of buildings that can be constructed on a lot in the subdivision. Such restrictions can include the size, construction materials, location on the lot, and so forth. The declaration also usually restricts how the lot owner can use the buildings and the lot. The drafter must be specific with the restrictions for buildings and use. For example, restricting buildings to only single-family residences does not limit a building to use by only a single family. Nor does restricting single-family residence buildings to use for only residence purposes limit a building to use by only a single family. Tarr v. Timberwood Park Owners Ass’n, Inc., 556 S.W.3d 274 (Tex. 2018).

Unless the declaration prohibits rental of units, condominium owners associations or managers may encounter enforcement problems when an owner rents the property to a third party. Insertion of provisions such as the following in the declaration or the association’s rules can minimize these enforcement problems:

- requiring that owners provide tenants with the declaration and rules;
- requiring owners to use rental agreements that impose on tenants the obligation to comply with the dedicatory instruments, with consequences for tenants’ violation of the declaration or rules;
- making owners responsible for any fines or other consequences if tenants violate the declaration or rules, and
- requiring owners to give the association or management information about rentals, including contact information for tenants and copies of the rental agreements (form 23-21 in this chapter can be used for this purpose).

Some declarations prohibit short-term rentals because of the unique problems they pose. “Short-term rental” means the rental of all or part of a residential property for less than thirty consecutive days. Tex. Tax Code §§ 156.001(b), 156.101. Short-term rentals are subject to sales and hotel taxes and, often, additional local ordinances. Promulgating association rules that require owners to comply with all applicable laws, with fines or other consequences in the event the owners do not comply, can provide an association with an enforcement tool in those situations.

§ 23.3:4 Construction and Maintenance Standards

The construction and maintenance standards in section D. of forms 23-1 and 23-2 in this chapter should be tailored to address a declarant’s desired construction and maintenance standards for the property. In addition, several construction options need to be selected by a declarant in section D. of both declarations, such as maximum height restrictions, minimum floor area, time to complete repairs or for rebuilding of improvements, and time to complete installation of landscaping.

§ 23.3:5 Association

Section E. of form 23-1 in this chapter includes a property owners association that has two classes of membership. Class A members are all property owners except the declarant, and each Class A member has one vote. The declarant is designated a Class B member with special voting rights as specified in the bylaws of the association. Paragraph E.3.b. of form 23-1 allows a declarant to select the date on which Class B member rights are to be converted to Class A member rights.
§ 23.3:6 Architectural Control Committee

Section F. of form 23-1 in this chapter includes an architectural control committee (ACC) established to assist the association in ensuring that permitted improvements and landscaping conform to the dedicatory instruments. A declarant must select the number of members comprising the ACC and the number of days that a property owner or the ACC has to act on various matters brought before the ACC.

§ 23.3:7 Assessments

Section G. of form 23-1 in this chapter authorizes the association to impose and collect regular and special assessments, and a lien is created on each owner’s property to secure an owner’s payment of the assessments. The amount of the initial regular assessment, the timing for payment of regular assessments, and the manner in which the owners approve special assessments all need to be completed in this section.

§ 23.3:8 Remedial Rights

If a declarant desires to impose a late charge or interest on delinquent assessments, the amount and interest rate should be completed in section H. of form 23-1 in this chapter.

§ 23.3:9 Dedication or Conveyance of Common Areas

Paragraph I.d. of form 23-1 in this chapter requires a declarant to select the number of votes necessary to dedicate or convey common areas owned by the association.

§ 23.3:10 Term of Declaration

Paragraph J. of form 23-1 in this chapter and paragraph E. of form 23-2 both allow a developer to select the period of time the restrictive covenants will remain in effect and, if the restrictive covenants terminate on a specific date, how the property owners may continue the restrictive covenants.

§ 23.3:11 Annexation of Additional Property

Paragraph J. of form 23-1 in this chapter and paragraph E. of form 23-2 both allow for annexation of additional property into the declaration. A declarant needs to determine the percentage of owners needed to annex additional property into the declaration.

§ 23.3:12 Bylaws

Form 23-4 in this chapter is a set of bylaws for the property owners association. The bylaws can be adapted to either an unincorporated association or a corporation. If the property owners association is an unincorporated nonprofit association, consult chapter 252 of the Texas Business Organizations Code. For a nonprofit corporation, consult chapter 22 of the Business Organizations Code.
§ 23.3:13  Rules

Form 23-5 in this chapter is a form that can be used in promulgating rules for the property owners association and the use of any common areas. The rules and penalties for violation (to be inserted in sections A. and B. of the form), promulgated by the association, will be unique to each subdivision. The enforcement provisions (contained in section C. of the form) are based on the requirements in section 209.006 of the Texas Property Code.

§ 23.4  Management Agreement

A person who performs residential property management services for a single-family residential property must be licensed as a broker. Tex. Occ. Code ch. 1101. Among the many acts that can make one a “broker” for purposes of the Occupations Code, and thus require the person to be licensed, is “control[ling] the acceptance or deposit of rent from a resident of a single-family residential real property unit,” in expectation of receiving a commission or other valuable consideration. Tex. Occ. Code § 1101.002(1)(A)(x). Control means the authority to either (1) pay for services related to management of the property out of the rent collected, (2) determine where to deposit the rent, or (3) sign checks or withdraw money from a trust account. 22 Tex. Admin. Code § 535.4(h). Tex. Admin. Code § 535.4(i) states that in addition to other types of property, a condominium unit or townhome is a single-family residential real property unit for purposes of Tex. Admin. Code § 535.4(h). An association that hires an unlicensed manager to assist in managing the association’s affairs can use form 23-22 in this chapter to prohibit activities for which a broker’s license is required.

§ 23.5  Additional Resources depicted horizontally and vertically, and the general plan of landscaping, all in the form and detail the ACC may require.

b. Procedures

i. Complete Submission. Within [number] days after the submission of plans and specifications by an Owner, the ACC must notify the submitting Owner of any other documents or information required by the ACC. 2. Personal Obligation. An Assessment is a personal obligation of each Owner when the Assessment accrues.

3. Creation of Lien. Assessments are secured by a continuing vendor’s lien on each Lot, which lien is reserved by Declarant and hereby assigned to the Property Owners Association. 4. Commencement. A Lot becomes subject to Assessments on conveyance of the Lot by Declarant.

Special Assessments must be approved by the Members. Written notice of the terms of the Special Assessment will be sent to every Owner.

8. Fines. The Board may levy a fine against an Owner for a violation of the Dedicatory Instruments as permitted by law.

9. Subordination of Lien to Mortgages. The lien granted and reserved to the Property Owners Association is subordinate to any lien granted by an Owner against a Lot not prohibited by the Texas Constitution. The foreclosure of a superior lien extinguishes the Property Owners Association’s lien as to Assessments due before the foreclosure.
10. Delinquent Assessments. Any Assessment not paid within [number] days after it is due is delinquent.

H. Remedial Rights

1. Late Charges and Interest. A late charge of $[amount]/[percent] percent of the delinquent amount is assessed for delinquent payments. Delinquent Assessments accrue interest at the rate of [percent] percent per year. The Board may change the late charge and the interest rate.

2. Costs, Attorney’s Fees, and Expenses. If the Property Owners Association complies with all applicable notice requirements, an Owner is liable to the Property Owners Association for all costs and reasonable attorney’s fees incurred by the Property Owners Association in collecting delinquent Assessments, foreclosing the Property Owners Association’s lien, and enforcing the Dedicatory Instruments.

3. Judicial Enforcement. The Property Owners Association may bring an action against an Owner to collect delinquent Assessments, foreclose the Property Owners Association’s lien, or enforce or enjoin a violation of the Dedicatory Instruments. I. Common Area

1. Common Area Easements. Each Owner has an easement in and to the Common Area, subject to the right of the Property Owners Association to—

   a. charge reasonable admission and other fees for the use of recreational facilities situated on the Common Area, and if an Owner does not pay these fees, the Owner may not use the recreational facilities;

   b. suspend an Owner’s rights to use a Common Area under the Dedicatory Instruments;

   c. grant an easement approved by the Board over the Common Area for utility, drainage, or other purposes; and

   d. dedicate or convey any of the Common Area for public purposes, on approval by a vote of [a majority/two-thirds] of the Members at a meeting in accordance with the Bylaws.

2. Permitted Users. An Owner’s right to use and enjoy the Common Area extends to the Owner’s family, guests, agents, and invitees, subject to the Dedicatory Instruments.
3. Unauthorized Improvements in Common Area. An Owner may not erect or alter any Structure on, or clear, landscape, or disturb, any Common Area except as approved by the Board.

J. General Provisions

1. Term. This Declaration runs with the land and is binding in perpetuity.

2. No Waiver. Failure by the Property Owners Association or an Owner to enforce the Dedicatory Instruments is not a waiver.

3. Corrections. The Board may correct typographical or grammatical errors, ambiguities, or inconsistencies contained in this Declaration, provided that any correction must not impair or affect a vested property right of any Owner.

4. Amendment. This Declaration may be amended at any time by vote of [percent (cannot exceed sixty-seven)] percent of Owners entitled to vote on the amendment. An instrument reflecting the extension will be signed by the Property Owners Association and recorded.
Declaration of Restrictive Covenants [with Property Owners Association]

A document containing the approved amendment will be signed by the Property Owners Association and recorded.

5. Conflict. This Declaration controls over the other Dedicatory Instruments.

6. Severability. If a provision of this Declaration is unenforceable for any reason, to the extent the unenforceability does not destroy the basis of the bargain among the parties, the unenforceability does not affect any other provision of this Declaration, and this Declaration is to be construed as if the unenforceable provision is not a part of the Declaration.

7. Notices. All notices must be in writing and must be given as required or permitted by the Dedicatory Instruments or by law. Notice by mail is deemed delivered (whether actually received or not) when properly deposited with the United States Postal Service, addressed (a) to a Member, at the Member’s last known address according to the Property Owners Association’s records, and (b) to the Property Owners Association, the Board, the ACC, or a managing agent at the Property Owners Association’s principal office or another address designated in a notice to the Members. Unless otherwise required by law or the Dedicatory Instruments, actual notice, however delivered, is sufficient.

2. An Owner may use that portion of a Lot lying in an Easement for any purpose that does not interfere with the purpose of the Easement or damage any facilities. Owners do not own any utility facilities located in an Easement.

E. General Provisions

1. Term. This Declaration runs with the land and is binding in perpetuity.

   Or

1. Term. This Declaration runs with the land and is binding for a term of [number] years. The term may be extended for [successive terms of [number] years each by the affirmative vote of [percent] percent of the Owners within [number] months before the end of a term/an initial term of [number] years. [Include if applicable: Thereafter this Declaration automatically continues for successive terms of [number] years each, unless within [number] months before the end of a term [percent] percent of the Owners vote not to extend the term.]

2. No Waiver. Failure by an Owner to enforce this Declaration is not a waiver.

3. Corrections. Declarant may correct typographical or grammatical errors, ambiguities, or inconsistencies contained in this Declaration, provided that any correction must not impair or affect a vested property right of any Owner.

4. Amendment. This Declaration may be amended at any time by the affirmative vote of [percent] percent of the Owners.

5. Severability. If a provision of this Declaration is unenforceable for any reason, to the extent the unenforceability does not destroy the basis of the bargain among the parties, the unenforceability does not affect any other provision of this Declaration, and this Declaration is to be construed as if the unenforceable provision is not a part of the Declaration.

6. Notices. Any notice required or permitted by this Declaration must be given in writing by certified mail, return receipt requested. Unless otherwise required by law or this Declaration, actual notice, however delivered, is sufficient.

7. Annexation of Additional Property. On written approval of Declarant and not less than [percent] percent of the Owners, the owner of any property who desires to subject the property to this Declaration may record an annexation agreement that will impose this Declaration and the Covenants on that property.

8. Presuit Mediation. As a condition precedent to the commencement of a legal proceeding to enforce this Declaration, the Owners will mediate the dispute in good faith.
9. Association. The Owners of [percent] of Lots in the Subdivision may authorize the formation of an association of Owners ("Association") by signing and acknowledging a statement containing (a) the proposed Association's name and type of entity and (b) the names and addresses of the initial directors. The Association will be governed by this Declaration, its Certificate of Formation, if any, and its bylaws and rules adopted by its board of directors (collectively, "Dedicatory Instruments").

If an Association is formed, every Owner will be a member and agrees to comply with the Dedicatory Instruments with the same consequences for failure to comply as are contained in this Declaration for failure to comply with it. Membership in the Association is appurtenant to and may not be separated from ownership of a Lot. If more than one person is an Owner of a Lot, only one vote may be cast for the Lot. The Association will have the powers of a Texas [nonprofit corporation/unincorporated nonprofit association] and a property owners association for the Subdivision under the Texas Business Organizations Code, the Texas Property Code, and the Dedicatory Instruments. The Association may levy assessments to pay the expenses of its formation; to promote the recreation, health, safety, and welfare of Owners in the Subdivision; to fund its operating expenses; and to improve and maintain any common areas. An assessment is a personal obligation of each Owner when the assessment accrues. Assessments are secured by a continuing vendor's lien on each Lot, and the lien is reserved by the Declarant and assigned to the Association. By acceptance of a deed to a Lot, each Owner grants a lien, together with the power of sale, to the Association to secure assessments. The lien granted and reserved to the Association is subordinate to any lien granted by an Owner against a Lot not prohibited by the Texas Constitution. The foreclosure of a superior lien extinguishes the Association's lien as to assessments due before the foreclosure. The bylaws or the rules of the Association establish when assessments are due, how assessment amounts may be changed, and the Association's rights to collect assessments. Regular assessments [will be equal for all Lots/will be based on the size of each Lot, rounded to the nearest one-tenth of an acre]. The bylaws and rules may also specify the Association’s remedial rights to charge late fees for late payment of assessments, enforce compliance with the Dedicatory Instruments, and assess an Owner for attorney’s fees and costs arising out of enforcement actions, foreclosure of the Association’s lien, or suspension of an Owner’s rights, including voting rights, for a delinquency in paying an assessment or other violations of the Dedicatory Instruments.

A.1. Membership. Every Owner is a Member of the Property Owners Association. Membership is appurtenant to and may not be separated from ownership of a Lot. The Property Owners Association has two classes of voting Members:

A.1.a. Class A. Class A Members are all Owners, other than Declarant. Class A Members have one vote per Lot. When more than one person is an Owner, each is a Class A Member, but only one vote may be cast for a Lot.
A.1.b. Class B. The Class B Member is Declarant and has [number] votes for each Lot owned. The Class B membership ceases and converts to Class A membership on the earlier of—

i. when the Class A Members' votes exceed the total of Class B Member's votes, or

ii. the date specified in the Declaration.

A.2. Place of Meeting. Members meetings will be held at the Property Owners Association's Principal Office or at another place designated by the Board.

A.3. Annual Meetings. The first Members meeting will be held within [number] months after the formation of the Property Owners Association. Subsequent regular annual Members meetings will be held on [describe meeting date taking into consideration when dues are payable, e.g., the first Sunday in June].

A.4. Special Meetings. The president may call special meetings. The president must call a special meeting if directed by the Board or by a petition signed by [percent] percent of the Class A Voting Members.

A.5. Notice of Meetings, Election, and Vote. Written notice stating the place, day, and hour of each Members meeting, other than a reconvened meeting, must be given to each Member not less than ten nor more than sixty days before the meeting. For voting not at a meeting, notice must be given not later than the twentieth day before the latest day on which a ballot may be submitted to be counted. The special Members meeting notices must also state the meeting’s purpose, and no business may be conducted except as stated in the notice. Notice to a Member must state the purpose of an association-wide election or vote and is deemed given when hand delivered or mailed. If mailed, notice is deemed given (whether actually received or not) when deposited with the United States Postal Service, postage prepaid.

A.6. Waiver of Notice. A Member may, in writing, waive notice of a meeting. Attendance at a meeting is a waiver of notice of the meeting, unless the Member objects to lack of notice when the meeting is called to order.

A.7. Quorum. A majority of the Voting Members is a quorum. If a Members meeting cannot be held because a quorum is not present, either in person, by proxy, by absentee ballot, or by electronic ballot, a majority of the Voting Members who are present may adjourn the meeting. At the reconvened meeting, [percent] percent of the Voting Members is a quorum. If a quorum is not present, a majority of the Voting Members who are present may adjourn the meeting. At the second reconvened meeting, a majority of the Board is a quorum. Written notice of the place, date, and hour of each reconvened meeting must be given to each Member not more than [number] nor less than [number] days before the reconvened meeting.

A.8. Majority Vote. Voting by Members may be at a meeting or outside of a meeting. Voting must be as required by law. Votes representing more than 50 percent of the Voting Members present at a meeting at which a quorum is present are a majority vote.

A.9. Voting Methods. Voting Members may, at the option of the Board, vote in person, by proxy, by absentee ballot, by electronic ballot, or by any other process approved by the Board. A Member must be allowed to vote by absentee ballot or proxy, but the Board is not required to provide a Member with more than one voting method.

A.10. Conduct of Meetings. The president will preside over Members meetings. The secretary will keep minutes of the meetings and will record in a minutes book the votes of the members.
B. Board

B.1. Governing Body; Composition. The affairs of the Property Owners Association are governed by the Board. Each director has one vote. The initial Board is composed of the directors appointed in the certificate of formation. Each director must be a Member or, in the case of an entity Member, a person designated in writing to the secretary.

B.2. Qualifications.

B.2.a. Member. Each director must be a Member or, in the case of an entity Member, a person designated in writing by either proxy or a resolution to the secretary of the Property Owners Association.

B.2.b. Felony or Crime Involving Moral Turpitude. If the Board is presented with written, documented evidence from a database or other record maintained by a governmental law enforcement authority that a director was convicted of a felony or crime involving moral turpitude not more than twenty years before the date the Board is presented with the evidence, that director is immediately ineligible to serve on the Board, automatically considered removed from the Board, and prohibited from future service on the Board.

Include the following if applicable. Section B.2.c. is mandatory for a property owners association with ten or more residences.

B.2.c. Cohabitation of Directors. A Member may not serve on the Board if the Member cohabits at the same primary residence with a director. This section does not apply during the Property Owners Association’s development period to affect the eligibility to serve on the Board of:

i. a Member who cohabits with a developer or Declarant of the Subdivision;

or

ii. the developer or Declarant.

B.3. Number of Directors. The Board consists of not less than three nor more than [number] directors. Within those limits, the Board may change the number of directors. No decrease may shorten the term of a director.

B.4. Term of Office. The initial directors serve until the first annual meeting of Members.

The terms of directors will be staggered. At least one-third of the Board will be elected each year. The initial Board will determine the initial term, not to exceed three years, of each director. At the expiration of the initial term of a director, each successor will have a term of [number] years.

Successor directors will have a term of one year.

Directors may serve consecutive terms.

B.5. Election. At the first annual meeting of Members, the Voting Members will elect directors to succeed the initial directors. At subsequent annual Members meetings, successors for each director whose term is expiring will be elected. Cumulative voting is prohibited. The candidate or candidates receiving the most votes will be elected. The directors elected by the Voting Members will hold office until their respective successors have been elected.

B.6. Removal of Directors and Vacancies

B.6.a. Removal by Members. Any director may be removed, with or without cause, by a majority of the Voting Members. Any director whose removal is sought will be given notice of the proposed removal.

B.6.b. Removal by Board. Any director may be removed at a Board meeting if the director—

i. failed to attend [number] consecutive Board meetings; or

ii. failed to attend [percent] percent of Board meetings within one year.

B.6.c. Vacancies. A director's position becomes vacant if the director dies, becomes incapacitated, resigns, or is no longer a Member.

B.6.d. Successors. If a director is removed or a vacancy exists, a successor will be elected by the remaining directors for the remainder of the term.

B.7. Compensation. Directors will not receive compensation. A director may be reimbursed for expenses approved by the Board.

B.8. Powers. The Board has all powers necessary to administer the Property Owners Association's affairs.

B.9. Management. The Board may employ a managing agent. Declarant, or an affiliate of Declarant, may be the managing agent.
B.10. Accounts and Reports. Accounting and controls must conform to good accounting practices. Accounts will not be commingled with accounts of other persons. The following financial reports will be prepared at least annually:

B.10.a. An income statement reflecting all income and expense activity for the preceding period.

B.10.b. A statement reflecting all cash receipts and disbursements for the preceding period.

B.10.c. A variance report reflecting the status of all accounts in an "actual" versus "approved" budget format.

B.10.d. A balance sheet as of the last day of the preceding period.

B.10.e. A delinquency report listing all Owners who are delinquent by more than [number] days in paying any Assessment and describing the status of any action to collect those delinquent Assessments.

B.11. Borrowing. The Board may borrow money to maintain, repair, or restore the Common Area without the approval of the Members. If approved in advance by the Members in the same manner as approving a Special Assessment, the Board may borrow money for any other purpose.

B.12. Rights of Association. With respect to the Common Area, and in accordance with the Declaration, the Property Owners Association will have the right to contract with any person for the performance of various duties and functions. Such agreements require the approval of the Board.
B.13. Enforcement Procedures

B.13.a. Notice. Before the Board may (i) suspend an Owner's right to use a Common Area, (ii) file a suit against an Owner other than a suit to collect any Assessment, (iii) foreclose the Property Owners Association's lien, (iv) charge an Owner for property damage, or (v) levy a fine for a violation of the Dedicatory Instruments, the Property Owners Association or its agent must give written notice to the Owner as required or permitted by law. The notice must describe the violation or property damage that is the basis for the suspension action, charge, or fine and state any amount due the Property Owners Association from the Owner. The notice must also (i) inform the Owner that if the violation is curable and does not pose a threat to public health or safety, which means it could not materially affect the health or safety of an ordinary resident, the Owner is entitled to a reasonable period to cure the violation and avoid the fine or suspension unless the Owner was given notice and a reasonable opportunity to cure a similar violation within the preceding six months; (ii) indicate that the Owner may request a hearing in accordance with Texas Property Code section 209.007 on or before the thirtieth day after the date the notice was mailed to the Owner; (iii) state that the Owner may have special rights if the Owner is serving on active military duty, and (iv) state the date by which the Owner must cure a curable violation that does not pose a threat to public health and safety.

B.13.b. Hearing. If the Owner is entitled to an opportunity to cure the violation, the Owner has the right to submit a written request for a hearing to discuss and verify facts and resolve the matter in issue before a committee appointed by the Board or before the Board if the Board does not appoint a committee. If a hearing is to be held before a committee, the notice must state that the Owner has the right to appeal the committee's decision to the Board by written notice to the Board.

The Property Owners Association must hold a hearing under this section not later than the thirtieth day after the date the Board receives the Owner's request for a hearing and must notify the Owner of the date, time, and place of the hearing not later than the tenth day before the date of the hearing. The Board or the Owner may request a postponement, and, if requested, a postponement will be granted for a period of not more than ten days. Additional postponements may be granted by agreement of the parties. The Owner or the Property Owners Association may make an audio recording of the meeting.

The hearing will be held in executive session affording the alleged violator a reasonable opportunity to be heard. Before any sanction hereunder becomes effective, proof of proper notice will be placed in the minutes of the meeting. Such proof will be deemed adequate if a copy of the notice, together with a statement of the date and manner of delivery, is entered by the officer, director, or agent who delivered the notice. The notice requirement will be satisfied if the alleged violator appears at the meeting. The minutes of the meeting will contain a written statement of the results of the hearing and the sanction, if any, imposed. The Board may, but will not be obligated to, suspend any proposed sanction if the violation is cured within a [number]-day period. Such suspension will not constitute a waiver of the right to sanction violations of the same or other provisions and rules by any person.

B.13.c. Appeal. Following hearing before a committee, if any, the violator will have the right to appeal the decision to the Board. To perfect this right, a written notice of appeal must be received by the managing agent, if any, president, or secretary within [number] days after the hearing date.

B.13.d. Changes in Law. The Board may change the enforcement procedures set out in this section to comply with changes in law.

C. Board Meetings

C.1. Meetings. Except as permitted by law, all regular and special meetings of the Board must be open to the Owners. Except for a meeting held by electronic or telephonic means, a Board meeting must be held in a county in which all or part of the property in the subdivision is located or in a county adjacent to that county. A Board meeting may be held by electronic or telephonic means, provided all Owners and Board Members have access to the communication at the meeting as required by law.

C.2. Notice. Owners and Board Members must be given notice of the date, hour, place, and general subject of a regular or special Board meeting, including a general description of any matter to be brought up for deliberation in executive session. Notice must be given as required by law.

C.3. Waiver of Notice. The actions of the Board at any meeting are valid if (a) a quorum is present and (b) either proper notice of the meeting was given to each director or a written waiver of notice is given by any director who did not receive proper notice of the meeting. Proper notice of a meeting will be deemed given to any director who attends the meeting without protesting before or at its commencement about the lack of proper notice.

C.4. Quorum of Board. At all meetings, a majority of the Board will constitute a quorum, and the votes of a majority of the directors present at a meeting at which a quorum is present constitutes the decision of the Board. If the Board cannot act because a quorum is not present, a majority of the directors who are present may adjourn the meeting to a date not less than [number] nor more than [number] days from the date the original meeting was called. At the reconvened meeting, if a quorum is present, any business that may have been transacted at the meeting originally called may be transacted without further notice.

C.5. Conduct of Meetings. The president will preside at Board meetings. The secretary will keep minutes of the meetings and will record in a minute book the votes of the directors. The Board meeting will be conducted as required by law.

C.6. Proxies. Directors may vote by written proxy.
D. Officers

D.1. Officers. The officers of the Property Owners Association are a president, vice president, secretary, and treasurer, to be elected from the Members. The Board may appoint other officers having the authority and duties prescribed by the Board. Any two or more offices may be held by the same person, except the offices of president and secretary.

D.2. Election, Term of Office, and Vacancies. Officers will be elected annually by the Board at the first meeting of the Board following each annual meeting of the Voting Members. A vacancy in any office may be filled by the Board for the unexpired portion of the term.

D.3. Removal. The Board may remove any officer whenever, in the Board's judgment, the interests of the Property Owners Association will be served thereby.

D.4. Powers and Duties. Officers have such powers and duties as are generally associated with their respective offices and as may be specifically conferred by the Board. The president is the chief executive officer of the Property Owners Association. The treasurer has primary responsibility for the preparation of the budget and financial reports and may delegate all or part of the preparation and notification duties to a finance committee, management agent, or both.

D.5. Resignation. Any officer may resign at any time by giving written notice to the Board, the president, or the secretary. Resignation takes effect on the date of the receipt of the notice or at any later time specified in the notice.

E. Committees

The Board may establish committees by resolution and authorize the committees to perform the duties described in the resolution.
F. Miscellaneous

F.1. Fiscal Year. The Board may establish the Property Owners Association’s fiscal year by resolution. In the absence of a Board resolution determining otherwise, the Property Owners Association’s fiscal year is a calendar year.

F.2. Rules for Meeting. The Board may adopt rules for the conduct of meetings of Members, Board, and committees.

F.3. Conflict. The Declaration controls over these Bylaws.

F.4. Inspection of Books and Records

F.4.a. Inspection by Member. After a written request to the Property Owners Association, a Member may examine and copy, in person or by agent, any Property Owners Association books and records relevant to that purpose. The Board may establish rules concerning the (i) written request, (ii) hours, days of the week, and place; and (iii) payment of costs related to a Member’s inspection and copying of books and records.

F.4.b. Inspection by Director. A director has the right, at any reasonable time, and at the Property Owners Association’s expense, to (i) examine and copy the Property Owners Association’s books and records at the Property Owners Association’s Principal Office and (ii) inspect the Property Owners Association’s properties.

F.5. Notices. Any notice required or permitted by the Dedicatory Instruments must be in writing. Notices regarding enforcement actions must be given as required or as permitted by law. All other notices may be given by regular mail. Notice by mail is deemed delivered (whether actually received or not) when properly deposited with the United States Postal Service, addressed to (a) a Member at the Member’s last known address according to the Property Owners Association’s records and (b) the Property Owners Association, the Board, or a managing agent at the Property Owners Association’s Principal Office or another address designated in a notice to the Members. Unless otherwise required by law or the Dedicatory Instruments, actual notice, however delivered, is sufficient.

F.6. Amendment. These Bylaws may be amended at any time by the vote of [percent] percent of the Voting Members in the Property Owners Association. This provision will not be construed as limiting the Board’s power to amend the enforcement procedures to comply with changes in law.

Declaration: The Declaration of Restrictive Covenants of the [name of subdivision] Subdivision, [include recording information].

Definitions: Capitalized terms used but not defined in the Rules have the meaning set forth in the Declaration or Bylaws.

The Property Owners Association adopts these Rules, which will be enforceable on the recording of this document in the real property records of the [county/counties] in which the property described by the Declaration is located. On violation of these Rules, owners may be subject to Penalties for Violation.
A. Rules

Insert the rules that the property owners association wants to adopt. Consider the following subject areas: use of common areas (including swimming pools and recreation facilities), architectural and building rules, parking of vehicles, pet control, nuisances, trash collection, etc.

B. Penalties for Violation

Insert penalties for violation by type of violation.

C. Enforcement Procedures

C.1. Notice. Before the Property Owners Association may (a) suspend an Owner’s right to use a common area, (b) file a suit against an Owner other than a suit to collect a Regular Assessment or Special Assessment or foreclose under the Property Owners Association’s lien, (c) charge an Owner for property damage, or (d) levy a fine for a violation of the restrictions or Bylaws or Rules of the Property Owners Association, the Property Owners Association or its agent must give written notice to the Owner by certified mail, return receipt requested. The notice must describe the violation or property damage that is the basis for the suspension action, charge, or fine and must state any amount due the Property Owners Association from the Owner. The notice also must inform the Owner that the Owner (a) is entitled to a reasonable period to cure the violation and avoid the fine or suspension, unless the Owner was given notice and a reasonable opportunity to cure a similar violation within the preceding six months; (b) may request a hearing in accordance with Texas Property Code section 209.007 on or before the thirtieth day after the date the Owner receives the notice; and (c) may have special rights or relief related to the enforcement action under federal law, including the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act (50 U.S.C. §§ 3901–4043) if the Owner is serving on active military duty. If a hearing is to be held before a committee, the notice must state that the Owner has the right to appeal the committee’s decision to the Board by written notice to the Board.
C.2. Hearing. If the Owner is entitled to an opportunity to cure the violation, the Owner has the right to submit a written request for a hearing to discuss and verify facts and resolve the matter at issue before a committee appointed by the Board or before the Board if the Board does not appoint a committee. The Property Owners Association must hold a hearing under this provision not later than the thirtieth day after the date the Board receives the Owner’s request for a hearing and must notify the Owner of the date, time, and place of the hearing not later than the tenth day before the date of the hearing. The Board or the Owner may request a postponement, and, if requested, a postponement will be granted for a period of not more than ten days. Additional postponements may be granted by agreement of the parties. The Owner or the Property Owners Association may make an audio recording of the meeting. The hearing will be held in executive session, affording the alleged violator a reasonable opportunity to be heard. Before any sanction under these Rules becomes effective, proof of proper notice will be placed in the minutes of the meeting. Such proof will be deemed adequate if a copy of the notice, together with a statement of the date and manner of delivery, is entered by the officer, director, or agent who delivered the notice. The notice requirement will be satisfied if the alleged violator appears at the meeting. The minutes of the meeting will contain a written statement of the results of the hearing and the sanction imposed, if any. The Board may, but will not be obligated to, suspend any proposed sanction if the violation is cured within a [number]-day period. Such suspension will not constitute a waiver of the right to sanction violations of the same or other provisions and rules by any person.

C.3. Appeal. Following hearing before a committee, if any, the violator will have the right to appeal the decision to the Board. To perfect this right, a written notice of appeal must be received by the managing agent, president, or secretary within [number] days after the hearing date.

5. Covenants Running with the Land. Without limiting the provisions of paragraph 4. above, the parties agree that the provisions of this agreement will be deemed to be covenants running with the land that are for the benefit of, and create burdens on, the respective portions of the Development described above.

6. Binding Effect. This agreement binds, benefits, and may be enforced by the successors in interest to the parties.

10. Remedies Cumulative. Except as otherwise provided herein, all rights, privileges, and remedies afforded the parties by this agreement will be deemed cumulative and not exclusive and the exercise of any remedy will not be deemed to be a waiver of any other right, remedy, or privilege provided for herein or available at law or in equity. Consequently, the terms and provisions of this agreement will be interpreted and construed in accordance with their usual and customary meanings, and the parties expressly waive and disclaim any rule of law or procedure interpreting or construing this agreement otherwise, including, without limitation, any rule of law to the effect that ambiguous or conflicting terms or provisions in this agreement must be interpreted or construed against the party whose attorney prepared this agreement or any draft hereof.

14. Other Instruments. The parties to this agreement covenant and agree that they will execute any further instruments and agreements necessary or convenient to carry out the purposes of this agreement, including, without limitation, amendments of this agreement reasonably requested by Seller in connection with the sale of any of the Retained Property to other parties, as long as such amendments do not materially and adversely affect the rights and obligations of Buyer and Buyer's heirs, successors, and assigns under this agreement.

15. Entire Agreement. This agreement and any exhibits are the entire agreement of the parties concerning the Conveyed Property, the Retained Property, the Development, the Restricted Uses of the Conveyed Property, and the Restricted Uses of the Retained Property. Records Production and Copying Policy

Date:

Subdivision: [insert legal description]

Property Owners Association:

Charges: Charges for examining and copying Property Owners Association information are set out in Exhibit A.

Except for information deemed confidential by law or court order, the Property Owners Association will make its books and records open to and reasonably available for examination by an owner of property in the Subdivision or a person designated in a writing signed by the owner as the owner’s agent, attorney, or certified public accountant, in accordance with Texas Property Code section 209.005. Owners are also entitled to obtain copies of information in the Property Owners Association’s books and records on payment of the Charges for the copies. To the extent the Charges in this policy exceed the charges in section 70.3 of title 1 of the Texas Administrative Code, the amounts in section 70.3 of title 1 of the Texas Administrative Code govern.

Information not subject to inspection by owners includes but is not limited to—

1. any document that constitutes the work product of the Property Owners Association’s attorney or that is privileged as an attorney-client communication,
2. files and records of the Property Owners Association’s attorney relating to the Property Owners Association, excluding invoices requested by an owner under Texas Property Code section 209.008(d); and

3. except to the extent the information is provided in the meeting minutes or as authorized by Texas Property Code section 209.005(l), (a) information that identifies the dedicatory instrument violation history of an individual owner; (b) an owner’s personal financial information, including records of payment or nonpayment of amounts due the Property Owners Association; (c) an owner’s contact information, other than the owner’s address; and (d) information related to an employee of the Property Owners Association, including personnel files.

If a document in the Property Owners Association’s attorney’s files and records relating to the Property Owners Association would be subject to a request by an owner to inspect or copy Property Owners Association documents, the document will be produced by using the copy from the attorney’s files and records if the Property Owners Association has not maintained a separate copy of the document.

Procedures for Inspecting Information or Obtaining Copies

1. An owner or the owner’s agent must submit a written request for access or information by certified mail, with sufficient detail describing the Property Owners Association’s books and records requested, to the mailing address of the Property Owners Association or authorized representative as reflected on the most current management certificate filed with the county clerk of [county] County, Texas.

2. The request must include enough description and detail about the information requested to enable the Property Owners Association to accurately identify and locate the information requested. Owners must cooperate with the Property Owners Association’s reasonable efforts to clarify the type or amount of information requested.
3. The request must contain an election either to inspect the books and records before obtaining copies or to have the Property Owners Association forward copies of the requested books and records and—

a. if an inspection is requested, the Property Owners Association, on or before the tenth business day after the date the Property Owners Association receives the request, will send written notice of dates during normal business hours that the owner may inspect the requested books and records to the extent those books and records are in the possession, custody, or control of the Property Owners Association, or

b. if copies of identified books and records are requested, the Property Owners Association will, to the extent those books and records are in the possession, custody, or control of the Property Owners Association, produce the requested books and records for the requesting party on or before the tenth business day after the date the Property Owners Association receives the request.

4. If the Property Owners Association is unable to produce the books or records requested that are in its possession or custody on or before the tenth business day after the date the Property Owners Association receives the request, the Property Owners Association must provide to the requestor written notice that—

a. informs the owner that the Property Owners Association is unable to produce the information on or before the tenth business day after the date the Property Owners Association received the request; and

b. states a date by which the information will be sent or made available for inspection to the requesting party that is not later than the fifteenth business day after the date notice under this subsection is given.
5. If an inspection is requested or required, the inspection will take place at a mutually agreeable time during normal business hours, and the owner will identify the books and records for the Property Owners Association to copy and forward to the owner.

6. The Property Owners Association may produce copies of the requested information in paper copy, electronic, or other format reasonably available to the Property Owners Association.

7. Before starting work on an owner's request, the Property Owners Association must provide the owner with a written, itemized statement of estimated Charges for examining and copying records related to the owner's request, using amounts prescribed in this policy when the estimated Charges exceed $40. Owners may modify the request in response to the itemized statement.

8. Within ten business days of the date the Property Owners Association sent the estimate of Charges, the owner must respond in writing to the written estimate, or the request is considered automatically withdrawn. The response must state whether the owner (a) accepts the estimate per the request, (b) modifies the request, or (c) withdraws the request.

9. Owners are responsible for Charges related to the compilation, production, and reproduction of the requested information in the amounts stated in this policy. The Property Owners Association may require advance payment of the estimated Charges of compilation, production, and reproduction of the requested information.

10. If the estimated Charges are less or more than the actual Charges, the Property Owners Association must submit a final invoice to the owner on or before the thirtieth business day after the date the information is delivered. If the final invoice includes additional amounts due from the owner, the additional amounts, if not reimbursed to the Property Owners Association before the thirtieth business day after the date the invoice is sent to the owner, may be added to the owner's account as an assessment. If the estimated Charges exceeded the final invoice amount, the owner is entitled to a refund, and the refund will be issued to the owner not later than the thirtieth business day after the date the invoice is sent to the owner.

Exhibit A

Charges for Examining and Copying Property Owners Association Information

A. Labor Charge for Computer Programming

If a particular request requires the services of a computer programmer to execute an existing program or to create a new program so that requested information may be accessed and copied, the Property Owners Association will charge $28.50 an hour for the programmer’s time spent on the request.

B. Labor Charge for Locating, Compiling, Manipulating, and Reproducing Data and Information

1. The charge for labor costs incurred in processing an owner’s request for Property Owners Association information is $15.00 an hour. The labor charge will be calculated based on the actual time to locate, compile, manipulate, and reproduce the requested data and information.

2. A labor charge will not be billed in connection with complying with requests that are for fifty or fewer pages of paper records, unless the documents to be copied are located in (a) two or more separate buildings that are not physically connected with each other or (b) a remote storage facility.

3. A labor charge will not be billed for any time spent by an attorney, legal assistant, or any other person who reviews the requested information to determine whether it is confidential or privileged under Texas law.

4. When confidential or privileged information is mixed with public information in the same page, a labor charge may be recovered for time spent to redact, black out, or otherwise obscure the confidential or privileged information in order to comply with the owner’s request. The Property Owners Association will not charge for redacting confidential or privileged information for requests of fifty or fewer pages unless the request also qualifies for a labor charge under section 552.261(a)(1) or 552.261(a)(2) of the Texas Government Code.

C. Overhead Charge

1. Whenever any labor charge is applicable to a request, the Property Owners Association may include in the Charges direct and indirect costs, in addition to the specific labor charge. This overhead charge would cover such costs as depreciation of capital assets, rent, maintenance and repair, utilities, and administrative overhead. If the Property Owners Association chooses to recover such costs, the overhead charge will be computed at 20 percent of the charge made to cover any labor costs associated with a particular request.

For example, if one hour of labor is used for a particular request, the formula would be as follows:

a. Labor charge for locating, compiling, and reproducing—$15.00 x .20 = $3.00.

b. Labor charge for computer programming—$28.50 x .20 = $5.70.

If a request requires a charge for one hour of labor for locating, compiling, and reproducing information ($15.00 per hour) and one hour of programming ($28.50 per hour), the combined overhead would be $15.00 + $28.50 = $43.50 x .20 = $8.70.

2. An overhead charge will not be made for requests for copies of fifty or fewer pages of standard paper records.

D. Microfiche and Microfilm Charge

If the Property Owners Association already has the requested information on microfiche or microfilm, the charge for a copy must not exceed the cost of reproducing the information on microfiche or microfilm or ten cents per page for standard size paper copies of the information on microfiche or microfilm, plus any applicable labor and overhead charge for more than fifty copies.

E. Remote Document Retrieval Charge

To the extent that the retrieval of documents stored on the Property Owners Association’s property results in a charge to comply with a request, the Property Owners Association will charge the actual cost of the retrieval.

F. Copy Charges

1. The charge for standard paper copies reproduced by means of an office machine copier or a computer printer is ten cents per page or part of a page. Each side of a piece of paper on which information is recorded is counted as a single copy. A piece of paper that has information recorded on both sides is counted as two copies. Standard paper copy is a copy of Property Owners Association information that is a printed impression on one side of a piece of paper that measures up to eight and one-half by fourteen inches.

2. A “nonstandard” copy includes everything but a copy of a piece of paper measuring up to eight and one-half by fourteen inches. Microfiche, microfilm, diskettes, magnetic tapes, and CD-ROM are examples of nonstandard copies. The charges in this subsection are to cover the materials onto which information is copied and do not reflect any additional charges, including labor, that may be associated with a particular request. The charges for nonstandard copies are—

   a. diskette—$1.00;

   b. magnetic tape—actual cost;

   c. data cartridge—actual cost;
d. tape cartridge—actual cost;

e. rewritable CD (CD-RW)—$1.00;

f. nonrewritable CD (CD-R)—$1.00;

g. digital video disc (DVD)—$3.00;

h. JAZ drive—actual cost;

i. other electronic media—actual cost;

j. VHS video cassette—$2.50;

k. audio cassette—$1.00;

l. oversize paper copy (e.g., larger than eight and one-half by fourteen inches, greenbar, bluebar, not including maps and photographs using specialty paper)—$0.50, and

m. specialty paper (e.g., Mylar, blueprint, blueline, map, photographic)—actual cost.

If any amount is not paid either when due under the Terms of Payment or on acceleration of maturity, Debtor promises to pay any unpaid amount plus interest from the date the payment was due to the date of payment at the Annual Interest Rate on Matured, Unpaid Amounts.

If Debtor defaults in the payment of this agreement, the Property Owners Association may declare the unpaid principal balance, earned interest, and any other amounts owed immediately due. Debtor and each surety, endorser, and guarantor waive all demand for payment, presentation for payment, notice of intention to accelerate maturity, notice of acceleration of maturity, protest, and notice of protest, to the extent permitted by law.

Debtor also promises to pay reasonable attorney’s fees and court and other costs if this agreement is given to an attorney to collect or enforce. These expenses will bear interest from the date of advance at the Annual Interest Rate on Matured, Unpaid Amounts. Debtor will pay the Property Owners Association these expenses and interest on demand at the Place for Payment. These expenses and interest will become part of the Debt evidenced by this agreement.

Interest on the Debt will not exceed the maximum rate or amount of nonusurious interest that may be contracted for, taken, reserved, charged, or received under law. Any interest in excess of that maximum amount will be credited on the Principal Amount of Debt or, if the Principal Amount of Debt has been paid, refunded. On any acceleration or required or permitted prepayment, any excess interest will be canceled automatically as of the acceleration or prepayment or, if the excess interest has already been paid, credited on the Principal Amount of Debt or, if the Principal Amount of Debt has been paid, refunded. This provision overrides any conflicting provisions in this agreement and all other instruments concerning the Debt.

Each Debtor is responsible for all obligations represented by this agreement.

When the context requires, singular nouns and pronouns include the plural.

§ 24.1 General Considerations

§ 24.1:1 Definition and Creation of a Condominium and Its Owners Association

A condominium is a form of real property ownership in which portions of the real property are designated for separate ownership or occupancy (the “units”) and the remainder is designated for common ownership or occupancy solely by the owners of the units. Real property is a condominium only if one or more of the common elements (for use by all the unit owners) are directly owned in undivided interests by the unit owners. Real property is not a condominium if all of the common elements are owned by a legal entity separate from the unit owners, such as a corporation or property owners association, even if the separate legal entity is owned by the unit owners. Tex. Prop. Code § 82.003(a)(8).

Condominiums are established through filing, in the real property records of the county in which the property is located, a declaration imposing restrictive covenants on the property comprising the condominium regime. Tex. Prop. Code § 82.051. The declaration must contain statutorily prescribed information. Tex. Prop. Code § 82.055. The declaration defines the boundaries of the units and operates to subdivide the property into separate condominium units and common areas or elements. Tex. Prop. Code § 82.052. It is not uncommon for condominium developers to presell condominium units before construction of the condominium building and thus before the boundaries of the units are defined by an as-built survey. In 2013, the Texas legislature amended the definition in Tex. Prop. Code § 82.003(a)(11) to eliminate the word recorded with reference to the declaration but left section 82.051 (requiring recording to establish a condominium) unchanged.

The provisions of the declaration and bylaws are severable. See Tex. Prop. Code § 82.053. These bylaws are for a condominium owners association that will take over management of the condominium regime from the declarant. The declaration also typically includes rules affecting the property and owners in the condominium regime.

A condominium owners association for a condominium formed after January 1, 1994, must be a Texas corporation. Tex. Prop. Code § 82.101. These owners associations are typically nonprofit corporations, although section 82.101 allows them to be for-profit corporations. The Texas Business Organizations Code provides for the formation of both nonprofit and for-profit corporations. Form 24-3 in this chapter is a certificate of formation for a condominium owners association.

§ 24.1:2 Applicable Law

The Uniform Condominium Act, chapter 82 of the Texas Property Code, governs all condominiums with declarations recorded on or after January 1, 1994. The Act also applies to condominiums formed before that date if the owners vote to have chapter 82 apply or if a declaration or amendment of declaration recorded before January 1, 1994, states that chapter 82 will apply. See Tex. Prop. Code § 82.002(a). Portions of the Act apply to all condominiums; however, certain rights cannot be limited for owners of condominiums created before 1994. See Tex. Prop. Code § 82.002(b)–(d). Condominiums created before January 1, 1994, are otherwise governed by chapter 81 of the Property Code.
Property Code chapter 202, governing construction and enforcement of restrictive covenants, also applies to condominiums. Section 202.002(a) states that the chapter “applies to all restrictive covenants.” “Restrictive covenant” is defined to mean any covenant, condition, or restriction in a dedicatory instrument, and a “dedicatory instrument” means all governing instruments of planned developments, explicitly including condominiums. See Tex. Prop. Code § 202.001(1), (4). “Dedicatory instrument” as it relates to condominiums is defined in Tex. Prop. Code § 82.003(a)(11–a), which does not specifically require recording. Under chapter 202, however, a dedicatory instrument has no effect until it is recorded in the public records. Tex. Prop. Code § 202.006(b). In many instances, the provisions of the statutes applicable to condominiums differ substantially from those that apply to noncondominium residential subdivisions. See Tex. Prop. Code § 209.003(d).

In addition to provisions in chapter 82 of the Property Code, the Texas Business Organizations Code governs the formation and operation of the condominium owners association. See Tex. Bus. Orgs. Code ch. 21 (for-profit corporations), ch. 22 (non-profit corporations).

Condominium owners associations are subject to federal income taxation. They do not qualify as charitable organizations under Internal Revenue Code section 501(c)(3). Associations may qualify for special tax treatment under 26 U.S.C. § 528.

§ 24.1:3 Foreclosure of Assessment Lien

An assessment levied by a condominium owners association is a personal obligation of the unit owner and is also secured by a continuing lien on the unit, on rents, and on insurance proceeds relating to the unit. See Tex. Prop. Code § 82.113(a). For purposes of this section, “assessment” includes regular and special assessments, dues, fees, late fees, fines, collection costs, attorney’s fees, “and any other amount due to the association by the unit owner or levied against the unit by the association . . . .” Tex. Prop. Code § 82.113(a). The lien for assessments is created by the recording of the declaration, and no other recordation of a lien or notice of lien is required. Tex. Prop. Code § 82.113(c). The association’s lien for assessments has priority over other liens, except for liens for real property taxes or other governmental assessments, liens recorded before the declaration was recorded, first vendor’s liens or first deed-of-trust liens recorded before the assessment becomes delinquent, and under certain circumstances, liens on improvements. See Tex. Prop. Code § 82.113(b).

By acquiring a unit, an owner grants the association a power of sale. That power of sale is exercised pursuant to Texas Property Code section 51.002 unless the declaration provides otherwise. Tex. Prop. Code § 82.113(d). The association may not foreclose a lien for assessments consisting only of fines. Tex. Prop. Code § 82.113(e). The association may not foreclose during a person’s active military service or nine months thereafter without complying with Tex. Prop. Code § 51.015. A notice of foreclosure sale must include the military service language in Tex. Prop. Code § 51.002(i). The initial communication with the owner to collect delinquent assessments before exercising the right of foreclosure also should include language required under federal and state fair debt collection practices laws. A unit owner may not petition a court to set aside a sale solely because the price at foreclosure was insufficient to fully satisfy the owner’s debt. The association may purchase the unit at foreclosure.

The redemption rights of condominium owners are set out in Tex. Prop. Code § 82.113(g). The Texas Residential Property Owners Protection Act, chapter 209 of the Property Code, does not apply to condominiums. Tex. Prop. Code § 209.003(d). See Duarte v. Disanti, 292 S.W.3d 733, 736 (Tex. App.—Dallas 2009, no pet.) (it was “the legislature’s clear intent to have different redemption rights for residential subdivisions than for condominiums”).
At any time before a nonjudicial foreclosure sale, the unit owner may avoid foreclosure by paying “all amounts due the association.” Tex. Prop. Code § 82.113(j). The association is not prohibited from taking a deed in lieu of foreclosure or from filing suit to recover a money judgment. Tex. Prop. Code § 82.113(i).

If an owner defaults on obligations to the association, the association may notify other lienholders of its intent to foreclose and must notify any holder of a recorded lien or a duly perfected mechanic’s lien if the lienholder has given the association a written request of notification. Tex. Prop. Code § 82.113(h), (m). Foreclosure of a tax lien under chapter 32 of the Texas Tax Code does not discharge the association’s lien for amounts due the association after the date of foreclosure of the tax lien. Tex. Prop. Code § 82.113(l).

§ 24.2 General Instructions for Completing Forms

For general information about completing the forms in this chapter, see chapter 3 in this manual. In most forms, the information that the attorney must provide is listed at the beginning of the form. Of course, the attorney may add other specific provisions and references to exhibits and riders at the end of the form.

For general information about designation of parties, addresses, property descriptions, and execution and acknowledgment of documents, see chapter 3.

§ 24.3 General Considerations for Declaration

The required contents for a condominium declaration are set out in Tex. Prop. Code § 82.055.

§ 24.3:1 Definitions

The definition of “assessment” used in the declaration, form 24-1 in this chapter, is based on that used in Tex. Prop. Code § 82.113(a).

The definition of “residential purposes” is derived from Tex. Prop. Code § 82.003(a)(21).

The definition of “common elements” is based on Tex. Prop. Code § 82.003(a)(5). In each condominium, there will likely be portions that should be designated as “limited common elements.” The consequence of such a designation is important, not only to limit use of those elements but also to determine responsibility for their maintenance, repair, or replacement, and the costs thereof. The drafter should carefully review Texas Property Code sections 82.052, 82.058, 82.107, and 82.113(d) when determining which aspects of a condominium should be designated as limited common elements as opposed to common elements.

The declaration defines the plat as including the plans. Property Code section 82.003(a) makes a distinction between plan and plat as follows:

(18) “Plan” means a dimensional drawing that is recordable in the real property records or the condominium plat records and that horizontally and vertically identifies or describes units and common elements that are contained in buildings.

(19) “Plat” means a survey recordable in the real property records or the condominium plat records and containing the information required by Section 82.059. As used in this chapter, “plat” does not have the same meaning as “plat” in Chapter 212 or 232, Local Government Code, or other statutes dealing with municipal or county regulation of property development.

§ 24.3:2 Restrictions on Use, Occupancy, or Alienation

Texas Property Code section 82.055(9) requires a declaration to set out any restrictions on use, occupancy, or alienation of the units. Section C. of the declaration, form 24-1 in this chapter, has examples of use and occupancy restrictions. Because changing the “use restrictions on a unit” in a declaration requires 100 percent of the votes in the association (Tex. Prop. Code § 82.067(e)), it will be difficult if not impossible to amend the use restrictions once the declarant loses control of the condominium regime. The use restrictions thus require careful consideration. Examples of restraints on alienation are provided in paragraph D.8. of form 24-1. The practitioner will need to consider what conditions or activities are to be prohibited. The nature and extent of the limitations will depend on the declarant’s purpose and expectations for the condominium. In addition, lenders may require that restrictions be incorporated to protect their interests and the security of mortgages.

If the declarant wants to restrict or regulate rentals, restricting the units to “residential” use will not suffice. Rental of a property for residential use does not transform the use of the property into a business or commercial use. Tarr v. Timberwood Park Owners Ass’n, Inc., 556 S.W.3d 274 (Tex. 2018). Any prohibition against rentals must explicitly be stated in the declaration. Tarr, 556 S.W.3d at 391. The declarant may want to consider not placing rental restrictions in the section of the declaration titled “use restrictions,” given the requirement for approval from “100 percent of the votes in the association” for a change in any “use restrictions.” Tex. Prop. Code § 82.067(e). Careful consideration must also be given to the context in which the phrase “single family” appears in a declaration. The supreme court in Tarr determined that “single family” refers to a type of structure, not who can occupy the property. Tarr, 556 S.W.3d at 287. The declarant therefore may also want to define the term “single family” if used in the declaration.

Unless the declaration prohibits rental of units, condominium owners associations or managers may encounter enforcement problems when an owner rents the property to a third party. Insertion of provisions such as the following in the declaration or the association’s rules can minimize these enforcement problems:

• requiring that owners provide tenants with the declaration and rules,
• requiring owners to use rental agreements that impose on tenants the obligation to comply with the dedicatory instruments, with consequences for tenants’ violation of the declaration or rules,
• making owners responsible for any fines or other consequences if tenants violate the declaration or rules, and
• requiring owners to give the association or management information about rentals, including contact information for tenants and copies of the rental agreements (form 24-14 in this chapter can be used for this purpose).
Some declarations prohibit short-term rentals because of the unique problems they pose. “Short-term rental” means the rental of all or part of a residential property for less than thirty consecutive days. Tex. Tax Code §§ 156.001(b), 156.101. Short-term rentals are subject to sales and hotel taxes and, often, additional local ordinances. Promulgating association rules that require owners to comply with all applicable laws, with fines or other consequences in the event the owners do not comply, can provide an association with an enforcement tool in those situations.

§ 24.3:3 Units and Common Elements

Texas Property Code sections 82.052 and 82.055(4) allow the declaration to define the boundaries of a unit other than as set forth in paragraphs D.3. and D.4. of the declaration, form 24-1 in this chapter.

The declaration is required to contain a description of limited common elements other than those described in Texas Property Code section 82.052(2) and (4). Tex. Prop. Code § 82.055(6). Examples of limited common elements as set out in the statute include chutes, flues, ducts, wires, bearing walls, and other fixtures partially within and partially outside the designated boundaries of a unit and that serve only that unit. Tex. Prop. Code § 82.053(2). Items such as windows, exterior doors, shutters, awnings, window boxes, doorsteps, porches, balconies, and patios designed to serve a single unit but located outside the unit’s boundaries are also limited common elements. Tex. Prop. Code § 82.053(4). The declaration must also contain a description of property that may be allocated subsequently as limited common elements. Tex. Prop. Code § 82.055(7).

§ 24.3:4 Assignment of Association Income

Unless a dedicatory instrument requires a vote of the association members to borrow money or to assign the association’s right to future income or lien rights, Tex. Prop. Code § 82.102(f) gives the association’s board of directors the power to borrow money and assign as collateral for the loan the association’s right to future income and lien rights. If a vote of the members is required, (1) the board can provide for electronic voting, absentee ballot, proxy at a meeting, or written consent, and (2) at least 67 percent of all voting interests must vote in favor of the action, unless a dedicatory instrument provides for a lower threshold.

Form 24-12 in this chapter is a unanimous consent in lieu of a directors’ meeting to approve a loan under Tex. Prop. Code § 82.102(f) after any required members’ vote under section 82.102(g) has approved the loan. Chapter 6 in this manual contains forms and clauses for the promissory note. Form 24-13 is a security agreement and transfer of lien to secure the loan.

§ 24.3:5 Assessments and Late Charges

Texas Property Code section 82.112 provides that an expense for maintenance, repair, or replacement of a limited common element must be assessed as if it were a general common element expense except as otherwise provided by the declaration or Tex. Prop. Code § 82.107.

Late charges are governed by Tex. Prop. Code §§ 82.102(a)(12), 82.112(c), 82.117(1). The creation of liens and foreclosure for failure to pay assessments is addressed in Tex. Prop. Code § 82.113. Form 24-15 in this chapter can be used for making an initial demand for payment of delinquent assessments before the association exercises its right to foreclose. That form includes the language required by the federal and state fair debt collection practices laws and the military service language required in the notice of foreclosure under Tex. Prop. Code § 51.002(i). Redemption rights for condominium owners after foreclosure of an association’s lien for assessments are governed by Tex. Prop. Code § 82.113(g).
Among the powers granted to the association by the Uniform Condominium Act is the power to impose charges for use of the common elements. See Tex. Prop. Code § 82.102(a)(11). Paragraph H.2. of the declaration, form 24-1 in this chapter, concerns fees for use of specified common elements and is optional. The purpose of this section is to expressly authorize such charges and to provide a procedure to the association.

§ 24.3:6 Voting Rights

The declaration may provide for different allocations of votes on particular specified matters or class voting on specified issues, however, units may not constitute a class merely because they are owned by a declarant. Tex. Prop. Code § 82.057(c), (d).

The formulas used to establish the allocations of interests must be stated in the declaration. See Tex. Prop. Code §§ 82.055(8), (16), 82.057(a), (c). Attention should be given to section 82.057(c), which permits special provisions relating to voting rights.

If any unit is restricted exclusively to residential purposes, the approval of at least 80 percent of the members is required to terminate the condominium under section 82.068(a) of the Texas Property Code.

§ 24.3:7 Amendment of Declaration

Tex. Prop. Code § 82.055(11) requires the declaration to contain the method of its amendment. By statute an amendment to a declaration may be made—

1. by written ballot that states the exact wording or substance of the amendment and that specifies the date by which a ballot must be received to be counted;
2. at a meeting of the members of the association after written notice of the meeting has been delivered to an owner of each unit stating that a purpose of the meeting is to consider an amendment to the declaration; or
3. by any method permitted by the declaration.

Tex. Prop. Code § 82.067(a).

The drafter may merely reference the two specific methods described in Tex. Prop. Code § 82.067(a) or may include additional methods. Some thought should be given to taking advantage of technological advances in order to accommodate different sizes and types of anticipated membership populations. For example, written ballots might be submitted electronically, rather than only by mail.

§ 24.3:8 Development Rights

The right to create additional units is a development right. See Tex. Prop. Code § 82.003(a)(12)(B). The Uniform Condominium Act requires all condominium declarations to include a statement of the maximum number of units that the declarant reserves the right to create. See Tex. Prop. Code § 82.055(5). If any development right is to be reserved by the declarant, the declaration (form 24-1 in this chapter) will require substantial modification.
§ 24.3:9 Special Declarant Rights

Tex. Prop. Code § 82.055(14), (15) requires not only a description of development rights and other special declarant rights but also clear identification of the particular real property to which such rights apply and time limits within which such rights must be exercised. Unless special declarant rights are expressly reserved in the declaration, they do not arise under the Uniform Condominium Act. If development rights are reserved, the declaration (form 24-1 in this chapter) will require substantial modification. See Tex. Prop. Code §§ 82.003(a)(12), (a)(22), 82.055(14). Examples of special declarant rights include:

1. The right to complete or make improvements indicated on the plats and plans. See Tex. Prop. Code §§ 82.003(a)(22)(A), 82.059.

2. The right to maintain sales and other offices and models and condominium advertising signs on the condominium. See Tex. Prop. Code §§ 82.003(a)(22)(D), 82.065.

4. The right to appoint or remove officers or directors. See Tex. Prop. Code §§ 82.003(a)(22)(F), 82.103(c).

§ 24.4 General Considerations for Bylaws

Form 24-4 in this chapter is a proposed set of bylaws for a condominium owners association. The form can be modified consistent with applicable law, found primarily in the Texas Business Organizations Code and the Texas Property Code.

The Business Organizations Code provides that bylaws may contain provisions for the “regulation and management” of corporate affairs that are consistent with law and the corporation’s certificate of formation. Tex. Bus. Orgs. Code § 21.057(b) (for-profit corporation), § 22.102(b) (nonprofit corporation).

Section 82.106 of the Property Code mandates that the bylaws contain specified provisions governing the “administration and operation of the condominium.” It also provides for “other matters the association considers desirable, necessary or appropriate” subject to the declaration. Section 81.202 of the Property Code (applying to condominiums formed before January 1, 1994) states that the “bylaws of a condominium regime govern the administration of the buildings that comprise the regime.” Thus, it is not unusual, particularly for associations formed before January 1, 1994, to see provisions in bylaws that go beyond corporate governance.

§ 24.5 General Considerations for Rules

Form 24-11 in this chapter can be used in promulgating rules for the condominium owners association and the use of any common areas. The rules and penalties for violation (to be inserted in sections A. and B. of the form) will be unique to each condominium regime. The enforcement provisions (contained in section C. of the form) are based on the requirements in section 82.102(d) of the Texas Property Code.
§ 24.6 Additional Forms

§ 24.6:1 Condominium Information Statement

Before offering to the public the sale of any interest in a condominium, a declarant (as well as certain other persons in the business of selling real property) must prepare and provide a condominium information statement to prospective purchasers. Tex. Prop. Code § 82.152. The requirements for the condominium information statement are found in Tex. Prop. Code § 82.153. These include—

1. the name and principal address of the declarant and of the condominium;
2. a general description of the condominium that includes the types and maximum number of units;
3. the minimum and maximum number of additional units that may be included in the condominium;
4. a brief description of any development rights reserved by a declarant and of any conditions relating to those rights;
5. copies of the declaration, articles of incorporation, bylaws, any rules of the association and their amendments, and copies of leases and contracts, other than loan documents, required by the declarant to be signed by purchasers at closing;
6. a projected or pro forma budget for the association for the first fiscal year of the association that conforms to Texas Property Code section 82.153(a)(6) and (b);
7. a general description of each lien, lease, or encumbrance affecting title to the condominium after conveyance by the declarant;
8. a copy of each written warrant provided by the declarant;
9. a description of any unsatisfied judgments against the association and any pending suits to which the association is a party or that are material to the land title and construction of the condominium of which a declarant has actual knowledge;
10. a general description of the insurance coverage provided for the benefit of unit owners; and
11. current or expected fees or charges to be paid by unit owners for the use of the common elements and other facilities related to the condominium.

Form 24-2 in this chapter is based on the above requirements. Special disclosures are required for condominiums located in whole or in part in a municipality with a population of more than 1.9 million. See Tex. Prop. Code § 82.153(a)(12).

§ 24.6:2 Management Certificate

Texas Property Code section 82.116 requires a management certificate to be recorded in each county in which the condominium is located. If any changes in information occur, the association is required to file a new management certificate not later than thirty days after the date the association has notice of the change. See Tex. Prop. Code § 82.116(b). In addition, all condominium owners associations must record a current management certificate on or before January 1, 2014, or rerecord the current management certificate if the previous recording was done before September 1, 2013. This requirement is to facilitate the county clerks’ indexing of management certificates, which, before September 1, 2013, did not have a clear, statutorily mandated system. Tex. Prop. Code § 82.116(a–1). Thus, a condominium owners association should record or rerecord its current management certificates even if it missed the January 1, 2014, deadline. Form 24-5 in this chapter, the management certificate, may be used to comply with these requirements.

§ 24.6:3  Resale Certificate and Acknowledgment of Receipt

A unit owner, other than a declarant, who intends to sell a unit must provide a purchaser with a current copy of the declaration, bylaws, any association rules, and a resale certificate. The resale certificate, required under chapter 82 of the Texas Property Code, must be prepared not earlier than three months before the date of delivery. The resale certificate must be issued by the association and contain the disclosures specified in Tex. Prop. Code § 82.157. The resale certificate and other provisions in chapter 207 of the Property Code do not apply to condominiums. Tex. Prop. Code § 207.002(b).

Form 24-6 in this chapter, the resale certificate, may be used to comply with the requirements of Tex. Prop. Code § 82.157.

If the seller fails to deliver to the purchaser copies of the declaration, bylaws, and association rules as required by Tex. Prop. Code § 82.157 before the purchaser executes the contract, or if the contract does not contain an underlined or bold-faced provision acknowledging the purchaser’s receipt of those documents and recommending that the purchaser read the documents before executing the contract, the purchaser has the right to cancel the contract before the sixth day after the date the seller delivers those documents to the purchaser. See Tex. Prop. Code § 82.156. Form 24-8, the acknowledgment of receipt of condominium documents, may be used to document compliance with Tex. Prop. Code § 82.157 or may be modified to use as additional clauses in a sales contract.

§ 24.6:4  Record of Unit

An association is required to keep certain records, including information concerning each unit owner. The unit owner, within thirty days after acquiring an interest, must provide—

1. the unit owner’s mailing address, telephone number, and driver’s license number, if any;
2. the name and address of the holder of any lien against the unit and any loan number;
3. the name and telephone number of any person occupying the unit other than the unit owner; and
4. the name, address, and telephone number of any person managing the unit as agent of the unit owner.

Tex. Prop. Code § 82.114(e).

This information must be updated no later than thirty days after the date the owner has notice of any change in the required information. Tex. Prop. Code § 82.114(f). Form 24-10 in this chapter, the record of unit, may be used to comply with those requirements.

§ 24.6:5  Management Agreement

A person who performs residential property management services for a single-family residential property must be licensed as a broker. Tex. Occ. Code ch. 1101. Among the many acts that can make one a “broker” for purposes of the Occupations Code, and thus requiring the person to be licensed, is “control[ling] the acceptance or deposit of rent from a resident of a single-family residential real property unit,” in expectation of receiving a commission or other valuable consideration. Tex. Occ. Code § 1101.002(1)(A)(x). Control means the authority to either (1) pay for services related to management of the property out of the rent collected, (2) determine where to deposit the rent, or (3) sign checks or withdraw money from a trust account. 22 Tex. Admin. Code § 535.4(h). Tex. Admin. Code § 535.4(i) states that in addition to other types of property, a condominium unit or townhome is a single-family residential real property unit for purposes of Tex. Admin. Code § 535.4(h). An association that hires an unlicensed manager to assist in managing the association’s affairs can use form 24-16 in this chapter to prohibit activities for which a broker’s license is required.

A.1. Declarant imposes the Covenants on the Property and subjects the Property to a condominium form of ownership in accordance with the provisions of the Act [include if applicable: , subject to the Reservations from Declaration]. The Covenants run with the land and bind all Owners, occupants, and any other person holding an interest in a Unit.

Each Owner, each occupant of a Unit, and the Association agree to comply with the Dedicatory Instruments and to be subject to an action arising out of or related to the Dedicatory Instruments for declaratory judgment, damages, or for injunctive relief.

B. Plat

B.1. The Plat is part of this Declaration and is incorporated by reference.

B.2. To the extent that a Unit or Common Element encroaches on another Unit or Common Element, a valid easement for the encroachment exists. The easement does not relieve an Owner of liability in case of willful misconduct or relieve Declarant or any other person of liability for failure to adhere to the Plat.

C. Regulated Activities

C.1. Permitted Purposes. A Unit [shall/shall not] be utilized [only] for Residential Purposes [by a Single Family]. [Include if applicable: A Unit shall be used only for [office/warehouse/industrial/other nonresidential] purposes.]

[j. the renting of a portion of a Unit;]

[j./k.] [Insert any additional restrictions, e.g., renting a residence or structure for less than thirty consecutive days or allowing a renter, guest, or other person who is a registered sex offender to reside at the Property.]

D.2. Identification of Units. The identification number of each Unit is shown on Exhibit [exhibit number/letter] and on the Plat.

D.3. Unit Boundaries. The boundaries of each Unit are the walls, floors, and ceilings of the Unit. The boundaries of each Unit are located as shown on the Plat and are more particularly described in paragraph D.4.

D.4. Parts of Unit. A Unit includes all lath, furring, wallboard, plasterboard, plaster, paneling, tiles, wallpaper, paint, finished flooring, and any other materials constituting part of the finished surfaces that are a part of a Unit, and the spaces, interior partitions, and other fixtures and improvements within the boundaries of a Unit are a part of the Unit. A Unit also includes [include any additional things that represent part of a unit]. A Unit does not include any chute, flue, duct, wire, conduit, bearing wall, bearing column, or any other fixture that is partially within and partially outside the designated boundaries of a Unit, of which the portion serving only that Unit is a Limited Common Element allocated solely to that Unit and of which the portion serving more than one Unit or the Common Elements is a part of the General Common Elements.

D.5. No Subdivision or Consolidation of Units. No Unit will be subdivided or consolidated with another Unit (unless approved by the Board).

D.6. No Structural Modification of Unit without Board Approval. No structural modifications or alterations will be made in a Unit unless plans, specifications, and any other documents requested by the Board are submitted to and approved by the Board in accordance with the Rules. The Association, the Board, and their members will not be liable to any person submitting requests for approval or to any Owner by reason of any action, failure to act, approval, disapproval, or failure to approve or disapprove any request. Any structural modification made to a Unit (a) without Board approval, (b) not in conformity with the Board approval, or (c) without the required permit from the applicable entity are unauthorized modifications. The Board may require the Owner to restore the Unit, at the Owner’s expense, to the condition before the unauthorized modifications were made.

D.7. Maintenance. Each Unit will be maintained by its Owner.

D.8. Restrictions on Transfer

A Unit may not be conveyed pursuant to a time-sharing arrangement.

A Unit may not be leased or rented for a term of less than [number] days.

requirements of the Board.

If an Owner receives an acceptable purchase offer for a Unit, the Owner must first offer to sell the Unit to the Association for the same price and terms as the offer received. The Owner will give the Board written notice of the price and terms of the offer received and the name and address of the person making such offer. If, within ten days from the date the Board receives the Owner’s notice, the Board fails to give the Owner notice that the Association elects to purchase the Unit, the Owner may sell the Unit to the person(s) making the offer. In such case, the Board will certify in writing, duly acknowledged and in recordable form, that the Association has declined to purchase the Unit. The Board may waive the provisions of this paragraph for any Unit. Any mortgagee of any Unit that acquires title to a Unit is exempt from this “right of first refusal.”

E. Association

E.1. Establishment and Governance. The Association is established by filing its Certificate of Formation and is governed by the Dedicatory Instruments. The Association, acting through the Board, will administer and manage the Condominium in accordance with the Dedicatory Instruments. The Association has the powers (a) of a [for-profit/nonprofit] corporation under the Texas Business Organizations Code, (b) of a condominium association under the Act, and (c) stated in the Dedicatory Instruments, respectively as amended. All acts of the Association must be by and through the Board, except as otherwise provided by the Declaration or Bylaws or by law.

E.2. Declarant Control. Declarant has all the powers reserved in section 82.103(c) of the Act to appoint and remove officers and members of the Board until the 120th day after conveyance of 50 percent of the Units that may be created to Owners other than Declarant, at which time not less than one-third of the Board members must be elected by Owners other than Declarant. Not later than the 120th day after conveyance of 75 percent of the Units to Owners other than Declarant, the Declarant Control Period terminates, and all the Board and Association officers shall be elected by the Owners as provided in the Bylaws.

E.3. Membership and Voting Rights. Every Owner is a Member of the Association. Membership is appurtenant to and may not be separated from ownership of a Unit. On termination of the Declarant Control Period, the Members have the voting rights provided in the Bylaws.

E.4. Assignment of Future Income. The Association may assign its future income, including its rights to receive Common Expenses assessments, [in accordance with section 82.102 of the Act/only by the affirmative vote of Unit Owners of Units to which at least [number] of the votes in the Association are allocated]
F. Assessments

F.1. Authority. The Association will charge Assessments as provided in the Act.

F.2. Personal Obligation. An Assessment is a personal obligation of each Owner when the Assessment accrues.

F.3. Creation of Lien. Assessments are secured by a continuing lien on each Unit as provided in section 82.113 of the Act. By acceptance of a deed to a Unit, each Owner grants the lien, together with the power of sale, to the Association to secure Assessments.

F.4. Commencement. A Unit becomes subject to Assessments as provided in the Act.

F.5. Regular Assessments

F.5.a. Rate. Regular assessments will be charged by the Board to fund the budgeted Common Expenses.

F.5.b. Changes to Regular Assessments. Regular assessments may be changed by the Board. Written notice of the regular assessment will be sent to every Owner at least thirty days before its effective date.

F.5.c. Collections. Regular assessments will be collected [annually/semiannually/monthly] in advance, payable on the [first/tenth/[other]] day of the [month/year] and on [the same day of each succeeding [month/year]/the [first/tenth/[other]] day of [month] of each year].

F.5.d. Expenses for Maintenance, Repair, or Replacement of Limited Common Elements. Expenses for the maintenance, repair, or replacement of a Limited Common Element shall be assessed to the Owner(s) whose Unit(s) benefit from the Limited Common Element.

F.6. Special Assessments. In addition to the regular assessments, the Board may charge special assessments for the purpose of funding the cost of any construction, reconstruction, repair, or replacement of any capital improvement on the Common Elements or for any other purpose benefiting the Condominium but requiring funds exceeding those available from the regular assessments. Written notice of the terms of the special assessment will be sent to every Owner. Any special assessment must be approved by a [majority/two-thirds] vote at a meeting of the Members in accordance with the Bylaws.

F.7. Subordination of Lien to Mortgages. The lien granted and reserved to the Association is subordinate to the liens described in section 82.113(b) of the Act.

F.8. Delinquent Assessments. Any Assessment not paid within [number] days after it is due is delinquent.

G. Remedial Rights

G.1. Late Charges and Interest. Owners will pay the Association a late charge of [$[amount]/[percent] percent of the delinquent amount] for Delinquent Assessments. Owners will pay the Association interest at the rate of [percent] percent per year on Delinquent Assessments from the delinquent date until the date paid. The Board may change the late charge and the interest rate, however, the interest rate may not exceed the maximum permitted by law.

G.2. Costs, Attorney's Fees, and Expenses. The prevailing party in any legal proceeding among the Association, an Owner, or an occupant of a Unit related to the Dedicatory Instruments is entitled to recover reasonable attorney's fees and all costs of such proceeding.
incurred by the prevailing party. A prevailing party is the party who successfully prosecutes the action or successfully defends against it, prevailing on the main issue, even though not to the extent of its original contention.

G.3. Nonjudicial Foreclosure of Lien. The Association may foreclose the Association’s lien against a Unit in accordance with section 82.113 of the Act.

G.4. Judicial Action. The Association may sue an Owner and an occupant of a Unit to enforce the Dedicatory Instruments for damages for breach of the Dedicatory Instruments, for injunctive relief regarding the Dedicatory Instruments, and to foreclose the Association’s lien on a Unit. H.1.a. Limited Common Elements are marked on the Plat and include [include as applicable: vehicle parking areas, storage areas, and others].

H.1.b. To the extent the Limited Common Elements are not allocated to a Unit by the Declaration, Declarant reserves the right to allocate the Limited Common Elements for the exclusive use of one or more Units (i) by making the allocation in a recorded instrument, (ii) in the deed to the Unit(s) to which the Limited Common Element is ancillary, or (iii) by recording an appropriate amendment to this Declaration.

The following paragraph is optional. Unless the declaration contains a similar provision, a reallocation of limited common elements can be undertaken only by an amendment to the declaration.

H.2. Allocation of Specified Common Elements. The Board may designate parts of the Common Elements from time to time for use by less than all of the Owners or by nonowners for specified periods of time or by only those persons paying fees or satisfying other reasonable conditions for use as may be established by the Board. Any such designation by the Board shall not be a sale or disposition of such portions of the Common Elements.

I. Allocated Interests

I.1. Allocated Interests. The Owners' respective undivided interest in the Common Elements, the Owners' respective Common Expense liability, and the Owners' respective votes in the Association allocated to each Unit are set forth in Exhibit [exhibit number/letter].

I.2. Determination of Allocated Interests. The interests allocated to each Unit have been calculated as follows:

1. by written ballot that states the exact wording or substance of the amendment and that specifies the date by which a ballot must be received to be counted,

2. at a meeting of the Members of the Association after written notice of the meeting has been delivered to an Owner of each Unit stating that a purpose of the meeting is to consider an amendment to the Declaration,

3. by unanimous written consent of the Owners, or

4. [other method].

K. Reconstruction after Loss

On a casualty to any portion of the Condominium for which insurance is required, the Association must promptly repair or replace that portion unless (1) the Condominium is terminated, (2) repair or replacement would be illegal under any state or local health or safety statute or ordinance, or (3) at least 80 percent of the Owners, including each Owner of a Unit or assigned Limited Common Element that will not be rebuilt or repaired, vote to not rebuild. Each unit owner may vote (in person or by proxy at a meeting, electronically or by written ballot in the absence of a meeting) regardless of whether the owner’s unit or limited common element has been damaged or destroyed. Costs will be assessed and paid as provided in section 82.111 of the Act. [Specify alternative provisions if desired and if all units are restricted to nonresidential use, as the provisions of section 82.111 of the Act may then be varied or waived.]

M.4. Conflict. This Declaration controls over the other Dedicatory Instruments.

M.5. Severability. If a provision of this Declaration is unenforceable for any reason, to the extent the unenforceability does not destroy the basis of the bargain among the parties, the unenforceability does not affect any other provision of this Declaration, and this Declaration is to be construed as if the unenforceable provision is not a part of the Declaration.

M.6. Notices. Any notice required or permitted by the Dedicatory Instruments must be in writing. To the extent required by law, notices regarding remedial rights must be given by certified mail, return receipt requested. All other notices may be given by regular mail. Notice of the time and place of the meeting[s] will be given to directors not less than [number] days and not more than [number] days before the meeting[s]. Board meetings must be open to Members, subject to the right of the Board to adjourn a meeting of the Board and convene in executive session to consider actions involving personnel, pending litigation, contract negotiations, enforcement actions, matters involving the invasion of privacy of Members, or matters that are to remain confidential by request of the affected parties and agreement of the Board. The general nature of any business to be considered in executive session must first be announced at the open meeting.

Proper notice of a meeting will be deemed given to any director or Member who attends the meeting without protesting before or at its commencement about the lack of proper notice.

C.6. Quorum of Board. At all meetings, a majority of the Board will constitute a quorum, and the votes of a majority of the directors present at a meeting at which a quorum is present constitutes the decision of the Board. If the Board cannot act because a quorum is not present, a majority of the directors who are present may adjourn the meeting to a date not less than [number] nor more than [number] days from the date the original meeting was called. At the reconvened meeting, if a quorum is present, any business that may have been transacted at the meeting originally called may be transacted without further notice.

C.7. Conduct of Meetings. The president will preside at Board meetings. The secretary will keep minutes of the meetings and will record in a minute book the votes of the directors.
C.8. Action without Meeting. Unless the Association’s certificate of formation or the Declaration provides otherwise, the Board may act by unanimous written consent of all the directors, without a meeting, if (a) the Board action does not involve voting on a fine, damage assessment, appeal from a denial of architectural control approval, or suspension of a right of a particular Association Member before the Member has an opportunity to attend a Board meeting to present the Member’s position, including any defense on the issue, and (b) a record of the Board action is filed with the minutes of Board meetings.

Granting Clause; Transfer of Lien; Subordination of Payment Rights; Power of Attorney and Indemnification

To secure the Note and all renewals, modifications, and extensions of the Note, Condominium Association (1) grants to Secured Party a security interest in the Collateral and all its proceeds; (2) authorizes Secured Party to file a financing statement describing the Collateral; (3) assigns, transfers, and conveys to Secured Party all amounts due on the Unit Owners Assessment Obligations; and (4) warrants that the Lien Rights are valid against the Property in the priority indicated. Condominium Association expressly subordinates its right to payment from enforcement of Lien Rights to Lender’s right to payment. If a default exists on the Note or any other agreement with Lender related to the Note, Condominium Association assigns to Lender the right to levy assessments against the owners of and the individual condominium Units in the Property to pay the Note.

Condominium Association indemnifies Lender from all claims made against or incurred by Lender from any action in connection with the Unit Owners Assessment Obligations or the Lien Rights documents.

A. Condominium Association Represents the Following:

A.5. Condominium Association owns the Collateral and has the authority to grant this security interest, free from any setoff, claim, restriction, security interest, or encumbrance except liens for taxes not yet due and the Prior Liens.

B. Condominium Association Agrees to—

B.1. Defend the Collateral against all claims adverse to Secured Party’s interest, pay any taxes imposed on the Collateral, keep the Collateral free from liens, except for liens in favor of Secured Party or for taxes not yet due, and keep the Collateral in Condominium Association’s possession and ownership except as otherwise provided in this agreement.

B.2. Mailing Address, (iii) in the location of any Collateral, (iv) in any other representation or warranty in this agreement, or (v) that may affect this security interest.

B.5. Maintain accurate records of the Collateral at the address set forth above, furnish Secured Party any requested information related to the Collateral, and permit Secured Party to inspect and copy all records relating to the Collateral.

B.8. Levy assessments sufficient to pay the Note and all other Condominium Association obligations.

B.9. Apply all proceeds from the Unit Owners Assessment Obligations in excess of funds needed for usual and customary Condominium Association obligations to pay the Note, but if the proceeds exceed the amount due under the Note, Condominium Association may retain the excess.

C. Condominium Association Agrees Not to—

C.1. Sell, transfer, or encumber the Collateral.

C.2. Change its name or jurisdiction of organization, merge or consolidate with any person, or convert to a different entity without notifying Secured Party in advance and taking action to continue the perfected status of the security interest in the Collateral.
C.3. Modify any provision of the Condominium documents relating to the levy of assessments, Condominium Association's lien to secure payment of assessments, or the enforcement of Condominium Association's lien.

C.4. Forgive, extend, or modify the Unit Owners Assessment Obligations or grant releases of any part of the property securing the Unit Owners Assessment Obligations.

C.5. Modify any terms of the Unit Owners Assessment Obligations except as may be required by law.

D. Default and Remedies

D.1. A default exists if—

a. Condominium Association fails to timely pay or perform any obligation, covenant, or liability in any written agreement between Secured Party and Condominium Association related to the Note;

b. any representation in this agreement or in any other written agreement between Secured Party and Condominium Association is materially false when made;

c. a receiver is appointed for Condominium Association or any Collateral;

d. any Collateral is assigned for the benefit of creditors;

e. a bankruptcy or insolvency proceeding is commenced by Condominium Association [include if applicable: or any Unit Owner];

f. a bankruptcy or insolvency proceeding is commenced against Condominium Association [include if applicable: or Unit Owner(s) representing [percent] percent ownership interests in the common elements] and the proceeding continues without dismissal for sixty days, the party against whom the proceeding is commenced admits the material allegations of the petition against it, or an order for relief is entered;

G. any of the following parties is terminated, begins to wind up its affairs, is authorized to terminate or wind up its affairs by its governing body or persons, or any event occurs or condition exists that permits the termination or winding up of the affairs of any of the following parties: Condominium Association [include if applicable: or Unit Owner(s) representing [percent] percent ownership interests in the common elements], or

H. any Collateral or Condominium Unit is impaired by loss, theft, damage, levy and execution, issuance of an official writ or order of seizure, or destruction, unless it is promptly replaced with collateral of like kind and quality or restored to its former condition.

D.2. If a default exists, Secured Party may—

a. demand, collect, convert, redeem, settle, compromise, release, receipt for, realize on, sue for, foreclose on, and adjust any Collateral either in Secured Party’s or Condominium Association’s name, as Secured Party desires, or take control of any proceeds of the Collateral and apply the proceeds against the Note;

b. take possession and control of any Collateral not already in Secured Party’s possession, without demand or legal process, and for that purpose Condominium Association grants Secured Party the right to enter any premises where the Collateral may be located;
c. without taking possession, sell, lease, or otherwise dispose of the Collateral through or at any public or private sale in accordance with law;

d. exercise any rights and remedies granted by law or this agreement;

e. notify obligors on the Collateral to pay Secured Party directly and enforce Condominium Association’s rights against such obligors;

f. as Condominium Association’s agent, make any endorsements in Condominium Association’s name and on Condominium Association’s behalf, or

g. permit Condominium Association to use any Collateral to pay other Association obligations.

D.3. Foreclosure on any Collateral Lien Rights or of this security interest by suit does not limit Secured Party’s remedies, including the right to sell the Collateral under the terms of this agreement. Secured Party may exercise all remedies at the same or different times, and no remedy is a defense to any other. Secured Party’s rights and remedies include all those granted by law and those specified in this agreement.

D.4. Secured Party’s delay in exercising, partial exercise of, or failure to exercise any of its remedies or rights does not waive Secured Party’s rights to subsequently exercise those remedies or rights. Secured Party’s waiver of any default does not waive any other default by Condominium Association. Secured Party’s waiver of any right in this agreement or of any default is binding only if it is in writing. Secured Party may remedy any default without waiving it.

D.5. Secured Party has no obligation to prepare the Collateral for sale.

D.6. At any time Secured Party may contact obligors on the Collateral directly to verify information furnished by Condominium Association.
D.7. Secured Party has no obligation to collect the Collateral and is not liable for failure to collect the Collateral, for failure to preserve any rights pertaining to the Collateral, or for any act or omission on the part of Secured Party or Secured Party’s officers, agents, or employees, except willful misconduct.

D.8. Secured Party has no obligation to satisfy the Note by attempting to collect the Note from any other person liable for it. Secured Party may release, modify, or waive any collateral provided by any other person to secure the Note. If Secured Party attempts to collect the Note from any other person liable for it or releases, modifies, or waives any collateral provided by any other person, that will not affect Secured Party’s rights against Condominium Association. Condominium Association waives any right Condominium Association may have to require Secured Party to pursue any third person for the Note.

D.9. If Secured Party must comply with any applicable state or federal law requirements in connection with a disposition of the Collateral, such compliance will not be considered to adversely affect the commercial reasonableness of a sale of the Collateral.

D.10. Secured Party may sell the Collateral without giving any warranties as to the Collateral. Secured Party may specifically disclaim any warranties of title or the like. This procedure will not be considered to adversely affect the commercial reasonableness of a sale of the Collateral.

D.11. If Secured Party sells the Collateral on credit, Condominium Association will be credited only with payments actually made by the purchaser and received by Secured Party for application to the indebtedness of the purchaser. If the purchaser fails to pay for the Collateral, Secured Party may resell the Collateral and Condominium Association will be credited with the proceeds of the sale.

D.12. If Secured Party purchases any Collateral foreclosed on or being sold, Secured Party may pay for the Collateral by crediting the purchase price against the Note.
D.13. Secured Party has no obligation to marshal any assets in favor of Condominium Association or against or in payment of the Note or any other obligation owed to Secured Party by Condominium Association or any other person.

D.14. If any foreclosure under Lien Rights occurs or any Collateral is sold after default, recitals in the deed, bill of sale, or transfer will be prima facie evidence of their truth and all prerequisites to the sale specified by this agreement and by law will be presumed satisfied.

D.15. Secured Party may elect not to collect the Unit Owners Assessment Obligations, but that election will not prejudice Secured Party’s right to collect the Unit Owners Assessment Obligations subsequently. Secured Party will never be liable for failure to collect the Unit Owners Assessment Obligations but will be accountable for the Unit Owners Assessment Obligations received.

D.16. By exercising rights and remedies under this assignment, Secured Party does not waive the right to enforce the Note or any other agreement.

D.17. Secured Party’s collection of the Unit Owners Assessment Obligations does not relieve Condominium Association of any obligations in the Note or any other agreement.

D.18. Secured Party may exercise its rights and remedies without taking possession of the Collateral or of any Unit after foreclosure.

E. General

E.1. Notice is reasonable if it is mailed, postage prepaid, to Condominium Association at Condominium Association’s Mailing Address at least ten days before any public sale of any Collateral or ten days before the time when the Collateral may be otherwise disposed of without further notice to Condominium Association.
E.2. This security interest will neither affect nor be affected by any other security for the Note. Neither extensions of the Note nor releases of the Collateral will affect the priority or validity of this security interest.

E.3. This agreement binds, benefits, and may be enforced by the successors in interest of Secured Party and will bind all persons who become bound as debtors to this agreement. Assignment of any part of the Note and Secured Party’s delivery of any part of the Collateral will fully discharge Secured Party from responsibility for that part of the Collateral. If such an assignment is made, Condominium Association will render performance under this agreement to the assignee. Condominium Association waives and will not assert against any assignee any claims, defenses, or setoffs that Condominium Association could assert against Secured Party except defenses that cannot be waived.

E.4. This agreement may be amended only by an instrument in writing signed by Secured Party and Condominium Association.

E.5. The unenforceability of any provision of this agreement will not affect the enforceability or validity of any other provision.

E.6. This agreement will be construed according to Texas law, without regard to choice-of-law rules of any jurisdiction. This agreement is to be performed in Texas.

E.7. Interest on the Note secured by this agreement will not exceed the maximum amount of nonusurious interest that may be contracted for, taken, reserved, charged, or received under law. Any interest in excess of that maximum amount will be credited on the principal of the Note or, if that has been paid, refunded. On any acceleration or required or permitted prepayment, any such excess will be canceled automatically as of the acceleration or prepayment or, if already paid, credited on the principal of the Note or, if the principal of the Note has been paid, refunded. This provision overrides any conflicting provisions in this and all other instruments concerning the Note.
E.8. At Condominium Association's expense, upon payment of the Note and any other obligations to Secured Party, Secured Party will sign a release in recordable form.

E.9. Secured Party does not have or assume any obligations as a condominium association to any Unit owner or occupant of any Unit.

E.10. When the context requires, singular nouns and pronouns include the plural.

E.11. Any term defined in sections 1.101 to 9.709 of the Texas Business and Commerce Code and not defined in this agreement has the meaning given to the term in the Code.

Chapter 25

§ 25.1  General Considerations

The basic lease form (form 25-1 in this chapter) contains the minimal terms necessary for a lease. Although the form could be used as written in appropriate circumstances, its primary purpose is as a drafting tool, a core lease from which to draft for the particular situation. This lease has been adapted for use in various circumstances. Form 25-5 is a residential lease form derived from the basic lease form but containing the necessary modifications to convert the basic lease into a residential lease. The basic lease has also been adapted for use as a retail lease (form 25-2), an office lease (form 25-3), an industrial lease (form 25-6), and a manufactured-home community lease (form 25-11).

§ 25.1:1  Definition of a Lease

A lease is a conveyance of real property for a designated period of time with a reversionary interest in the lessor. Over time, the newer concepts of contract law have crept into use with the older property law, and the lease has become a hybrid of a conveyance and a contract between the landlord and the tenant. The landlord-tenant relationship is governed by title 8 of the Texas Property Code as well as by other statutes and a large body of case law. Title 8 of the Texas Property Code is divided into four chapters: chapter 91 (Provisions Generally Applicable to Landlords and Tenants), chapter 92 (Residential Tenancies), chapter 93 (Commercial Tenancies), and chapter 94 (Manufactured Home Tenancies).

§ 25.1:2  Statute of Frauds

If the term of the lease is more than one year, the lease is unenforceable unless it is in writing and signed by the party to be charged with its covenants. Tex. Bus. & Com. Code § 26.01; Tex. Prop. Code § 5.021. Certain provisions of the Property Code require that the lease be signed by both parties for the lease to serve as an exception to the statutory provisions. See, e.g., Tex. Prop. Code § 91.001(e)(1). Other provisions of the Property Code may not be waived by the lease. See, e.g., Tex. Prop. Code § 92.008(g). Manufactured-home community leases must be in writing and signed by both the landlord and the tenant. Tex. Prop. Code § 94.053(a).

§ 25.1:3  Caution: Property Description

As a general rule a lease must contain, within itself or by reference to some other existing writing, the means or data by which the premises to be leased may be identified with reasonable certainty. Hebisen v. Nassau Development Co., 754 S.W.2d 345, 351 (Tex. App.—Houston [14th Dist.] 1988, writ denied), overruled on other grounds by Formosa Plastics Corp. v. Presidio Engineers & Contractors, Inc., 960 S.W.2d 41 (Tex. 1998). The rule for leases is derived from the general rule for sales and conveyance of real estate. See, e.g., Pick v. Bartel, 659 S.W.2d 636, 637 (Tex. 1983); Morrow v. Shotwell, 477 S.W.2d 538, 539 (Tex. 1972). A manufactured-home community lease agreement must contain the address or number of the manufactured-home lot. Tex. Prop. Code § 94.053(c)(1).
If the lease agreement contains no adequate description of the leased premises, it is unenforceable. If the leased premises are identified only by a suite number or a diagram on an attached exhibit, such as a schematic of an undesignated floor of the building or project of which the leased premises are a part, the lease may be unenforceable. Sometimes the schematic of the undesignated floor shows a certain section by crosshatches, but if there is no metes-and-bounds or lot and block number from a plat description of the entire project there is no legal description of the leased premises. See, e.g., River Road Neighborhood Ass’n v. South Texas Sports, 720 S.W.2d 551 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 1986, writ dism’d); Lubel v. J.H. Uptmore & Associates, 680 S.W.2d 518 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 1984, no writ). There is an exception where a street address or a commonly known name may be a sufficient property description if there is no confusion. Apex Financial Corp. v. Garza, 155 S.W.3d 230, 237 (Tex. App.—Dallas 2004, pet. denied); TLC Hospitality, LLC v. Pillar Income Asset Management, Inc., 570 S.W.3d 749, 767 (Tex. App.—Tyler 2018, pet. denied). The best practice is to use a lot and block number from a plat map or a metes-and-bounds description.

§ 25.1:4 Cautions: Risk Allocation

Indemnities and Waivers: The indemnity provisions of the multitenant building or project lease forms are designed to protect the respective parties from their own ordinary negligence (but not gross negligence or willful misconduct) on a geographic basis; that is, the tenant indemnifies the landlord for any damage or injury occurring within the premises, whether or not the ordinary negligence of the landlord is a cause of the damage or injury, and the landlord indemnifies the tenant for any damage or injury occurring within the common areas, whether or not the ordinary negligence of the tenant is a cause of the damage or injury. The waiver of subrogation provision contained in the multitenant building or project lease forms releases both parties from liability for property damage and loss of revenues up to the limits of the property insurance coverages required to be carried under the lease, notwithstanding the ordinary negligence of the party causing the property damage or loss of revenues. The indemnity and waiver provisions are designed to comply with the two-pronged “fair notice doctrine” under Texas case law: (1) the “express negligence rule” set forth in Ethyl Corp. v. Daniel Construction Co., 725 S.W.2d 705 (Tex. 1987), and (2) the “conspicuousness rule” enunciated in Dresser Industries, Inc. v. Page Petroleum, Inc., 853 S.W.2d 505 (Tex. 1993).

Insurance: It is critical that the parties consult with their insurance professionals to determine the exact insurance coverages to be included on the insurance addendum incorporated into the lease form or, if applicable, the separate insurance addendum (forms 25-35 and 25-36 in this chapter) and that the attorneys tailor the indemnity and casualty provisions in response to the actual insurance policies that will be carried by the parties.

Rebuilding Obligations: The restoration obligations of the parties after a casualty are tied to the description of “Tenant’s Rebuilding Obligations” contained in the Basic Terms of the lease. The tenant is expected to restore those leasehold improvements described in “Tenant’s Rebuilding Obligations” in addition to replacing its personal property (including inventory, furniture, trade fixtures, and equipment). Because the tenant should carry property insurance to cover its restoration obligations, a detailed description is imperative. See clauses 25-13-8, 25-13-9, and 25-13-10. The landlord’s restoration obligations are defined in terms of the portions of the premises that the tenant is not required to rebuild.

For example, the tenant may be receiving the space in shell condition and be responsible for the initial construction of all leasehold improvements. The parties may decide that the tenant will restore all of the leasehold improvements inside the shell if the premises are destroyed. At the other extreme, the tenant may be receiving the premises with existing leasehold improvements, and the parties may decide that the landlord should restore all leasehold improvements after a casualty. Obviously the possibilities are infinite and depend on the economic underpinnings of the transaction as well as the relative sophistication of the parties. However, the question must be asked at the outset of the transaction so that both parties are clear about the allocation of the risk for restoration and that adequate property insurance is obtained.

§ 25.1:5 Fair Credit Reporting Act

The Fair Credit Reporting Act, 15 U.S.C. §§ 1681–1681x, applies to landlords who use consumer reports in screening prospective tenants. If the landlord takes adverse action based in whole or in part on a consumer report, the landlord is required to provide the prospective tenant with a notice of adverse action meeting the requirements of section 1681m of the Act. 15 U.S.C. § 1681m(a)(1). A consumer report includes a credit report from a credit bureau or from a tenant-screening service. See 15 U.S.C. § 1681(d). Adverse action includes a denial of the application or a requirement for a deposit, a higher deposit, or higher rent than would have been required of other tenants. See 15 U.S.C. § 1681(k).

Landlords who furnish information regarding a tenant to a credit reporting agency must comply with the duties set out in section 1681s–2 of the Act, including the duty to furnish correct information, to correct and update information, and to investigate disputed information. See 15 U.S.C. § 1681s–2.

§ 25.1:6 Condemnation

The lease forms in this chapter provide that a lease will terminate if, as a result of condemnation or conveyance in lieu thereof, the premises cannot be used for the purposes provided by the lease. They also provide that the tenant is not entitled to any proceeds from the condemnation except for relocation benefits or awards that are available to the tenant but that do not reduce the award or proceeds payable to the landlord. The federal government provides relocation benefits, moving expenses, and similar payments to persons relocated as a result of condemnation under the federal Uniform Relocation Assistance and Real Property Acquisition Policies Act of 1970, 42 U.S.C. §§ 4601–4655. The state of Texas and local governments are authorized to provide similar payments as part of the cost of acquisition of the real property. See Tex. Prop. Code § 21.046. Under Texas law, however, if a lease provides that the lease terminates on condemnation, the tenant is not entitled to any condemnation proceeds because the tenant no longer has a compensable leasehold interest. Motiva Enterprises, LLC v. McCrabb, 248 S.W.3d 211 (Tex. App.—Houston [1st Dist.] 2007, pet. denied). Consequently, it is possible that a condemnor could find that a tenant who is not a party to the condemnation proceeding is not eligible for relocation or other benefits or awards.

§ 25.2 General Instructions for Completing Forms

For information about completing the forms generally, see chapter 3 in this manual. In most forms, the information that the attorney must provide is listed at the beginning of the form. Of course the attorney may add other specific provisions and references to exhibits and riders at the end of the form.

For general information about designation of parties, see section 3.9. Information relevant to some conveyances, such as those involving homestead property, is not relevant to a lease and need not be included with the party designations.

§ 25.3 General Considerations for Retail Lease

The retail lease, form 25-2 in this chapter, is an adaptation of the basic lease including provisions tailored to leasing retail space in a shopping center. The modifications deal with the specifics associated with a typical retail business operation, including provisions concerning trade name, description of the shopping center, payment of percentage rental, and pass-through of common area maintenance charges. To provide for payment of percentage rental, a definition of gross sales is added, as is a covenant for operating a business within the premises so as to maximize gross sales. The definition of “gross sales” used in this lease is basic, and the attorney should consider whether some amendment or amplification is appropriate for the situation at hand. Other specific provisions apply to the landlord and the tenant concerning various operational and maintenance issues. The attorney may desire to include more specific provisions dealing with such matters as parking and sign-age, which may be proper subjects for inclusion in the rules and regulations exhibit. In this lease, the percentage rent is due on the tenth of the month, rather than the first, to give the tenant time to close its books for the previous month and to compute percentage rent.

§ 25.4 General Considerations for Office Lease

The office lease, form 25-3 in this chapter, is an adaptation of the basic lease containing specific provisions tailored to a commercial office tenancy. The variations are provisions for passing through operating expenses, a fairly common practice in leasing office space, for parking rights, and for rights to use common areas. The lease is also more specific about the services required to be provided by the landlord, again with a view toward comporting with what is typical industry practice. Form 25-4 provides a rider for parking facilities.

§ 25.5 General Considerations for Residential Lease

The residential lease, form 25-5 in this chapter, is an adaptation of the basic lease tailored to a residential tenancy. The form is designed for simple residential tenancies such as a lease of a home or a townhouse unit. It is not particularly suited for use with a multifamily project with on-site management. It varies from the basic lease in providing specific provisions relating to residential occupancy, such as the landlord’s duty to maintain the premises to comply with applicable law.

§ 25.5:1 Rent Payment by Check and Late Fee

If the landlord wants to require payment by check or other traceable means of payment, a residential lease must state so in writing. Tex. Prop. Code § 92.011(a). This clause appears as paragraph B.1./ in the “Tenant’s Obligations” section of the residential lease but may be omitted if the parties desire. See form 25-5 in this chapter. If the landlord collects a fee for late payment of rent, notice of the fee must be included in the lease and the fee must be reasonable. Tex. Prop. Code § 92.019.

§ 25.5:2 Right to Terminate Residential Leases in Certain Circumstances

Residential tenants have special statutory rights to terminate leases under certain circumstances. A tenant may terminate his rights and obligations under a residential lease, vacate the residence, and avoid liability for future rent (1) if the tenant or an occupant of the dwelling unit is a victim of family violence or (2) if the tenant is a victim of sexual assault or the parent or guardian of a victim of sexual assault, indecency with a child, sexual performance by a child, continual sexual abuse of a child, or any attempt to commit any of the foregoing offenses under section 21.02 of the Texas Penal Code. The Texas Property Code imposes specific prerequisites, documentation, and deadlines for a tenant to exercise these statutory rights of early termination. Tex. Prop. Code §§ 92.016, 92.0161. The Property Code requires specific language in the residential lease advising the tenant of these remedies. For circumstances involving family violence, the relevant statutorily provided lease provision reads, “Tenants may have special statutory rights to terminate the lease early in certain situations involving family violence or a military deployment or transfer.” See Tex. Prop. Code § 92.017(g). For circumstances involving sexual violence, the relevant statutorily provided lease provision reads, “Tenants may have special statutory rights to terminate the lease early in certain situations involving sexual assault or sexual abuse.” See Tex. Prop. Code § 92.0161(g). Paragraph D.20. of the residential lease, form 25-5 in this chapter, combines these two advisories. If the advisories are not in the residential lease, the tenant, if he follows the procedural requirements, may not only terminate the lease and avoid paying future rent, but will also not be liable for delinquent unpaid rent.

If a tenant who is the sole occupant of a dwelling dies before the expiration of the lease, a representative of the estate of the tenant may terminate the tenant’s rights and obligations under the lease, vacate the residence, and avoid liability for future rent. Tex. Prop. Code § 92.0162.

A tenant who is a servicemember or dependent of a servicemember similarly may terminate a lease, vacate the dwelling, and avoid liability for future rent if the tenant enters the military service after executing a residential lease or, if the tenant was a servicemember at the time of execution, the tenant receives orders for a permanent change of station or deployment with a military unit for a period of ninety days or more. Tex. Prop. Code § 92.017(b). The relevant statutorily provided lease provision reads, “Tenants may have special statutory rights to terminate the lease early in certain situations involving family violence or military deployment or transfer.” See Tex. Prop. Code § 92.017(g). Specific notice and delivery requirements are set forth in the statute. The right to terminate in the case of family violence may not be waived, but the right of a servicemember or a dependent may be waived in certain circumstances specified in the Property Code. Additionally, if the residential lease form does not contain a specific notice provision, the vacating tenant may also avoid liability for delinquent unpaid rent. Form 25-5 contains this provision.

Form 25-5 also contains the required provisions regarding landlord liabilities and tenant remedies for repair of conditions that materially affect the physical health and safety of an ordinary tenant as authorized by Property Code sections 92.056–.0563. Tex. Prop. Code § 92.056(g) requires a lease to “contain language in underlined or bold print that informs the tenant of the remedies available under this section [§ 92.056] and Section 92.0561.” If these provisions or substantially equivalent language is not in the lease, the tenant who terminates a lease under these sections is released from all liability for any delinquent, unpaid rent owed to the landlord by the tenant on the effective date of the lease termination. See Tex. Prop. Code §§ 92.056, 92.0561.

§ 25.5:3 Caution: Residential Lease

Texas Property Code provisions and case law applicable to residential tenancies vary in significant ways from the law applicable to commercial tenancies. The attorney should carefully review chapter 92 of the Property Code. No attempt has been made to cover all aspects of or duties relating to a residential situation. For example, a residential landlord has a duty to install smoke alarms. See Tex. Prop. Code § 92.255. The liability of a guarantor of a residential lease is subject to certain limitations. See Tex. Prop. Code § 92.021. A residential landlord is subject to restrictions on the right to lock out a tenant for nonpayment of rent that are not applicable to the commercial landlord. Compare Tex. Prop. Code § 92.0081, with Tex. Prop. Code §§ 93.002–003. Also, the law concerning interruptions of utilities in residential tenancies differs from that for commercial tenancies. Compare Tex. Prop. Code §§ 92.008, 92.0091, 92.301, with Tex. Prop. Code § 93.002.

§ 25.6 General Considerations for Industrial Lease

The industrial lease, form 25-6 in this chapter, is an adaptation of the basic lease including clauses necessary to convert the basic lease to an industrial lease. The industrial lease has more similarities to the retail lease than other lease forms minus, of course, percentage rental, covenant of continuous operations, and common area maintenance provisions. The main additions to the tenant’s obligation to pay for industrial waste introduced into the sanitary sewer system; to maintain dilution tanks, grease traps, and so forth; and to share in the joint maintenance of rail services, if any. Attorneys using the industrial lease as a drafting form might also consider using the asbestos disclosure notice, form 25-31, particularly if the building was constructed before 1981.

§ 25.7 General Considerations for Hunting, Agricultural, and Grazing Leases

The hunting lease, form 25-7 in this chapter, is an adaptation of the basic lease tailored for the use of agricultural land for hunting. There is a technical distinction between a hunting lease, which is a license or profit à prendre, and a lease that conveys an interest in real property. See Digby v. Hatley, 574 S.W.2d 186 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 1978, no writ). In most transactions this distinction is not significant, and the form uses the common term lease rather than draw attention to the distinction. This form applies to the surface only. If improvements on the premises are to be available for the tenant’s use, additions must be made to describe and provide for that use.

The agricultural lease, form 25-8, is an adaptation of the basic lease for growing crops. The rent clause is different, and the obligations of the tenant and the landlord have been modified slightly to take into account this different use.

The grazing lease, form 25-9, is an adaptation of the basic lease for grazing. It differs only slightly from the basic lease.

The agricultural lease and the grazing lease both contain clauses granting a contractual landlord’s lien in the tenant’s crops and livestock located on the leased premises. Complete perfection of a security interest in farm products requires compliance with both article 9 of the Texas Business and Commerce Code and the federal Food Security Act of 1985. See section 9.7:2 and accompanying forms in chapter 9 in this manual.

§ 25.7:1 Instructions for Completing Hunting Lease

A list of persons authorized to hunt on the premises should be contained in an exhibit to the hunting lease. This list may be specific (for example, “Bob Smith, Ed Jones”) or more general (for example, “Martha Stuart and four guests” or “six guns”).

§ 25.7:2 Caution: Hunting Lease

There are many laws that regulate the taking of game and the recreational use of land of which parties to hunting leases should be aware. As with the other forms in the manual, no attempt has been made to reiterate the duties imposed by statute and case law. In particular, the attorney should carefully review Texas Parks and Wildlife Code chapter 43, subchapter D, which governs hunting lease licenses. For a general discussion of this topic, see the articles cited in section 25.13 below. See also the section titled “Landowner Liability” in chapter 2 of this manual referring to chapter 75 of the Texas Civil Practice and Remedies Code.

§ 25.8 General Considerations for Manufactured-Home Community Lease

The manufactured-home community lease, form 25-11 in this chapter, is an adaptation of the basic lease tailored to a manufactured-home community tenancy. It varies from the basic lease by providing specific provisions necessitated by the enactment of Texas Property Code chapter 94. Chapter 94 governs the landlord-tenant relationship in manufactured-home communities in which four or more lots are offered for lease for the purpose of the tenant’s placing on the landlord’s property a manufactured home that is not owned by the landlord. Tex. Prop. Code § 94.002. See also Tex. Prop. Code § 94.001. This legislation regulates the form and content of the lease agreement (Tex. Prop. Code §§ 94.051–.057), security deposits (Tex. Prop. Code §§ 94.101–.109), the landlord’s warranty of suitability and duty to maintain and repair (Tex. Prop. Code §§ 94.151–.162), and other aspects of the landlord-tenant relationship in manufactured-home community tenancies.

§ 25.8:1 Disclosures at Time of Application

At the time a landlord receives an application from a prospective tenant of a lot in a manufactured-home community, the landlord must provide a copy of the proposed lease, the rules of the manufactured-home community, and a separate statutory notice of the tenant’s legal right to a six-month initial lease term and sixty days’ notice of nonrenewal or, in the case of a change in land use of the manufactured-home community, 180 days’ notice of nonrenewal. Tex. Prop. Code § 94.051. Form 25-12 in this chapter gives the statutorily required notice.

§ 25.8:2 Manufactured-Home Community Rules

Manufactured-home communities may adopt written rules, which are considered part of the lease agreement, establishing the policies and regulations of the manufactured-home community, including regulations relating to use, occupancy, quiet enjoyment, and health, safety, and welfare of tenants of the manufactured-home community. Tex. Prop. Code § 94.008.

§ 25.8:3 Cash Rent Payment

Unless the manufactured-home community lease requires payment of rent by check or other traceable means, a landlord must accept and give receipts for cash rental payments. Tex. Prop. Code § 94.007. A clause requiring payment of rent by traceable means appears as paragraph B.1.m. of the manufactured-home community lease (form 25-11 in this chapter) but may be omitted if the parties desire.

§ 25.8:4 Disclosure of Ownership and Management

The landlord must disclose the name and address of the record title holder of the leased lot in the manufactured-home community and the names and addresses of any off-site property managers. Tex. Prop. Code § 94.010(a). The disclosure may be contained in the lease agreement, in the rules, in a notice continuously posted in the community or the manager’s office, or in writing, delivered within seven days of the landlord’s receipt of a written request for the information. Tex. Prop. Code § 94.010(b).

§ 25.8:5 Minimum Initial Lease Term

Manufactured-home community landlords are required to offer prospective tenants an initial lease term of at least six months, but the parties may agree to a shorter or longer initial lease term if requested by the tenant. Tex. Prop. Code § 94.052(a).

§ 25.8:6 Landlord’s Notice to Vacate or Offer to Renew

Manufactured-home community landlords are required to provide a tenant with a notice to vacate the leased premises or an offer to renew the lease at least sixty days before the expiration of the lease. Tex. Prop. Code § 94.055(a). If the landlord offers to renew the lease, the renewal offer must notify the tenant of any changes in the current lease terms and include a statement notifying the tenant that the tenant’s failure to timely reject the renewal offer will result in the automatic renewal of the lease as modified by the terms contained in the landlord’s renewal offer beginning on the first day after the expiration of the current lease. Tex. Prop. Code § 94.055(b). To avoid the automatic renewal of the lease as modified by the terms contained in the renewal offer, the tenant must notify the landlord not later than the thirtieth day before the date the current lease term expires that the tenant rejects the landlord’s renewal offer and intends to vacate the leased premises on expiration of the current lease term. Tex. Prop. Code § 94.055(c). This statutory provision is a noted departure from the well-established common-law principle that silence does not bind a party to a contract.

§ 25.8:7 Notice of Nonrenewal

Regardless of the term of a manufactured-home community lease, a landlord must give a tenant at least sixty days’ prior written notice if the landlord is not going to renew the lease or, in the case of a change in land use, 180 days’ notice of nonrenewal. Tex. Prop. Code §§ 94.051, 94.052(b).

§ 25.8:8 Landlord’s Maintenance Obligations

A manufactured-home community landlord is required to maintain all common areas, utility lines not maintained by a public utility or political subdivision, roads, mailboxes, and garbage collection and to repair or remedy any condition materially affecting the physical health and safety of an ordinary tenant of the manufactured-home community. Tex. Prop. Code § 94.152. The landlord must make a diligent effort to repair or remedy such a condition after a written request specifying the condition to be repaired is given to the landlord by a tenant who is not delinquent in the payment of rent at the time the notice is given. Tex. Prop. Code § 94.153(b). A manufactured-home community landlord has no duty to maintain or repair a condition present in or on a tenant’s manufactured home. Tex. Prop. Code § 94.153(a).

§ 25.8:9 Eviction Procedures

Unlike with other types of tenancies, a manufactured-home community landlord may prevent a tenant from entering the tenant’s manufactured-home lot, evict a tenant, or require removal of the tenant’s manufactured home from the lot only after obtaining a writ of possession. Tex. Prop. Code § 94.203(a). The writ of possession cannot issue before the expiration of thirty days after the date of the judgment granting possession if the tenant has paid the rent due for that thirty-day period. Tex. Prop. Code § 94.203(d).

§ 25.8:10 Caution: Manufactured-Home Community Lease

The Texas Property Code provisions applicable to manufactured-home community tenancies vary in significant ways from the law applicable to either residential or commercial tenancies. The attorney should carefully review chapter 94 of the Property Code because the rights, duties, and liabilities of the parties under chapter 94 cannot be waived. See Tex. Prop. Code § 94.003. No attempt has been made in this manual to cover all aspects of or duties relating to the landlord-tenant relationship in a manufactured-home community. Appropriate modifications are required if the attorney elects to use the manufactured-home community lease for transactions not governed by chapter 94.
General Considerations for Commercial Lease

Commercial leases are considered by the legislature to be quite different from residential leases and manufactured-home community leases. Chapter 92 of the Texas Property Code contains the statutes concerned with residential leases, and chapter 94 contains the statutes concerned with manufactured-home community leases, whereas chapter 93 deals with commercial leases. Chapters 92 and 94 impart an air of legislative protectionism for the residential tenant, with numerous restrictions on the landlord; chapter 93 has a more laissez-faire policy and allows the parties to contract as they see fit. The drafter using the Texas Real Estate Forms Manual should be aware of these three Property Code chapters (as well as chapter 91, which deals with all tenancies) and should realize that the numerous legislative restrictions on a residential or manufactured-home community landlord do not apply to a commercial landlord.

Broker Lien in Commercial Lease

The Broker’s and Appraiser’s Lien on Commercial Real Estate Act, chapter 62 of the Texas Property Code, gives brokers a lien by reason of the sale or lease of real property. Section 62.021 sets forth the prerequisites for a broker to acquire a lien. See Tex. Prop. Code § 62.021. Section 62.021 gives the broker a lien against the landlord’s property for the commission on the lease if—

1. the broker earned the commission (pursuant to a written commission agreement (see Tex. Prop. Code § 62.003(4))), and
2. the broker recorded a notice of the lien (see Tex. Prop. Code § 62.024).

Section 62.022(b)(2) automatically waives the broker’s lien in a commercial lease if the broker’s commission agreement is included as a provision in the lease. Tex. Prop. Code § 62.022(b)(2). For this reason, the drafter may wish to include the real estate commission rider, form 25-32 in this chapter, as part of the lease. The drafter, however, should be careful to consider what effect renewal options might have on the real estate commission rider.

Security Deposit in Commercial Lease

A landlord is liable for failure to return a tenant’s security deposit within sixty days after the date the tenant surrenders possession of the premises and provides a forwarding address to the landlord or landlord’s agent. Tex. Prop. Code § 93.005(a). If a landlord retains all or part of the security deposit, the landlord must provide the tenant with an itemized list of deductions. Tex. Prop. Code § 93.006(c). There is a presumption of bad faith on the part of the landlord if the security deposit is not returned to the tenant or if the landlord fails to provide the tenant with an itemized list of deductions on or before sixty days after the date the tenant surrenders possession. Tex. Prop. Code § 93.011(d). See also Tex. Prop. Code §§ 93.004–.011. The lease forms in this chapter have an agreement by the landlord to return the security deposit within sixty days.

Assessment of Charges in Commercial Lease

Texas Property Code section 93.012 deals with assessment of charges by a commercial landlord against a commercial tenant. Section 93.012(a) reads as follows:
A landlord may not assess a charge, excluding a charge for rent or physical damage to the leased premises, to a tenant unless the amount of the charge or the method by which the charge is to be computed is stated in the lease, an exhibit or attachment that is part of the lease, or an amendment to the lease.

Tex. Prop. Code § 93.012(a). Most commercial landlords assess charges against the tenant on a regular basis for things such as extra keys, overtime heating, ventilating, and air conditioning, proportionate utilities and taxes, proportionate common-area expenses, and estimated operating expenses. Because Tex. Prop. Code § 93.012 requires either the amount of the charge or the method by which the charge is to be computed to be stated in the lease, the drafter may wish to add language covering most of the expected expenses to be assessed and a statement that the charge to be assessed will be the landlord’s actual cost. The lease forms in this chapter provide for assessment of charges to the tenant, but the method by which the charge is calculated is stated (for example, “Tenant’s pro rata share” of utility charges, common-area maintenance, taxes and insurance, and so forth). However, commercial landlords who assess to tenants charges other than rent for which the amount or method of computation is not specified in the lease, should be aware of section 93.012 of the Property Code.

§ 25.10 Environmental Considerations for Leases

Attorneys drafting leases should be aware of environmental statutes dealing with hazardous materials and waste, such as the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act of 1980 (CERCLA), as amended by the Superfund Amendments and Reauthorization Act of 1986 (SARA), 42 U.S.C. §§ 9601–9675; the Resource Conservation Recovery Act (RCRA), as amended by the Hazardous and Solid Waste Amendments of 1984 and the Land Disposal Program Flexibility Act of 1996, 42 U.S.C. §§ 6901–6992k; and the Toxic Substances Control Act, 15 U.S.C. §§ 2601–2692. These environmental statutes, along with similar state statutes, may impose cleanup costs at the termination of a lease term on the “owner” or “operator” (landlord or tenant) of the “facility” (leased premises).

Landlords must provide tenants of residential property constructed before 1978 with a “Lead Warning Statement.” 42 U.S.C. §§ 4851b(27), 4852d. See the section titled “Lead-Based Paint Disclosures” in chapter 2 of this manual. The disclosure form appears as form 25-30 in this chapter.

Federal law requires building and facility owners (landlords) to notify tenants of public and commercial buildings of the presence, location, and quantity of asbestos-containing materials or presumed asbestos-containing materials in tenant-occupied areas. This notice must be either in writing or in a personal communication before any demolition, construction, alteration, repair, maintenance, or renovation of structures, substrates, or portions thereof. See 29 C.F.R. §§ 1910.1001, 1926.1101. See form 25-31 for the disclosure.

§ 25.11 Additional Clauses

Additional clauses that may be useful in lease transactions, such as arbitration, landlord’s lien subordination, and expansion rights, appear in form 25-13 in this chapter.

§ 25.11:1 Subordination of Landlord’s Lien

If the tenant’s lender requires a first lien over the statutory landlord’s lien found in chapter 54 of the Texas Property Code and the security interest granted in the lease, insert clause 25-13-1 in this chapter. Form 25-24 (landlord’s lien waiver) also may be used for this purpose. Form 25-18 (subordination of landlord’s lien) may be used to authorize removal of secured property in the event of tenant’s default as borrower.

§ 25.11:2 Base Rent Adjustment

In a commercial lease, there is frequently a provision for adjusting the base rent. The landlord and tenant may agree to scheduled, specific, periodic increases or to adjustments based on the Consumer Price Index; in the latter case, the attorney may insert the inflation adjustment clause found at 25-13-2 in this chapter.

§ 25.11:3 Expansion Option

If the landlord wants to grant the tenant the right to lease additional space, insert clause 25-13-4 in this chapter and attach the expansion space rider at form 25-14.

§ 25.11:4 Extension Option

If the landlord wants to grant the tenant the right to extend the lease term, insert clause 25-13-5 in this chapter and attach the extension option rider at form 25-15.

§ 25.11:5 Tenant’s Right to Protest Appraised Value

If a property owner does not file a valuation protest, a tenant who is contractually obligated to reimburse the owner for property taxes is entitled to pursue an administrative protest before the appraisal review board. Tex. Tax Code § 41.413(b). A property owner is required to send a tenant obligated to pay taxes a copy of any notice of the appraised value of the property not later than the tenth day after the property owner receives the notice. The requirement to provide notice of appraised value does not apply if the property owner and the tenant agree in the lease to waive the requirement or agree that the tenant will not protest the appraised value of the property. Tex. Tax Code § 41.413(d). A tenant contractually obligated to reimburse a landlord for taxes imposed on the property may also appeal an appraisal review board order determining a protest brought by the tenant. Tex. Tax Code § 42.015. The statutory language is fairly vague, but it seems apparent that any tenant who, pursuant to its lease, is obligated to reimburse a landlord for real property taxes is entitled to exercise these rights and in so doing may request the appraisal review board to issue subpoenas to the landlord to provide relevant information and documentation regarding value. This, in turn, may require the landlord to disclose information, such as the rent roll for the property, that the landlord may wish to keep confidential. In addition, multitenant situations could result in unwieldy protests. The landlord who wishes to avoid these possibilities should consider including in the lease a provision like clause 25-13-6 in this chapter.

§ 25.11:6 Margin Tax

Chapter 171 of the Tax Code applies the Texas “margin tax” to most businesses, including limited partnerships previously exempt from the franchise tax. General partnerships, sole proprietorships, and businesses that do not meet the annual revenue minimum continue to be exempt. Landlords and tenants might negotiate any of the following treatments of the margin tax: (1) an express carve-out of the margin tax from real property taxes (tenant position), (2) reliance on the landlord’s general right to pass through the margin tax as a tax imposed in lieu of real property taxes (landlord position), or (3) the landlord’s right to pass through the margin tax as a tax in lieu of real estate taxes, but limiting the pass-through amount based on a formula or a cap (compromise position).
Additional forms that may be useful in lease transactions, such as an assignment, guaranty, and tenant estoppel certificate, are found at forms 25-16 through 25-21 in this chapter.

§ 25.12:1 Subordination, Attornment, and Nondisturbance Agreement

If the landlord’s lender requires a first or prior lien on the landlord’s estate and a lease has been executed, use the subordination, attornment, and nondisturbance agreement at form 25-16 in this chapter to subordinate the lease but still protect the tenant’s rights following a foreclosure.

§ 25.12:2 Tenant’s Subordination to Deed-of-Trust Lien

A lender may require that an existing lease be subordinated to its new lien. Foreclosure of the lien will then extinguish the lease. Form 25-17 in this chapter may be used to subordinate the lease.

§ 25.12:3 Tenant’s Acceptance Letter

If the landlord requires the tenant to acknowledge that the premises are satisfactory, especially if the lease requires any improvements as a condition to the beginning of the lease, use the tenant’s acceptance letter at form 25-20 in this chapter. It is recommended that this form be used to establish the commencement date with certainty.

§ 25.12:4 Landlord’s Lien Waiver

By using form 25-24 in this chapter, the owner of real property waives statutory and contractual landlord’s liens on any of the lessee’s personal property subject to the security interests of a third-party lender. Clause 25-13-1 also may be used for this purpose.

§ 25.12:5 Lockout Notice

The lockout notice, form 25-27 in this chapter, is to be posted at the premises. See Tex. Prop. Code § 93.002. It is for use with commercial leases only. Do not use it with residential leases, which are governed by Tex. Prop. Code § 92.0081.

§ 25.12:6 Notice of Change of Locks

Form 25-28 in this chapter is used if the lease does not contain language superseding Tex. Prop. Code § 93.002. The letter is to be given by the owner or property manager and is for use with commercial leases only. Do not use it for residential leases. See Tex. Prop. Code § 92.0081.

§ 25.12:7 Tenant Improvements Rider to Lease or Work Letter

Form 25-29 in this chapter may be used with the basic lease, the retail lease, the office lease, or the industrial lease if the parties wish to provide for construction of tenant improvements to the leased premises. The work letter provides a general outline for a description of the work and the allocation of responsibility for preparation of plans, performance of work, and payment.
of any allowances or other amounts by the landlord. The form also requires the contractor to maintain insurance and sets out the effect of construction delays on the commencement date of the lease.

§ 25.12:8  Lead-Based Paint Hazards Disclosure

Form 25-30 in this chapter is based on the sample disclosure format for target housing rentals and leases issued by the Environmental Protection Agency and the Department of Housing and Urban Development. See 61 Fed. Reg. 9074 (1996), see also 40 C.F.R. § 745.113. The rule does not require the use of any specific format as long as all the required elements are included in the disclosure. See the section titled “Lead-Based Paint Disclosures” in chapter 2 of this manual for additional information.

§ 25.12:9  Asbestos Disclosure

Form 25-31 in this chapter is for disclosure of asbestos-containing material or presumed asbestos-containing material by commercial building or facility owners. The Occupational Safety and Health Administration rules require commercial building or facility owners to notify tenants of the presence of asbestos-containing materials or, if the building was constructed before 1981, of presumed asbestos-containing materials. See 29 C.F.R. §§ 1910.1001, 1926.1011. The rules do not require the use of any specific format.

§ 25.12:10  Modification of Lease

The modification of lease, form 25-33 in this chapter, is used to document changes to the lease during the lease term.

§ 25.12:11  Termination of Lease

The termination of lease, form 25-34 in this chapter, is used if the parties agree to terminate the lease before the end of the lease term.

LANDLORD AND TENANT WILL NOTIFY THE ISSUING PROPERTY INSURANCE COMPANIES OF THE RELEASE SET FORTH IN THIS PARAGRAPH AND WILL HAVE THE PROPERTY INSURANCE POLICIES ENDORSED, IF NECESSARY, TO PREVENT INVALIDATION OF COVERAGE. LOSS IS CAUSED IN WHOLE OR IN PART BY THE GROSS NEGLIGENCE OR WILLFUL MISCONDUCT OF THE RELEASED PARTY OR ITS AGENTS.

D.5. Casualty/Total or Partial Destruction

D.5.a. If the Premises are damaged by casualty and can be restored within ninety days, Landlord will, at its expense, restore the roof, foundation, and structural soundness of the exterior walls of the Premises and any leasehold improvements within the Premises that are not within Tenant’s Rebuilding Obligations to substantially the same condition that existed before the casualty and Tenant will, at its expense, be responsible for replacing any of its damaged furniture, fixtures, and personal property and performing Tenant’s Rebuilding Obligations. If Landlord fails to complete the portion of the restoration for which Landlord is responsible within ninety days from the date of written notification by Tenant to Landlord of the casualty, Tenant may terminate this lease by written notice to Landlord before Landlord completes Landlord’s restoration obligations.

D.5.b. If Landlord cannot complete the portion of the restoration for which Landlord is responsible within ninety days, Landlord has an option to restore the Premises. If Landlord chooses not to restore, this lease will terminate. If Landlord chooses to restore, Landlord will notify Tenant in writing of the estimated time to restore and give Tenant an option to terminate this lease by notifying Landlord in writing within ten days from receipt of Landlord’s estimate. If Tenant does not notify Landlord timely of Tenant’s election to terminate this lease, the lease will continue and Landlord will restore the Premises as provided in D.5.a. above.

D.5.c. To the extent the Premises are untenantable after the casualty, the Rent will be adjusted as may be fair and reasonable.
D.6. Condemnation/Substantial or Partial Taking

D.6.a. If the Premises cannot be used for the purposes contemplated by this lease because of condemnation or purchase in lieu of condemnation, this lease will terminate.

D.6.b. If there is a condemnation or purchase in lieu of condemnation and this lease is not terminated, Landlord will, at Landlord’s expense, restore the Premises, and the Rent payable during the unexpired portion of the Term will be adjusted as may be fair and reasonable.

D.6.c. Tenant will have no claim to the condemnation award or proceeds in lieu of condemnation.

D.7. Uniform Commercial Code. Tenant grants Landlord a security interest in Tenant’s personal property now or subsequently located on the Premises. This lease is a security agreement under the Uniform Commercial Code. Landlord may file financing statements or continuation statements to perfect or continue the perfection of the security interest.

D.8. Default by Landlord/Events. Defaults by Landlord are failing to comply with any provision of this lease within thirty days after written notice and failing to provide Essential Services to Tenant within ten days after written notice.

D.9. Default by Landlord/Tenant’s Remedies. Tenant’s remedies for Landlord’s default are to sue for damages and, if Landlord does not provide an Essential Service for thirty days after default, terminate this lease.

D.10. Default by Tenant/Events. Defaults by Tenant are (a) failing to pay Rent timely, (b) abandoning the Premises or vacating a substantial portion of the Premises, and (c) failing to comply within ten days after written notice with any provision of this lease other than the defaults set forth in (a) and (b).
D.11. Default by Tenant/Landlord's Remedies. Landlord’s remedies for Tenant’s default are to (a) enter and take possession of the Premises and sue for Rent as it accrues, (b) enter and take possession of the Premises, after which Landlord may relet the Premises on behalf of Tenant and receive the Rent directly by reason of the reletting, and Tenant agrees to reimburse Landlord for any expenditures made in order to relet, (c) enter the Premises and perform Tenant’s obligations; and (d) terminate this lease by written notice and sue for damages. Landlord may enter and take possession of the Premises by self-help, by picking or changing locks if necessary, and may lock out Tenant or any other person who may be occupying the Premises, until the default is cured, without being liable for damages.

D.12. Default/Waiver. All waivers must be in writing and signed by the waiving party. Landlord’s failure to enforce any provisions of this Lease or its acceptance of late installments of Rent will not be a waiver and will not estop Landlord from enforcing that provision or any other provision of this Lease in the future.

D.13. Mitigation. Landlord has mitigated the loss of rent if Landlord, within thirty days after Tenant’s loss of possession, (a) places a “For Lease” sign at the Premises, (b) places the Premises on Landlord’s inventory of properties for lease, (c) makes Landlord’s inventory available to area brokers on a monthly basis, (d) advertises the Premises for lease in a suitable trade journal in the county in which the Premises are located, and (e) shows the Premises to prospective tenants who request to see it.

D.14. Security Deposit. If Tenant defaults, Landlord may use the Security Deposit to pay arrears of Rent, to repair any damage or injury, or to pay any expense or liability incurred by Landlord as a result of the default.

D.15. Holdover. If Tenant does not vacate the Premises following termination of this lease, Tenant will become a tenant at will and must vacate the Premises on receipt of notice from Landlord. No holding over by Tenant, whether with or without the consent of Landlord, will extend the Term.

D.16. Alternative Dispute Resolution. Landlord and Tenant agree to mediate in good faith before filing a suit for damages.

D.17. Attorney’s Fees. If either party retains an attorney to enforce this lease, the party prevailing in litigation is entitled to recover reasonable attorney’s fees and other fees and court and other costs.

D.18. Venue. Exclusive venue is in the county in which the Premises are located.

D.19. Entire Agreement. This lease [include if applicable: , its exhibits, addenda, and riders] [is/are] the entire agreement of the parties concerning the lease of the Premises by Landlord to Tenant. There are no representations, warranties, agreements, or promises pertaining to the Premises or the lease of the Premises by Landlord to Tenant, and Tenant is not relying on any statements or representations of any agent of Landlord, that are not in this lease [include if applicable: and any exhibits, addenda, and riders].

D.20. Amendment of Lease. This lease may be amended only by an instrument in writing signed by Landlord and Tenant.

D.1. Alterations. Any physical additions or improvements to the Premises made by Tenant will become the property of Landlord. Landlord may require that Tenant, at the end of the Term and at Tenant’s expense, remove any physical additions and improvements, repair any alterations, and restore the Premises to the condition existing at the Commencement Date, normal wear excepted.

D.2. Abatement. Tenant’s covenant to pay Rent and Landlord’s covenants are independent. Except as otherwise provided, Tenant may not abate Rent for any reason.

D.3. Insurance. Tenant and Landlord will maintain the respective insurance coverages described in the attached Insurance Addendum.

D.4. Release of Claims/Subrogation. LANDLORD AND TENANT RELEASE EACH OTHER AND LIENHOLDER, AND THEIR RESPECTIVE AGENTS, FROM ALL CLAIMS OR LIABILITIES FOR DAMAGE TO THE PREMISES OR SHOPPING CENTER, DAMAGE TO OR LOSS OF PERSONAL PROPERTY WITHIN THE SHOPPING CENTER, AND LOSS OF BUSINESS OR REVENUES THAT ARE INSURED BY THE RELEASING PARTY’S PROPERTY INSURANCE OR THAT WOULD HAVE BEEN INSURED BY THE REQUIRED INSURANCE IF THE PARTY FAILS TO MAINTAIN THE PROPERTY COVERAGES REQUIRED BY THIS LEASE. THE PARTY INCURRING THE DAMAGE OR LOSS WILL BE RESPONSIBLE FOR ANY DEDUCTIBLE OR SELF-INSURED RETENTION UNDER ITS PROPERTY INSURANCE. LANDLORD AND TENANT WILL NOTIFY THE ISSUING PROPERTY INSURANCE COMPANIES OF THE RELEASE SET FORTH IN THIS PARAGRAPH AND WILL HAVE THE PROPERTY INSURANCE POLICIES ENDORSED, IF NECESSARY, TO PREVENT INVALIDATION OF COVERAGE. THIS RELEASE WILL NOT APPLY IF IT INVALIDATES THE PROPERTY INSURANCE COVERAGE OF THE RELEASING PARTY. THE RELEASE IN THIS PARAGRAPH WILL APPLY EVEN IF THE DAMAGE OR LOSS IS CAUSED IN WHOLE OR IN PART BY THE ORDINARY NEGLIGENCE OR STRICT LIABILITY OF THE RELEASED PARTY OR ITS AGENTS BUT WILL NOT APPLY TO THE EXTENT THE DAMAGE OR LOSS IS CAUSED IN WHOLE OR IN PART BY THE GROSS NEGLIGENCE OR WILLFUL MISCONDUCT OF THE RELEASED PARTY OR ITS AGENTS.

D.5. Casualty/Total or Partial Destruction
D.5.a. If the Premises are damaged by casualty and can be restored within ninety days, Landlord will, at its expense, restore the roof, foundation, Common Areas, and structural soundness of the exterior walls of the Premises and any leasehold improvements within the Premises that are not within Tenant's Rebuilding Obligations to substantially the same condition that existed before the casualty and Tenant will, at its expense, be responsible for replacing any of its damaged furniture, fixtures, and personal property and performing Tenant's Rebuilding Obligations. If Landlord fails to complete the portion of the restoration for which Landlord is responsible within ninety days from the date of written notification by Tenant to Landlord of the casualty, Tenant may terminate this lease by written notice delivered to Landlord before Landlord completes Landlord's restoration obligations.

D.5.b. If Landlord cannot complete the portion of the restoration for which Landlord is responsible within ninety days, Landlord has an option to restore the Premises. If Landlord chooses not to restore, this lease will terminate. If Landlord chooses to restore, Landlord will notify Tenant in writing of the estimated time to restore and give Tenant an option to terminate this lease by notifying Landlord in writing within ten days from receipt of Landlord's estimate. If Tenant does not notify Landlord timely of Tenant's election to terminate this lease, the lease will continue and Landlord will restore the Premises as provided in D.5.a above.

D.5.c. To the extent the Premises are untenantable after the casualty, the Rent will be adjusted as may be fair and reasonable.

D.6. Condemnation/Substantial or Partial Taking

D.6.a. If the Premises cannot be used for the purposes contemplated by this lease because of condemnation or purchase in lieu of condemnation, this lease will terminate.
D.6.b. Whether or not any portion of the Premises is taken by condemnation or purchase in lieu of condemnation, Landlord or Tenant may elect to terminate this lease if 50 percent or more of the Common Area is taken.

D.6.c. If there is a condemnation or purchase in lieu of condemnation and this lease is not terminated, Landlord will, at Landlord’s expense, restore the Premises, and the Rent payable during the unexpired portion of the Term will be adjusted as may be fair and reasonable.

D.6.d. Tenant will have no claim to the condemnation award or proceeds in lieu of condemnation, except for relocation or other benefits that are payable to Tenant by the condemning authority but that do not reduce the award or proceeds payable to Landlord.

D.7. Uniform Commercial Code. Tenant grants Landlord a security interest in Tenant’s personal property now or subsequently located on the Premises. This lease is a security agreement under the Uniform Commercial Code. Landlord may file financing statements or continuation statements to perfect or continue the perfection of its security interest.

D.8. Default by Landlord/Events. Defaults by Landlord are failing to comply with any provision of this lease within thirty days after written notice and failing to provide Essential Services to Tenant within ten days after written notice.

D.11. Default by Tenant/Landlord’s Remedies. Landlord’s remedies for Tenant’s default are to (a) enter and take possession of the Premises and sue for Rent as it accrues; (b) enter and take possession of the Premises, after which Landlord may relet the Premises on behalf of Tenant and receive the Rent directly by reason of the reletting, and Tenant agrees to reimburse Landlord for any expenditures made in order to relet; (c) enter the Premises and perform Tenant’s obligations; and (d) terminate this lease by written notice and sue for damages. Landlord may enter and take possession of the Premises by self-help, by picking or changing locks if necessary, and may lock out Tenant or any other person who may be occupying the Premises, until the default is cured, without being liable for damages.

D.12. Default/Waiver. All waivers must be in writing and signed by the waiving party. Landlord’s failure to enforce any provisions of this Lease or its acceptance of late installments of Rent will not be a waiver and will not estop Landlord from enforcing that provision or any other provision of this Lease in the future.

D.13. Mitigation. Landlord has mitigated the loss of rent if Landlord, within thirty days after Tenant’s loss of possession, (a) places a “For Lease” sign at the Premises, (b) places the Premises on Landlord’s inventory of properties for lease, (c) makes Landlord’s inventory available to area brokers on a monthly basis, (d) advertises the Premises for lease in a suitable trade journal in the county in which the Premises are located, and (e) shows the Premises to prospective tenants who request to see it.

D.14. Security Deposit. If Tenant defaults, Landlord may use the Security Deposit to pay arrears of Rent, to repair any damage or injury, or to pay any expense or liability incurred by Landlord as a result of the default.

D.15. Holdover. If Tenant does not vacate the Premises following termination of this lease, Tenant will become a tenant at will and must vacate the Premises on receipt of notice from Landlord. No holding over by Tenant, whether with or without the consent of Landlord, will extend the Term.

D.16. Alternative Dispute Resolution. Landlord and Tenant agree to mediate in good faith before filing a suit for damages.

D.17. Attorney’s Fees. If either party retains an attorney to enforce this lease, the party prevailing in litigation is entitled to recover reasonable attorney’s fees and other fees and court and other costs.

D.18. Venue. Exclusive venue is in the county in which the Premises are located.

D.19. Entire Agreement. This lease, its exhibits, addenda, and riders are the entire agreement of the parties concerning the lease of the Premises by Landlord to Tenant. There are no representations, warranties, agreements, or promises pertaining to the Premises or the lease of the Premises by Landlord to Tenant, and Tenant is not relying on any statements or representations of any agent of Landlord, that are not in this lease and any exhibits, addenda, and riders.

D.20. Amendment of Lease. This lease may be amended only by an instrument in writing signed by Landlord and Tenant.

D.21. Limitation of Warranties. THERE ARE NO IMPLIED WARRANTIES OF MERCHANTABILITY, OF FITNESS FOR A PARTICULAR PURPOSE, OR OF ANY OTHER KIND ARISING OUT OF THIS LEASE, AND THERE ARE NO WARRANTIES THAT EXTEND BEYOND THOSE EXPRESSLY STATED IN THIS LEASE.

D.22. Notices. Any notice required or permitted under this lease must be in writing. Any notice required by this lease will be deemed to be given (whether received or not) the earlier of receipt or three business days after being deposited with the United States Postal Service, postage prepaid, certified mail, return receipt requested, and addressed to the intended recipient at the address shown in this lease. Notice may also be given by regular mail, personal delivery, courier delivery, or e-mail and will be effective when received. Any address for notice may be changed by written notice given as provided herein.

D.23. Use of Common Areas. Tenant will have the nonexclusive right to use the Common Areas subject to such reasonable rules and regulations that Landlord may prescribe.

D.5. Casualty/Total or Partial Destruction

D.5.a. If the Premises are damaged by casualty and can be restored within ninety days, Landlord will, at its expense, restore the roof, foundation, Common Areas, and structural soundness of the exterior walls of the Premises and any leasehold improvements within the Premises that are not within Tenant’s Rebuilding Obligations to substantially the same condition that existed before the casualty and Tenant will, at its expense, be responsible for replacing any of its damaged furniture, fixtures, and personal property and performing Tenant’s Rebuilding Obligations. If Landlord fails to complete the portion of the restoration for which Landlord is responsible within ninety days from the date of written notification by Tenant to Landlord of the casualty, Tenant may terminate this lease by written notice delivered to Landlord before Landlord completes Landlord’s restoration obligations.

_D.5.b._ If the Premises cannot be restored within ninety days, Landlord has an option to restore the Premises. If Landlord chooses not to restore, this lease will terminate. If Landlord chooses to restore, Landlord will notify Tenant of the estimated time to restore and give Tenant an option to terminate this lease by notifying Landlord within ten days. If Tenant does not terminate this lease, the lease will continue and Landlord will restore the Premises as provided in D.5.a. above.

_D.5.c._ To the extent the Premises are untenantable after the casualty, the Rent will be adjusted as may be fair and reasonable.

_D.6._ Condemnation/Substantial or Partial Taking

_D.6.a._ If the Premises cannot be used for the purposes contemplated by this lease because of condemnation or purchase in lieu of condemnation, this lease will terminate.

_D.6.b._ If there is a condemnation or purchase in lieu of condemnation and this lease is not terminated, Landlord will, at Landlord’s expense, restore the Premises, and the Rent payable during the unexpired portion of the Term will be adjusted as may be fair and reasonable.

_D.6.c._ Tenant will have no claim to the condemnation award or proceeds in lieu of condemnation.

_D.7._ Uniform Commercial Code. Tenant grants Landlord a security interest in Tenant’s personal property now or subsequently located on the Premises. This lease is a security agreement under the Uniform Commercial Code. Landlord may file financing statements or continuation statements to perfect or continue the perfection of the security interest.
D.8. Default by Landlord/Events. Defaults by Landlord are failing to comply with any provision of this lease within thirty days after written notice and failing to provide Essential Services to Tenant within ten days after written notice.

D.9. Default by Landlord/Tenant's Remedies. Tenant’s remedies for Landlord’s default are to sue for damages and, if Landlord does not provide an Essential Service within thirty days after default, terminate this lease.

D.10. Default by Tenant/Events. Defaults by Tenant are (a) failing to pay Rent timely, (b) abandoning the Premises or vacating a substantial portion of the Premises, and (c) failing to comply within ten days after written notice with any provision of this lease other than the defaults set forth in (a) and (b).

D.11. Default by Tenant/Landlord’s Remedies. Landlord’s remedies for Tenant’s default are to (a) enter and take possession of the Premises and sue for Rent as it accrues; (b) enter and take possession of the Premises, after which Landlord may relet the Premises on behalf of Tenant and receive the Rent directly by reason of the reletting, and Tenant agrees to reimburse Landlord for any expenditures made in order to relet; (c) enter the Premises and perform Tenant’s obligations; and (d) terminate this lease by written notice and sue for damages. Landlord may enter and take possession of the Premises by self-help, by picking or changing locks if necessary, and may lock out Tenant or any other person who may be occupying the Premises, until the default is cured, without being liable for damages.

D.12. Default/Waiver. All waivers must be in writing and signed by the waiving party. Landlord’s failure to enforce any provisions of this Lease or its acceptance of late installments of Rent will not be a waiver and will not estop Landlord from enforcing that provision or any other provision of this Lease in the future.
D.13. Mitigation. Landlord has mitigated the loss of rent if Landlord, within thirty days after Tenant’s loss of possession, (a) places a “For Lease” sign at the Premises, (b) places the Premises on Landlord’s inventory of properties for lease, (c) makes Landlord’s inventory available to area brokers on a monthly basis, (d) advertises the Premises for lease in a suitable trade journal in the county in which the Premises are located, and (e) shows the Premises to prospective tenants who request to see it.

D.14. Security Deposit. If Tenant defaults, Landlord may use the Security Deposit to pay arrears of Rent, to repair any damage or injury, or to pay any expense or liability incurred by Landlord as a result of the default.

D.15. Holdover. If Tenant does not vacate the Premises following termination of this lease, Tenant will become a tenant at will and must vacate the Premises on receipt of notice from Landlord. No holding over by Tenant, whether with or without the consent of Landlord, will extend the Term.

D.16. Alternative Dispute Resolution. Landlord and Tenant agree to mediate in good faith before filing a suit for damages.

D.17. Attorney’s Fees. If either party retains an attorney to enforce this lease, the party prevailing in litigation is entitled to recover reasonable attorney’s fees and other fees and court and other costs.

D.18. Venue. Exclusive venue is in the county in which the Premises are located.

D.19. Entire Agreement. This lease, its exhibits, addenda, and riders are the entire agreement of the parties concerning the lease of the Premises by Landlord to Tenant. There are no representations, warranties, agreements, or promises pertaining to the Premises or the lease of the Premises by Landlord to Tenant, and Tenant is not relying on any statements or representations of any agent of Landlord, that are not in this lease and any exhibits, addenda, and riders.

D.20. Amendment of Lease. This lease may be amended only by an instrument in writing signed by Landlord and Tenant.

D.21. Limitation of Warranties. THERE ARE NO IMPLIED WARRANTIES OF MERCHANTABILITY, OF FITNESS FOR A PARTICULAR PURPOSE, OR OF ANY OTHER KIND ARISING OUT OF THIS LEASE, AND THERE ARE NO WARRANTIES THAT EXTEND BEYOND THOSE EXPRESSLY STATED IN THIS LEASE.

Notice may also be given by regular mail, personal delivery, courier delivery, or e-mail and will be effective when received. Any address for notice may be changed by written notice given as provided herein.

Landlord and Tenant agree to the following:
D.1. Abatement. Tenant’s covenant to pay Rent and Landlord’s covenants are independent. Except as otherwise provided, Tenant may not abate Rent for any reason.

D.2. Insurance. Tenant and Landlord will maintain the respective insurance coverages described in the attached Insurance Addendum.

D.4. Casualty/Condemnation. If the Premises are damaged by fire or other casualty or are condemned, then either Landlord or Tenant may terminate this lease by notifying the other. Any Rent prepaid by Tenant will be returned to Tenant on termination.

D.5. Default by Landlord/Events. Defaults by Landlord are failing to comply with any provision of this lease within thirty days after written notice and failing to remedy a condition that materially affects the physical health or safety of an ordinary tenant within ten days after written notice, unless such condition results from Tenant's actions.

D.6. Default by Landlord/Tenant's Remedies. Tenant's remedies for Landlord's default are to sue for damages and, if Landlord does not remedy a condition (not resulting from Tenant's actions) that materially affects the physical health or safety of an ordinary tenant for thirty days after notice, terminate this lease.

a. Provided Tenant is not delinquent in the payment of Rent when Tenant provides Landlord any required notices and subject to applicable limitations in section 92.056 of the Texas Property Code, if Landlord has not repaired or remedied within a reasonable time or if Landlord is not making a diligent effort to repair or remedy any condition that materially affects the physical health or safety of an ordinary tenant, and Landlord is obligated under this lease to repair or remedy the condition, then Tenant may, following notice to Landlord (i) by certified mail, return receipt requested, or by registered mail or (ii) by notice to the person to whom or at the place where Tenant's Rent is normally paid, followed by a subsequent written notice if the condition is not remedied or repaired within a reasonable period of time following the first notice—

i. terminate this lease;

ii. have the condition repaired or remedied according to section 92.0561 of the Texas Property Code if the condition involves any of the following and at least one of Tenant's notices to Landlord includes a reasonable description of the proposed repair or remedy, along with a statement that Tenant intends to repair or remedy the condition:
(a) the backup or overflow of raw sewage inside the Premises or the flooding from broken pipes or natural drainage inside the Premises;

(b) potable water service to the Premises is not available, and Landlord has expressly or impliedly agreed in this lease to furnish potable water to the Premises;

(c) heating or cooling equipment serving the Premises is producing inadequate heat or cooled air, Landlord has expressly or impliedly agreed in this lease to furnish heating or cooling equipment, and Landlord has been notified in writing by the appropriate local housing, building, or health official or other official having jurisdiction that the lack of heat or cooling materially affects the health or safety of an ordinary tenant; or

(d) any other condition exists at the Premises that materially affects the health or safety of an ordinary tenant, and Landlord has been notified in writing by the appropriate local housing, building, or health official or other official having jurisdiction of such condition;

iii. deduct from Tenant’s Rent, without necessity of judicial action, the cost of the repair or remedy of any condition listed in section D.6.a.ii. in compliance with section 92.0561 of the Texas Property Code; or

iv. obtain judicial remedies according to section 92.0563 of the Texas Property Code.
b. If Tenant elects to terminate this lease, Tenant is—

i. entitled to a pro rata refund of Rent from the date of termination or the date Tenant moves out, whichever is later;

ii. entitled to deduct Tenant’s Security Deposit from Tenant’s Rent without the necessity of lawsuit or to obtain a refund of Tenant’s Security Deposit according to law; and

iii. not entitled to the other repair-and-deduct remedies under section 92.0561 of the Texas Property Code or the judicial remedies under subdivisions (1) and (2) of subsection (a) of section 92.0563 of the Texas Property Code.

c. If Tenant elects to have the condition repaired or remedied following the requirements of section 92.0561 of the Texas Property Code, Tenant may have the condition repaired or remedied—

i. immediately following Tenant’s notice of intent to repair if the condition involves sewage or flooding;

ii. within three days following Tenant’s delivery of notice of intent to repair if the condition involves a cessation of potable water or inadequate heat or cooled air; or

iii. within seven days following Tenant’s notice of intent to repair or remedy the condition if the condition involves any other matter affecting the physical health or safety of an ordinary tenant; and

Tenant may deduct the cost to repair or remedy the condition from a subsequent Rent payment, but the deduction may not exceed the amount of one month's Rent under the lease or $500, whichever is greater. When deducting the cost of repairs from the Rent, Tenant must furnish Landlord, along with payment of the balance of the Rent, a copy of the repair bill and the receipt for its payment. A repair bill and receipt may be the same document. Repairs and deductions may be made as often as necessary as long as Tenant otherwise complies with section 92.0561 of the Texas Property Code and the total repairs and deductions in any one month do not exceed one month’s Rent or $500, whichever is greater.

d. If Tenant’s Rent is subsidized in whole or in part by a governmental agency, the deduction limitation of one month’s Rent shall mean the fair market rent for the dwelling and not the Rent that Tenant pays. The fair market rent shall be determined by the governmental agency subsidizing the Rent, or in the absence of such a determination, it shall be a reasonable amount of rent under the circumstances.

e. Tenant repairs pursuant to section 92.0561 of the Texas Property Code must be made by a company, contractor, or repairman listed in the yellow or business pages of the telephone directory or in the classified advertising section of a newspaper of the local city, county, or adjacent county at the time of Tenant’s notice of intent to repair and must be made in compliance with applicable building codes, including a building permit when required. Unless otherwise agreed between Tenant and Landlord, any repairs made pursuant to section 92.0561 of the Texas Property Code may not be made by Tenant, Tenant’s immediate family, Tenant’s employer or employees, or a company in which Tenant has an ownership interest. In addition, repairs may not be made by Tenant under section 92.0561 of the Texas Property Code to the foundation or load-bearing structural elements of a building of which the Premises is a part if the building contains two or more dwelling units.

f. If Landlord repairs or remedies the condition or delivers to Tenant an affidavit for delay under section 92.0562 of the Texas Property Code after Tenant has contacted a repairman but before the repairman commences work, Landlord shall be liable for the cost incurred by Tenant for the repairman’s trip charge and Tenant may deduct the charge from Tenant’s Rent as if it were a repair cost.

g. If Tenant elects to pursue judicial remedies against Landlord pursuant to section 92.0563 of the Texas Property Code, those remedies include—

i. an order directing Landlord to take reasonable action to repair or remedy the condition;

ii. an order reducing Tenant’s Rent, from the date of the first repair notice, in proportion to the reduced rental value resulting from the condition until the condition is repaired or remedied;

iii. a judgment against Landlord for a civil penalty of one month’s Rent plus $500;

iv. a judgment against Landlord for the amount of Tenant’s actual damages; and

v. court costs and attorney’s fees, excluding any attorney’s fees for a cause of action for damages relating to a personal injury.

D.7. Default by Tenant/Events. Defaults by Tenant are (a) failing to pay Rent timely, (b) abandoning the Premises or vacating a substantial portion of the Premises, and (c) failing to comply within ten days after written notice with any provision of this lease other than the defaults set forth in (a) and (b).

D.8. Default by Tenant/Landlord's Remedies. D.9. Default/Waiver. All waivers must be in writing and signed by the waiving party. Landlord's failure to enforce any provisions of this Lease or its acceptance of late installments of Rent will not be a waiver and will not estop Landlord from enforcing that provision or any other provision of this Lease in the future.

D.10. Mitigation. Landlord and Tenant have a duty to mitigate damages.

D.11. Security Deposit. If Tenant defaults, Landlord may use the Security Deposit to pay arrears of Rent, to repair any damage or injury, or to pay any expense or liability incurred by Landlord as a result of the default.

D.12. Holdover. If Tenant does not vacate the Premises following termination of this lease, Tenant will become a tenant at will and must vacate the Premises on receipt of notice from Landlord. No holding over by Tenant, whether with or without the consent of Landlord, will extend the Term.

D.13. Alternative Dispute Resolution. Landlord and Tenant agree to mediate in good faith before filing a suit for damages.
D.14. Attorney’s Fees. If either party retains an attorney to enforce this lease, the party prevailing in litigation is entitled to recover reasonable attorney's fees and court and any other costs.

D.15. Venue. Exclusive venue is in the county in which the Premises are located.

D.16. Entire Agreement. This lease, its exhibits, addenda, and riders are the entire agreement of the parties concerning the lease of the Premises by Landlord to Tenant. There are no representations, warranties, agreements, or promises pertaining to the Premises or the lease of the Premises by Landlord to Tenant, and Tenant is not relying on any statements or representations of any agent of Landlord, that are not in this lease and any exhibits, addenda, and riders.

D.17. Amendment of Lease. This lease may be amended only by an instrument in writing signed by Landlord and Tenant.

D.18. Limitation of Warranties. THERE ARE NO IMPLIED WARRANTIES OF MERCHANTABILITY, OF FITNESS FOR A PARTICULAR PURPOSE, OR OF ANY OTHER KIND ARISING OUT OF THIS LEASE, AND THERE ARE NO WARRANTIES THAT EXTEND BEYOND THOSE EXPRESSLY STATED IN THIS LEASE.

D.19. Notices. Any notice required or permitted under this lease must be in writing. Any notice required by this lease will be deemed to be given (whether received or not) the earlier of receipt or three business days after being deposited with the United States Postal Service, postage prepaid, certified mail, return receipt requested, and addressed to the intended recipient at the address shown in this lease. Notice may also be given by regular mail, personal delivery, courier delivery, or e-mail and will be effective when received. Any address for notice may be changed by written notice given as provided herein.
D.20. Texas Property Code. Landlord and Tenant each acknowledge that chapter 92 of the Texas Property Code, which deals with residential tenancies, affords certain rights and imposes certain duties on them.

D.21. Abandoned Property. Landlord may retain, destroy, or dispose of any property left on the Premises at the end of the Term.

D.22. Tenant’s Statutory Right to Terminate. Tenant may have special statutory rights to terminate the lease early in certain situations involving family violence, military deployment or transfer, or certain sexual offenses or stalking.

any alterations, and restore the Premises to the condition existing at the Commencement Date, normal wear excepted.

If Landlord fails to complete the portion of the restoration for which Landlord is responsible within ninety days from the date of written notification by Tenant to Landlord of the casualty, Tenant may terminate this lease by written notice delivered to Landlord before Landlord completes Landlord's restoration obligations.

D.5.b. If Landlord cannot complete the portion of the restoration for which Landlord is responsible within ninety days, Landlord has an option to restore the Premises. If Landlord chooses not to restore, this lease will terminate. If Landlord chooses to restore, Landlord will notify Tenant in writing of the estimated time to restore and give Tenant an option to terminate this lease by notifying Landlord in writing within ten days from receipt of Landlord's estimate. If Tenant does not notify Landlord timely of Tenant's election to terminate this lease, the lease will continue and Landlord will restore the Premises as provided in D.5.a. above.

D.5.c. To the extent the Premises are untenantable after the casualty, the Rent will be adjusted as may be fair and reasonable.

D.11. Default by Tenant/Landlord’s Remedies. Landlord’s remedies for Tenant’s default are to (a) enter and take possession of the Premises and sue for Rent as it accrues; (b) enter and take possession of the Premises, after which Landlord may relet the Premises on behalf of Tenant and receive the Rent directly by reason of the reletting, and Tenant agrees to reimburse Landlord for any expenditures made in order to relet; (c) enter the Premises and perform Tenant’s obligations; and (d) terminate this lease by written notice and sue for damages. Landlord may enter and take possession of the Premises by self-help, by picking or changing locks if necessary, and may lock out Tenant or any other person who may be occupying the Premises, until the default is cured, without being liable for damages.

D.12. Default/Waiver. All waivers must be in writing and signed by the waiving party. Landlord’s failure to enforce any provisions of this Lease or its acceptance of late installments of Rent will not be a waiver and will not estop Landlord from enforcing that provision or any other provision of this Lease in the future.

D.13. Mitigation. Landlord has mitigated the loss of rent if Landlord, within thirty days after Tenant’s loss of possession, (a) places a “For Lease” sign at the Premises, (b) places the Premises on Landlord’s inventory of properties for lease, (c) makes Landlord’s inventory available to area brokers on a monthly basis, (d) advertises the Premises for lease in a suitable trade journal in the county in which the Premises are located, and (e) shows the Premises to prospective tenants who request to see it.

D.15. Holdover. If Tenant does not vacate the Premises following termination of this lease, Tenant will become a tenant at will and must vacate the Premises on receipt of notice from Landlord. No holding over by Tenant, whether with or without the consent of Landlord, will extend the Term.

D.16. Alternative Dispute Resolution. Landlord and Tenant agree to mediate in good faith before filing a suit for damages.

D.18. Venue. Exclusive venue is in the county in which the Premises are located.

D.19. Entire Agreement. This lease, its exhibits, addenda, and riders are the entire agreement of the parties concerning the lease of the Premises by Landlord to Tenant. There are no representations, warranties, agreements, or promises pertaining to the Premises or the lease of the Premises by Landlord to Tenant, and Tenant is not relying on any statements or representations of any agent of Landlord, that are not in this lease and any exhibits, addenda, and riders.

D.20. Amendment of Lease. This lease may be amended only by an instrument in writing signed by Landlord and Tenant.

D.21. Limitation of Warranties. THERE ARE NO IMPLIED WARRANTIES OF MERCHANTABILITY, OF FITNESS FOR A PARTICULAR PURPOSE, OR OF ANY OTHER KIND ARISING OUT OF THIS LEASE, AND THERE ARE NO WARRANTIES THAT EXTEND BEYOND THOSE EXPRESSLY STATED IN THIS LEASE.

C.1.e. Before Tenant’s installation of Tenant’s Equipment, obtain from a licensed engineer chosen by Landlord at Tenant’s expense a certification that the structural and loading capacity of the Tower is sufficient for Tenant’s Equipment and that Tenant’s installation of Tenant’s Equipment in accordance with the approved plans and specifications will comply with all applicable federal, state, and local laws, regulations, and standards.

C.1.f. Approve or disapprove in writing Tenant’s plans and specifications within [number] days of receipt.

C.2. Landlord agrees not to—
C.2.a. Interfere with Tenant’s possession of the Leased Premises as long as Tenant is not in default.

D. General Provisions

Landlord and Tenant agree to the following:

D.1. Alterations. Any physical additions or improvements to the Leased Premises made by Tenant will become the property of Landlord. Landlord may require that Tenant, at the end of the Term and at Tenant’s expense, remove any physical additions, improvements, and Tenant’s Equipment, repair any alterations, and restore the Leased Premises to the condition existing at the Commencement Date, normal wear excepted.

D.2. Abatement. Tenant’s covenant to pay rent and Landlord’s covenants are independent. Except as otherwise provided, Tenant may not abate Rent for any reason.

D.3. Insurance. Tenant and Landlord will maintain the respective insurance coverages described in the Insurance Addendum attached as Exhibit E.

D.4. Release of Claims/Subrogation. LANDLORD AND TENANT RELEASE EACH OTHER AND LIENHOLDER, AND THEIR RESPECTIVE AGENTS, FROM ALL CLAIMS OR LIABILITIES FOR DAMAGE TO THE LEASED PREMISES, DAMAGE TO OR LOSS OF PERSONAL PROPERTY WITHIN THE LEASED PREMISES, AND LOSS OF BUSINESS OR REVENUES THAT ARE INSURED BY THE RELEASING PARTY’S PROPERTY INSURANCE OR THAT WOULD HAVE BEEN INSURED BY THE REQUIRED INSURANCE IF THE PARTY FAILS TO MAINTAIN THE PROPERTY COVERAGES REQUIRED BY THIS LEASE. THE PARTY INCURRING THE DAMAGE OR LOSS WILL BE RESPONSIBLE FOR ANY DEDUCTIBLE OR SELF-INSURED RETENTION UNDER ITS PROPERTY INSURANCE. LANDLORD AND TENANT WILL NOTIFY THE ISSUING PROPERTY INSURANCE COMPANIES OF THE RELEASE SET FORTH IN THIS PARAGRAPH AND WILL HAVE THE PROPERTY INSURANCE POLICIES ENDORSED, IF NECESSARY, TO PREVENT INVALIDATION OF COVERAGE. THIS RELEASE WILL NOT APPLY IF IT INVALIDATES THE PROPERTY INSURANCE COVERAGE OF THE RELEASING PARTY. THE RELEASE IN THIS PARAGRAPH WILL APPLY EVEN IF THE DAMAGE OR LOSS IS CAUSED IN WHOLE OR IN PART BY THE ORDINARY NEGLIGENCE OR STRICT LIABILITY OF THE RELEASED PARTY OR ITS AGENTS BUT WILL NOT APPLY TO THE EXTENT THE DAMAGE OR LOSS IS CAUSED IN WHOLE OR IN PART BY THE GROSS NEGLIGENCE OR WILLFUL MISCONDUCT OF THE RELEASED PARTY OR ITS AGENTS.

D.5. Casualty/Total or Partial Destruction

D.5.a. If the Leased Premises are damaged by casualty and can be restored within ninety days, Landlord will, at its expense, restore the roof, foundation, and structural soundness of the exterior walls of the Leased Premises and any leasehold improvements within the Leased Premises that are not within Tenant’s rebuilding obligations to substantially the same condition that existed before the casualty, and Tenant will, at its expense, be responsible for replacing any of its damaged furniture, fixtures, and personal property and performing Tenant’s rebuilding obligations. If Landlord fails to complete the portion of the restoration for which Landlord is responsible within ninety days from the date of written notification by Tenant to Landlord of the casualty, Tenant may terminate this Lease by written notice to Landlord before Landlord completes Landlord’s restoration obligations.

D.5.b. If Landlord cannot complete the portion of the restoration for which Landlord is responsible within ninety days, Landlord has an option to restore the Leased Premises. If Landlord chooses not to restore, this Lease will terminate. If Landlord chooses to restore, Landlord will notify Tenant in writing of the estimated time to restore and give Tenant an option to terminate this Lease by notifying Landlord in writing within ten days from receipt of Landlord’s estimate. If Tenant does not notify Landlord timely of Tenant’s election to terminate this Lease, the Lease will continue and Landlord will restore the Leased Premises as provided in subparagraph D.5.a. above.
D.5.c. To the extent the Leased Premises are untenantable after the casualty, the Rent will be adjusted as may be fair and reasonable.

D.6. Condemnation/Substantial or Partial Taking

D.6.a. If the Leased Premises cannot be used for the purposes contemplated by this Lease because of condemnation or purchase in lieu of condemnation, this Lease will terminate.

D.6.b. If there is a condemnation or purchase in lieu of condemnation and this Lease is not terminated, Landlord will, at Landlord’s expense, restore the Tower Leased Premises, and the Rent payable during the unexpired portion of the Term will be adjusted as may be fair and reasonable.

D.6.c. Tenant will have no claim to the condemnation award or proceeds in lieu of condemnation.

D.7. Uniform Commercial Code. Tenant grants Landlord a security interest in Tenant’s personal property now or subsequently located on the Leased Premises. This Lease is a security agreement under the Uniform Commercial Code. Landlord may file financing statements or continuation statements to perfect or continue the perfection of the security interest.

D.8. Default by Landlord/Events. Defaults by Landlord are failing to comply with any provision of this Lease within thirty days after written notice and failing to provide essential services to Tenant within ten days after written notice.

D.9. Default by Landlord/Tenant’s Remedies. Tenant’s remedies for Landlord’s default are to sue for damages and, if Landlord does not provide an essential service for thirty days after default, terminate this Lease.
D.10. Default by Tenant/Events. Defaults by Tenant are (a) failing to pay Rent timely, (b) abandoning the Leased Premises or vacating a substantial portion of the Leased Premises, and (c) failing to comply within ten days after written notice with any provision of this Lease other than the defaults set forth in (a) and (b).

D.11. Default by Tenant/Landlord's Remedies. Landlord's remedies for Tenant's default are to (a) enter and take possession of the Leased Premises and sue for Rent as it accrues; (b) enter and take possession of the Leased Premises, after which Landlord may re-let the Leased Premises on behalf of Tenant and receive the rent directly by reason of the re-letting, and Tenant agrees to reimburse Landlord for any expenditures made in order to re-let; (c) enter the Leased Premises and perform Tenant's obligations; and (d) terminate this Lease by written notice and sue for damages. Landlord may enter and take possession of the Leased Premises by self-help, by picking or changing locks if necessary, and may lock out Tenant or any other person who may be occupying the Leased Premises, until the default is cured, without being liable for damages.

D.12. Default/Waiver/Mitigation. All waivers must be in writing and signed by the waiving party. Landlord's failure to enforce any provisions of this Lease or its acceptance of late installments of Rent will not be a waiver and will not estop Landlord from enforcing that provision or any other provision of this Lease in the future. Landlord and Tenant have a duty to mitigate damages.

D.13. Security Deposit. If Tenant defaults, Landlord may use the security deposit to pay arrears of Rent, to repair any damage or injury, or to pay any expense or liability incurred by Landlord as a result of the default.

D.14. Holdover. If Tenant does not vacate the Leased Premises following termination of this Lease, Tenant will become a tenant at will and must vacate the Leased Premises on receipt of notice from Landlord. No holding over by Tenant, whether with or without the consent of Landlord, will extend the Term.

D.15. Alternative Dispute Resolution. Landlord and Tenant agree to mediate in good faith before filing a suit for damages.

D.18. Entire Agreement. This Lease [include if applicable: , its exhibits, addenda, and riders] [is/are] the entire lease of the parties concerning the lease of the Leased Premises by Landlord to Tenant. There are no representations, warranties, agreements, or promises pertaining to the Leased Premises or the lease of the Leased Premises by Landlord to Tenant, and Tenant is not relying on any statements or representations of any agent of Landlord, that are not in this Lease [include if applicable: and any exhibits, addenda, and riders].

D.19. Amendment of Lease. This Lease may be amended only by an instrument in writing signed by Landlord and Tenant.

D.20. Limitation of Warranties. THERE ARE NO IMPLIED WARRANTIES OF MERCHANTABILITY, OF FITNESS FOR A PARTICULAR PURPOSE, OR OF ANY OTHER KIND ARISING OUT OF THIS LEASE, AND THERE ARE NO WARRANTIES THAT EXTEND BEYOND THOSE EXPRESSLY STATED IN THIS LEASE.

D.21. Notices. Any notice required or permitted under this Lease must be in writing. Any notice required by this Lease will be deemed to be delivered (whether actually received or not) when deposited with the United States Postal Service, postage prepaid, certified mail, return receipt requested, and addressed to the intended recipient at the address shown in this Lease. Notice may also be given by regular mail, personal delivery, courier delivery, facsimile transmission, or other commercially reasonable means and will be effective when actually received. Any address for notice may be changed by written notice delivered as provided herein.

D.22. Abandoned Property. Landlord may retain, destroy, or dispose of any property left on the Leased Premises at the end of the Term.

D.23. Generator. With Landlord’s prior written approval, not to be unreasonably withheld, [and on payment of an additional rent of $[amount] per month.] Tenant may install a generator at the Site to service Tenant’s Equipment.

D.24. Interference. If Tenant’s Equipment causes interference with operations of other tenants on the Tower, Tenant will immediately cease the interference and, at its own expense, make any changes to Tenant’s Equipment needed to correct the interference, subject to Landlord’s written approval.

D.25. Use of Site by Other Parties. Tenant’s use of the Site is nonexclusive. Landlord may enter into leases with other parties for the use of the Site, Tower, and other improvements. Parties other than Landlord and Tenant will have access to the Site, and Landlord is not responsible for the behavior of the other parties. Tenant will be responsible for securing Tenant’s Equipment.

Communications Tower Safety Standards

A. Scope and Application

The rules in this exhibit contain requirements for policies, procedures, and safe work practices to protect the employees, agents, and contractors of Landlord and Tenant from the hazards of working on communications towers during construction, alteration, repair, operation, inspection, and maintenance activities. A “Communications Tower” is defined as any tower over six feet in height that is used primarily as an antenna or to host one or more antennas. Where the Communications Tower is affixed to another structure, such as an electrical transmission tower, church steeple, building rooftop, or water tower, the applicable part of any controlling regulation for protection of persons (e.g., 29 C.F.R. sections 1910.268 and 1910.269, and part 1926, subpart V, for transmission towers) will apply up to the point of access to the Communications Tower.

B. Definitions

In addition to the definitions set forth in 29 C.F.R. parts 1910 and 1926, the following definitions apply throughout the rules in this exhibit.

B.1. “Acceptable Conditions for Access” means the conditions that must exist before Tenant grants permission for construction, alteration, repair, or maintenance work to be performed on a Communications Tower. These conditions include the following:

B.1.a. Work under the control of a work safety program meeting the requirements of the rules in this exhibit.

B.1.b. Work where an accumulation of snow, ice, or other slippery material is not present, except as necessary for the inspection or removal of such material.
B.1.c. Notwithstanding the prohibitions outlined in subparagraph B.1.b. above, if Tower emergency maintenance work must be performed where there is an accumulation of snow, ice, or other slippery material, Tenant will implement safe work practices (equipment, practices, and procedures) that address the hazards known to be associated with Tower work to minimize the associated risk to persons while working on the Tower structure and the support structure to which it is affixed, where applicable.

B.2. "Climbing Facility" means a component specifically designed or provided to permit access to the Tower structure, such as a fixed ladder, step bolt, or other structural member.

B.3. "Competent Person" means a person who is trained to identify existing and predictable hazards in the surroundings or working conditions that are hazardous or dangerous to persons and who has authorization from Tenant or Tenant's contractor to take prompt corrective measures to eliminate them, including halting the work as required by the rules in this exhibit.

B.4. "Elevated (High-Angle) Rescue" means the process by which methods and equipment are used to gain access to and egress from the location of an injured person on the Tower structure and lower both the injured person and the rescuer safely to the ground.

B.5. "Fall Protection Equipment" means the personal equipment that persons use in conjunction with fall protection systems, including connectors, body belts or body harnesses, lanyards, and deceleration devices.

B.6. "Ladder Safety System" means an assembly of components whose function is to arrest the fall of a user, including the carrier and its associated attachment elements (e.g., brackets, fasteners), the Safety Sleeve, and the body support and connectors, wherein the carrier is permanently attached to the climbing face of the ladder or immediately adjacent to the structure.
B.7. “100% Fall Protection” means each person exposed to fall hazards above six feet while ascending, descending, or moving point to point must be protected at all times by fall protection as described in section E. below.

B.8. “Qualified Climber” means a person who has, by virtue of knowledge, training, and experience, been deemed qualified in writing by Tenant to perform Tower work.

B.9. “Qualified Person” means a person possessing a degree, certificate, professional standing, or knowledge, training, and experience in the field of Communications Tower work and who has demonstrated to Tenant or Tenant’s contractor the ability to resolve problems relating to the subject matter, the work, or the project.

B.10. “Safety Sleeve” means the part of a Ladder Safety System consisting of the moving component with locking mechanism that travels on the carrier and makes the connection between the carrier and the body support.

B.11. “Site” means the Tower and the surrounding land or property where Tower work is being performed.

B.12. “Step Bolt” means a bolt or rung attached at intervals along a structural member and used for foot placement during climbing or standing.

B.13. “Tower Construction” means the building of a new Tower or structure or the installation of new equipment on an existing Tower or structure.

B.14. “Tower Emergency Maintenance Work” means the repair, restoration, or replacement of any preexisting device installed on the Tower in the interest of public safety, such as aviation signaling devices and equipment used to transmit or receive broadcast signals.
B.15. "Tower Inspection" means the procedure in which a person climbs the Tower or rides the structure’s elevator to visually inspect the Tower for potential problems and test for Tower plumbness and guy cable tension.

B.16. "Tower Maintenance Work" means the replacement in kind of any device on an existing Tower, the repair of existing equipment, and painting.

C. Tenant Responsibilities

C.1. Tenant will require its employees, agents, and contractors to adhere to Acceptable Conditions for Access, as defined above, before climbing the Tower at heights above six feet.

C.2. Tenant will ensure that at least two persons, including at least one Competent Person, are on the Site at all times when anyone is exposed to fall hazards above six feet, provided, however, Tenant will not be required to have more than two persons on the Site at any given time.

C.3. A Competent Person will visually inspect the Tower base for damage, deterioration, structural deficiencies, and functionality of safety features and anchorages before persons are allowed to climb the Tower at heights above six feet. Additionally, Tenant will ensure that the Tower is visually inspected for these items as it is ascended to the elevation point where work is being performed.

D. Hazard Identification and Assessment

D.1. In addition to the inspections required by paragraphs C.3. above and E.2. below, Tenant will conduct a hazard assessment to identify, assess, and control exposure to hazards as required by the standards in this exhibit and any other applicable state or federal statutes, rules, or regulations.
D.2. Tenant will perform and document the hazard assessments required by these standards—

D.2.a. initially and daily for each Site before permitting persons to climb the structure and

D.2.b. when safety and health information or change in workplace conditions indicates that a new or increased hazard may be present.

D.3. The hazard assessments required by these standards will—

D.3.a. be performed by a Competent Person;

D.3.b. evaluate new equipment, materials, and processes for hazards before they are introduced into the workplace; and

D.3.c. identify meteorological conditions that could affect work at heights above six feet on a tower, such as wind, rain, snow, or ice.

D.4. If hazards are identified, Tenant will assess the severity of identified hazards and implement means to control such hazards, including providing persons with personal protective equipment ("PPE") designed to control the identified hazards and ensuring the proper use of the PPE by the persons.

E. Fall Protection

E.1. General. Before anyone climbs the Tower at heights above six feet, Tenant will ensure that 100% Fall Protection systems compatible with the tasks assigned are provided, used, and maintained. The rules in this section will not require the retrofitting of Communications Towers, provided that persons who are exposed to fall hazards above six feet while performing work on Communications Towers are protected from such hazards by means of a 100% Fall Protection system.
E.2. Preclimb Planning and Inspection. In addition to the criteria for preclimb planning and inspection included in paragraph E.7. below, Tenant will ensure that the following items occur before persons climb the Tower at heights above six feet:

E.2.a. All climbing jobs will be planned by a Competent Person.

E.2.b. All climbing facilities will be visually inspected daily at the Tower base by a Competent Person for rust, corrosion, deterioration, or other hazards. Additionally, Tenant will ensure that the climbing facilities are visually inspected for these items as it is ascended, to the elevation point where work is being performed. If any such hazard is identified during this inspection, persons will not use the Climbing Facility until such hazards are abated.

E.2.c. A Competent Person will ensure that all Fall Protection Equipment is inspected before each use for wear, damage, defect, or other deterioration by persons who have been trained in accordance with section J. below. Defective equipment will be identified as defective and immediately removed from service.

E.2.d. Components of a fall protection system and the Fall Protection Equipment used by persons will be compatible with one another and will be used in accordance with the manufacturer’s recommendations.

E.2.e. Tenant will ensure that the planning and inspections are performed and documented. The documentation will be maintained on the Site while work is being performed and thereafter by Tenant at its place of business. The documentation will include the date of the planning and inspection, the name of the Competent Person performing the planning and inspection, and the Site location.

E.3. Fall Protection Systems. To comply with the requirements of paragraphs E.1. and E.2. above, Tenant may permit persons to use the fall protection systems described in paragraphs E.4. through E.7. below. If the fall protection systems described therein are not present on the Tower, Tenant will not permit persons to climb the Tower at heights above six feet unless—

E.3.a. an alternative means of 100% Fall Protection is used that is at least as effective as the fall protection systems described in paragraphs E.4. through E.7. below;

E.3.b. an alternative means of access to the work area is used such as an aerial lift or elevated work platform; or

E.3.c. Tenant can demonstrate that the requirements for a fall protection plan under paragraph E.8. below have been met.

E.4. Guardrail Systems. Tenant will ensure that guardrail systems and their components that are used by persons as a means of 100% Fall Protection conform to the criteria in 29 C.F.R. section 1926.502(b).

E.5. Personal Fall Arrest Systems (“PFAS”). Tenant will ensure that personal fall arrest systems (“PFAS”) and their components that are used by persons as a means of 100% Fall Protection conform to the criteria in 29 C.F.R. section 1926.502(d) and are used according to the manufacturer’s recommendations. Tenant will ensure that Step Bolts and attachment points to the structure, when used by persons as an anchorage as part of a PFAS, are designed to meet the requirements of an approved anchorage in accordance with 29 C.F.R. section 1926.502(d) and are designed to ensure the connector will not slip off the end of the Step Bolt.

E.6. Positioning Device System. Tenant will ensure that positioning device systems and their components that are used by persons as a means of 100% Fall Protection conform to the criteria in 29 C.F.R. section 1926.502(e).
E.7. Ladder Safety Systems. Tenant will ensure that, in addition to the applicable criteria in 29 C.F.R. part 1926, subpart X, Ladder Safety Systems and related support systems for fixed ladders that are used by persons as a means of 100% Fall Protection conform to the following criteria:

E.7.a. Before any persons climb the structure, Tenant will ensure that the persons have tested the Ladder Safety System for proper operation and that all components used with the Ladder Safety System are compatible.

E.7.b. To perform the test required by subparagraph E.7.a. above, the persons will—

i. approach the ladder at the base and connect to the functional safety;

ii. climb the system to a height less than six feet;

iii. forcibly engage the device without letting go of the ladder;

iv. if the device functions as intended, begin the ascension;

v. if the device does not function properly, immediately descend the structure and not use the device until it functions properly, and

vi. if a ladder is obstructed, inhibiting the effective use of the Ladder Safety System, use an alternative means of 100% Fall Protection that is at least as effective as the types of fall protection described by this rule.

E.8. Fall Protection Plan. This paragraph applies when persons are working on a structure where no adequate tie-off anchorage point exists, the fall protection systems described in paragraph E.3. above are not feasible or create a greater hazard, and the work cannot be completed using an alternative means of access to the work area such as an aerial lift or elevated work platform. If Tenant demonstrates the foregoing conditions are present, then in addition to the criteria in 29 C.F.R. section 1926.502(k), Tenant will conform to the following provisions:

E.8.a. Tenant will ensure that each person under the fall protection plan has been trained as a Qualified Climber.

E.8.b. The fall protection plan will be made available and communicated to exposed persons before the persons begin work, and such communication will be documented.

E.8.c. The fall protection plan will identify each location on the Tower structure where fall protection methods as described in paragraph E.3. above cannot be used. As soon as adequate tie-off anchorage points or other fall protection systems can be established, Tenant will use any of the fall protection systems described in paragraph E.3.

E.9. Emergency and Rescue Procedures. Tenant will establish procedures for rescue of persons in the event of an emergency, which will include whether Tenant will designate its own persons to perform the rescue procedures or whether Tenant will designate a third party to perform the rescue procedures. The procedures will be documented and available for review by the Deputy Commissioner of Labor for Occupational Safety and Health or his designee, upon request.

E.10. Tenant to Perform Rescue Procedures. Tenant will take the following measures:

E.10.a. Ensure at least two trained and designated rescue persons or contractors are on the Site when persons are working at heights over six feet on the Tower, provided, however, where there are only two persons on the Site, Tenant may comply with this requirement if one person is a trained and designated rescue person and one person has received documented orientation outlining steps to take in an emergency.
E.10.b. Ensure that personal protective equipment ("PPE") and Elevated (High–Angle) Rescue equipment needed to conduct elevated rescues are provided, used, and maintained by the designated rescue persons.

E.10.c. Train designated rescue persons so they are proficient in the use and maintenance of PPE and Elevated (High–Angle) Rescue equipment needed to conduct elevated rescues or contract with persons with such proficiency.

E.10.d. Train designated rescue persons to perform assigned rescue duties to ensure that they become competent to perform such duties, including conducting simulated rescue operations at least once every twelve months, or contract with persons with such competency.

E.11. Third Party to Perform Rescue Procedures. If Tenant designates a third-party rescue and emergency service to provide Elevated (High-Angle) Rescue and emergency services, Tenant will take the following measures:

E.11.a. Obtain verification from the third-party rescue team or service that it is able to respond to a rescue summons in a timely manner.

E.11.b. Obtain verification from the third-party rescue team or service that it is proficient with rescue-related tasks and equipment as they relate to rescuing climbers from elevated heights on communications structures.

E.11.c. Select a rescue team or service from those evaluated that has verified it has the capability to reach the victims and is equipped for and capable of performing the needed rescue services.

E.11.d. Provide the selected rescue team or service with contact information regarding all Towers/structures from which rescue may be necessary so that the rescue service can develop appropriate rescue plans and practice rescue operations as it deems necessary.
E.11.e. Before the first day on which persons perform work at heights over six feet on the Tower, inform the selected rescue team or service of the Site and location of the Towers to be climbed, the hazards identified on the Site, the number of persons that will climb the Towers, the heights at which persons will be working, the names and telephone numbers for any Tenant contacts, and any other information that is requested by the rescue team or service.

E.12. First Aid/CPR Training and Supplies. In addition to the requirements of 29 C.F.R. sections 1910.151 and 1926.50, Tenant will ensure that at least two persons on the Site are trained and hold current certifications in basic first aid and cardiopulmonary resuscitation ("CPR") issued by the American Red Cross or any other organization whose standards are equivalent to the American Red Cross, provided, however, where there are only two persons on the Site, Tenant may comply with the requirements of this paragraph if one person is trained and holds current certifications in basic first aid and CPR.

F. Nonionizing Radiation

F.1. General. Tenant will ensure that persons performing work on Communications Towers are not exposed to radio frequency ("RF") electromagnetic fields in excess of the Federal Communications Commission ("FCC") maximum permissible exposure ("MPE") limits for exposure as prescribed in 47 C.F.R. section 1.1310.

F.2. Protection from Radiation Exposure. Persons will not enter areas where RF exposure levels are above the general population/uncontrolled MPE limits described in 47 C.F.R. section 1.1310 unless they understand the potential for exposure and can exercise control over the exposure.

F.3. Control Procedures. Before persons perform work in areas on a Communications Tower where RF exposure levels exceed the occupational/controlled MPE values stated in 47 C.F.R. section 1.1310, Tenant will enact and enforce written control procedures that provide for the reduction, elimination, avoidance, or protection from such RF exposure levels. These written control procedures will include the following:

F.3.a. Reducing the transmitter power to a level that ensures RF exposure levels in areas where persons are working do not exceed the occupational/controlled MPE values stated in 47 C.F.R. section 1.1310 and that the transmitter power level is not increased until all persons have ceased working in those areas. If this method is chosen, the transmitter power will be locked out and tagged out at the reduced level by a Competent Person in accordance with 29 C.F.R. section 1910.147. Before removing lock-out/tag-out devices and restoring the original transmitter power level, all persons will be notified, and the work area will be checked to ensure that all persons have been safely positioned and removed.

F.3.b. If the transmitter power level in areas where persons are working cannot be reduced and maintained at a level that ensures RF exposure levels do not exceed the occupational/controlled MPE values stated in 47 C.F.R. section 1.1310, the transmitter power will be locked out and tagged out by a Competent Person in accordance with 29 C.F.R. section 1910.147. Before removing lock-out/tag-out devices and restoring the transmitter power level, all persons will be notified, and the work area will be checked to ensure that all persons have been safely positioned and removed.

F.3.c. If the transmitter power level cannot be reduced or eliminated, Tenant may permit persons to access areas where the occupational/controlled MPE values stated in 47 C.F.R. section 1.1310 are exceeded if it implements engineering or administrative controls that comply with the FCC's regulations concerning such exposure, including limiting the duration of the exposure and using monitoring equipment, RF protective clothing, and other related PPE.

F.3.d. If Tenant cannot ensure that the conditions in subparagraph F.3.a., F.3.b., or F.3.c. above are met, persons will not be permitted to access areas where RF exposure levels exceed the occupational/controlled MPE values stated in 47 C.F.R. section 1.1310.
F.4. Use of Controls. Before commencing work on a Communications Tower, a Competent Person will assess potential RF hazards of areas that may be accessed by persons in the course of their work and post temporary signage to indicate areas where the RF hazard exceeds the general population/uncontrolled MPE limits for exposure set forth in 47 C.F.R. section 1.1310. Temporary signage will remain in place while work is performed and the hazard exists.

F.5. RF Safety Program. When persons are exposed to RF fields in excess of the general population/uncontrolled MPE limits established in 47 C.F.R. section 1.1310 as a consequence of their work, Tenant will develop, implement, and maintain a written safety and health program with Site-specific procedures and elements based on the electromagnetic radiation hazards present, in accordance with these standards.

G. Hoists

Hoists used during the construction, alteration, repair, maintenance, or demolition of Communications Towers will meet the following requirements:

G.1. All hoists will meet the requirements set forth in this rule and 29 C.F.R. parts 1910, subpart N, and 1926, subpart N, where applicable.

H. Gin Poles

H.1. Rigging Equipment

H.1.a. Wire rope, slings, chains, shackles, turnbuckles, links, hooks, sheaves, rotating rooster heads, blocks, and hoists used in a gin pole lifting arrangement will meet the manufacturer’s safe working load limits. In addition, each component will have a nominal breaking strength of no less than five times the static load applied. Consideration for end fitting losses and actual positioning of connecting parts will be given.

H.1.b. Lugs or other devices for lifting or attaching the gin pole in position will be designed with load and resistance factors appropriate for their intended use.

H.1.c. Only alloy chains marked by the manufacturer with an S, a T, or an A, rated for lifting, will be used.

H.1.d. Only quenched and tempered hooks and shackles will be used. The manufacturer’s load rating will be stamped on the product.

H.1.e. The breaking strength of the sheave will equal or exceed the breaking strength of the wire rope intended for the sheave.

H.2. Gin Pole Use

H.2.a. A user’s gin pole load chart will be provided for each pole.

H.2.b. Any special engineered pick that is outside of the load chart will be allowed only at the direction of a licensed professional engineer. Monitoring and measuring conditions, as specified by a licensed professional engineer, will be provided and used during all special engineered picks.

H.2.c. Modifications or repairs of a gin pole will be made with like or similar materials to meet or exceed the original specifications. Modifications or repairs will be recertified by a licensed professional engineer.

H.2.d. A mechanism will be in place to prevent the gin pole from tipping during the jumping process.

H.3. Wire Rope. Wire rope used for rigging will be as follows:

H.3.a. Compatible with the sheaves of the rooster head and hoisting blocks.

H.3.b. Lubricated in accordance with manufacturer specifications to prevent corrosion and wear.

H.3.c. End connections will be terminated per industry and manufacturer’s specifications.

H.3.d. Wedge sockets will have a minimum tail length of one rope lay with a properly torqued clip attached to prevent accidental disengagement.

H.3.e. Flemish eyes will contain heavy-duty thimbles of appropriate size for the wire rope diameter and will have a minimum tail length of one rope lay secured with a properly torqued clip at its end.

H.4. Inspections

H.4.a. Gin poles will have a documented inspection annually by a Qualified Person.
H.4.b. In addition to the annual inspection, Tenant will designate a Competent Person who will visually inspect the gin pole and rigging before each use and during use to make sure it is in safe operating condition. Any deficiencies will be repaired before use continues.

H.4.c. During each inspection, the Qualified Person or Competent Person will—

i. inspect the legs and bracing members for bends or distortion;

ii. inspect the straightness tolerances for the overall assembly (including leg and bracing members);

iii. visually inspect the welds for quality, deformation, cracks, rust, or pitting or loss of cross-sectional area;

iv. inspect the members for excessive rust or pitting or loss of cross-sectional area,

v. inspect the sling attachment points for distortion, wear, cracks, and rust;

vi. ensure that proper bolts are used and all associated hardware is in good condition;

An oil, gas, and mineral lease affects record title until the lease is properly released of record or it terminates according to its terms. One method of showing that a lease has terminated is to have a release executed by the lessee or the assignee of the lessee and filed in the real property records. If the lessee or assignee cannot be located, an affidavit of nonproduction is another means of demonstrating that a lease has expired. Provisions in oil, gas, and mineral leases typically specify events that terminate the lease. This affidavit evidences expiration of a lease because of nonproduction. It may be required by a purchaser before buying the property, by a lienholder making a loan with the property as collateral, or by a lessee. This affidavit can be modified if the termination is caused by other events specified in the lease.

No oil, gas, or other mineral is now being produced from the Property or on any property with which the Property is pooled or unitized.

Designation of Homestead

Form 26-21

If a person may claim a homestead and has not done so, Tex. Prop. Code § 41.005 provides that the property on which the person receives a homestead exemption under Tex. Tax Code § 11.43 is generally considered to have been designated as the person’s homestead. Tex. Prop. Code § 41.005(e). Section 41.005 also allows a person to voluntarily designate a homestead. A person may find it necessary to designate a homestead in aid of enforcement of a judgment debt. See Tex. Prop. Code § 41.022. This form may be used for either of these purposes. If a homestead claimant’s homestead has changed, the voluntary filing of a designation of homestead may facilitate changing the tax exemption to the new homestead.

A rural homestead may not exceed two hundred acres if it is the homestead of a family or one hundred acres if it is the homestead of a single adult. Tex. Prop. Code § 41.002(b). An urban homestead may not exceed ten acres. Tex. Prop. Code § 41.002(a). Tex. Prop. Code § 41.002 sets forth criteria by which a homestead is categorized as rural or urban. See also the discussion on rural and urban homesteads at section 11.9:8 in this manual.

If a rural homestead includes property in more than one survey, state the number of acres in each survey. See Tex. Prop. Code § 41.005(c). See also section 3.7 concerning property description. If the rural homestead exceeds ten acres, the optional clause stating that the homestead is not considered urban will assist the taxing authorities in determining that the acreage in excess of ten is entitled to the exemption.

Agreement

In consideration of services to be performed by Broker, Seller appoints Broker as Seller’s sole and exclusive agent to sell the Property for the price and on the terms described in this agreement, it being understood and agreed that Seller reserves the right to sell, exchange, or otherwise dispose of the Property to a buyer procured by Seller without the assistance of Broker.

A. Agreement and Term. This agreement will commence on the Commencement Date and will continue for a term that will expire at 11:59 P.M. local time on the Termination Date. However, if there is a pending contract in effect on the Termination Date between Seller and a buyer procured by Broker and that transaction has not been closed and funded, this agreement will continue in effect beyond the Termination Date solely with respect to that contract until the earlier of the closing and funding of the transaction described in the contract or the termination of the contract in a manner permitted in the contract. The term of this agreement is also subject to extension and early termination as provided in this agreement.

B. Listing Price and Terms. Seller agrees to sell the Property for the Listing Price or any other price that Seller may accept. Unless otherwise agreed by Seller, the Property will be sold for cash, and Seller will not provide any financing with respect to the sale. Seller will pay the typical transaction and closing costs borne by or charged to sellers of real property in Texas.

C. Exclusive Agency Relationship. Unless otherwise specified by written agreement between Seller and Broker, it is understood and agreed that Broker will act solely as Seller’s agent in connection with the sale of the Property and that Broker is not authorized to act as an intermediary between Seller and any buyer of the Property.

D. Broker’s Fee. Seller will pay Broker the Broker’s Fee in cash if the Broker’s Fee is earned and payable in accordance with the following provisions:

D.1. The Broker’s Fee will be earned and payable when the sale or exchange of the Property to a buyer procured by Broker, individually or in cooperation with another broker, under a contract executed by Seller is finally closed and funded, whether this occurs during the term of this agreement or after the termination of this agreement.

_D.1._ The Broker's Fee will be earned if Broker, during the term of this agreement, individually or in cooperation with another broker, procures a buyer who enters into a contract with Seller to buy the Property. The Broker's Fee, once earned with respect to a particular sale or exchange of the Property, will be payable, either during the term of this agreement or after the termination of this agreement, on either of the following events: (a) the closing and funding of the sale or exchange of the Property or (b) Seller's wrongful refusal to close the sale or exchange of the Property.

_D.2._ Unless otherwise provided in this agreement, the Broker's Fee will be determined on the basis of the sale price (the "Sale Price") specified in the contract between Seller and the buyer. If the disposition of the Property is consummated as an exchange of the Property for other property, the Sale Price of the Property will be deemed to be the Listing Price unless otherwise specified by Broker and Seller in writing.

_D.3._ If a buyer procured by Broker with whom Seller has entered into a contract for the sale of the Property during the term of this agreement breaches that contract and Seller receives the buyer's earnest money or a portion thereof as liquidated damages, Seller will pay Broker the lesser of one-half of the amount of the liquidated damages or the Broker's Fee.

_D.4._ If litigation, mediation, or arbitration is instituted with respect to a contract between Seller and a buyer procured by Broker for the sale of the Property that is executed during the term of this agreement, and Seller collects all or a portion of the Sale Price or damages by judgment, compromise, settlement, or otherwise, Seller will pay Broker the lesser of (a) one-half of the amount collected after deduction of attorney's fees and other expenses of collection or (b) the Broker’s Fee (determined after reducing the Sale Price by the amount of attorney’s fees or other expenses of collection).

D.5. Seller will not owe Broker the Broker’s Fee if a sale of the Property does not close or fund as a result of (a) Seller’s failure to deliver a title policy to a buyer, caused by Seller’s inability to cure the buyer’s title objections due to matters beyond Seller’s reasonable control; (b) Seller’s loss of ownership due to foreclosure, conveyance in lieu of foreclosure, or other legal proceeding; or (c) Seller’s failure to restore the Property following any casualty or condemnation to its previous condition by the closing date set forth in a contract for the sale of the Property.

D.6. Seller authorizes any escrow or closing agent authorized to close a transaction for the sale or other disposition of the Property contemplated in this agreement to collect and disburse to Broker the Broker’s Fee due under this agreement if the buyer was procured by Broker. Seller authorizes Broker to instruct any closing or escrow agent to collect and disburse the Broker’s Fee due under this agreement if the buyer was procured by Broker.

D.7. Seller will not owe Broker the Broker’s Fee in connection with any transaction in which the buyer or other party to the transaction was procured by Seller without the assistance or participation of Broker.

E. Protection Period. Subject to the conditions set forth in paragraph D above, if, within ninety days after the termination of this agreement (the “Protection Period”), Seller enters into a contract to sell the Property to one of Broker’s Registered Buyers (as hereinafter defined) or sells, exchanges, or otherwise transfers an interest in the Property to one of Broker’s Registered Buyers, Seller will pay Broker the Broker’s Fee. For purposes of this agreement, the Broker’s Registered Buyers will consist only of those persons whose attention has been called to the Property by Broker during the term of this agreement, or with whom Broker has negotiated the sale, exchange, or other transfer of the Property during the term of this agreement, and whose names and addresses have been provided in writing by Broker to Seller within five days after the termination of this agreement. It is specifically understood and agreed, however, that the foregoing provisions regarding the Protection Period will not be applicable with respect to any sale, exchange, or other transfer of the Property that occurs after the termination of this agreement while the Property is listed exclusively with another broker.

F. Broker’s Duties and Authorities. During the term of this agreement, Broker will be authorized and required to take the following actions:

F.1. Broker will make reasonable efforts and act diligently to sell the Property in accordance with the terms of this agreement. Seller authorizes Broker and Broker’s associates, at Broker’s sole cost and expense, to (a) advertise the Property by the means and methods Broker reasonably determines to be appropriate for the Property based on then-current market practices for properties substantially similar to the Property, (b) place a “For Sale” sign on the Property in compliance with any state and local laws, rules, ordinances, restrictions, or covenants, (c) remove from the Property all other signs offering the Property for sale or lease; (d) furnish comparative marketing and sale information about other properties to prospective buyers; (e) disseminate information about the Property to other brokers and their associates through a multiple-listing service or such other means as Broker reasonably determines to be appropriate; (f) enter the Property, and accompany other brokers and their associates who wish to enter the Property, at reasonable times and, if the Property is then occupied, on reasonable advance notice, to show the Property to prospective buyers, (g) authorize property inspectors, appraisers, and repair personnel to enter the Property at reasonable times and, if the Property is then occupied, on reasonable notice, for pertinent purposes; (h) obtain information from any holder of any note secured by a lien on the Property concerning the note or lien, and (i) on a final and closed sale of the Property, disclose the Sale Price and terms to the local tax appraisal district and, if applicable, multiple-listing service.
F.2. Broker is not authorized to (a) execute any document in the name of or on behalf of Seller with respect to the Property, (b) authorize any repairs to the Property without Seller's prior written consent, (c) authorize the expenditure of any funds on behalf of Seller without Seller's prior written consent, (d) negotiate any earnest money deposit or other instrument in connection with the Property, or (e) use a "lock-box" for keys to the Property.

F.3. Broker will not be obligated to market the Property after Seller has entered into a binding contract unless the contract provides otherwise. If Broker is obligated to submit subsequent or backup offers, Seller will specifically provide in the contract for the sale of the Property with a buyer that Seller may continue to market the Property so that Broker may receive subsequent or backup offers, which will be submitted to Seller as received for consideration by Seller when the prior contract is terminated or renegotiated. If Seller enters into a contract to sell the Property that does not provide for the submission of backup offers, and Broker subsequently receives a subsequent or backup offer to purchase the Property, Broker will inform Seller and submit the subsequent or backup offer to Seller when the prior contract is terminated or renegotiated.

F.4. Broker will not be responsible in any manner for personal injury to Seller resulting from acts of third parties or loss of or damage to personal or real property due to vandalism, theft, freezing water pipes, or other causes, except the negligence or misconduct of Broker. If the Property becomes vacant during the term of this agreement, Seller will notify Seller's casualty insurance company and request that the insurance coverage regarding the Property be modified to include a "vacancy clause" to cover the Property. Broker will not be responsible for the security of the Property or for inspecting the Property on any periodic basis unless otherwise agreed in writing by Seller and Broker.

G. Broker's Representations and Covenants. Broker represents and warrants to, and covenants with, Seller as follows:
G.1. Broker is duly licensed as a real estate broker authorized to provide real estate brokerage services in accordance with this agreement by the Texas Real Estate Commission (the “Commission”) under the Texas Real Estate License Act (the “Act”), as amended, and will maintain that license in full force and effect at all times during the term of this agreement. All associates employed by Broker to assist with marketing and selling the Property, and all other brokers with whom Broker cooperates in connection with marketing and selling the Property, will be duly licensed by the Commission as real estate brokers or agents in accordance with the Act when any such services are rendered.

G.2. All activities by Broker and Broker’s associates hereunder will be conducted in strict compliance with the Act, the rules and regulations of the Commission, and all other provisions of applicable law, including, without limitation, all fair housing laws.

H. Seller’s Representations and Covenants. Seller represents and warrants to, and covenants with, Broker as follows:

H.1. Seller represents that (a) Seller has fee simple title to the Property, peaceable possession of the Property and all improvements and fixtures on the Property unless rented, and the legal capacity to convey the Property; (b) Seller is not now a party to a listing agreement with another broker for the sale, exchange, or lease of the Property; (c) no person or entity has any right to purchase, lease, or acquire the Property by virtue of a contract, option, right of first refusal, or other agreement; (d) there are no delinquencies or defaults under any deed of trust, mortgage, or other encumbrance on the Property; (e) the Property is not subject to the jurisdiction of any court whose permission or consent is required for the execution of this agreement or the sale, exchange, or other disposition of the Property; and (f) all information regarding the Property that has been provided by Seller to Broker, or that may be provided by Seller to Broker after the execution of this agreement, has been or will be, to the best of Seller’s knowledge, true, correct, and complete in all material respects.
H.2. Seller will cooperate fully and in good faith with Broker to facilitate the showing and marketing of the Property at Broker's sole cost and expense; not enter into any listing agreement with another broker for the sale, exchange, or lease of the Property to become effective during the term of this agreement, and provide Broker with copies of all leases or rental agreements pertaining to the Property, if any, and advise Broker of any tenants moving into or out of the Property.

H.3. Seller will provide Broker and all prospective buyers of the Property with disclosure notices regarding the condition of the Property, if and to the extent required by law. Seller authorizes Broker to deliver such disclosure notices to prospective buyers of the Property at or before the time a contract is executed for the sale, exchange, or other disposition of the Property. Seller agrees to complete all such disclosure notices based on Seller's best knowledge and belief and in a manner that discloses all material defects or facts concerning the Property that are actually known to Seller. Seller agrees to indemnify, defend, and hold Broker and Broker's associates harmless from any damages, costs, attorney's fees, or expenses arising from Seller's knowingly giving to Broker or Broker's associates or any buyer of the Property information regarding the Property that is actually known to Seller to be incorrect in any material respect or from Seller's failure to disclose to Broker or Broker's associates or any buyer of the Property any material information regarding the Property that is actually known to Seller.

H.4. Seller will furnish to a buyer of the Property (a) an owner policy of title insurance at Seller's expense for the basic premium cost of such policy (without regard to any modifications or endorsements) in the amount of the Sale Price and dated at or after the closing of the sale of the Property; (b) a [general/special] warranty deed conveying title to the Property subject only to liens securing payment of a debt created or assumed as part of the Sale Price, taxes for the current year, restrictive covenants and utility easements common to any platted subdivision in which the Property is located, and other reservations or exceptions that will not materially impair or interfere with the buyer's anticipated use of the Property or that are otherwise acceptable to the buyer; (c) property tax statements showing no delinquent taxes; and (d) copies of restrictive covenants and documents evidencing exceptions to any title commitment other than the standard printed title exceptions.

H.5. Seller will indemnify, defend, and hold Broker harmless from any damages, costs, attorney's fees, or expenses arising from acts of third parties or loss of or damage to personal or real property due to vandalism, theft, freezing of water pipes, or any other causes, except the negligence or misconduct of Broker.

H.6. Seller will furnish to the escrow or closing agent closing any sale or other disposition of the Property contemplated by this agreement such information regarding Seller and the transaction as the agent will require to report the transaction to the Internal Revenue Service in accordance with applicable law.

H.7. Unless otherwise specified by written notice from Seller to Broker, Seller represents that Seller is not a nonresident alien, foreign corporation, foreign partnership, foreign trust, foreign estate, or other foreign person, requiring a buyer of the Property to withhold a portion of the Sale Price under section 1445 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended. At or before the sale or other disposition of the Property, Seller will provide Broker and any buyer of the Property any affidavits and other information reasonably required to confirm the representations concerning the nonforeign status of Seller.

I. Termination for Cause. Either party is entitled to terminate this agreement before the Termination Date if the other party fails to perform its obligations under the agreement and the failure to perform is not cured to the reasonable satisfaction of the party giving written notice of such failure within thirty days after receipt of the notice. Except for a termination due to Broker's failure to be licensed under the Act, any such termination will not be effective with respect to any contract for the sale, exchange, or other disposition of the Property previously executed by Seller and a buyer that is then pending closing.

J. Attorney’s Fees. If [either/any] party retains an attorney to enforce this agreement, the party prevailing in litigation is entitled to recover reasonable attorney’s fees and court and other costs.

Broker’s Fee:

Agreement

In consideration of services to be performed by Broker, Seller appoints Broker as Seller’s sole and exclusive agent and grants to Broker the irrevocable and exclusive right to sell the Property for the price and on the terms described in this agreement.
A. Agreement and Term. This agreement will commence on the Commencement Date and will continue for a term that will expire at 11:59 P.M local time on the Termination Date. However, if there is a pending contract in effect on the Termination Date between Seller and a buyer and that transaction has not been closed and funded, this agreement will continue in effect beyond the Termination Date solely with respect to that contract until the earlier of the closing and funding of the transaction described in the contract or the termination of the contract in a manner permitted in the contract. The term of this agreement is also subject to extension and early termination as provided in this agreement.

B. Listing Price and Terms. Seller agrees to sell the Property for the Listing Price or any other price that Seller may accept. Unless otherwise agreed by Seller, the Property will be sold for cash, and Seller will not provide any financing with respect to the sale. Seller will pay the typical transaction and closing costs borne by or charged to sellers of real property in Texas.

C. Exclusive Agency Relationship. Unless otherwise specified by written agreement between Seller and Broker, it is understood and agreed that Broker will act solely as Seller’s agent in connection with the sale of the Property and that Broker is not authorized to act as an intermediary between Seller and any buyer of the Property.

D. Broker’s Fee. Seller will pay Broker the Broker’s Fee in cash if the Broker’s Fee is earned and payable in accordance with the following provisions:

   D.1. The Broker’s Fee will be earned and payable when the sale or exchange of the Property under a contract executed by Seller is finally closed and funded, whether this occurs during the term of this agreement or after the termination of this agreement.

   Or
D.1. The Broker’s Fee will be earned if Broker, during the term of this agreement, individually or in cooperation with another broker, procures a buyer who enters into a contract with Seller to buy the Property. The Broker’s Fee, once earned with respect to a particular sale or exchange of the Property, will be payable, either during the term of this agreement or after the termination of this agreement, on either of the following events: (a) the closing and funding of the sale or exchange of the Property or (b) Seller’s wrongful refusal to close the sale or exchange of the Property.

D.2. Unless otherwise provided in this agreement, the Broker’s Fee will be determined on the basis of the sale price (the “Sale Price”) specified in the contract between Seller and the buyer. If the disposition of the Property is consummated as an exchange of the Property for other property, the Sale Price of the Property will be deemed to be the Listing Price unless otherwise specified by Broker and Seller in writing.

D.3. If Seller breaches this agreement, or leases, rents, or otherwise transfers the Property without Broker’s prior written consent, the Broker’s Fee will be earned and payable at the time of the transaction and the Sale Price will be deemed to be the Listing Price for purposes of calculating the Broker’s Fee.

D.4. If a buyer with whom Seller has entered into a contract for the sale of the Property during the term of this agreement breaches that contract and Seller receives the buyer’s earnest money or a portion thereof as liquidated damages, Seller will pay Broker the lesser of one-half of the amount of the liquidated damages or the Broker’s Fee.

D.5. If litigation, mediation, or arbitration is instituted with respect to a contract between Seller and a buyer for the sale of the Property that is executed during the term of this agreement, and Seller collects all or a portion of the Sale Price or damages by judgment, compromise, settlement, or otherwise, Seller will pay Broker the lesser of (a) one-half of the amount collected after deduction of attorney’s fees and other expenses of collection or (b) the Broker’s Fee (determined after reducing the Sale Price by the amount of attorney’s fees or other expenses of collection).

D.6. Seller will not owe Broker the Broker’s Fee if a sale of the Property does not close or fund as a result of (a) Seller’s failure to deliver a title policy to a buyer, caused by Seller’s inability to cure the buyer’s title objections due to matters beyond Seller’s reasonable control; (b) Seller’s loss of ownership due to foreclosure, conveyance in lieu of foreclosure, or other legal proceeding; or (c) Seller’s failure to restore the Property following any casualty or condemnation to its previous condition by the closing date set forth in a contract for the sale of the Property.

D.7. Seller authorizes any escrow or closing agent authorized to close a transaction for the sale or other disposition of the Property contemplated in this agreement to collect and disburse to Broker the Broker’s Fee due under this agreement. Seller authorizes Broker to instruct any closing or escrow agent to collect and disburse the Broker’s Fee due under this agreement.

E. Protection Period. Subject to the conditions set forth in paragraph D. above, if, within ninety days after the termination of this agreement (the “Protection Period”), Seller enters into a contract to sell the Property to one of Broker’s Registered Buyers (as hereinafter defined) or sells, exchanges, or otherwise transfers an interest in the Property to one of Broker’s Registered Buyers, Seller will pay Broker the Broker’s Fee. For purposes of this agreement, the Broker’s Registered Buyers will consist only of those persons whose attention has been called to the Property by Broker, any other broker, or Seller during the term of this agreement, or with whom Broker, any other broker, or Seller has negotiated the sale, exchange, or other transfer of the Property during the term of this agreement, and whose names and addresses have been provided in writing by Broker to Seller within five days after the termination of this agreement. It is specifically understood and agreed, however, that the foregoing provisions regarding the Protection Period will not be applicable with respect to any sale, exchange, or other transfer of the Property that occurs after the termination of this agreement while the Property is listed exclusively with another broker.

F. Broker’s Duties and Authorities. During the term of this agreement, Broker will be authorized and required to take the following actions:

F.1. Broker will make reasonable efforts and act diligently to sell the Property in accordance with the terms of this agreement. Seller authorizes Broker and Broker’s associates, at Broker’s sole cost and expense, to (a) advertise the Property by the means and methods Broker reasonably determines to be appropriate for the Property based on then-current market practices for properties substantially similar to the Property; (b) place a “For Sale” sign on the Property in compliance with any state and local laws, rules, ordinances, restrictions, or covenants; (c) remove from the Property all other signs offering the Property for sale or lease; (d) furnish comparative marketing and sale information about other properties to prospective buyers; (e) disseminate information about the Property to other brokers and their associates through a multiple-listing service or such other means as Broker reasonably determines to be appropriate; (f) enter the Property, and accompany other brokers and their associates who wish to enter the Property, at reasonable times and, if the Property is then occupied, on reasonable advance notice, to show the Property to prospective buyers; (g) authorize property inspectors, appraisers, and repair personnel to enter the Property at reasonable times and, if the Property is then occupied, on reasonable notice, for pertinent purposes; (h) obtain information from any holder of any note secured by a lien on the Property concerning the note or lien, and (i) on a final and closed sale of the Property, disclose the Sale Price and terms to the local tax appraisal district and, if applicable, multiple-listing service.

F.2. Broker is not authorized to (a) execute any document in the name of or on behalf of Seller with respect to the Property, (b) authorize any repairs to the Property without Seller’s prior written consent, (c) authorize the expenditure of any funds on behalf of Seller without Seller’s prior written consent, (d) negotiate any earnest money deposit or other instrument in connection with the Property, or (e) use a “lock-box” for keys to the Property.

F.3. Broker will not be obligated to market the Property after Seller has entered into a binding contract unless the contract provides otherwise. If Broker is obligated to submit subsequent or backup offers, Seller will specifically provide in the contract for the sale of the Property with a buyer that Seller may continue to market the Property so that Broker may receive subsequent or backup offers, which will be submitted to Seller as received for consideration by Seller when the prior contract is terminated or renegotiated. If Seller enters into a contract to sell the Property that does not provide for the submission of backup offers, and Broker subsequently receives a subsequent or backup offer to purchase the Property, Broker will inform Seller and submit the subsequent or backup offer to Seller when the prior contract is terminated or renegotiated.

F.4. Broker will not be responsible in any manner for personal injury to Seller resulting from acts of third parties or loss of or damage to personal or real property due to vandalism, theft, freezing water pipes, or other causes, except the negligence or misconduct of Broker. If the Property becomes vacant during the term of this agreement, Seller will notify Seller’s casualty insurance company and request that the insurance coverage regarding the Property be modified to include a “vacancy clause” to cover the Property. Broker will not be responsible for the security of the Property or for inspecting the Property on any periodic basis unless otherwise agreed in writing by Seller and Broker.

G. Broker’s Representations and Covenants. Broker represents and warrants to, and covenants with, Seller as follows:

G.1. Broker is duly licensed as a real estate broker authorized to provide real estate brokerage services in accordance with this agreement by the Texas Real Estate Commission (the “Commission”) under the Texas Real Estate License Act (the “Act”), as amended, and will maintain that license in full force and effect at all times during the term of this agreement. All associates employed by Broker to assist with marketing and selling the Property, and all other brokers with whom Broker cooperates in connection with marketing and selling the Property, will be duly licensed by the Commission as real estate brokers or agents in accordance with the Act when any such services are rendered.

G.2. All activities by Broker and Broker's associates hereunder will be conducted in strict compliance with the Act, the rules and regulations of the Commission, and all other provisions of applicable law, including, without limitation, all fair housing laws.

Broker; (c) not enter into any listing agreement with another broker for the sale, exchange, or lease of the Property to become effective during the term of this agreement; and (d) provide Broker with copies of all leases or rental agreements pertaining to the Property, if any, and advise Broker of any tenants moving into or out of the Property.

H.3. Seller will provide Broker and all prospective buyers of the Property with disclosure notices regarding the condition of the Property, if and to the extent required by law. Seller authorizes Broker to deliver such disclosure notices to prospective buyers of the Property at or before the time a contract is executed for the sale, exchange, or other disposition of the Property. Seller agrees to complete all such disclosure notices based on Seller’s best knowledge and belief and in a manner that discloses all material defects or facts concerning the Property that are actually known to Seller. Seller agrees to indemnify, defend, and hold Broker and Broker’s associates harmless from any damages, costs, attorney’s fees, or expenses arising from Seller’s knowingly giving to Broker or Broker’s associates or any buyer of the Property information regarding the Property that is actually known to Seller to be incorrect in any material respect or from Seller’s failure to disclose to Broker or Broker’s associates or any buyer of the Property any material information regarding the Property that is actually known to Seller.

H.4. Seller will furnish to a buyer of the Property (a) an owner policy of title insurance at Seller’s expense for the basic premium cost of such policy (without regard to any modifications or endorsements) in the amount of the Sale Price and dated at or after the closing of the sale of the Property; (b) a [general/special] warranty deed conveying title to the Property subject only to liens securing payment of a debt created or assumed as part of the Sale Price, taxes for the current year, restrictive covenants and utility easements common to any platted subdivision in which the Property is located, and other reservations or exceptions that will not materially impair or interfere with the buyer’s anticipated use of the Property or that are otherwise acceptable to the buyer; (c) property tax statements showing no delinquent

H.6. Seller will furnish to the escrow or closing agent closing any sale or other disposition of the Property contemplated by this agreement such information regarding Seller and the transaction as such agent will require to report the transaction to the Internal Revenue Service in accordance with applicable law.

H.7. Unless otherwise specified by written notice from Seller to Broker, Seller represents that Seller is not a nonresident alien, foreign corporation, foreign partnership, foreign trust, foreign estate, or other foreign person, requiring a buyer of the Property to withhold a portion of the Sale Price under section 1445 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended. At or before the sale or other disposition of the Property, Seller will provide Broker and any buyer of the Property any affidavits and other information reasonably required to confirm the representations concerning the nonforeign status of Seller.

I. Termination for Cause. Either party is entitled to terminate this agreement before the Termination Date if the other party fails to perform its obligations under the agreement and the failure to perform is not cured to the reasonable satisfaction of the party giving written notice of such failure within thirty days after receipt of the notice. Except for a termination due to Broker's failure to be licensed under the Act, any such termination will not be effective with respect to any contract for the sale, exchange, or other disposition of the Property previously executed by Seller and a buyer that is then pending closing.

D.7. Seller will not owe Broker the Broker’s Fee in connection with any transaction in which the buyer or other party to the transaction was procured by Seller directly or through the services of another broker without the assistance or participation of Broker.

E. Protection Period. Subject to the conditions set forth in paragraph D. above, if, within ninety days after the termination of this agreement (the “Protection Period”), Seller enters into a contract to sell the Property to one of Broker’s Registered Buyers (as hereinafter defined) or sells, exchanges, or otherwise transfers an interest in the Property to one of Broker’s Registered Buyers, Seller will pay Broker the Broker’s Fee. For purposes of this agreement, the Broker’s Registered Buyers will consist only of those persons whose attention has been called to the Property by Broker during the term of this agreement, or with whom Broker has negotiated the sale, exchange, or other transfer of the Property during the term of this agreement, and whose names and addresses have been provided in writing by Broker to Seller within five days after the termination of this agreement. It is specifically understood and agreed, however, that the foregoing provisions regarding the Protection Period will not be applicable with respect to any sale, exchange, or other transfer of the Property that occurs after the termination of this agreement while the Property is listed exclusively with another broker.

F. Broker’s Duties and Authorities. During the term of this agreement, Broker will be authorized and required to take the following actions:

F.1. Broker will make reasonable efforts and act diligently to sell the Property in accordance with the terms of this agreement. seller's casualty insurance company and request that the insurance coverage regarding the property be modified to include a "vacancy clause" to cover the property. Broker will not be responsible for the security of the property or for inspecting the property on any periodic basis unless otherwise agreed in writing by seller and broker.

Seller agrees to indemnify, defend, and hold Broker and Broker's associates harmless from any damages, costs, attorney's fees, or expenses arising from Seller's knowingly giving to Broker or Broker's associates or any buyer of the Property information regarding the Property that is actually known to Seller to be incorrect in any material respect or from Seller's failure to disclose to Broker or Broker's associates or any buyer of the Property any material information regarding the Property that is actually known to Seller.

H.6. Seller will furnish to the escrow or closing agent closing any sale or other disposition of the Property contemplated by this agreement such information regarding Seller and the transaction as the agent will require to report the transaction to the Internal Revenue Service in accordance with applicable law.

H.7. Unless otherwise specified by written notice from Seller to Broker, Seller represents that Seller is not a nonresident alien, foreign corporation, foreign partnership, foreign trust, foreign estate, or other foreign person, requiring a buyer of the Property to withhold a portion of the Sale Price under section 1445 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended. At or before the sale or other disposition of the Property, Seller will provide Broker and any buyer of the Property any affidavits and other information reasonably required to confirm the representations concerning the nonforeign status of Seller.

I. Termination for Cause. Either party is entitled to terminate this agreement before the Termination Date if the other party fails to perform its obligations under the agreement and the failure to perform is not cured to the reasonable satisfaction of the party giving written notice of such failure within thirty days after receipt of the notice. Except for a termination due to Broker’s failure to be licensed under the Act, any such termination will not be effective with respect to any contract for the sale, exchange, or other disposition of the Property previously executed by Seller and a buyer that is then pending closing.
J. Attorney’s Fees. If [either/any] party retains an attorney to enforce this agreement, the party prevailing in litigation is entitled to recover reasonable attorney’s fees and court and other costs.

Pursuit of any remedies set forth in this agreement does not preclude pursuit of other remedies in this agreement or provided by law.

Form 26-33

This form is used to evidence a buyer’s acceptance of property subject to a disclaimer of warranties by the seller.

Property Condition Disclaimer

Date:

Seller:

Seller’s Address:

Buyer:

Buyer’s Address:

Transaction: The purchase of the Property by Buyer from Seller.

Buyer’s Reliance Items: [List items of information regarding the property that the seller has provided to the buyer.]

Property:

[Closing Documents.]

Consideration: The same consideration exchanged in the Transaction; in addition, Buyer’s stipulation that Seller has sold the Property at the purchase price in this Transaction on the basis that this disclaimer is a material part of the Transaction, and Seller would have required additional consideration had this disclaimer not been a part of the Transaction.

For the Consideration stated, Buyer agrees and represents to Seller as follows:
1. Inspections. Buyer has been entitled to inspect every aspect of the Property to Buyer’s satisfaction, and Buyer has actually inspected to Buyer’s satisfaction each aspect of the Property considered to be a substantial or material factor by Buyer in making the decision to complete the Transaction.

2. Importance of Disclaimer. Buyer is taking the Property in an arm’s-length agreement between the parties. The Consideration was bargained on the basis of an “As Is, Where Is” transaction and reflects the agreement of the parties that there are no representations or express or implied warranties [include if applicable: , except for the warranty of title stated in the [Deed/Closing Documents] [and Seller’s representations and warranties to Buyer set forth in the Sales Contract]]. This disclaimer is not an incidental or boilerplate provision. Buyer and Seller have relatively equal bargaining positions.

3. Level of Buyer’s Knowledge. Buyer understands that Buyer has the right to employ professionals to advise Buyer on every aspect of the Property, and Buyer has agreed not to rely on Seller for such information.

4. Absence of Seller Representations. Other than for the Buyer’s Reliance Items, which Seller has furnished to Buyer and on which Buyer is relying, Buyer is not relying on any of Seller’s representations, statements, or assertions concerning the Property. Buyer is not relying on Seller to provide any information about the Property that Buyer has not independently verified. Other than the Buyer’s Reliance Items, Buyer is relying solely on Buyer’s independent verifications, rather than Seller’s information, assertions, statements, or representations. Other than the Buyer’s Reliance Items, any information, assertions, statements, or representations made by Seller or Seller’s representatives have been recognized as puffing or opinion. Further, if such information, assertions, statements, or representations were or are incorrect, their insignificance to Buyer would not be affected, and they would not constitute misrepresentations of material fact.
5. Waiver of Warranties. Buyer is not relying on any representations, disclosures, or express or implied warranties other than those expressly contained in this disclosure [include as applicable: the contract, the closing documents, and [describe other documents]]. Buyer is not relying on any information regarding the property provided by any person, other than Buyer's own inspection and the representations and warranties contained in this disclosure, the contract, and the closing documents.

6. Dangerous Conditions. Buyer has thoroughly inspected the property to determine the existence of any conditions posing unreasonable risk of harm. To the extent such conditions have been discovered, Buyer will prevent persons from being subject to the risks of such conditions and Buyer will exercise reasonable care to reduce or eliminate the risks.

7. Consequences of Disclaimer. Buyer understands that, by executing this disclaimer, Buyer has agreed to make Buyer's own appraisal of the bargain and to accept the risk that Buyer may be wrong. Furthermore, Buyer agrees not to hold Seller liable if the Property turns out to be worth less than the price paid or if the Property turns out to have patent or latent defects that Buyer has not discovered before closing. Instead, Buyer would be the sole cause of any loss occasioned by the foregoing, because Buyer is relying on surveys, elevation analyses, appraisals, inspections, and other analyses conducted only by Buyer's representatives, in determining the condition, suitability, and value of the Property, or because Buyer has been free to conduct such analyses but has chosen not to do so.

8. Permits. Buyer is solely responsible for determining what, if any, permits, licenses, certificates, and the like (collectively, the "Permits") are necessary for Buyer's intended uses of the Property. Buyer is solely responsible for taking all necessary steps to obtain any such Permits that Buyer deems necessary for Buyer's intended uses of the Property.
9. No Reliance of Buyer on Seller's Disclosure Notice. Buyer has not relied on any of the information contained in the [select one of the following: Seller's Disclosure Notice (TAR)/Seller's Disclosure of Property Condition (TREC Residential)/Commercial Property Condition Statement (TAR Commercial)], if one has been provided in connection with the transaction.

10. Survival. Buyer’s agreements with and representations to Seller made in this disclaimer will survive closing.

11. Construction. When the context requires, singular nouns and pronouns include the plural.

This form permits a principal to designate an agent. The specific powers granted may be selected from the suggested powers shown in the form. Additional provisions that further limit the grant of power should be considered. This form of power of attorney is durable, that is, it survives the disability of the principal. Although the power of attorney may be made a springing power, effective on the disability of the principal, this form does not contain such a provision. The form must be filed for record in the county in which the real estate is located not later than thirty days after the recordation of each instrument signed by the agent. Tex. Est. Code § 751.151. See the section titled “Durable Powers of Attorney” in chapter 2 of this manual for the various special requirements relating to a durable power of attorney. See also the Durable Power of Attorney Act, Tex. Est. Code ch. 751.

There is a “statutory durable power of attorney” form provided for in chapter 752 of the Texas Estates Code. See Tex. Est. Code § 752.051. It has broad, sweeping, detailed powers and can be used for real estate transactions as well as a wide variety of other transactions.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION FOR AGENT

Agent’s Duties

When you accept the authority granted under this power of attorney, you establish a “fiduciary” relationship with the principal. This is a special legal relationship that imposes on you legal duties that continue until you resign or the power of attorney is terminated, suspended, or revoked by the principal or by operation of law. A fiduciary duty generally includes the duty to:

1. act in good faith;

2. do nothing beyond the authority granted in this power of attorney;

3. act loyally for the principal’s benefit;

4. avoid conflicts that would impair your ability to act in the principal’s best interest, and

5. disclose your identity as an agent when you act for the principal by writing or printing the name of the principal and signing your own name as “agent” in the following manner:

   (Principal’s Name) by (Your Signature) as Agent

In addition, the Durable Power of Attorney Act (Subtitle P, Title 2, Estates Code) requires you to:

1. maintain records of each action taken or decision made on behalf of the principal;

2. maintain all records until delivered to the principal, released by the principal, or discharged by a court; and
(3) if requested by the principal, provide an accounting to the principal that, unless otherwise directed by the principal or otherwise provided in the Special Instructions, must include:

(A) the property belonging to the principal that has come to your knowledge or into your possession;

(B) each action taken or decision made by you as agent;

(C) a complete account of receipts, disbursements, and other actions of you as agent that includes the source and nature of each receipt, disbursement, or action, with receipts of principal and income shown separately;

(D) a listing of all property over which you have exercised control that includes an adequate description of each asset and the asset's current value, if known to you;

(E) the cash balance on hand and the name and location of the depository at which the cash balance is kept;

(F) each known liability;

(G) any other information and facts known to you as necessary for a full and definite understanding of the exact condition of the property belonging to the principal; and

(H) all documentation regarding the principal's property.

Termination of Agent's Authority

You must stop acting on behalf of the principal if you learn of any event that terminates or suspends this power of attorney or your authority under this power of attorney. An event that terminates this power of attorney or your authority to act under this power of attorney includes:

(1) the principal’s death;

(2) the principal’s revocation of this power of attorney or your authority;

(3) the occurrence of a termination event stated in this power of attorney;

(4) if you are married to the principal, the dissolution of your marriage by a court decree of divorce or annulment or declaration that your marriage is void, unless otherwise provided in this power of attorney;

(5) the appointment and qualification of a permanent guardian of the principal’s estate unless a court order provides otherwise; or

(6) if ordered by a court, your removal as agent (attorney in fact) under this power of attorney. An event that suspends this power of attorney or your authority to act under this power of attorney is the appointment and qualification of a temporary guardian unless a court order provides otherwise.

Liability of Agent

The authority granted to you under this power of attorney is specified in the Durable Power of Attorney Act (Subtitle P, Title 2, Estates Code). If you violate the Durable Power of Attorney Act or act beyond the authority granted, you may be liable for any damages caused by the violation or subject to prosecution for misapplication of property by a fiduciary under Chapter 32 of the Texas Penal Code.

THE AGENT, BY ACCEPTING OR ACTING UNDER THE APPOINTMENT, ASSUMES THE FIDUCIARY AND OTHER LEGAL RESPONSIBILITIES OF AN AGENT.
Certification of Durable Power of Attorney by Agent

I, ______________________________ (agent), certify under penalty of perjury that:

1. I am the agent named in the power of attorney validly executed by ____________________________ (principal) ("principal") on __________ (date), and the power of attorney is now in full force and effect.

2. The principal is not deceased and is presently domiciled in ____________________________ (city and state/territory or foreign country).

3. To the best of my knowledge after diligent search and inquiry:
   a. The power of attorney has not been revoked by the principal or suspended or terminated by the occurrence of any event, whether or not referenced in the power of attorney;

f. No proceeding has been commenced for a temporary or permanent guardianship of the person or estate, or both, of the principal; and

g. The exercise of my authority is not prohibited by another agreement or instrument.

10. Waiver of Default. It is not a waiver of or consent to default if the nondefaulting Party fails to declare immediately a default or delays in taking any action. Pursuit of any remedies set forth in this Agreement does not preclude pursuit of other remedies in this Agreement or provided by law.

11. Further Assurances. Each signatory Party agrees to execute and deliver any additional documents and instruments and to perform any additional acts necessary or appropriate to perform the terms, provisions, and conditions of this Agreement and all transactions contemplated by this Agreement.

12. Integration. This Agreement contains the complete agreement of the Parties and cannot be varied except by written agreement of the Parties. The Parties agree that there are no oral agreements, representations, or warranties that are not expressly set forth in this Agreement.

13. Legal Construction. If any provision in this Agreement is for any reason unenforceable, to the extent the unenforceability does not destroy the basis of the bargain among the Parties, the unenforceability will not affect any other provision hereof, and this Agreement will be construed as if the unenforceable provision had never been a part of the Agreement. Whenever context requires, the singular will include the plural and neuter include the masculine or feminine gender, and vice versa. Article and section headings in this Agreement are for reference only and are not intended to restrict or define the text of any section. This Agreement will not be construed more or less favorably between the Parties by reason of authorship or origin of language.

14. Notices. Any notice required or permitted under this Agreement must be in writing. Any notice required by this Agreement will be deemed to be delivered (whether actually received or not) when deposited with the United States Postal Service, postage prepaid, certified mail, return receipt requested, and addressed to the intended recipient at the address shown in this Agreement. Notice may also be given by regular mail, personal delivery, courier delivery, facsimile transmission, or other commercially reasonable means and will be effective when actually received. Any address for notice may be changed by written notice delivered as provided herein.

15. Time. Time is of the essence. Unless otherwise specified, all references to “days” mean calendar days. Business days exclude Saturdays, Sundays, and legal public holidays. If the date for performance of any obligation falls on a Saturday, Sunday, or legal public holiday, the date for performance will be the next following regular business day.

16. Rights Reserved. Each Party reserves for that Party and that Party’s heirs, successors, and assigns the right to continue to use and enjoy the surface of the Properties for all purposes that do not unreasonably interfere with or interrupt the use or enjoyment of the Roadway.

17. Equitable Rights of Enforcement. This Roadway may be enforced by restraining orders and injunctions (temporary or permanent) prohibiting interference and commanding compliance. Restraining orders and injunctions will be obtainable on proof of the existence of interference or threatened interference, without the necessity of proof of inadequacy of legal remedies or irreparable harm, and will be obtainable only by the Parties to or those benefited by this Agreement, provided, however, that the act of obtaining an injunction or restraining order will not be deemed to be an election of remedies or a waiver of any other rights or remedies available at law or in equity.

Appendix

Third-Party Legal Opinion Letters

Lenders often require a borrower's counsel to issue a legal opinion letter to the lender on certain aspects of a loan transaction, including, among other matters, an opinion regarding the borrower's legal status and the enforceability of the lender's loan documents. Historically, the initial form of the legal opinion letter is presented to the borrower's counsel by the lender or its counsel. Although several national, state, and local private attorney organizations and bar association groups have published suggested standard third-party legal opinion letter formats for use in rendering a third-party legal opinion letter, neither a single opinion format nor a single standard for interpreting the opinions included in an opinion letter has been universally accepted by lenders, borrowers, or their respective legal counsel. Information and guidance on the preparation and use of third-party legal opinion letters may be obtained from sources listed in the selected bibliography in this appendix. Additional information can be obtained from the Legal Opinion Resource Center at https://www.americanbar.org/groups/business_law/migrated/tribar.

Several of the articles listed in the bibliography discuss the Texas Supreme Court case of McCamish, Martin, Brown & Loeffler v. F.E. Appling Interests, 991 S.W.2d 787, 791 (Tex. 1999), which held that attorneys (as well as other professionals) could be liable in Texas for the tort of negligent misrepresentation, as defined by the Restatement (Second) of Torts § 552 (1977). Even as the supreme court reaffirmed the availability in Texas of the defense of a lack of privity in legal malpractice cases, it noted several times that section 552 does not require privity to impose liability for negligent misrepresentation or implicate the policy concerns behind the privity rule. See McCamish, 991 S.W.2d at 792–93, 795.

As the supreme court pointed out in McCamish, an attorney can be liable to a nonclient for negligent misrepresentation based on the issuance of an opinion letter; however, section 552 limits liability to situations in which (1) the attorney who provides the false information is aware of the nonclient and intends that the nonclient rely on the false information and (2) the nonclient justifiably relies on the false information. See McCamish, 991 S.W.2d at 793–94. Furthermore, the supreme court expressly recognized that "[a] lawyer may also avoid or minimize the risk of liability to a nonclient by setting forth (1) limitations as to whom the representation is directed and who should rely on it, or (2) disclaimers as to the scope and accuracy of the factual investigation or assumptions forming the basis of the representation or the representation itself." See McCamish, 991 S.W.2d at 794. The foregoing quote explains a good deal of the scope of reliance disclaimers in current third-party opinion letter practice.
